Magical.

Something must be allowed as to the reader's apprehension with respect to this term. Tales of magicians, and enchanters contain much of imagination; and usually much that is exaggerated. Magic, in connexion with astrology, is commonly regarded as coming to Europe with the Moors into Spain; from Africa, and ulteriorly from Arabia. Tasso seems to identify magic with the Saracens. And, to the present day, if any thing magical is concocted for the press, the chief actor is a dark stranger who talks Arabic, and practices his rites only at midnight; drawing circles around himself, for self-defence, and evoking sable imps, or demons. The magic of the late Sir Walter Scott, in his Minstrel, is as absurd as his astrology in Guy Mannering. From want of definite ideas, the mind paints to itself its own notions on the subject. And perhaps every notion, or conception, or prepossession, on the subject should be laid aside; in order to a right apprehension, and appreciation of the matter as contained in the present volume.

There was more, on the subject, interspersed through the first volume (especially under the heading Miscellaneous) than was at once fully perceived, or understood. But it was so mixed up with other matter, as not to be well capable of being discerpted; had it even been fully known. It was felt right to postpone this article to the second volume—a little out of alphabetical order—because, there was not before enough, nor sufficiently well eliminated, to bear out the statements now to be made.

The collector of these books seems to have set out with inquiries, and in-gatherings on this point, and the one closely connected of the Sacti worship. The earliest numbering of books runs on those two topics to a considerable extent; which books are known in the Library as mantra pustacams. They relate to a subject little known, and less understood; and are usually indistinctly indicated, as tantrica rites. There is said to be a right hand, and a left hand way; the latter being an objectionable one. Prof. Wilson only occasionally hinted at the subject of the sacti worship, but left it disguised, or mystified: perhaps he knew no more than was communicated to him by cautious men. But, in the present volume, there are books with full details on magic, and sacti mysteries. The two are closely connected; but an endeavour will be made to discriminate; because though magic rites are uniformly connected with the sacti worship, they are also connected with other systems, Jaina and Vaishnava; but more specially with the Saiva system-proper, or that which recognizes the masculine, and feminine energies in the works of creation; and with some preponderance to the masculine. The main characteristic of Rudra or Siva, being that of Sancara or the destroyer, malignant spells come more within the province of the Saiva, than either of the Jaina or Vaishnava creed. The Jainas, leaning over to the feminine energy, deal more in fire-offerings connected with spells, than the Vaishnavas; the system of the latter left to itself, being milder than others. But all classes, and all natives are tinctured with magical notions, and carry on such practices. Native doctors of all creeds, deal in charms, and spells. Native servants of all kinds, use them. It is of importance that Europeans should be on their guard; that they should be aware of the evil, and of its extent. In this point of view the collection is a public benefit. And with regard to such as wish the regeneration of India it is desirable that they should know the subjects with whom they have to deal, and, what kind of recondite opposition they have to contend against. Astrology was before pointed out, as one obstacle; magic is another one.

The more formal operations of a religious, that is, magical kind are connected with fire-offerings. Previously, the locality selected whether by day or by night, is to be purified by exorcism. A binding the guardians of the eight points of the heavens is a necessary part of the ceremonies; and it is this perhaps which gave rise to, or is connected with European tales of the magician drawing circles around himself, standing fixed, arms crossed, turning round with eyes directed to different quarters, and connected sounds muttered. The binding those guardians not to interfere is a muttered spell. Fire-pits are made to represent the sun, moon and planets. They are to be posited properly with respect to the points in the heavens. Suitable offerings to each one are provided; and such as are consumable are burnt by fire. The favourable influences of the planets are then supposed to be brought down to the fire-pits, and to aid in the operations. Possibly this is the true explanation of stories of witches bringing the laboring moon down to the earth; with poetical and fanciful absurdities. It is not the moon, but its influences brought down; by simile, as the rays of the moon may be concentrated, by a lens, on any given spot of ground. But, besides spells to the planets, there are others addressed to mystic and invisible beings; a variety of names of such appearing passim in detail. In this part the essence of the magical rites more properly consist. The spell so addressed has two parts. The yentra or diagram which varies greatly in form, with reference to the being addressed, and the object intended to be accomplished. Destructive spells of the Saiva kind are marked by the sulam or trident of Siva pointing outwards in various directions. Some yentras are square, or square within a square; circles, triangles, irregular polygons; and these inscribed, or circumscribed with reference one to the other; some are in form of animals; some with human form; and these last are usually deadly in intent. The proper diagrams must be drawn with attendant ceremonies. Next, to each power invoked there is a peculiar letter, usually syllabic: known as the bija. This is all potent as to that power. Other syallables are inserted in other places, devoid of known meaning; usually very harsh in pronunciation. These different syllables are to be whispered, muttered, or otherwise sounded, a prescribed number of times; often very many. When the operator is tired, as it may well be supposed is the case; then an act of intensitive meditation is to follow. The mind retraces the whole operation; fixes attention on the diagram, which represents the power invoked, considers all that is known of such power; and adds the longing wish that the rite may succeed, to produce the ishta siddhi or accomplished desire. So far as known, with this act, the operation ends.

But, in some spells, hairs, feathers, bones, different herbs or roots, called at particular times, as midnight, the new moon, or an eclipse, are used; and in others cruental sacrifices of birds or animals; and last, not least, lumps of human flesh, or sacrifice of whole human victims in past times; said to be no longer practised. Less malignant, but deadly in intent, is the making an image to represent any one wrought against; sometimes taking a stone, with a like typical reference; or, with ceremonies like the above, digging a pit, burying the image, or the stone; sitting over the spot when filled up; muttering the syllabic spells a great number of times; and returning often to the spot to repeat the spells in the expectation of successful fulfilment.

In matters less formal, but more common it is a practice to use certain materials, many of them very disgusting, which are contrived to be administered to people in their food, or drink, or with presented betel, chunam and areca. The mingling up is attended with spells, and the administration, if direct, is accompanied by them. This practice is universal; and details of objects appear throughout, and other medical books. All persons of any influence should be on their guard against such malpractices.

While books, whether palm-leaf or paper, containing those spells, have been held in the hand, and attention has been directed to the various diagrams and figures, often very badly drawn, a perception of puerility, or else of extreme senility, has been produced. It was difficult to refrain from emotions of contempt, for these supposed powerful, but apparently powerless things, like a dead snake, with its head cut off. But on a little further, and after-consideration it appeared that such perception, or emotion was not quite the correct decision. An illustration, by analogy, may be permitted. It must be remembered, that what is here termed magical is, by the native practisers, deemed religious: they are doing acts of worship, and appealing to their gods by such proceedings. Now then, take a comparison, that touches only on one point: the English liturgy is contained in a book which many regard aright; by a greater number perhaps it is looked on, as a book, with contempt, and this may arise from irreligion, or difference of religious sentiment. As a book, such may be the case; but let any such despiser attend a Cathedral service when the ritual is decently conducted, and with all attendants of rank and dignity, and pomp of circumstance. Is contempt then possible? Not so in reality; it may be feigned, or expressed, but it will not be real. If the attendant be a patient observer, an impression of grandeur, and solemnity, and awe will creep over the mind, and imprison its idler faculties: A something indefinable will be experienced; and, at the lowest, the individual will feel that, for the time, he has been breathing an atmosphere, not that of this world. Such—but on the opposite scale, may be the effect on the mind of the operator in the dark mysteries of magic; and how far such operations may extend in the invisible world, who can tell? Let no one be offended by the above analogy; there is only one point of contact intended; which is, the difference between a rubric, or tantra, and a prayer, or mantra, when seen in a book, and the entire effect of a ritual, to both eye, and ear, in its solemnization. If the analogy be still deemed inadmissable, then consider the scene of Shakespeare's witches in Macbeth; simply read over, and with ludicrous ideas of the hags introduced, the language almost excites risibility; but it has been understood (never seen) that the exhibition on the stage produces a dim feeling of horror, and in a manner freezes the blood of spectators. In the magical rites, now treated on, it does not appear that there are spectators; unless it may be members of one family, or accomplices, equally interested in the performance. Besides himself therefore the effect must be traced, as far as may be, into the invisible world. Here then we have two classes of minds to deal with. "The Sadducees say, that there is—neither angel, nor spirit; but the Pharisees confess both." With the absolute sceptic, conviction is hopeless. Such as admit angels and spirits, will also admit that both are of two classes, good and evil. Now such spells, as are at present under notice, are not directed to good spirits; though some other precative forms used by heathens possibly may. But the object of magical rites is uniformly sensual, or covetous, or ambitious, or malignant, or destructive: such as bad angels and spirits delight to produce or to foster. Now, such beings becoming accustomed to certain signs and sounds and symbols; and perceiving the intent, may promote it by means unseen and unknown to us. The sonorous, or harsh, crashing, clanging, discordant syllabic letters may be intelligible music to them; and the matters offered: even the hair, blood, or flesh of victims may appease, or gratify them. If not—and if magical practices are a mere nonentity, wasted on the unconscious air, how can we account for an almost universal faith in such things, and an almost universal practice of them. The Egyptian priests used magic rites; the Babylonian* hierophants did so. Arabians practised them. They were common in Phœnicia; they crept into Judea†. They pervaded Greece: the Mysteries were connected with magic. The barbarous northern tribes used such rites. From a very modern work (Harris' account of an embassy to the Court of Shoa in South Abyssinia) it is seen, from one of the tales introduced, that rites to the spirits of the deep, such as described above are practised there. Europe, though a garden comparitively, is not to this day thoroughly weeded of magic and magicians. Throughout the length and breadth of what is known as India, such rites have been immemorially practised; and are still every where common. If there had been absolutely no sucess, even if there had not been a large preponderance of success over failure, such things would not have continued. Of what use to practise, what uniformly or most commonly issues in failure? It results that these rites must have prevailingly succeeded; and, as the objects to be accomplished are often beyond unassisted human powers, it follows, that supernatural agency must have concurred. There seems a reality in the charge of "having dealings with powers of darkness." And a very strong argument is superadded to others of the importance of weaning the minds of Natives wholly from such customs; turning them to a pure language, and ennobling them by teaching them to rely on the Providence, and all-sufficiency of God, the wise, the beneficent, the ineffably pure; as their best stay, support, and surety. The writer of the foregoing remarks, during a long residence, and all sorts of exposure, among natives, good or bad, benevolent or malignant, has relied on no other aid; and has hitherto found it to be, in times of peril, as at all other times, a sufficient security.

* 2 Kings, chapter xvii, v. 17.

† Layard, in connexion with his excavation on the site of the Tower of Babel, has much matter of this kind; and he exhibits copies of counter spells, in Hebrew; made use of probably by unwilling captives in self-defence.

Medical.

In so far as the books of this collection are concerned, there is a much closer connexion between this section and the foregoing one of magical, than could be desired. As far as we know, such was the case in the earliest ages. A document written nearly two thousand years since, classes pharmacopeia (rendered "witchcraft") with eidololatria or idolatry, and various other malpractices. This very word pharmacopeia was adopted both by the London and Edinburgh Colleges, for their lists of materia medica; of course with inoffensive meaning. Anciently it would appear to have borne the sense of sorcery; or the use of herbs, roots, simples, called at particular times; and mixed up with other ingredients; to be used for the purpose of stupifying, bewildering, fascinating, drawing over to any evil, or sensual purpose; and no inconsiderable portion of medical science, as contained in this catalogue, is directed to like purposes; as may be seen under the term vasyam in detail. There is also observable a connexion with astrology; and a still more close relation to magic, in reference to spells: the bála chicasa or exorcism of evil spirits, supposed to possess very young children, is a regular part of the medical art; as well as spells used, with medicines, in the abovementioned objects of enticing, or drawing over to any particular purpose. It would seem from such accounts as are given by European medical writers, that the state of medicine in the middle ages, in Europe, very much resembled its present state among native practitioners in India. Some paragraphs in Dr. Willich's Lectures on diet and regimen, chap. 1, may be referred to as defining what is meant; they might be quoted, in illustration, only for a dash of caricature, which rather injures their value.

With so much of remark on defective, or censurable portions of the native medical art, it may be stated, on the other hand, that as the different books underwent examination, and brief notation, an impression was left; to the effect, that Europeans have not properly understood or rightly valued the better portions of native medical knowledge. A noble exception exists in the Materia Medica of the Hindus, by Dr. Whitelaw Ainslie, whose work would bear the being edited by an Orientalist, and reprinted. So far as I know, allusions to the subject by Europeans appear to treat native practise as sheer ignorance, or mere quackery. Much of European art turns on a knowledge of anatomy, necessary to surgeons; but not so needful in minute details to the healing art. In anatomy the natives are sadly deficient; but in a variety of curative matters, they are not inexpert. In diagnosis, prognosis, and the remedial portion of their art, I have thought, I perceived much deserving commendation. I do not pretend to medical science; and therefore can only give an opinion with great diffidence. The theory, and the better part of the practice of native doctors, would seem to assimilate very much with those of Galen and Hippocrates, so far as scattered notices of their works may enable a sciolist to judge. The natives are not ignorant of the doctrine of temperaments; but seem to leave out the sanguine. Their uniform theory that all diseases may be traced to excess, or irregularity in wind, bile, phlegm, gives somewhat of a peculiarity to their system. It would perhaps be desirable, that large portions of native medical books should be translated with care. The practice of European physicians in India seems very much based on rules and prescriptions framed in Europe. But the two climates differ so much that the same practice cannot be always safe in both. While it is admitted that there are cases beyond native skill, it must also be admitted that there have been cases wherein native practice has succeeded, when European skill had failed. I am in possession of details; but they would be out of place here.

It was noted during examination, that books in the Sanscrit language are incomparably the best; and, next in order, are those Telugu books, that are versions, or paraphrases, of Sancrit books, and professedly based on such books. The Tamil language possesses among medical works of another order; most of them spuriously ascribed to Agastya. None of these occur in the 1st and 2nd volumes of this work; but there are several to be classed in the 3rd volume. It is believed that the theory and the practice in these Tamil books, differ considerably from those of remotely northern books; and it is the Tamil rule which guides native practitioners that speak the Tamil language. The rules are folded up in obscure and difficult sutras; and the system, if thought worthy of being brought to light, could only be educed by the aid of men well versed in this system; who would give the recondite meaning in plainer and more paraphrastic language.

In addition to the practices adverted to in the 1st paragraph of this heading, truth demands that matters of a still darker shade be not omitted. It is believed that native practitioners of a lower order deal freely in the matter of procured abortions; and for very trifling remuneration. Native feminine virtue is not severe, if the rules of caste are not transgressed; and it is rendered less so by the facility of procuring abortion; either from native midwives or doctors. Occasionally however, the unhappy female pays the forfeiture of life, for her fault. Another dark shade is the use of poison. When editing the larger portion of the late Dr. Rottler's Tamil and English Dictionary, my attention was excited by the multiplicity of terms employed to denote preparations of arsenic: many of them such as would raise ideas of a curative or beneficent character. Such terms induce a suspicion that all is not right in native practise; and many minor incidents have occurred to confirm the doubt. A commission to inquire into the state and practise of native medicine, might develope things terrible or disgusting; at the same time it would place the good portion of native practice on a better basis than now; and it might suggest useful hints and improvements to the Pharmacy of Europe, and to the practice of European Physicians throughout the entire extent of British India.

Mimamsa—Ritual, and the Pancha rátram.

The Mimamsa is properly either the earliest, or one of the earliest of the six schools of philosophy. As such, it was divided into two parts; the púrva or Jaimini carmam, and the uttara portion ascribed to Vyasa. Jaimini was one of the writers of the védas; his productions relating to sacrifices and ritual. His system would seem to have been entirely confined to the traditional doctrine and practice of sacrifices, without theoretical speculation; and it may be, without thoroughly comprehending the rationalé of cruental offerings. The custom was adhered to, as a rule; and it was made a condition and a means of benefits in futurity, as well as of many temporal benefits; and in particular, it was looked to as an unfailing cause of procuring offspring, to otherwise childless kings. The simple origin being lost sight of, the subject became magnified and exaggerated; so that some great sacrifices were made enormously expensive. If any one will look into the Hebrew records concerning the dedication of the first Temple, it will be seen to what an extent animal slaughter was allowed to proceed. That was as wide a departure from the simple original, as any one recorded in the Rámáyanam or Bháratam, or other books. Vyása in the uttara mimamsa struck the first blow at this system. He reduced the sum and substance of the Védam to a metaphysical system, contained in five hundred sutras; being the mystical Vedantam, or end of the Vedam. This substance was pantheism ; and it is not classed in this work under the heading Mimamsa, but under the generic divisions Vedanta and Advaita. The rise of Baúddhism gave the most effecutal shock to the old system of sacrifice ; grown cumbrous ; loaded with heavy expenditure ; and as to use, by common people, impracticable. Mádhvácharya adhered to the system of Jaimini; and Sancaráchárya opposed it. Though the practice of sacrifices has grown obsolete, yet several books commenting on the sacrifices mentioned in the Vedas, or giving rules and regulations, thereto pertaining, are contained in this great collection ; and such are chiefly classified in the first volume of the present work. The assistants employed were found disposed to apply the term mimamsa to all obscure books, treating on the subject of ritual, sacrifice, or ritual in general. It was found convenient to adopt the word in a sort of modern sense of wider import than the primitive term. Hence the phrase mimamsa or ritual occurs, but discriminatively ; for all ritual is not strictly mimámsa. There need be no charge of confusion, where the transition is easy and gradual. Sometimes Pánchá rátram has been separated, but more commonly classed with ritual and mimamsa, in its looser sense, as the root, stem, branches, blossoms, are, after all, but one tree. Any little diversity of plan, arose in part from each distinct syllabus of arrangement having been made at different, and occasionally distant times. The work is so extensive that it could only be taken in detail. To go through the whole work of examination before the classification of any particular portion was attempted, might possibly have been more systematic ; but it would have been discouraging to the operator, and dissatisfactory to employers. And the difference is but trivial. The Mimamsa a source ; the Ritual a channel diversified by islands ; the Páncha rátram subsidiary streams.

The Mimamsa needs no further details ; but the Páncha rátram requires explanation, because it has practically become a sort of supersessional system. The Saivas, proper, never favored animal sacrifices ; partly because their system opposed one that greatly favored cruental offerings; and partly because oxen were often slaughtered; whereas, the bullock being made the vehicle of Siva, rendered the whole of that tribe of animals, in some sense, sacred. But when I was looking over the various books that treat of festival observances, there appeared great reason to conclude that, the Saivas were the first to give to the festivals of many days continuance, common to all, an addition of pomp and parade and circumstance, to please the multitude. It would seem probable, for it cannot be positively affirmed, that the Vaishnavas observing the success of that scheme, became both jealous and emulous. As an illustration, when the sports of Krishna became extensively popular, the Saivas got up various sports of Siva; and these, however incongruous, the gudgeon-people greedily swallowed. Even so, in medio-æval times, some Vaishnavas finding sacrifices losing their hold and becoming obsolete, or impracticable, invented a system termed the Páncha rátram, intended to make a pompous ritual, supersessional to sacrifices; and, by ascribing the same to Vishnu, to mark it as their own. Suitably enough it was traced backwards, as to origin, to a period of perfect darkness. During the Manu's flood, Vishnu, as Náráyana, floated on the waters; and then during five nights of that dark period, he was fabled to have delivered to Satyavrüta and the seven ṛishis the dogmas of the Páncha rátram (five nightiad) as an authoritative rule. This rule was not implicitly, and universally received. In the McKenzie collection there is a book which classes the Páncha rátram with outer or heterodoxical sects. Other writers opposed it. A class of purist Vaishnavas are said to have separated from others on this account; and to have refused fire and water, intermarriages, or other relationships, or civilities. On the other hand there is a modern book (Vol. 1.) by a Brahman at Conjeveram, entitled, "a hook to take out the thorn from such as deny the Páncha' rátram." The modern system of the Vaishnavas, after the deifying Ráma and Krishna became very different from the ancient one: the Páncha ratram also gradually gained an ascendency; from its pleasing the vulgar, and promoting the rule of Brahmans. The very modern dispute at Conjevaram, between the Vadagalas and Tengalas (or northerns and southerns) obliterated the remains of the other controversy; and at the present time, and in the Peninsula, it is believed that ritual observances, at festivals, of Saivas and of Vaishnavas very much resemble each other; the former adhering to their old customs; the latter having a modern revelation, ascribed to remotely past time; so as to justify themselves. The two systems are brought into tolerable comparison at Conjeveram. One somewhat exceeds the other in popularity, expense and glory ; simply because of wealthier, or more numerous votaries. Both fain would be equal, or rather the inferior would like to become the superior, in every thing. It has been understood, from creditable eye-witnesses, that when Siva goes out in procession from great Conjeveram, Vishnu comes forth in state from little Conjeveram to meet his compeer. And then the numerous Brahmans on either side, instead of civilities, honors, and courtesies, heartily revile, abuse, execrate each other, and the pretensions of the opposite deities likewise—Arcades ambo.

With reference forwards to the headings Saiva and Vaishnava, it may be remarked that there is a strikingly close resemblance between the ritual observances of Brahmans in India, and those commanded under the Levitical law. The sacrifices observed were of various kinds, and have various names in both. They varied according to the festival, or the occasion. By reference to Numbers, chap. 7, it will be seen that the offerings and sacrifices, at the first setting up the Tabernacle, were expensive and limited to princes, or heads of tribes : though less expensive than the like matter at the dedication of the first Temple. Such offerings are known in India only traditionally ; but they are so known. The ceremonial uncleanness caused by the death of father, mother, or other near relative, is similar in both. Accidental defilement did not disqualify for eating the Passover, and it does not impede the eating at a Srâddha. The principle of ceremonial defilement, by issues, by menses, by casual contact, as also in reference to eating, and to vessels used at meals, is one and the same. The punyahavasanam of the Brahmans, or purifying things and places by sprinkling over them consecrated water, is one and the same. The reference upwards may be to Mesopotamia or to Egypt : if so, it best pleases any one ; but, at all events, the ritual ceremonials of the Brahmans, bring them into connected relation with early people, not Grecian nor Roman ; but outside of India ; and lead to the belief that all their very early traditions and records relate to other lands, or localities, than India now so called.

Palmistry.

Any notice of this heading would demand apology, were it not perhaps connected with the origin of a singular body of people, the wandering gypsies ; whom the French term Bohemiens, and the Turks, Zingaries. This latter word is evidently a corruption of the Sanscrit sringara, signifying paradisaic, ornate, amorous. The gipsey language has been traced to a Hindu origin. Palmistry, their peculiar science in Europe, is in India a regular branch of knowledge; but the practice is generally regarded, in the Carnatic, as belonging to the Curavan, masc.: and Curatti, fem. These are Tamil terms, applied to an aboriginal race, not Hindu of northern origin; but autochthones of the south. These, like the gipses, lead a nomadic life, and their habitations are equally frail. They are the fortune-tellers of the south, and are very frequently introduced in romances; especially those termed Kora-vánchi. The Palmistry found in books (as is this collection) seems above their level; but it has a surprising coincidence with the like science, introduced to Europe from Arabia. It not only dwells on the marks on the palms, but on warts, moles, size, and shape of the different visible members, shape and height of person, length of arms and feet; and draws inferences from the whole: instances of which are are occasionally specified in the Catalogue. The term Sámudrica-sastram is however mainly derived from the lines on the hand, or Palmistry proper. There is abundance of ridicule on this, and the kindred topic of astrology, in Butler's Hudibras; which, from its popularity gave a tone to English opinions. To apply the Baconian tests of analysis, and experience might be possibly wiser. I have long been of opinion, and before I saw the contents of this collection, that such a heading as Sómatoscopy might be introduced to our Encyclopedias; and if well filled up, might be curious, interesting, and useful. Almost all persons act upon occult sympathies or aversions; which possibly could be reduced to rule. I would advert to the ingenious speculations of LeBrun, a great painter, as an illustration. In gathering materials, from all sources, the contents of the books termed Sámudrica lacshana might be of service; and not be wholly and altogether worthy of contempt.

Pauranical.

So much has been written on this topic by others, that little comparatively need be stated here. Abstracts of several puranas were furnished by Prof. Wilson, to the Bengal Asiatic Journal. He translated the Vishnu puránam, and published it in Europe. A full translation of the Bhágavata puránam exists in French, as of the Hari vamsam also, which might more properly be regarded as an appendix to the Bhágavatam, than to the Bháratam. Discussions on the age of the Puránas have occurred. Prof. Wilson thought the Váyu puránam one of the oldest, but maintained their general modernity. On the subject of the four first, as usually classed, he was remarkably silent; and he classed the puránas himself in a different order from that one most common. The order usually in the South of India is—1. Matsya, 2. Curma, 3. Varáha, 4. Vámana, 5. Brahma, 6. Vainavam (Vishnu) 7. Bhágavatam, 8. Siva, 9. Linga, 10. Báuddhica, 11. Naradiya,* 12. Gáruda, 13. Brahma-kaivartta, 14. Kánda (Scánda), 15. Marcandeya, 16. Agneya, 17. Brahmanda, 18. Padma. Of the last, the one half is Vaishnava, the other half Saiva; but the two parts are seldom together, and one of them is rare.

The upa-puranams, or minor works, as reckoned in the South, are —1. Usanam, 2. Capilam, 3. Cáli (Kálica) 4. Sanatcumara, 5. Sambhavam, 6. Siva tanmam (Devi Bhágavatam), 7. Sáuram (Aditya), 8. Durvasam, 9. Nandi, 10. Narasinha, 11. Náradiyam, 12. Parásaram, 13. Bhargavam, 14. Angiram, 15. Maricham, 16. Manavam, 17. Vasishta lingam, 18. Várunam.

The Saivas have twenty-eight sacred books, termed ágamas; which, with them, supersede most of the Puránams and upa-puranas. It may not be amiss to specify the titles—1. Kámicam, 2. Yogasam, 3. Sindhiyam, 4. Káranam, 5. Achitam, 6. Tipattam, 7. Sucumam, 8. Jagattiram, 9. Anjumán, 10. Suprabhédacam, 11. Vijayam, 12. Nisvasam, 13. Svayambhuvam, 14. Analam, 15. Viram, 16. Relaravam, 17. Makutam, 18. Vimalam, 19. Chandra nyánam, 20. Vimabam, 21. Purotgitam, 22. Lalitam, 23. Chittam, 24. Sandána sarvottam, 25. Paramésvaram, 26. Kiranam, 27. Bhédam, 28. Vatulam. These books are rare, and very little known. Parts of them very probably occur in the Catalogue, under other names: the 22nd and 28th are known to be of the sacti kind.

The Padma puranam, the youngest of its tribe, presumes to rank its predecessors under the three classes of Sátvica, Rájasa and Támasa; or qualities of goodness, passion and darkness. It is no great authority perhaps; and the distinction could only subserve native sectarial views. They are more usually distinguished as Vaishnava or Saiva. The Matsya, Curma, Linga, Siva, Scánda, are considered to be Saiva, the Agni medium, and the remainder Vaishnava, or leaning that way. Various portions of puránas, some complete copies of two or three, and upa puránas complete or incomplete, are to be met with in this collection.

* I think this duplicate may be of Siva origin, to exclude the Bhagavatam always reckoned as the 18th, in Northern India.

The Puránas generally profess to give an account of the origin of the world, and all existing beings and things; they are remarkable for an extravagant chronology; and they usually give lists of kings of the solar and lunar pedigree, which must be taken quantum valeant. This remark may be illustrated by a modern instance. It is demonstrable that, in the southern Pándiyan kingdom at Madura, the kings and people were Bauddhists till the time of Arri martana; when his Minister introduced the Saivas; on a rough estimate about the year 7 or 800 A.D.; and the Saivas did not get the ascendency till the time of Kuna pándiyan (hump-back), whom the Brahmans then named Sundara or beautiful; a circumstance not older than A.D. 1000. Yet, some short time after, the Brahmans drew up a local puránam, with long genealogy of Pandiyan kings, the first one termed Sundara, and identified with Siva, and then descending through their long periods of the Krita, Treta, Dwapura and Cali ages—all pure fiction; and what the Brahmans did there, their predecessors may have done with regard to the solar and lunar pedigrees. Such kings probably did not rule in India Proper; but the lists may have been imported from Egypt. The whole mass of native legend and chronology has some reference to antediluvian times; but definitely begins with the Manu's flood, the subject of the Matsya puránam. Thence we have to educe downwards the above four ages; regardless of the extravagant periods assigned to them by pauranical fiction; by some supposed to be astronomical. I do not possess Talmudical learning; but, from such scattered notices as I have gathered, I should be induced to conclude that the Talmud, with the two Targums or commentaries may be accepted as tolerable prototypes of Hindu puránas: they are equally extravagant, and equally veracious. One circumstance bearing on the subject I may be allowed to state. In 1835, I published a translation of a Tamil M.S., the beginning of which is taken from the pauranical geography. In section 3 of the translation, the dwipas are specified; Maha meru in the centre; around it Jambu dwipa; then the other dwipas, and their seas, "Outside in a circular form around these is, Chacra vali-giri (or wheel-chain mountain), and to the east of that is, Udaya-giri (sun-rising mountain), where the sun rises; and, proceeding to the west, sets again." Sometime after this publication, I met with a copy of a very old edition of Lightfoot's Horæ Hebraicæ; at the beginning of which the author gave an extract in Hebrew, of what he considered to be a curiosity; but withal not professing thoroughly to understand it. From his explanations, his account of Talmudical geography, and a little attention to the document itself, I was surprised to find it tantamount to the contents of the above section. The mountain on which the Temple once stood, occupying the position of Maha meru; the Holy land around it, in the center of the earth, the place given to Jambu dwipa; the other countries of the world lying beyond; and the whole encircled by the identical chain of mountains from behind which the sun rises, and behind it again sets. The modern edition, (1822) which I possess of Dr. Lightfoot's works, does not contain that piece; why omitted I know not: the old book being borrowed, was returned after perusal. In Europe there are distinguished Hebrew scholars: and my main object is to indicate to them that a careful comparison of Talmudical lore, with the contents of Hindu puranas, may reward the toil.

The Puranas afford indications of like hostility of a religious kind, between Vaishnavas and Saivas; as of old, between subjects of the kingdoms of Judah and Israel. The above is a notable instance in the Váishnava portion of the Pádma puránam, classing the *purána*s of a Saiva kind as coming under the quality of darkness; that is, ignorance and malignity. The Saivas are rather more adroit in endeavouring to twist all alien popular works to their own system: as for instance, in the Adiyátma Rámáyanam, and Dévi Bhagavatam (q. v. in loc.) as also in the Siva karnamṛtam and Siva líla, to rival Kṛishna. A counter re-action probably produced the pancha rátram (ut supra, Mimamsa). A Saiva at Madras, a few years since, printed a book, describing himself in the title page, as one who knew no other god than Siva. Like indications in detail will be found under the headings Polemical and Sectarial Puranas local, or Mahatmyams. A few further remarks on these may not be superfluous. Prof. Wilson observed concerning them, that they usually pretend to be taken from some of the larger *purána*s; but, on search, are not found therein. In no country was literary forgery carried to a greater extent than in India. Literary men, and especially Brahmans, like the Cretians of old are æi-pseustai: sometimes there is a self-denying magnanimity; the author seems to care nothing for himself, if his work may but float under the sanction of some great name or person to whom it is ascribed. It may be seen passim, how liberally the various mahatmyams are stated to be taken from different puranas. Another remarkable characteristic, is the bold, lying audacity of such legends. As for example, in the Madura puránam, the statement that the Vedas are old and obsolete books, and that the substance of the védam and of true wisdom consists in worshipping the lingam. in the great pagoda, at that place. In the Sri Rangha mahat- myam, that the goddess manifested in the Cauvery river, obtained the boon of being equal to the Ganges. In the Parhani-puránam, that the carcass of an unburied thief being torn to pieces by vultures, one of these birds being scared, when flying over the pushcarnni pool, let fall one of the bones into it; which forthwith sprung up in the shape of a (very rare) blue lotos-flower; and, by virtue of the bone touching the water, the soul of the thief was beatified. In the Saiva legend at Conjeveram, that Subrahmanya took Brahmā roundly to task; and confined him in prison, himself undertaking the work of creation. In Tripety legend that the hill is a peak of Maha meru. In a variety of instances, it is asserted that the most malignant of sins; that is, the murder of a Brahman can be washed out by bathing in a pool. A great variety of other cases will appear, on a slight perusal. Mendacious boldness, equal to that of Tetzel in Germany, is a prevailing characteristic. The three kings at Cologne, and the lying legend at Loretto, are quite in harmony, as to abstract character, with abundance of local puránas. To assert any thing that might give the place the go; and might bring in money or offerings to Brahmans, to stickle at nothing attended with such results, seems to be the general rule. The Brahmans are vastly superior to the common race of people; and they have carried their presumption thereon to extravagant bounds. They are not overtly, but in reality "the kings of the east"; and a mystic influence attends on them; more easily discernible, than admitting a perfectly satisfactory solution.

Romance—Historical.

This term was adopted in consequence of there being several books, and ancient ones too, that could with difficulty be reduced under any other specific heading: as containing too much of history to be mere romance, and too much of romance to be history. As a distant illustration, some of Shakespeare's plays, and some of Scott's novels, may be adduced. There is romance that is not history; according to the notion of "an ancient sage philosopher,"

> "Who swore the world, as he could prove,
> Was made of fighting and of love.
> Just so romances are, for what else,
> Is in them all, but love and battles?"

The theory thus announced that the world is made up of fighting and of love, is usually exemplified by the historical romance. It is not easy to class the tales of Harischandra and Nala, when separate, otherwise than as the main productions to which they belong as episodes. But these episodes relate to a particular species which natives term ulai, in which the principal character passes from prosperity to the depths of adversity, and is again restored, or raised to greater prosperity: the book of Job is a connected example. In such pieces, man is not degraded to a mere fighting animal; but is represented as passing through severe discipline, by the malice of adverse powers; yet still under the protection of Divine Providence. Books strictly of historical romance, are the Bháratam, Rámáyanam, Mágham, Kerala ulpatti Párasu Rama vijayam, Kṛishna raya vijayam, and the like. The Hari vamsa partakes of this, and of the pauranic character.

It would be scarcely worth while to add more, were it not for the extraordinary influence exercised by the Rámáyanam and Bháratam, and the two chief heroes therein, Ráma and Kṛishna, down to the present day. The vedas diminish into distant, and diminutive specks in comparison; and though the Brahmans have not forgotten to commemorate the Vámana and Narasinha avataraṁs; yet the influence, now a days, is exceedingly feeble in comparison. It is difficult to see any thing, in either of the two leading characters, to raise them to the rank of divinities; except successful heroism. Of the two, Ráma is the most interesting: in the character of Kṛishna, what person, with right intellectual and moral feelings, can see any thing to approve. Hence, it was with some degree of wonder that I read Colonel Tod's remark in his big book, that the character of Kṛishna exercised a softening, and humanizing influence on the fierce chiefs of Rajpootana. Are they at all softened, or humane? Illicit love finds its patron-god in Kṛishna: but then the general tendency of such pursuits is to harden and deprave. Such an attachment as that exhibited by Ráma, softens and humanizes; and, upon the whole, enobles the mere man. Ráma might pass very well as superior to the common herd of kings; but his character has weak, unfortunate points, if set up to be worshipped as a god.

As regards the name Ráma, it is Hebrew. The great Hebrew patriarch bore it. His primal name Ab-Ram signifies pater upsistos, or pater excelsus. It occurs otherwise in names of hill towns, and in the Mosaic genealogies; and the circumstance of Cush being made the father of Ráma, and Ráma having two sons, named Cusa and Lava, attracted the attention of Sir W. Jones; though nothing possibly can be thence extracted.

The birth place of Ráma of the Rámáyanam, is definitely fixed to Ayoddhya (the modern Oude) and he must be regarded as belonging to India proper. With reference to his parentage, it is given to Dasarat'ha, by his wife Kausilya; yet it is observable that the Brahmanical author of the Rámáyanam seems loth to allow a god—or Vishnu—to proceed from a Cshetriya father. Dasarat'ha is an old, worn out king, with four wives, and without any son. By advice, he prepares for a great sacrifice; and sends to fetch a young Brahman, who had been living eastward in Thibet, with his father in a hermitage, never having seen a woman. He is then affianced to a wife, daughter of a friendly king; she has the range of Dasarat'ha's private apartments, and her husband with her. The young Brahman is the chief operator in the sacrificial rites; and, at a particular part of those rites, Vishnu issues from the flame, bearing a vessel containing the payas (curds) which is to be given to Dasarat'ha and his wives, to eat. After their doing so, all his four wives became pregnant with sons, who partake of divinity in the proportion of the shares eaten by the several mothers; the favorite wife Kausilya having received the largest portion, and Ráma had, in consequence, more of divinity than his brothers. The enigma is not very dark; and any one much less blackguard-like than Voltaire, when bending attention to the Hindu scriptures, might be inclined to give the parentage of Ráma rather to Ṛishi Sṛinga, than to the effete Dasarat'ha; it is not clear that the author did not intend to convey that inference, from his dark similitudes. Be that as it may, the character of Ráma as a lover, and as a husband, is exemplary, up to the period of his loss. A denial that Lanca is the same with Ceylon, has been made by me. The reason is partly because (astronomically and geologically) "Ráma's bridge," and the lowland of Ceylon must have been deep below the level of the sea at the time indicated, however reduced; and, partly that the high ridge land running down from the Vindhya range to the neighbourhood of Madras, must have presented islands just as well adapted to the scene, and very much nearer to Ayoddhya and to the wilderness-abode of Ráma and Sita. That the whole affair is the mere invention of a poet, grounded on some slight and trifling circumstances, is not entirely improbable. But the subject, being challenged, may be left sub lite for the present. After Ráma's victory and being crowned at Ayoddhya, his weakness and injustice appear in dismissing the wife, for whom he had fought so well, and bringing herself and her two sons into doubtful circumstances, in the hermitage of Valmiki. Hence, the Brahmans discourage the reading the Uttara-Rámáyanam, and would fain destroy it. The poet Bhavabhuti, sensible of that injustice, brings in Ráma self-accusing, sorrowful; that is, Vishnu incarnate, repentant. But Ráma is never, in early pieces, made unfaithful or unchaste; which is Ráma versus Kṛishna, or Vishnu contra Vishnu. The two Rámas, moreover, are brought together in dispute and contest; and the younger Ráma is made to conquer the elder; that is, Vishnu conquers Vishnu. This may suit with the poetical alancáram; but it is suicidal, in western ideas, to the claim of divinity.

With regard to the name Kṛishna, it is observable that after leaving out na (borrowed from the name Narayana), the remaining letters are the same as the Krush of the Hebrew name of Cyrus, in the book of Isaiah. Cyrus is latinized from the Greek spelling Kuros of Xenophon; but the Greek, the Hebrew and the Sanscrit spellings, are as nearly as possible one, and the same. In the body of the catalogue, I have noticed a strong coincidence between the account of the infancy of Cyrus, as stated by Herodotus, and the infancy of Kṛishna, as narrated in the 10th book of the Bhágavatam. I do not know that the same has been noticed by others. Early writers were occupied with silly analogies to the appellative of the founder of Christianity. Etymologically there is none; because the Greek guttural represented in Ch is not found in the Sanscrit k; in meaning there is none; and Kṛishna is a proper name, but Xristos is an appellative. In fact, there is only one slight resemblance; yet Christ did not kill Herod: and, in every other sense, the analogy fails. But the account given by Herodotus of Cyrus is, that Cambyses and Mandane being married, and the latter pregnant, her brother, then reigning, had a dream, which was interpreted to mean, that his nephew would kill him, and possess his kingdom. On this account the infant, when born, was given over to the king's herdsman, with orders to kill it. The herdsman's wife took compassion on the child; and, in its place, exposed her own child. The young man grew up among cowherds, as one of them; and as the child of the woman that saved his life. In process of time, he killed his uncle—came to the throne—and, after unexampled victories, was slain in an unprovoked expedition against the Tartars: the queen of that country cutting off his head, and casting it into a tub full of blood, that it might be glutted, with what had been the owner's delight. Many of the parallel circumstances, in the 10th book of the Bhágavatam, are so closely similar, as to induce the impression, elsewhere stated, that the writer of the Bhágavatam must have known the accounts of the infancy and life of Cyrus, the greatest of warriors in the earliest ages. There are some correlative circumstances. Mandane has a meaning in Sanscrit, synonymus, in mere meaning, with Mohini : Dévaki, the Sanscrit name of the mother of Krṣhna is evidently titular, as if implying mátá by ellipsis. The name of the father of Cyrus is given to the uncle of Krïshna. In the Greek word Cambyses, the final es is dialectical. Cambusa and Camusa in Telugu, and the Sanscrit Camsa, are the same name. Krṣhna was vulnerable only in his heel, and came by his death ingloriously, from the chance arrow of a wild hunter. In a legend of some considerable antiquity, it is stated that Siva (the destroyer) appeared to Krṣhna and delivering a skull, which he carried, charged Krṣhna to bring it back filled with blood. Krṣhna accordingly, in his wars, filled it to the height of several palm trees. Close analogy is not intended; but here and there a little seems more than accidental.

A few circumstances would indicate that the avatara of Krṣhna was outside of India proper. I shall state them. Prof. Wilson in his translation of Cashmirian annals expresses an opinion that the Pándavas were rulers in Cashmir. His reasons may be seen on reference. As some confirmation, I note that one of the titles of Arjuna is Part'tha, or the Parthian. Krṣhna thence derives one of his titular names: Part'tha sáradi, or "the car-driver of the Parthian," is the name by which Krṣhna is worshipped at the great pagoda at Triplicane, Madras. Further, the site of Dwáraca, the capital of Krṣhna, is unknown. Traditionally, it was swallowed up by the sea. The modern name of an island on the Gujurattee coast is quite secondary. There is a tendency to affix modern or local sites to ancient and foreign stories; even as a Javanese poet transferred the Kurucshétram, and the war of the Pándavas, to the island of Java; and, for ought we positively know to the contrary, the real Kurucshétram, near modern Delhi, may have only been a locality by accommodation, for bloody battles under Haic, or other worthies, in Parthian Armenia.

Still the current of modern writ, and of verbal tradition is so strong in favor of Mat'hura (hodie Muttra) and the neighbourhood of the Kálinda or Yamuna (hodie Jumna) river, as the scene of Krṣhna's boyhood, youthful sports and love adventures, that its participation therein, in some way or other, is not to be denied. It is observable that Cyrus has nothing specially of that kind recorded concerning him. In the romance by Xenophon, on the trainingof Cyrus, nothing particular of that sort is contained. One might almost suppose that two characters have been blended together, to make up one god: the epitome of the world as to love and fighting. But the matter must be left in its own uncertainty. It is cause for surprise that the worship of Krishna, under various names or titles, is so general and so influential.

There is a romance concerning Arjuna's pilgrimage southerly; made up of illicit love, with an elopement and marriage; and after a lapse of years, fighting with his illegitimate son; which romance originates with an old Canarese poet, expanding a passage in the Bháratam. Other romances, some of them ancient, run into the class of Tales; and are usually so classified.

There are some analogies which have induced me to suspect a connexion between the Iliad, and the Bháratam. Homer confessedly wrote and sang disjointed rhapsodies, which were put together after his death. He gave a definite scene of action, marked by two rivers, on the shore of a part of Asia Minor; but whether any such town as Troy ever existed has been debated with some eagerness, and critical acumen. It seems to me not impossible that some very early tradition was carried by Colonists in different directions, and made use of by two great poets, each one after his own fashion with some resemblance; and of course with great variations. In the way of general resemblance Dritarashta answers to Priam; Duryodhana to Paris; Draupadi to Helen; Dherma raja agrees with Menelaus; Achilles combines something of Krishna and Arjuna: like the first, he is vulnerable only in his heel; Ajax agrees with Bhîma; Diomedes has a counterpart in Sahadéva; and like similitudes may be traced in other personages. If there be any thing in such a conjecture it would follow that, the true scene of the original transactions was neither Asia Minor nor India, but in some distant country, situated between the Tigris and the Araxes.

Sacti.

It is simply astonishing that from a primeval difference of opinion as to the mode of existing things, whether caused or self-subsistent, should have resulted wide-spread division, wars, persecutions, human sacrifices, and a system of worship, such as comes under the present heading. It is well known that "the beginning of strife is as the letting out of water;" and a difference once begun with human passions and pride-working thereon, will account for almost every thing. Still, on this particular point, there is ground for wonder. The simple question once was, whether God made the world, or whether it made itself; and, as a self-existent divinity, ought to be worshipped. The subjugated opinion still exists in various countries; cowers in secret, veils itself under equivocal terms; and operates, as its votaries suppose, to their common advantage.

There is some reason to trace this system up to ante-diluvian times, and to Casyapa, the father of dévas and daityas. The name was not unknown to the Greeks; but they made him a female, under the name Cassiopeia, and placed this female among the constellations. There is more certainty in looking either at the origin or revival of the system soon after the Deluge, 'Atri was one of those who escaped on that occasion. This name was also known to the Greeks; and the Atrides of Homer was not so strictly the son of 'Atri as one of the race of 'Atri. The son of 'Atri was Chandra, from whom the lunar line, a pedigree, is derived. By an illicit amour with Tárà the wife of Vṛihaspati, he had a son named Budha. A son of Vaivasvata Menu, "child of the sun," and at the head of the solar line was changed as stated, into a female, named Ila; being married to this female. Budha had a son named Purúruvas, with whom the fabulous and heroic period commences. Now the above names Chandra, Tárà, Vṛihaspati, Budha signify, it is true, the moon, the zodiacal chain of stars, the planets Jupiter and Mercury; and hence an astronomical enigma was educed, or supposed by Wilford and others. I have somewhere remarked that if an astronomical enigma, it must mean that the planet Mercury was once a satellite of Jupiter, attracted from its orbit by our moon; and, falling towards the sun, found an orbit around it, as the planet Mercury. But did the early hieroglyphists travel so far? and is it not likely that as much violence is done by this supposed enigma, as the reducing Terah, the father of the patriarch Abraham, to an astronomical sign, or constellation; which one of that school was bold enough to assert. Does it not seem at once, more probable and reasonable, that such names were assigned to mortals as titles of honor, added to their common names? whatever those might have been. We cannot very well own the hero Purúruvas as a son of stars and planets; but his grand-mother might have been called Stella, and his father Mercury, or Hermes: a name very familiar with Egyptians and Greeks, as a demi-god teacher. The main, point, however here is the transformation of a son of Vaivasvata (or Noah) into a woman. Hindu Paúranic records declare that on this son a curse from Siva and Parvati rested, to the effect that he should become a woman for the crime of intruding on their privacy. The reader will meet with frequent reference to this curse in books, catalogued in the present work. The

Mosaic record declares that a curse from Noah rested on a son of Ham, for the father's fault. Now it is among the Hamite posterity, that the system under consideration chiefly existed; and in a country named after the said son of Ham the practice of offering human victims in sacrifice; and of mothers, kissing, coaxing, and then killing* their own children before the altars of Baal, Ashtar, or Molech, prevailed to a degree beyond the customs of other nations. It is declared in the Mosaic writings that, for crimes of this deepened dye, the land was purged; and it is declared also, that when the executioners of vengeance joined in like crimes (vide Psalm 106, v. 34—42) they were themselves remanded for punishment. Hindu purânas and the Mosaic record agree as to the above specified curse. The question is, whether the mode of operation by change of sex, as stated in the latter, is a hieroglyphic, or a simple reality. The Greeks, and Ovid from them, fabled a Tiresias, of bi-fold sex. The name, which is without meaning in Greek or Latin, when brought to the test of Sanscrit, is resolvable into Tiru, a name of Lacshmi, or simply sacred, as a prenomen, and Isi, (Heb. ishi, Egyp. Isis) a lady; mostly used with reference to Parvati, a personification probably of Egyptian origin. The possible fact of transformation, when Divine power is in question, cannot be denied; yet still it seems more reasonable and consistent with the style of ancient hieroglyphical writing, to regard this alleged transformation as a hieroglyphic for a change of opinion in religion; by substituting a feminine power in creation, rather than a masculine energy. In this case, the liberty must be taken to make 'Ila the grand-daughter of Vaivasvata-menu, and a son (became by transformation a daughter) of Ham, corresponding, in the first state with Canaan on whom the curse rested: who hieroglyphically changed, became the heresiarch of the new, or possibly revived opinion; for it would seem to have existed before the Deluge. To show cause for the liberty so taken, an illustration may be borrowed from that neighbourhood, and not many hundred years later. "These daughters are my daughters and these children are my children;" † though in reality grand-children. Be this as it may, up to this Ila appears to be traceable the renewal, or the commencement of a religious sentiment on the mode or causality of Creation; dissentient from a traditionary and primitive opinion; and still dissentient wherever it exists from the received opinion as to one self-existent, eternal, independent Mind, (termed El or Elohim in the Mosaic writings) causing the existence of matter ; or, as some have supposed, operating on pre-existing matter to produce the world and the universe around us.

The human mind when letting go primeval tradition, or when left to itself, would become embarrassed on this great question. An absolute nothing is an impossibility. Reasoning thereon, acute minds, without external aid, might easily come to infer the self-existence of matter ; and that is almost the same thing with the next proximate conclusion ; one that makes matter, existing by itself, evolve itself into varied forms, possessing an inherent spontaneity ; somewhat as the human body carries within it, an inherent sentient soul. We know that some modern writers, among ourselves, have recognized only the body and the sentient soul ; excluding, or not caring to recognize, the mens immortalis. Can it be therefore denied that ancient speculatists might deny any thing beyond matter, and its own inherent energy. This was the grand Eastern system of philosophy ; modified into varied forms, as the Vedantam, the Sánc'hya atheism, the system of Buddha ; and, in the main, the modern advaitam. The Nyaya school opposed the ancient atheism, and the Visishta advaitam opposes the modern form. The Sacti or feminine energy system pervades, or is connected with all the atheistic forms. It is by a process of hieroglyphics that the feminine terms and symbols are employed. I have elsewhere noted that the term negative power might be used, as in electricity ; only that it might be confounded with a very different system, which recognises a negative causation in philosophy* and morals. We have, however, most properly to take the sacti system of the female energy, just as we find it ; and with its own symbols and phraseology.

The learned reader should satisfy himself as to the wide-spread mention of 'Ila as a name, in the records of early antiquity. The researches of Bryant, in his Ancient Mythology, contain a mass of learning ; and, if that work be glanced over, it will be seen that he proves this name to be originally foreign to Greece ; traces it as giving names to various places in Syria and other countries ; but particularly adduces a wide-spread tradition as to this name in Greece. The Greeks were known by a derivative term.

The tradition just adverted to is equally wide-spread over India. Many of the puránas and various romances or tales, have statments or allusions, more or less direct on the point. As names of places, there is Ellore in the Northern Circars, Ellichpore in the Mahratta country, and the Ellore near Dowlutabad, famous for sculptured caves. The sacti system is not in India, traced up to the name, except by allowable inference; but it is so traced by Greek writers: the Greeks, very many of them, holding this system of religion. The so-widely-spread name argues an extraordinary degree of influence. With the exception of such traces as are afforded by such writers, I am not aware of any one else so dating the origin of this system. I submit, it with diffidence, to the reader's better judgment. It is a system unknown, except to a portion of mankind, who have always agreed to keep the matter in detail among themselves, as secret as the Greeks kept their mysteries.

The researches of Mr. Layard at Nineveh have shown, to myself at least, that this was the religious system of the Assyrians; otherwise plain beyond denial, from the language of the Hebrew prophets. It is a pity that the word Assyrian has come to us latinized. Xenophon in the 1st book of his Cyropædia, mentions the Assurs, as conquered by Cyrus. In all references to that people, in the Greek Septuagint, the spelling is Assur. The Hebrew always has Ashur; except when another synonyme is used for Assyria, and either Aram or Shur for Syria; being the suras and asuras of Sanscrit purânas. The suras or dévas held the ancient opinion; the asuras held the dissentient dogma. More than one of the Hebrew prophets terms the people of Nineveh, Yónîm, sufficiently expressive without comment. In Jerem. chap. 25, v. 38, as Bryant has correctly noted the word "sword" (Vulgate Columbæ) is in the original Yónâh; and Assyrian is the proper translation. In chap. 44, v. 17, et seq: "the queen of heaven" is not the moon, but the celestial Venus of the Greeks, the Ashtar of the Assyrians, and Astarte or Ashtaróth of the Phœnicians—met with it would seem in these manuscripts, by the name Aschar. The prophet Nahum, whose phillipic was specially against Nineveh, has in chap. 2, v. 7, a singularly sarcastic passage; being, like many Sanscrit poems, capable of two readings; one, as given in the authorized English version, and another one is—"And the goddess shall be led away captive, she shall be fetched up, and her female retinue shall lead on, as with the plaint of Yónîm (or Assurs) beating their bosoms." The prophet Jonah (Heb. Yónâh) excited extraordinary attention in Nineveh; not contempt, as might have been anticipated; because he bore the name of the goddess, venerated by the Assurs; the ordinary rendering of the word Jonah by "dove,"* misses to account for such an effect; but the name was given to that bird secondarily from a fancied resemblance; on which Bryant's Analysis may be referred to. It will then be seen that the sense of "dove" is quite secondary and subordinate. In that secondary sense also, the Grecian mythology appears to make the car of Venus to be drawn by doves.

* Conf. Hosea, 11, 11, They shall tremble—as a Yónah out of the land-Ashur.

From Prichard's Analysis of Egyptian Mythology, it is plain that this system was known in Egypt; and, I think, Wilkinson's recent researches confirm the point. The temple of Jupiter-Ammon (which Belzoni sought for, with great pains, and little fruit) was not, I think, dedicated to Jupiter, but to his sacti; known to the Greeks as Juno. We find this name Ammon in very familiar use in Southern India; evidently a foreign word; for the termination is the common masculine form in Tamil; whereas, the word always means a goddess. The very old Tamil has numerous identifications with the Greek; and, it may be thence be presumed, with the Egyptian. According to Bryant, certain persons in Egypt termed themselves Ammoneans; forming a confraternity, which he understands of his favorite Hamite posterity. They were probably worshippers of the female energy; who have taken care always to be known to each other.

In Phœnicia, and specially at Tyre and Sidon, this kind of worship was practised, and it appears to have been followed at Ashdod, Gaza, Ashkelon and other places southwards. As these last people were among the most ancient antagonists of the people of Israel, the two systems were thereby brought into contact and hostility. The masculine 'Il, as a name of deity among the Hebrews, and the feminine 'Ila as a name of deity among other nations, may be regarded as indices of two irreconcileable systems. This appeared when one of the kings of Israel married a princess of Sidon; and when she introduced her own country-worship to a deity named Baal: this orthography does not correctly represent the Hebrew letter ain, and Bahl is nearer. This word runs throughout the sacti system, as may be seen in detail by reference to the catalogue. In consequence, I suspect, that the usual* rendering by "lord," however well supported by learned names is not accurate. In Sanscrit it designates what is young or youthful, and it does not stand alone; as in Bála Sundari, and the like. The literal rendering of that title, is "the young handsome female." But a hostile system might take the first word, caring nothing about a complete meaning. In this point of view it is not so properly a Hebrew word, but a word foreign to that tongue; if indeed the Hebrew, Chaldean, and Sanscrit, can be properly termed foreign to each other. In the above specified reginal introduction the system was for a short time triumphant; but at an earlier period it came in by stealth. Hiram, king of Tyre, sent workmen to aid in the building the great Temple at Jerusalem; and these persons found themselves in the midst of a people who, with an extraordinary degree of zeal, were attached to a system, in no wise, accordant with their own. Hence, perhaps, the traditional statement of their forming themselves, into a band, or brotherhood, for mutual aid and defence; and it is probable that with them the system, for a time, vacated that part of Palestine. After its subsequent short period of triumph, above adverted to, it met with an overthrow, as signal as that of like worshippers in modern times, in Southern India—as at Kalyana, at Warankal, at and near Conjeveram, and at Madura: in all equally cruel, equally disastrous. But the system was not thereby exterminated, among the Hebrew people; it revived; and, with more or less of open avowal, was continually practised. Let the Biblical student in particular, look at the minor Prophets, in chronological order; and notice the detestation expressed against Bethel (perverted), Baal, Samaria, the Phœnicians, and Assyrians. In truth, those early books cannot be fully understood, without reference to this system and some knowledge of its character.

In Greece, the system was peculiarly prevalent. The term Ionia, with its derivatives, is sufficiently expressive; but the subject runs throughout their literature. Bryant (not knowing very well what he was about) made all the search needful: I refer to his statements. They helped me, so much the better, to understand some of these Sanscrit manuscripts, on the subject. By the Greeks the use of wine, even to intoxication, on some occasions, was deemed a sacred act; so it is among the sacti worshippers in India. The Grecian mysteries were in all probability, the secret rites of this system, and connected with human sacrifices. Equally secret, according to intention, are the rites of the sacti system. How the books which are catalogued in this second volume came into other hands, than those of professed votaries, I do not know. Libri traditi sunt; but their being where they are, is certainly a betrayal of that which was never intended, by any one of the writers, to be other than concealed and sacred mysteries.

Apart from the above reference to Bryant's Analysis, any labored detail of proofs, and authorities may be spared; they would be out of place here, and could only appear pedantic. A little illustration may be quite as convincing. The Society of Arts held their séance, some time since, in the Old College Hall. One day, coming to my office, I saw the floor of the room adjoining, strewed with pasteboard lithographs; and the one uppermost seemed to be an Indian subject, from its great resemblance to parts of the Elliot marbles, on which I had them recently been at work; as also to sculptures on stone-pillars common on banks of tanks, or under trees by the road-side. On looking more closely, instead of the lingam, usual in this neighbourhood, I saw it was the Yóni (the superficial appearance, in medical language, of the labia pudendi) and guarded overhead by a five-headed cobra-capella; the worn appearance of which indicated great antiquity. It was termed at the foot "the Greek honeysuckle;" and I presume might be taken for a copy of a genuine Greek original. The conclusion is obvious, that such was the ancient mode of worship in that country. I have seen it stated that the figure of Pallas in the Acropolis at Athens, termed the Palladium, was merely a very ancient sculptured figure of a serpent; rather, as I conclude, of a serpent-canopy, guarding an emblem of the female energy; and this designated by the name of Pallas (a dialectic of Baal or Bála). Other names of the feminine energy, corresponding in reference with sactis of Hindus, were Juno, Venus, Ceres, Hecate, Proserpine, Artemisa, and various others. The worship in the great temple at Ephesus the—"megále hè Artemisa"—of the Ephesians, was undoubtedly of this kind and character; and if the Biblical student will look a little attentively at the epistle of that name, he will find it to be specifically directed against practices which come under the heading of Sacti worship.

Among the Latins, the system would seem to have had but a limited range. The rites of the Bona dea, and the worship of Vesta were undoubtedly of this description. On the modified worship of later times there is no need to enter.

What this worship is, may be briefly stated. The reader is referred for details to the catalogue, and more particularly under the heading Sacti, in the 1st and 2nd Family, in the present volume. In brief, the female form, and especially the distinctive sexual member, are worshipped as emblems of the universe, or state of things around us in the world, regarded as of spontaneous production, or self-existent; or as typical of primitive, and eternal matter; whence are evolved all existing forms of being, with various shades of acknowledgment, more or less of an active agency inherent, or superinduced. Temples of this worship are built semi-globular, so as to imitate the pregnant female abdomen. The Sanc'hya system of atheistical philosophy and the Buddhist system of material theology, are related to the sacti system; but are distinguishable, and not the same. This system emanates from the Saiva creed, but is extended to some degree among Vaishnavas. The rites are secret; and mantapas, attached to temples, so as to admit many people, have two entrances, each one with double doors, capable of being securely closed, against intrusion. In acts of homage, whether in house or temple, the tantra rites are used; that is, diagrams of varying forms with syllabic sounds, educed from inscribed letters. In some cases, the naked female form is employed; with especial direction to what is termed the maternal member. The use of wine, ardent spirits, opium, bang, and flesh, is not only permitted in these rites, but is highly recommended; and any one intoxicated, in such services, performs a high act of homage. A "removed woman," considered by all others as unclean is, with this sect, in the highest state of perfection and purity; and the semen virile is declared to be the purest of fluids; as such, in some acts of homage, it is directed to be swallowed, as a most acceptable offering. Blood is offered; and, in some cases, drank. "Their drink offerings of blood" are among the most shocking things; but lumps of human flesh, the hairy scalp of human beings, are other portions; and human sacrifices have always belonged to this class of worshippers. The objects to be obtained are quicquid cupiunt homines expressed by ishta siddhi, or the accomplished purpose; and are as sensual, malignant, and in a word devilish, as thought can imagine. The Bengal sepoys, of the Brahman caste, were almost all of them of this kind; and the tendencies of the system, as developed by those mutineers, can hardly receive more impressive illustration.

Saiva.

There exist minor variations under this term, as may be seen in the catalogue; but after excluding the Vira Saiva, other differences turn on the degree of liberality shown to Vaishnavas, and other sectaries. The system of some purânas, first made known to Europeans, specifies a sort of triad, Brahma, Vishnu and Siva; as representing the creating, preserving or reproducing, and the destroying energy of Deity. The Vayu puranam considers the names to represent the rajasa, sátvica, and támasa-gunas, or qualities in Deity ; and it is quite common in popular works to ascribe the rájasa quality to Bráhmá, the sátvica to Vishnu, and the támasa to Siva ; against which last, the Saivas protest. The above system in not in harmony with all the puránas ; and it is not the system peculiarly Saiva ; which treats the personification Brahma with extreme contempt, denies the equality of Vishnu, and maintains the sole supremacy of Siva. This view must have been of some antiquity ; seeing that the Bhágavatam tries to meet it, and maintains the union and equality of the three personifications : in at least one place Brahmá is introduced ; and made to declare that there is no division, or difference between himself, Vishnu, and Siva. I am not sufficiently well acquainted with the contents of the Rig, Sama and Yajur védas, as to know precisely the extent of authority given by those primal documents to the pauránic system. As far as appears from these manuscripts, the chief reference is the Rudra prasnam, as regards Siva ; and the Purusha sūcti, as regards Vishnu ; these two chants are of continual use. The genuine upanishadas state, I believe, nothing about the triad, and treat of the deity as Para Brahm. In modern times, and in the Peninsula, the disputed point is—who is Para Brahm ? Some say Vishnu, and some Siva, and the discussion has at times been managed with heat and animosity. The votaries of Subrahmanya in the extreme South, hold a peculiar opinion, recognizing five Rudras, and a Sadà Siva, apparently substituted for Para Brahm. But the Saiva system, as held in the Peninsula, is one which maintains the supremacy of Siva, with the inferiority of Brahma and Vishnu ; a rival system to that of Vaishnavas ; and one intolerant of the Jainas, whom the Saivas exterminated.

This system did not always exist in the Peninsula ; but was introduced earlier than the Vaishnava system. It did not always exist in North India. From some foreign source it first came to Benares, and Colonel VansKennedy gives a full translation of the legend of Divódasa the king, or chief, who first established the system at Benares. It existed at Ougein in the time of Vicramáditya, a little before the commencement of our era ; when precisely it came to Benares, cannot be exactly determined ; probably, not many hundred years previously. From what foreign source it came perhaps cannot be positively determined ; but some approximation to a conclusion may be made. Various indices (see ASTROLOGICAL) point to the country around Babylon as the one whence, at least, the Vaishnava Brahmans proceeded. Its other name Seshach is a very familiar one in Hindu Mythology. But there is nothing to mark the Saiva creed as native there; such as traditional, and very ancient worship of what is termed in Sanscrit the matsya avatáram. But from a very ancient and authentic document, it appears that captive foreigners* were brought away from their own land, and located to the North of the aforesaid neighbourhood; and this too at a time, which by a rectified chronology corresponds with the beginning of the Cali-yugam or period of peculiar sorrow, distress, and calamity, in the reckoning of the Brahmans; that is between 7 and 800 years anterior to our common era. These people were led away from the country of which Samaria was the capital. This word is taken from the Septuagint; but the Hebrew word is Sumroo, appearing to be none other than Sumeru, a very familiar word in páuranic mythology. They had a secret worship;† and their practices were akin to those of the Phœnieians, as adverted to above under Sati. They had "two calves" as "molten images" of deity. This fact refers our attention upward, to the great national schism under Jeroboam. He established two calves; one north at Dan, which, at the outset, was the most popular; and the other in the extreme south at Bethel; to which a large hierarchical establishment became added. Jeroboam imported this worship from Egypt; where he had long resided, for his personal safety. The like kind of image, also‡ borrowed from Egypt, had been used at a much earlier time; but then was treated in a very summary§ manner. The question arises whether the people, in those several cases, were so stupid as to worship mere calves? The reply may be aided, by looking at the state of the case in India. Nandi, the vehicle of Siva, is a small sized bull. Throughout the manuscripts in this work frequent mention occurs of Nandikésvara, or Basavésvara; both words implying divinity. In various sculptures and paintings, Siva with Parvati is represented as seated on a young bullock, so small that it might be termed a calf. The image of such a calf couchant in plaister, on a brick and plaister pedestal, is always placed outside the gate of every Saiva shrine; the face looking towards the door; and, as if waiting to receive the deity. There is a class of people who go about leading a small bullock (of the kind familiarly termed "Brahmany bull"), fancifully caparisoned; and to these small bulls the people present offerings of food, or money, on the ground of their being sacred to Siva. But in all these cases, the bullock-vehicle is quite secondary, and the homage rendered secondary also. I conclude that the molten calves as above, were of this kind—hieroglyphical indices of the presence of an invisible deity; the latter in reality worshipped. However gross are other symbols or figures of idols, the Brahmans consider them needful for the vulgar; and the people, if intelligent, say they do not worship the symbol, but the deity represented thereby. It does not appear from any overt statement, that the phallic worship was introduced by Jeroboam; but there are some names used not well defined, or understood; and the terms "shame" and "abomination" seem to cover such things by metonymy. I am warranted, I think, in concluding that the worship introduced by Jeroboam, and continued down to the captivity of the ten tribes, was a copy of the Egyptian worship. The Egyptians had their bull Apis (from descriptions given, it was of the like breed with the "Brahmany bull") to which divine honors were paid, as to Nandikésvara; but, like the latter, I presume secondary, as the vehicle, a visible token of the presence of an invisible deity. The accounts of Egyptian mythology, via Greece, are cloudy, and unsatisfactory. Let us suppose that accounts of Hindu mythology had terminated with the close of the eighteenth century. Then, though statements, during its course, are as full, and varied, and as particular as statements by Greek writers, concerning Egyptian gods; yet they would have been miserably defective, or erroneous as guides to future and remote ages. When looking through Wilkinson's valuable modern researches, the conclusion forced itself on my conviction that ancient authors had not given an adequate clue to the meaning of Egyptian sculpturues and paintings. One of the idols, is by Wilkinson, named SEB; which, in common spelling, is precisely the Bengali mode of pronouncing the name Siva. That however, from size and position, was but an inferior god. Siva has a thousand names, and this one (with the exception of warring against the asuras) is the household, domestic, ordinary name. We read of the Siva-lila, or amorous sports of Siva: but not so of Sámbu, Sancara, Mahadéva or Rudra; which convey other ideas, more august, or terrible. From Prichard's Analysis (mainly following Jablonski) it is apparent that Osiris was, by Greek writers, made to combine the character and qualities, which the class of puránas, first adverted to, in this article, ascribe to Brahma and Siva; but then, this is no more than is given, by other puránas, to Siva alone; and the Saivam of the Peninsula is now quite as high, in its claims, as any attributes ascribed to Osiris. The First Cause, the cause of all things, without equal, without superior; in a word, Supreme. Monotheism cannot go higher. Osiris and Isis correspond with Mahésvara and

Uma; and then we come to the Phallic worship; though with differing legends as to origin, and neither one correct—the true one being indicated in the commencement of the article SACTI (supra). Next, Horus and Harpocrates correspond with the sons of Siva and Parvati (nominally) Subrahmanya and Vignésvara (otherwise Kartikeya and Ganesa). Harpocrates was weakly,* and defective in members; Ganésa is lame, and more subtle than powerful. There are many other names, as Cneph, and the like; but are they different? from such names as those co-synonymes of Siva, above specified, designating character and office rather than separate existence. To derive Osiris from the Coptic is retrorsum; but if O might be the aspirated Greek article (a close connexion in the earliest times subsisting) and siris may be taken as a spelling, by the ear, for siras; then we have, the HEAD: that is the Supreme. The word with dialectic variation only, ran through all the most ancient languages, for prince, or chief. OSIRIS was the chief of the Egyptian deities. In that mythology we find the most ancient schism composed, by the union of the male and female energies. This is a characteristic of the Saiva system proper; represented by the united symbol of lingam and yóni. The sacti system is a branch of the Saivam in India; but it differs from it only as to the degree in which the feminine energy is preferred, or the feminine symbol alone adopted. All attempts to trace the Vaishnava system (if ever made) to Egypt, have failed, and must fail; but the coincidences between the mythology of Egypt, and the Saivam of India are so strong, so decided, the system being comparatively modern in India; as to lead to the conclusion, that the origin of the Saivam was Egypt. By what channel? is the next question. I have pointed out a channel; that is, brought from Egypt into Palestine by Jeroboam, about 1000 A.C.; transplanted to the country between the Tigris and the Euphrates, about 700 or 800 A.C., and thence, possibly—for here the chain of historic evidence is defective, working its way to Benares, in the time of Divodasa, and thence southward to the Peninsula; the latest transit on record being, a large migration of Saiva-Brahmans, from Benares to the neighbourhood of Srî Sailam; drawn thither by Pratápa rudra; for particulars of which, see my report on the Elliot marbles. The view which I have taken may be summarily rejected, with contempt; it may be despised or ridiculed; but, I submit, that it cannot, with calm and careful examination, be disproved. And for a book which I have made use of

*See Prichard's Analysis, chap. 2, where another name is Phonerates, hellenized; but said to be explained by the Coptic Phoch-rat, meaning club-footed or lame.

I ask in this place, for nothing more than its being a historic record, carefully and faithfully preserved; and as being, at least, of equal authority, with Thucydides or Livy, or Hindu puránas.

It may add a particle of weight to the conclusion drawn, if I refer to 1 Kings 12, v. 32. "Jeroboam ordained a feast in the 8th month, on the 15th day of the month, like unto the feast that is in Judah." This was an act of sectarial opposition. The months being lunar, the 15th day was the full moon, on which all great Saiva festivals fall. Siva being Sóma nát'ha "the moon-lord." The festival in Judah referred to, as opposed, was in Tisri, the first month of the civil year, but the seventh of the sacerdotal year, with which last, the Brahmanical reckoning corresponds. In the 7th month there were three solemnities, on the 1st, the 10th, and from the 15th to the 22nd day; the last is most probably referred to; the feast of weeks, and the greatest season of rejoicing. The following 8th month corresponds with the Brahmanical month Asvayúja, and the festival on the 15th corresponds with the great Saiva festival, the Nava rátri, of nine days continuance, to which the Vijaya dasami a 10th day is added, to commemorate the victory of Devi or Durga over the asuras. The 15th day of the 8th month is stated, v. 33 (supra) to have been "devised of his own heart;" that is, not by the authority which had appointed the 15th of the 7th month. It is most likely that he brought the time of observance with him from Egypt; as the events commemorated, were anterior to the Mosaic institutions. It is well observed, by Leslie, that institutions of this sort, handed down through a long succession of ages, are among the strongest of historical testimonies. And the fact that the Saiva Brahmans, now in India, commemorate annually a great festival, at the same time of the year, that a like festival was observed for more than two hundred years by the ten tribes of Israel, previous to their dispersion, seems to me a coincidence much more than accidental.

At some risk of being thought tedious, I would advert to the use of vibhúti, or ashes of cowdung consecrated. All in India know the prevalence of this discriminative mark of the Saivas; and the catalogue passim contains evidence of the importance attached to this vibhúti, and of the extraordinary virtues ascribed to it. In the article of death, a portion of the ashes is given to be swallowed as a viaticum; and, during life, its use removes all sin. Now in the book of Numbers, chap. 19, there is a precept, that a red heifer (the much be-praised Capila of Brahmans) should be carefully selected. The chief sacerdos was to take this animal outside the camp to be sacrificed; and then wholly burnt, including the dung; cedarwood, hyssop, and scarlet, were to be thrown in, and the whole consumed to ashes. The sacerdos was rendered ceremonially unclean, by so doing; so was the person that gathered the ashes; but the ashes themselves were to be laid up in a clean place, and kept for use; "it is a purification from sin." The use, and the great importance (a neglect involving the penalty of life) may be seen in the remainder of the chapter. So matters continued for five hundred years. After the lapse of that period, when Jeroboam introduced a sort of Saiva schism, the state of the case was altered. As the image of a calf was made the emblem of deity, and as such, worshipped, a female calf could be no longer killed and burnt; but "the dung" might; this was expressly a part of the original purifier. Hence possibly, the supernatural power (vibhúti) ascribed to cowdung ashes, when consecrated. The Brahmans, who are great dissemblers, and have carefully sought to conceal their true origin, no doubt have invented a pāuranic legend about Siva (who, at least, as a divinity, is but a mere hieroglyphical personification) but there, as above indicated, is probably the true origin of the miraculous vibhúti.

Tales.

After making all allowances for tastes, predilections, antipathies, and the like, it appears to me only just to state that the collection is peculiarly rich in this portion. An "Eastern tale" has become as familiar to the mind, as tales of Provençals and Troubadours, were a century or two since; as if the sunny south and east were the regions proper to this kind of invention. Such is the case, as it would seem, and to a large extent. However, the tales in this collection are quite of a different order and style of composition from Johnson's Rasselas, Collin's Eastern eclogues, or the more recent tales of the Genii, by Sir C. Malet: these last carry an imitation of Arabian extravagance to an extreme, bordering on the ridiculous. We have to do in this catalogue with classes of people distinct from Mahomedans, and their languages; and, as it seems to me, of better conception, and management. Such tales as the Vasu charitra, and very old Cátambari are of a superior class; but there are tales in poetry, or prose, or both mingled, of all kinds, good, bad, or indifferent. The difference of ideas, of imagery, of illustration, of plot and development, from any thing usual in the west, struck me much; and there is, I think, a new world to be opened to the lovers of fiction, romance, and idealities; if good translations should ever be made of the better portion of these manuscripts of this class. Of the morality of fiction of any kind, a continuous series of invention, false fabrication, and real lying, I have serious doubts; but these are of general application, to east or west. On the propriety of any one allowing his, or her time, and mental faculties to be so occupied and dissipated, I have my own very decided opinion. That tales are every where, more or less of a loose and licentious character, must also be admitted. These eastern tales often go beyond European license, in such particulars; and there are some which would not be tolerated, unless by Socialists, Mormons, or the like kind of hopeless beings. By consequence, nothing can be advanced in commendation of works of this class, without great circumspection and discrimination. If the principle of fiction be considered allowable; if richness of fancy, and embellishment are admired; if people delight in love-scenes, description of the persons of hero and heroine; if painting of the passions creates interest; if even trickery and debauchery, when clever, and set off with advantageous accompaniments, do not want for amateurs; then there is abundance of matter to be supplied from the stores of a people whose tendencies, as regards the masses, have always been in such directions. The Brahmans have been very little concerned in this lighter kind of literature; and very severe lampoons on Brahmans are contained in it. The multiplicity of copies of some tales has caused remark, in the body of the catalogue; and it is best left alone here. I do not know of any thing great or noble, attempted to be painted in this kind of composition. Men and women are allowed to have more refined instinct habits and passions, than brutes; but still it is the animal-man that is concerned. Occasional legends of spirits imprisoned in human bodies; and released by the body being slain; or a transmigration story following a spirit when inhabiting very different kinds of bodies, are exceptions perhaps; and such as distinguish these works wholly from western productions.

Tatva—Metaphysics.

There is a class of writers, making a pretension to divine knowledge, which may require a little explanation. Guided by the garbhópanishada it offers a theory of generation and conception, with regular stages as to growth of the fœtus in the womb. After birth, the human body and interior faculties are divided and subdivided. There are ten different pulses, ten kinds of prâna, or vital air, and the Saivas mark six places of the body where Siva dwells, and the Vira saivas have so much caricatured this last point, that others sometimes designate them as the shad st'halattan, or six-place people. The tatva mystics allegorize all the aforesaid divisions, interior faculties and the like; and consider this spiritualizing as an important part of religious knowledge. Tatvam properly signifies, that which exists, or is truth, and it is applied to deity; sometimes designated simply Tat (or that) to wit, that which is. Thence, by applying this term to this sort of metaphysics, its votaries arrogate to themselves truth incontrovertible. Their anatomical positions are not always strictly accurate; and their theories of airs, pulses, nerves, and the like, may be disputable. There is a tendency to deify the creature; and because "man is fearfully and wonderfully* made," therefore, he is something divine. Led on by such philosophy, the Băuddhas had their ascetics rising to divinity. The Smartas have their notions of refined man as one with deity. The Vira Saivas have their moveable-symbol of deity in every devotee. When the system does not issue in such extremes, it bears an appearance of senility. There is an affectation of knowledge a semblance of profundity; but, after all, there does not appear any thing much more important than Moliere's philosopher: indignant with his distinction on the terms form and figure, as applied or misapplied to a chapeau. There is some use in its teaching us what unassisted reason can do, and how far it can go; but whether it makes a philosopher wiser than a clown, may be questioned.

In consequence of seeing a marginal note in one of the books, referring to an English poem by one of the two Fletchers, I procured it, and found as stated, that the "Purple island" meant man, from the purple fluid flowing in his arteries and veins. The members of the body are therein allegorized; the faculties of the mind, and the various affections, or passions, good are evil, are described, under metaphor and parable. Had the author known Sanscrit, he might have put Tatvam at the head of his title; as some divines of his age were fond of putting Greek or Latin words as their titles. Quite in keeping with that poem, there is one, or more than one copy in the collection of a poem which describes the human body as a fortress, with its gates, walls, towers, garrison, besiegers, strong and feeble points of defence, and the like. I have also read in English something of the kind in an allegory of a

* The Biblical student will find something like a reference of this system, in Psalm 139, v. 13—16.

Porter left in charge of a nobleman's castle; who, by slow degrees and approaches, betrayed his charge to thieves. The moral of the tatva system leads on to stoical pride; otherwise not bad. There is nothing absolutely bad in Horace's homo integer vitæ scelerisque purus: yet the whole runs on to bombast. So on Epictetus, it was written:

> This god-like self-sufficient mind,
> Which in its own enjoyment blest,
> Defies the woes, or sorrows of mankind
> To shake its undisturbed rest—
> Is it not poor, weak, impotent, and blind?

Theological.

Except perhaps a few of the oldest and better upanishadas, there is no book in the collection, containing theology unmixed with baser material. Still traces of this subject often occur, which I could not fail to perceive; even as a miner may follow a vein of gold, though it pass through common or base stratifications. As noted, under the heading of Upanishadas, the theology of those early books when genuine is monotheistic. As shown under Vaishnava, the triple personification of Brahma, Vishnu, and Siva, emanates from the dogma of one Being distinct, and Supreme; and it probably derives from an early tradition of a threefold hypostasis in the Deity. As shown under Saiva, the Saivas acknowledge only Siva as the one supreme. The Smartas hold Brahma, Vishnu, and Siva, to be co-equal, and consentaneous; but their head acknowledged the Para Brahm of the upanishadas. Generally, the Hindu theology is monotheistic; and, except among the Smartas, monarchical: the sabaistic personification of the Vedas being quite subordinate. The divine honors paid to Subrahmanya, in the extreme south, must not be forgotten; nor the general homage to Vinayaca or Ganesa, as the patron of learning; but these are only manifestations of Siva; and like the sactis, Sarasvati, Lacshmi and Parvati, which are resolvable into their male heads, so all these are resolvable to Nárâyana or Para Brahm.

That vulgar opinion and common practice are grossly mythological, admits not of a doubt. But I have to deal with written books, and isoteric doctrines. These appear to me, as I have stated, monotheistic, and mostly monarchical.

The existence of a Divine Being is received: and there are works controversial against speculative atheists, that denied such existence. The attributes of Deity are stated rather by negatives, what God is not, than positively what he is. But I noticed here and there a work approaching more to the positive statement. The poetical fancy of affixing to Deity, one thousand and eight names, or one hundred and eight names for devotional repetition, according as the service is to be long or short, obscures this subject with rhetorical bombast; but I believe that the Attributes, as recognized by Christian theology, are discoverable; except perhaps love, and certainly except spirituality.

For, in creation, the dogma supposed derivable from the Scriptures that God created all things out of nothing by his word, is not held by Hindu writings. Matter is made to be inseparable from Deity, co-existent, co-eternal; and thence all the heart-burnings, and exterminations, connected with the sacti system: the sacti being personified matter, or NATURE. And generation, not absolute creation, is the Hindu mode of expression. This arises from the metaphorical genius of their language: for instance, chemical affinity is, with them, sexual union and the union of words, by the permutation of letters, has the like epithet. I have read Granville Penn's reference to the Regius Professor Lowth, and the Professor's reply, without being fully satisfied (as possibly the Professor himself was not) that the Hebrew word bárà signifies, to form out of absolute nothing. Allowance must be made for the insufficiency of language. And so the Sanscrit which signifies either to be or to be born, leads on to equivocation. It is sufficient to state that the superior Hindu theology recognizes the operation of Deity upon matter; while the inferior maintains spontaneous development; or Matter evolving itself, and fashioning itself into existent forms.

The existence of angels, though under obscure metaphorical terms, is recognized by Hindu theology. And, in this particular it is needful to correct a singular misstatement made by some European writers, that the Hindus worship three hundred and thirty millions of gods. In their fancy for numerical classification (as the Greeks had their seven sages, seven wonders, &c.), they enumerate thirty-three crores of celestials, using the plural of deva, a god; but this is no more than is done in the book of Psalms, in the word Elóhim, without any one charging the writer with worshipping many gods. I do not think this matter goes higher up than the puranas. Vishnu has a paradise which is peopled with choristers, and other celestial attendants. Indra has a paradise, and to this belongs the said thirty-three crores; modelled much after the manner of the court of a Hindu monarch ; and including courtezans, as well as courtiers. I am not aware that the Védas or the upanishadas have treated on this subject. But the Saiva ágamas, are very full, and particular. The word gana, or company, is used. The number of ganas, and of individuals in each company is stated. Ganésa is lord of companies, and he is put at the head of all. There is a very singular coincidence between this ouranology, and that held by old school men, such as Thomas Aquinas, and others later ; and such as the Jesuit Beschi put into Tamil, for the edification of natives: whence they gained their minute enumeration of the exact number of " thrones, dominions, principalities, powers," &c., it may be hard to say ; but that the discrimination, ingeneral, existed among the Hebew doctors, is clear from the names ; and from the known fact that, like Hindus, they recognized seven heavens, or upper worlds. The reader will please to recollect that, in this reference, the Sanscrit devatah, the Telugu devandlu, and the Tamil deverkal ; is to be understood of angels, in the sense of the Psalmist, " I have said ye are gods, &c."

The present deteriorated and corrupt state of mankind, is admitted by Hindu books ; but the four ages are hieroglyphical and poetical ; as much so as Ovid's golden, silver, brazen, and iron, ages. That man was once pure is theological, by tradition ; that he degenerated by regular and set gradations, is poetical and fanciful. It belongs to the Puránas which, though styled old, are comparatively modern productions. The retrograde steps do not seem to me to harmonize (otherwise than as hieroglyphs) with the grand doctrine of fate or predestination, as designated by the highest meaning of the word carmam. This is connected with the metempsychosis : and the present state of being, in various grades or conditions, is the result of a decree passed upon conduct, in a preceding birth, or state of existence ; while a future state of being, is the result of a decree to be passed, at the close of the present state. Man, now, is capable of merit and demerit ; and, the higher the degree of merit now, the greater will be the reward ; and vice versa, as to demerit.

The Cali yuga seems in truth rather to relate to the political degradation and general misery of a particular people, than to abstract theological dogmas. If we accept it in the sense of man's ruin, then comes in the doctrine of sacrifice. This has been handed down traditionally ; but the original reference seems to be lost. The doctrine of expiation waned before the theory of propitiation alone. Sacrifices came to be regarded as of extraordinary merit ; not offered as a culprit, suing for pardon ; but, as a royal benefactor, purchasing gifts, posterity, dominion. Then came a comparison of the modes of merit, whether by sacrifices, by penance, or austerities, and by gnánam, that is gnosis or knowledge. Sacrifices, or ritual service, designated by carmam in a lower sense of the word, is now regarded as the lowest stage; penance as higher; and the Smartas hold knowledge to be the highest stage, to wit, a knowledge that the soul of man is one with deity, and that good and evil are alike of divine causation.

Thence proceeded the wide departure from the old Hebrew doctrine of sacrifices, as expiatory and propitiatory. One view of the Christian system places penance and austerities, and the doctrine of merit, just where placed by Hindu writers: another view abrogates human merit, and requires bhakti, or fiducial attachment, faith in an atonement: a doctrine not entirely unknown to Hindu books. Carmam, bhakti, gnánam, being three modes of service. At the same time anything like a Mediator, and an atonement, in the Christian sense, is now unknown.

According to the higher dogma of carmam, judgment is a continuous act; always proceeding and determining the states of mankind in the way of punishment or reward. The destruction and renovation of the world (as in 2 Peter, 3, 12, 13), is a common dogma. The Vaishnavas look for a tenth avatára ; which has many points coinciding with the second advent of Christian divines.

The grand doctrine of mocsham or cessation of carmam, or the law of fate, in predestinating to future births, demands some further consideration. All Hindu books profess to look to this prime desideratum as the grand, and final end of human existence. Even the Sanc'hya system of atheism still recognizes this, as the great end of human being. Bāuddism, which is better, since it obscurely recognizes 'Adi Buddha, as an intelligent First Cause, holds the like view; but under the term nibutti, Sanscrit nivirtti (or release from transmigrations). The common, and popular Hindu notion recognises Sverga, or the paradise of Indra, as a lower and sensual paradise; the heaven of puránas and poets. The Vaishnavas have Vaicont'ha, as the paradise of Vishnu ; and they use the term Vaicont'ha gati, the bliss of that heaven. The Saivas use the word Cailasa, and speak of going to, or obtaining Cailasa ; but they describe three grades, as nearness—likeness to—and union with Siva: to which Howe, a Puritan divine, has some striking similitude from the old schoolmen. But mocsham is properly the attainment of the satya-lóca, the highest of the seven heavens, or upper worlds, and the presence of Brahm. A common popular notion of Vaishnavas identifies Vishnu, as Nárayana, with the sun of our solar system; and makes that his paradise: to go through, or by way of, the sun is the road to the satya-locam, or mocsham. The Saivas appear to consider the sauchya or aikyam, as a blending with deity, losing all personal identity. The Vira Saivas (see that heading) amplify the dogma into six progressive ascents; aikya st'halam, being the highest. The question, whether the Bauddhist nibutti, and Brahmanical mocham, mean absolute annihilation has been mooted: annihilation it cannot be, since the soul is still considered as existing in, or as a part of Deity. The language used implies a loss of personal identity, but perhaps it ought not to be strained, on such a theme. The difference between their views and ours may not possibly be material. To notice the similarity is of more importance here, than precisely to discriminate the difference.

But it is impressive to note, that all other than sensual men appear to hold the body as a prison and punishment; birth, as agony; and continued transmigrations, as evil. The whole creation groaneth and travaileth together—waiting for—the REDEMPTION—in which word* (here, and in 1 Cor. 1, 30), we may perceive a rabbinical sense, and one coinciding, very nearly, with mocsham. That is the grand consummation, the supremely desirable attainment. WE (some of us at least) profess the like; and I confess that I have been sometimes indirectly reproved by these heathen books. There is an amazing difference as to the nature and allowance of means; but in the end, at all events, we substantially agree.

On the opposite dogma, Hindu books are very full and particular. There are seven infernas, or lower worlds; the highest of which is Pátala, a world of snakes; and the lowest Naraca, a place of darkness and ordure. Details are minute and painful; for instance, in one of the books of the Bhágavatam—in this minuteness is to be found an objection. The Christian revelation describes futurities of both kinds under impressive, but more general terms; and in this, as in other points, is better adapted to be a system universal among mankind.

If I have not erred in this brief summary of the theological, as I have not at least intentionally; and, if the reader will consult the articles Saiva, Vaishnava, and Upanishadas—may I not ask, on the whole, have we not come to India to find a system, which came hither eastward, very similar indeed to one which travelled westward, towards our forefathers, from some common locality; and is there any common centre more likely than the árya bhumi, the áretz hakadosh of Palestine or Judea?

* In the original Greek apolutrósis; which in loc: is translated by the Sanscrit nirirtti, or release, as that is deemed the synonym of mocsham; or, in Pracrit, mukti.

VAISHNAVA.

This term, as already partially intimated, may be taken as indicating a three-fold progressive state of belief and practice—the first is the simple and primitive system; the second is with the addition of herolatry, in the persons of Ráma Chandra, and Krishna; the third, with the further addition of the Páncha rátram; on which, see Mimamsa, supra. Sir W. Jones, the first successful inquirer into Hinduism, made known to the world the Vaishnava system under the second place; his Pandit being a devotee of Krishna. That distinguished writer left open the inference, that such is Hinduism, at large; as the common religion of one homogeneous people. Bishop Heber was the first to announce that the Hindus are not such a people; and he did so, not without surprise, though he was forty years later than Sir W. Jones. The two clever men had different objects in view. Sir W. Jones evidently started on a sceptical basis, as a disciple of Voltaire. His object was to beautify or magnify the Hindus; or, where he could not do so, to excuse them; and this by endeavouring to ally their faults or follies, with those of Greece: there then existing, in Europe, a strong prepossession in favor of Greece, from its sculpture, painting, poetry, oratory, and especially heroism at Marathon, and other places. The silence of this great and influential authority on the Saiva system, is remarkable; a slight casual mention of Siva and Durga, or Parvati, was deemed sufficient; though the orgies of the Dúrga-púja at Calcutta, were patent to his observation. Either he could not, or would not go beyond his Pandit's leading strings. If willing, he could not have explained the Saiva system, without depreciating his favorite Hindus. On the other hand, Colonel VansKennedy of Bombay, some thirty years later, got hold of a Saiva Pandit: he is just as silent on the Vaishnava system; but his book is the best known authority on the Saivam, not from his assertions, and occasionally glaring falsehoods; so much as for his translations, which have the appearance of being faithful: and a horrible picture some of them give. This gentleman, when starting on a like career of comparison with Egypt and Greece, freely criticised SirW .Jones; declaring that, when he wrote the Essay on the gods of Greece, Egypt and India, he was not sufficiently well acquainted with Hinduism: such was the best, if not only apology; but it does not atone for misleading; and, in the case of such a man, leading a following host astray. I have stated above (under Saiva) my opinion, that Egypt is the source of that religious way: with equal conviction, as to myself, I state that the analogies of the Vaishnava system are not to be traced to Egypt or Greece; and it is very far from having been at any time, a system homogeneous with the Saivam.

In the Peninsula at the present day, the worship of Ráma and Kṛishna chiefly prevails. The case of Conjeveram is an exception; a warlike form of Vishnu having been there devised, in consequence of an extensive extermination of the primitive inhabitants of the country. The Vaishnava system is more modern in the Peninsula than the Saiva system. Traditionally, the Srî Permattûr temple is said to be the first Vaishnava temple in the south; at all events it became the most famous; though smaller than the temple at Sri-rangham near Trichinopoly, and much less resorted to than Tripety, a shrine of Govinda or Kṛishna. The system had to struggle with the Saiva system, previously introduced, and not always with success. The twelve Aluvàr or Rulers, were mostly plain men; who, with great zeal, led the way in the first establishment of the system. By their followers they are next to deified; but some of them were grievously lampooned by their adversaries. The most remarkable of these 'Aluvar was the latest, whose Tamil name is Yempramánar, but better known by the Sanscrit name Rámanujáchárya. These twelve men composed the works known as Tiru morhi, or "sacred word;" being matters from the Vedas, transfused into Tamil in a very obscure and foreign idiom. The Sri villiputtur Aluvár in the Southern Pandiyan country is next in fame. His battles were with the Saivas there; but Ramanūja effected a revolution, as regards the Jaina religion, in Mysore. It was bloodless. Ramanúja, caused an inscription to be recorded, declaring that, the difference between the Vaishnava and Jaina system was not material; and so, under color of union, the Jaina system was superseded; whereas the Saivas, in other localities, exterminated both Bauddhas and Jainas.

In the far north (in the division termed Gāuda, by distinction from Dravida), the introduction of the Vaishnava way is not marked by historical or legendary record, as in the case of the Saivam. It would seem to be more ancient than the latter; and in effect, the system anterior to the extensive schism caused by Buddha. Most of the puranas are of this class; the Mahabharata, Ramayanam and Hari Vamsa, were by votaries of Vishnu. The collector of the Vedas, named Vyasa, is acknowledged to be a Vaishnava. To his pupil Suta, many puránas are ascribed, the latest one to the son of that pupil. The connection of these early Vaishnavas with Persia, or the region beyond it, is not perfectly clear; but there are too many traces (v. infra) to be merely incidental. The Jyotishas, or astrological Brahmans are mostly Vaishnavas; and under the heading Astrological (vol. i), is an argument tracing the astrology of this country to Chaldea or Babylon: they accord with the G'hasdim of the book of Daniel. In the Madras Journal of Literature and Science (vol. xvii, 1), is a paper by the gentleman at the head of the Presidency College, which mathematically traces a sidereal problem to a latitude and longitude N. W. of Madras; and agreeing sufficiently well with Babylon. In the Uttara Ráma charitra, the author Bhava bhúti introduces the father of Sita, and other primitive persons, and puts into their mouths language which Prof. Wilson translated according to the sabaism of the Vedas, but being doubtful he gives the original; and this is strictly consistent with the belief and language of ancient Hebrews. The Professor remarks on the killing of cows, for a welcome festival, as not consistent with modern Hinduism; but it was quite consistent with the customs of the old Hebrews. Next to the mathematical and astrological, the strongest argument is the fact that, the Matsya avataram or first manifestation of Vishnu is strictly that form of deity which was worshipped at Babylon, under the name Oannes; and the idol Oannes was half-man, half-fish; just as the said avataram is represented in some Indian sculptures. Prichard in his Analysis states just so much as his own conclusion. In effect, the legend of Xisuthrus as ascribed to Sanconiathon is substantially one and the same with, the statements in the Bharatam and Bhagavatam; concerning Vishnus appearance to Vaivasvata or Satyavrüta, and then piloting the vessel in the shape of a fish, a rope being attached to his horn. The adornments may differ; as two poets may differ; but the essential fact, commemorated at Babylon, and in northern and southern India, is one and the same. I may add a slightly inferential argument which, I would not introduce, if it stood alone, but it may help in company. The popular account of eclipses in India, of pauranic origin, is that a serpent (Sans. sarpa, G. draco) swallows the sun or moon at such times. We have ráhu and ketu (as planets) for the moon's nodes, or dragon's head and tail. From the Apocrypha we learn that, Bel and the Dragon were worshipped at Babylon. Bel is well known to be a name of the sun; and, as such, occurs at least once in these manuscripts (noted in loco).

The dragon (draco) might not so readily occur as identical with the serpent of which Rahu and Kétu are the head and tail; but here I am aided by the remark of an English writer, to the purport, that the moon in its orbit, passing from node to node, does in effect draw on the line of sun's path the figure of a serpent; and returning fills up the other side, so as to produce the figure of a Caduceus (such as was put into the hands of Mercury by the Greeks) having the head, body and tail of a serpent on a straight rod. The popular pauranic legend is by consequence of Babylonian origin: and since at Babylon they worshipped Bel and the Dragon, they worshipped the sun and the moon, or Vishnu and Siva; though the latter is subordinate, as in Vaishnava puranas; and not supreme as in Egypt, and among the suddha Saivas of the Indian Peninsula.

As regards the first or oldest system of the Vaishnavas, it is very nearly the one offered to the learned world, by Sir W. Jones, as Hinduism; only it must be detached from all reference to the three or four latest avatáras; that is, from Parasu Ráma to Buddha. The name of God as the synonyme of Para Brahm of the upanishadas, is Nárâyana; the only one of the thousand names of Vishnu that cannot be tampered with, or twisted by Saivas. This name was rendered moving, or dwelling in water; and hence, by Sir W. Jones, a forced analogy with the Ruach Elohoim that brooded on the waters (Gen. 1, 2), and a variety of figures in his hymn to Nárâyana, stolen without acknowledgment from the Christian scriptures, and applied to Hindu writings. Nara has more than one meaning, and it is unimportant to be particular; the páuranic hieroglyphic is, that from the navel of Nárâyana, beneath the water, a lotos flower rose to the surface, and bore Brahma the Creator; who disposed or set all things in order, from Maya or matter, and handed over the preservation to Vishnu, and destruction to Rudra, both emanent like himself from Nárâyana. Further, Nárâyana is identified with the sun, or the sun is his dwelling, or most striking emblem. The name Vishnu is not used in that primal sense: all the adjuncts show that the idea of a man is blended with the term Vishnu; but afterwards identified with Deity. Vishnu was with Satya-vrüta during the deluge; but Satya-vrüta seems to have lent him a name Vi-ish-Nu, or "the man Nuh," by which the deity was known. The idea of a sacti did not belong to the original system. That was superadded, at a much later date by puranas, and, possibly after observing the effect produced by the Saivite dogma of a female energy. In the Matsya avatara, the eight persons that escaped the deluge Satya-vrüta and the seven rishis were all males, by páuranic account; but in the next, or curma avatara, Lacshmi the sacti of Vishnu was produced from the Ocean; whence Noah's wife certainly came. We may disentangle the theology from the mythology, and hieroglyphic, and every idea "ridiculous" in the view of such writers, as Prichard;* and we then find the idea of one sole self-existent, and eternal Being; either existing under a threefold hypostasis, or manfested under a threefold operation; that is creation, preservation, destruction; and though the system recognizes Maya, or pre-existent matter, yet this, in the feminine gender is connected with Brahmà, or creative energy, not with Narayana, the Supreme. The system differs, therefore, but little from that of Hebrew Rabbis; which recognised One Supreme; but with three sephiroth or lights, the emblem† of which was a circle enclosing three yods. Another emblem was the letter shin: this engraven on a metal plate, or written on parchment, was placed on the forehead of votaries, and fastened behind; and this letter shin differed from the nama (or name) worn by Vaishnavas on their forehead, only by the addition of three dots (or yods) on the points of the trident.

The identification of Vishnu in the matsya avatara with the half-man, half-fish, of the Babylonian Oannes, has been above adverted to; but I refer to the heading VEDAS and UPANISHADAS, for my views as to the way in which Hebrew theology, and Chaldean sabaism came to be mingled together, and so imported to India by the Brahmans. Modern ethnologists write about the Aryas, and the Arya races; what do they mean? other than Brahmans and the Brahmanical race; for Arya is only another word, as a title, for Brahman; that is, one pure; and Arya desam, as applied by them to the mountainous Central India, is only a translation in terms, of ARETZ-HAKADOSH, or "the holy land" the centre of the earth, the Jambu dwipa of the puranas.

In this place, I propose to add a few observations towards an explanation of the five first avataras of Vishnu, or special manifestations of a power, assumed to be divine; but, in the present day, accepted by

* On Osiris and Isis; whom he adds "some writers have ridiculously identified with Noah and his wife." But it so happens that Wilkinson (subsequently to the issue of that opinion) has given drawings of Osiris and Isis seated on the platform of an ark, with attendants; which ark used to be carried about in procession. Wilkinson must share in the ridicule, and he his fully able to do so. Osiris is so comprehensive a name, that it may be cut into three parts; one for Brahmà, one for Vishnu, one for Siva: hence it is possibly a synonyme with Nárayana.

† See Maurice's Indian Antiquities; a work of no authority as to Hinduism, but of great use as to Hebrew comparison and affinities.

Brahmans in a literal point of view, and by poets with their alancaram, or poetical rhetoric, magnified to hyperbole, and absurdity.

The first or matsya avataran is by common consent the Noachic deluge. If Sir W. Jones wrote the preface to Richardson's folio edition of Meninski's Arabic Dictionary, as there is all evidence, external and internal, to believe that he did, then this is full to the point. In that preface, the existence of the Deluge was denied; and the proof was referred to Hindu records, in preference to the Mosaic writing. On coming to India, early attention was directed to that point and Sir W. Jones was candid enough to record his conviction and conversion, by publishing a translation from the eighth book of the Bhagavatam, on the deluge, and another reference to the same as the matsya avataram from the Gita Govinda. Prichard, a physician at Bristol, one in nowise inclined to the ridiculous, in his Analysis of Egyptian mythology, identifies the matsya avatara with the flood, and the Babylonian Oannes. There are other witnesses; but two may suffice.

In the second, or cūrma avataram (according to the alancáram of the puranas) Vishnu taking the form of a tortoise, supported beneath the mount Mandara, with which the devas and asurs churned the milk sea, whence came up the nine jewels; the physician Dhanuvantari, the goddess Lacshmi, and last, not least, the amṛita or beverage of strength, named "undying." Mohini, or a personification of illicit love is connected with this avatáram. I was early of opinion that, allowing the extravagance of metaphor to go to the credit of other products, the discovery of the properties of the fruit of the vine was the main point involved. But after considering, and reconsidering the extreme hyperbole employed, I wavered; and, thinking the main pillar too feeble to bear the building, tacitly withdrew the opinion. I was first induced to revise that conclusion, by the perusal of Layard's researches on the site of ancient Nineveh. I found that the vine was regarded as a sacred plant; as such was represented in temples, and received a sort of divine honor. On one of the slabs extracted is the figure of a vine, on a sort of espalier-trellis; before it, the figure of a royal hierophant, holding a vessel evidently containing therein amṛita, or juice of the vine. The asuras (Assurs or Assyrians) were one of the parties in the first discovery; and are stated in Hindu books, to have derived their great strength from the use of amṛita. Afterwards, I perused Bryant's Analysis; and with his successful identification of Dionysios and Bacchus, with Noah, is connected a great extent of authorities; as to the sacred nature of wine with the Greeks; the Bacchanalian sacred processions; and much other like matter. After this perusal, I could doubt no longer. It became perfectly clear that, in the judgment of Assyrians, Greeks, and other people, the discovery of wine deified the discoverer; and led on to acts of worship, in which the use of wine, even to intoxication, formed a part. In such views, hyperbole of the Hindu poets seemed borne out, by the amrita alone; but certainly, when the discovery of gems, of medicine as a science, and of a goddess to rival the sacti of the Saivas are thrown into the scale: I retain no present doubt, and consider that any other interpretation, on equal evidence, is impossible.

In the third, or Varáha avatara, an asura named Hiranyacsha and Somaca (Assyria and Egypt were always related), stole the vedas, rolled up the earth as a mat, and hid himself with the vedas in the sea. Vishnu took the form of a boar; slew the asura, recovered the vedas, and bearing up the earth out of the water on his tusk, reanimated and reinstated the oppressed people. The allegory here also is immense and incongruous; but, being guided by the two preceding, and supported by the next one following, it appears that we need not be afloat among all nations, but must look simply to the Hebrew records disguised by their descendants, but simple in the original. Egypt worshipped the moon. Somanat'ha is a name of Siva. Sómacásura is the Pharaoh of the Hebrew writings; who grievously oppressed the Beni-Israel; made them forget their religion, and lose the observance of their sabbath; and was, at length, slain with his host in the Red-sea; from which the oppressed people were delivered; and soon after the LAW (or VEDAM) was given to them, with many miraculous accompaniments. The metaphorical language used is not above the subject, by any means: it is only strange, mixed, oriental. Admitting the facts, we must admit the majesty of the subject; much more so, might the people, and descendants of the people, immediately concerned.

In the fourth, or Vámana avatara, it is stated that Vishnu assumed the form of a dwarf; and coming to Mahabali, a chacraverti or universal sovereign, asked as much land in gift, as his foot could cover. The grant being made, the dwarf assumed the tri-Vicrama form; one foot being on the ground, another on Mahabali's neck; and, rising to gigantic proportions, he placed his third foot in the heavens. As Maha bali was a virtuous sovereign, he was not destroyed, but was made a king in the infernal regions. All this is, of course, hyperbolical hieroglyphic. Before attempting a solution, it may be noted that, in some of the manuscripts, the Vámana jayanti, or birth-day of the dwarf, is fixed on the fourteenth day of the lunar month P'halguni. The three preceding avataras are not commemorated by Vaishnavas. The Saivas observe the Siva rátri, commemorating the distress of Siva in the second avatára; and this, according to Bryant, was also commemorated in Egypt. But the fourth avátara, from its great importance at the time, still retains a faint commemoration in India. We find from the book of ha-dassah, that is, "the dasi" or slave girl, otherwise Esther; that the day fixed for the general slaughter of the Hebrew people, and the one on which they subsequently obtained deliverance, was the thirteenth day of the lunar month Adar, corresponding with P'halguni. In this, there is a marked coincidence as to time. The occasion was a great one; and it is commemorated by the descendants of the "captives of Juda" as the festival of Purim, that is, of lots; and it is one of their greatest festivals. If in India, we find the "outcasts of Israel," then circumstances may have impeded the more solemn celebration; and time may have worn out the impression first made. Let us consider other points of comparison. Maha bali was a universal sovereign. Ahasuerus of the Greek Septuagint, Artacshashta of the Hebrew, probably Ardaschir of the Medes and Persians, ruled over one hundred and twenty-seven provinces, from India even to Ethiopia; or from the western bank of the Indus to the Caspian sea; and southwards down to the banks of the Tigris: that is, quite a sufficient extent of dominion. A dwarf is by no means an unsuitable emblem, for a little slave girl; brought into the royal palace merely on account of her great beauty; from no more honorable motive than Circassians were taken into the harem at Constantinople. There was a request made. A foot of land is a standing place. And the request of Esther simply was that she, and her people might occupy the ground they stood on, without being cut down by the sword, where they stood. No riches, honors, or possessions were sought, besides this one simple gift. On the request being granted, and the before-devoted people allowed to defend themselves, and slay every one that assaulted them, the once insignificant dwarf exercised a power of no small magnitude, throughout the aforesaid one hundred and twenty-seven provinces; symbolically putting a foot on the neck of the royal authority, or order previously issued and unchangeable, "to destroy, to kill, and to cause to perish," men, women and children, in one day; the aforesaid thirteenth of Adar. The third foot placed in the heaven, may be a symbolical allusion to the hanging of Haman and his sons, on an unusually lofty gibbet of 50 cubits, or 75 feet high; which Haman had prepared for his chief victim. Mahabali was not killed, and of course Ardaschir was not ; but the making him, at the natural close of life a king of Pátála, is the utmost that could be conceded ; considering his drunkenness, injustice to his first queen, his subsequent licentiousness ; and, were there nothing more, for the extreme levity of consigning an entire captive people to a cruel death, merely at the solicitation of a favorite, and boon companion. In this analogy, I have not strained the Hindu alancáram ; but have rather exemplified it ; and the reader is left to judge of its correctness.

In the fifth, or Narasinha avatára, we meet with a king of golden-form (Hiranya cusipu) who had a son named Prahláda ; one who was a devoted servant of Vishnu, and much celebrated for his piety, and many amiable virtues. On these accounts, and especially as being a votary of Vishnu, his father hated, oppressed, and persecuted him. At a time when Prahláda's life was in danger, Vishnu burst from one of the pillars of the palace in the shape of a man-lion, killed the tyrant and drank his blood. Now for the matter of the persecution of the true religion in its votaries, we know that Nebuchadnezzar set up a lofty golden image, or of golden form, on the plain of Dura, and commanded all to worship it. Three Hebrews refused, and were, with great fury cast into a furnace heated to extraordinary intensity, by the royal command. But we must look futher on, another forty years for the proper development. Darius is latinized ; the Persian word is Dara, and this was applied to gold coins (as in France, a gold coin was termed a Napoleon). Darius was enticed into an indiscreet, and unjust proceeding, by the enmity of certain Satraps, against Daniel, who fully answers to the character of Prahláda. As next to the king in authority, he might, by a Hebrew idiom, be termed his son. Daniel was cast into a den of lions, and remained there for a night ; being taken out the next morning, unhurt. His adversaries were then cast in a body into the den, and their bones were broken, their blood and flesh consumed by the lions. When I first read Layard's researches on the vicinity of ancient Nineveh, I felt an intuitive perception, that the site of the man-lion avatara was not in India, but somewhere in the neighbourhood of a country in which the pillars of king's palaces were made in the shape of a winged lion, with a human face ; yet, I should not have ventured on the explanation given, unsupported by previous conclusions. Sir W. Jones fixed on Nineveh for the site of this avatara ; but too far N. W. and too early ; there being nothing in the fate of Nimrod similar, and no just comparison arising from the overthrow of the tower of Babel ; any identification of Prahláda being wanting. It is to be observed that this occurrence, in my view at Babylon, was twenty years earlier than the event (supra) under Ardaschir at Shushan in Media, the modern Armenia. But the overwhelming importance of the latter event, as affecting an entire people, probably gave it precedence, in order, to the instance of an individual, however distinguished; while his high place and character, and his representing the religion of his countrymen probably, secured him the distinction of being recorded as a special protégé, in a singular and very distinguished manifestation of Divine Providence.

The sixth avatara is that of Párásu Ráma, and it brings the Vaishnava system to the purlieus of India. Jamadagni was a ṛishi or sage; who with his wife Renuca and his son Ráma, lived in a sort of hermitage, in some place north of India. The wives of such sages were pati vrüta, pre-eminently chaste; and so cold, that ice did not melt when held by their fingers. If it did, that was proof positive of libidinous thought at least, if not more. One day Jamadagni sent his wife to a river to fetch a block of ice; and, on her bringing it, it was found to be partially dissolved in her hands. In great wrath the sage commanded his son to strike off her head, which he did with (párasu) an axe. Some women of the villagers (paras) interposed, and Ráma struck off their heads likewise. The sage, repenting his rashness, proposed to restore his dead wife; but, in the hurry of the moment joined her head to a pariah's body, and the head of another para to her body. Hence the Pariahs worship Renuca as a goddess. Jamadagni had with him the cow, Cáma dhenu, or cow of plenty, which a neighbouring chief or king coveted; and, on its being denied, took it by force. The ṛishi sent his son Ráma, who fought with the powerful king (having a hundred arms) and in a severe combat lopped off his arms one by one, with his battle axe; whence the name Párasu Ráma. Not only so, but he exterminated all the Cshetriyas, or soldier tribe, and gave their lands to Brahmans. The Kerala Ulpatti, and the Kerala mahatmyam, add to the legend, that Párasu Ráma demanded from the sea a further domain; which was granted to the extent that, he could throw his battle axe. Standing north at Gokernam (near Goa), he threw his axe a distance of forty yojanas or four hundred miles; and, to that extent, on a parallel with Gokernam, the sea retreated. He placed fishermen on the recovered land, and made them semi-brahmans. He returned to Haicshétram; and thence afterwards brought a colony of pure Brahmans; disgracing and displacing the former colony.

This legend seems to have a back reference to Joshua, the warlike leader of the Beni-Israel; who slew many Cshétriyas, or chiefs of villages or towns, yclep'd "kings;" and divided their lands among his followers; and this is recurred to in the name Hai-cshetram (or town Ai). But the real locality was very different. It would appear that the precursors of the Brahmans, towards India, were not military men, but sages; here and there a wanderer, who separated from his tribe, and wended his way easterly; followed by others, gradually, in greater numbers. Such was the case also in the Peninsula. Its first explorer was a Brahman, named Agastya; and thence in course of time, the millions of Brahmans now holding the serfs in subjection. The tale of the ice points out a northern track; as for example, from the banks of the Tigris, by way of Bokhara, or Samarcand, to Thibet, and thence southward into India. There are said to be no pure Cshetriyas now in India; the Rajpoots and others claiming the title, being spurious. But in reality the entire hieroglyphic legend of Brahman, Cshetriya, Vaisya and Sudra, demands scrutiny. There are now only two, the Brahmans above, and the Sudras under their feet; though there are such as term themselves by assumption Cshetriya-putras; and others who term themselves Vaisyas; but merely because they are traders.

A very wide-spread legend makes the two Rámas cotemporary. I do not here enter on the avataras of Ráma Chandra and Krishna, but refer back to the heading, Romance historical. These altered the old Vaishnava system into herolatry; and, as such now, it chiefly subsists around Madras; and in various other localities. The avatara of Buddha for a considerable period, caused a revulsion of another sort; as making a naked mendicant greater than a king. I have treated on that subject elsewhere, and do not here enlarge. The final avatara in the shape of a horse, so much resembles like prophetic statements in the Hellenistic Apocalypse, that there can be no dispute, on minor points, where all substantially agree.

If the foregoing premises are correct, the Vaishnavam is originally old Talmudic Hebraism; modified, in passing through Chaldea; and still more greatly modified on the plains of India.

Vedas and Upanishadas.

It may be well to preface what I may have to state, on this heading, by an extract from some papers supplied by the Honorable Walter Elliot, Esq., as follows:—

"The Rig is the first in rank among the four Vedas. Its name is derived from the verb rich " to laud," and contains hymns and prayers, for the most part encomiastic, or laudatory, addressed to the elements of nature, or the regents or deities who are supposed to preside over them. The collection is divided into eight parts (Ogdoad) called ashtacas or chanda, each of which is subdivided into as many lectures (adhyayas). According to Mr. Colebrooke, another mode of division also runs through the volume, distinguishing ten books (mandala), which are subdivided into more than a hundred chapters (anuvaca), and comprise a thousand hymns, or invocations (sukta). A further subdivision of more than two thousand sections (varga) is common, it is suited to both methods, and the whole contains above 10,000 verses, or rather stanzas of various measures. The composition of successive chapters and even of entire books of these hymns, is attributed to a single (that is distinct) author, and invocations too, addressed to the same deities, hymns relating to the like subject, and prayers intended for similar occasions, are frequently classed together; the reason of which is explained by Mr. Colebrooke. Some passages of the Vedas are in the form of dialogue, and in such cases the interlocutors are alternately considered as Rishi (saint) or " he by whom the mantra is spoken," and Dévata (deity) or " he who is therein mentioned." Prof. Wilson is of opinion, that of the four Védas, the Rig is the most ancient; and, in support of this view, he states that parts of this Veda are found in each of the others. This fact has also been noticed by Dr. Stevenson, who considered that most, if not the whole of the verses of the Samavéda are taken from the Rig, and on search he found it to be the case. It is therefore not very unlikely, as he thinks, that a similar inquiry would give the same result in regard to the others. Mr. Colebrooke also had long before observed that many passages of the Yajush have been found to be identical with passages in the Rig: and to this cause probably, it is, that the Puranas ascribe unity to the véda, as it originally existed. This arrangement, or recurrence of passages, seems to have been made either capriciously or to suit particular services; for the compilation is nothing more than a miscellaneous collection of sacrificial hymns.

" The number of Sanhitas of the Rig véda, is reckoned in the Puránas, as sixteen. Other authorities reduce it to five. In the Muktikópanishad, ten are enumerated as belonging to the Rig veda; and the number of its sac'has or branches is said to be twenty-one.

" Sanhita or Sayumhita, signifies a collection of prayers, invocations, or hymns: and every such collection belonging to one Veda, is entitled its Sanhita. The Sanhitas constitute the Sac'has or branches of each veda. The arrangement of the Sanhitas is in a liturgical form, containing petitions addressed to the sun, moon and stars, to fire, earth, and water, to Indra, Yama, Vishnu, Rudra, and other deities. The prayers are partly homologatory, partly doxological, and partly supplicatory. In them the different gods are invoked to accept the sacrifices offered, or to confer the blessings sought for, and are regaled with laudatory ejaculations setting forth their excellencies. They are therefore, in this respect, no better than any pagan scriptures. The Sanhitas supply a good clue to the real paternity of the Vedas. These hymns are, as has been noticed elsewhere, the devotions, for the most part of some particular Rishis expressed in some particular metres; and addressed to some particular deities, specified in the prayers themselves. The names of the Ṛishi, metre, and god, for every hymn, are inscribed at the head: hence it is an easy matter to ascribe the origin to its proper source. In this respect, one cannnot but observe the resemblance between them and the Psalms of David; some of which likewise bear names inscribed at the head of the compositions. [The tune, or metre is also occasionally given]. Brahmana, signifies divinity, and under this general head is included every portion of the Vedas, besides the Sanhitas. According to Jaimini's definition "whatever is not mantra, is Brahmana." "This comprises precepts which inculcate religious duties; maxims which explain those precepts; and arguments, which relate to theology," (Prasthanabheda apud Colebrooke). The characteristic sign of it is, that it very generally contains the particle "so" iti or itiha; while that of the mantra is the pronoun "thee," either expressed or understood, "(thou) art." It is on this account that such passages of the Brahmana as narrate a story—for instance, that of the nymph Urvasi and the king Purūravas are, designated Itihasas. In a more general view the Brahmana is practical.

"Upanishada is the name given to the tract containing the theology of the Veda, embracing the argumentative portion. In a more general sense it may be viewed as speculative, compared to the Brahmana, which is positive divinity. Some of the Upanishadas are parts of the Brahmanas, properly so called; and others extant in a detached form. The Upanishadas are for the most part short, and are commonly mystical and obscure. They are considered to be later productions, striving to harmonize the detached and isolated maxims of the Sanhitas and Brahmanas, into a consistent whole. The ordinary enumeration of them is said to be 51; and there are others bearing that name, which are considered to be spurious. In the Muktićópanishada, the number of the principal Upanishadas is said to be 108, which is borne out by the Mahavákya Retnávali. A list of them is given by Mr. Elliot, in the Journal of the Asiatic Society of Bengal, Vol. xx, No. vii. The whole of the above 51 Upanishadas were translated into Latin, by Anquetil du Perron, and published at Paris in 1801, in 2 vols., under the title of "Oupnekhat, seu Theologia et Philosophia Indica." As his translation was made from a Persian version, undertaken by order of Prince Dara Shekoh, it is considered to be as unintelligible as the original Sanscrit. The Cena Upanishada of the Sáma véda, the Ishōpanishad, and the Kuthopanishad of the Yajur veda, and the Mundookopanishad of the Atharvana veda, were translated into English by Rajah Rammohum Roy, and printed at Calcutta separately; and at London, unitedly in 1832. These were likewise translated into French, and also into German, with the addition of the Vrihadaranyakam, by M. Poley, and printed respectively at Paris, and Bonn. Other versions, &c. are enumerated by Professor Gildemaster, in the "Bibliothecæ Sanskritæ specimen."

It is stated above, that the upanishadas are intended to mould the sanhitas, and brahmanas into one consistent whole. From this statement by a learned Native, I am constrained to differ. My information on the subject of the vedas is confessedly not extensive; but, such as it is, it leads me to conclude that the three first vedas are sabaistic, or relate to the worship of the sun and planets, the elements—fire especially—the asvini cumara—and a few other personifications; while it is plain from the upanishadas, contained in this collection, that they recognize no special divinity in such objects, but almost uniformly acknowledge one Supreme Being, by the name Para Brahm; and a great portion of the mystic theology of these later appendices treats on the mode by which men under severe penance, may raise themselves to various degress of approximation towards the nature of the divine Being: according to them the parama amsa is one who is superior to mortality and a deity in human form; not very dissimilar to the attainments of a buddha according to the Bauddhist system. The recognition of Deity however is decided; and as far as I have seen, that Deity is monarchical. As I have elsewhere observed Vyasa, after the collecting the three first védas, could reduce their substance to the pantheism of the Brahma sutras or Vedantam, and did so; but the upanishadas, are much later compositions, and not so reducible. They teach the doctrine of one Supreme.

The date of Vyasa is a point of some consequence. We need not consider him as chiràn jivi, or immortal, and reappearing at distinct intervals ; but may leave that fiction to the Brahmans. As the son of Parásara, and collector of the before-scattered fragments of the Vedas, he had a definite chronological existence. The date of Parásara is said to be fixed, by his recorded observation of the place of the colures, to 1391 B. C. How far the observation was accurate—considering the probable imperfection of instruments, and the very slow motion of the colures, and possible error by refraction, not understood—may be justly doubted.

On the imperfection of astronomical instruments, and the consequences, it may be sufficient to refer to Vince's quarto work, or to Herschell's little duodecimo in the Cabinet library. A striking instance in the former was Dr. Bradley ; who, after immense care in observations on the nutation of the earth's axis, on coming to a small difference at the end of twenty years, ascribed it entirely, to error in the instrument ; right or wrong must be left sub-lite. Next, the motion of the solstitial points being extremely slow (about 1½ degree in a century), a small error of observation would tell greatly as to number of years. Nautical men always allow five degrees for refraction. If this be an element in the case, and not understood by Parásara, it at once reduces the 1391 B. C., to about 1000 B. C. And if Vyasa could be placed thereabouts, every object that we have in view would be answered. For then, the three first vedas would have been collected by 900 B. C., and a foreign people brought in about 725 B. C., would have been able to compare the vedaic sabaism with the theology of their own country ; and to write corrective appendices, if they judged it needful to do so. The doctrines of the better portions of the upanishadas are not dissimilar to those of the Essenes, a very retired, and rigidly ascetical sect among the Hebrews. If such persons were among the first captives from Palestine, they would be able to read the vedas. I am supposing that Vyasa collected them in Mesopotamia, or north of the Tigris—and they would approve, or disapprove as they found occasion. To supersede them might be impossible ; but to attach modifying appendices, in more modern language, would be both possible and probable.

I am not unaware that Vyasa is stated in the Mahábhárata to have been born on, or near, the banks of the Ganges. But that is an exceedingly accommodating river: the Godavery is held to be the Ganges ; the Caveri river is mystically the Ganges ; and by credible authority of local puranas, the Ganges flows into many bathing pools which they celebrate ; and the Tigris also would have every requisite for the Ganges, if its real name were forgotten, or concealed. The language of the three first vedas is not the language of the Mahábhárata or of the Rámáyanam, which are among the most ancient Sanscrit works. What it is, I hope to be able to indicate ; but, at present, let it be Scandinavian, rather than the language in which Cáli dasa wrote.

As regards the At'harvana vedam it is more modern, and more like the Sanscrit language. It contains the Tantra, or magical rites and ceremonies : it is very much on the sacti system ; and, in the worship of Cáli, deals in human sacrifices. It would seem to have been the work of Saivas : and Vyasa was not such. So also among the upanishadas, there are some which appertain to the fourth veda ; and are of the female energy class ; and some use the names of Ráma, Hanuman, and Krishna ; marking modernity ; and a wide departure from the primitive dogmas, whether of oldest védas, or older upanishadas.

If these latter were brought to India proper by early colonists, coming by way of Thibet ; then, with them, they would bring the sanction of venerable antiquity, and received authority, to be impressed on others. That Thibet was the road, appears probable from the oldest alphabets in the extreme south of India, having a Thibetan impress ; and Agastya, the inventor of the first southern alphabet, was an acknowledged native of that country ; as well as from the fact the oldest inscriptions in northern Sanscrit could not be read until M. Csoma de Koros came from Thibet, having there learnt its language ; and at once helped the savans at Calcutta to come at the meaning of letters, that looked something like déva nágari, without being such.

There still remains one consideration ; which is, how the sabaism of the older vedas and the theology of the oldest upanishadas came to be reconciled ; for they do not appear at a glance to be accordant. This union was evidently effected by means of astrology ; once all-prevalent in Chaldea ; and still all-prevalent throughout India. If the captive Hebrews came under its influence, and found it capable of giving them influence over others, and so aiding their subsistence in foreign lands, it follows that they would receive the sabaism of Chaldea with so much the less of reluctance ; and, in proportion as they received it, the purer theology would wane. When hieroglyphics led on to statues, and images being formed, and symbolically worshipped, the theology of the upanishadas (except with an occasional Sancaráchárya or Rámanúja) of course would become speculative only, and very little known. Such is the case at the present day. The vedas are honored, in a few of their formules, little understoood : the upanishadas are merely the shadow of a great name.

I have thought it might not be amiss to give specimens of the Veda-language, in the Jonesian orthography, used for eastern words, in this work. As I cannot pretend to skill of selection, I have taken one specimen ad aperturum libri from each one of the three volumes of Prof. Max Muller's edition of the Rig veda Sanhita.

It will thus be seen that the composition is evidently designed for measured intonation, by more than one person ; and with recurring alliteration (as to words and letters) of a peculiar kind. The accents marked, I know not how to give : but from books in the Catalogue, specifically on the right intoning of the vedas, I made out the usual accents; that is, the acute, barytone, circumflex-rising, circumflex-falling. These the Greeks used, which made their speech musical in the ears of foreigners. Many years ago, when at school, I noticed such alliteration in the choruses of Grecian tragedies; but, on looking again, they do not seem to me similar to the above. The reader may judge from two specimens.

If read aloud, a resonance is very perceptible to the ear. In the last extract—"Bacchus, god of ships on, the mountain peaks," illustrates a remark above, under Vaishnara. I believe it is one of the passages adduced by Bryant.

There are books carefully and well preserved, which are probably quite as old as the Vedas; and I notice in them greater similitude as to rhythmical consonances, than in any other productions that I know of. For example—

Mi ghamoghàh nehuddàr bakkodesh—
Noràh t'hihlot'h nyasheh—p'hele—
Namit'hà yiminkà t'hiblányemò haretz—
Nakhit'ha bihasdikà nyam—zu gáhálit'hà
Nihalt'hà binyaz ká el—nireh kadshekà
Shamanyu—nyaminyu—nyamim—Yirgaz ruz—
K'hil hakhaz Yushbi—phelásheth.

Exodus, chap. 15, v. 11—14, Circiter A. C. 1490.

The resonance is chiefly on the broad open ā. The measure of the sixth line is quite Indian-like, and the beginning lines 2 to 4 are also similar: only that Hindu poetry usually makes the second syllable resonant. The above is a chant, like the sanhita of the vedas. The following specimen is partly prose, and partly rhythm:

Az yidabri Yihoshuan la—Yihovāh biyōm t'heth, Yihovāh het'h—hamiemdri li p'hani bini-Yishrâhîl—va—Yomer linyiney Yishrahîl.

Shemesh bi Gibayōn—dôm—vi.

Yareakh bi-nyimek ha—Yálōn.

Va—yidóm ha—shemesh vi—Yareakh nyámàd nyad—yikòm.

Joshua, chap 10, v. 12, 13, Circiter A. C. 1450.

The resonance here is on the long vowel ō, a favorite one in the plural of nouns by Grecian poets.

The following specimen is of elevated Chaldee, though not poetical; of a date posterior to the Vedas; but, as supposed, anterior to the upanishadás.

Khazih hayit'h va halu hilāz bigoha araneya vi rumih shagiya ribāh hilána vut'hi kap'h virumà Yimttiha lishma ya vakhazyot'hih lisop'h ghàl aranyà. Daniel, chap. 3, v. 10, 11.

The word aranya which twice occurs, in the sense of earth, is a very common word in Sanscrit, in the sense of wilderness or paradise; and it might be so rendered, in the above passage, without injury to the sense. The shad-aranya, or "six-fold woodlands" is of perpetual occurrence with reference to a paūranic residence of ṝshis; and this word ṝshi, of such frequent use, is pure Hebrew for a seer, or sage.—It is not via Greece or Rome, but in the direction now pointed at, that research may possibly clear away the mist, as yet, hanging over the origin of the Vedas.

VEDANTAM.

As above stated, after Vyasa had completed his collection of the vedas, which are regarded as the foundation of the púrva mimamsa, he formed the uttara mimamsa by a metaphysical abstract entitled the end, or substance of the vedas. This operated like a dissolving view, in which Agni, Varuna, and other personified elements, with sun, stars, earth with its inhabitants, and natural productions, melted away into one homogeneous Being: and were reproduced, as that Being evolving itself and causing the manifestation of existing forms only as "the varied God." It does not appear that Vyasa denied the real existence of the world, and of its visible objects; so properly as that he maintained the non-existence of any thing out of deity, or apart from deity. So taking a map, as a type of the world, this may be rolled up, and is then one thing; it may be unrolled, and it then presents to the eye—seas, continents, rivers, countries; but they are only seen in the map. The European philosophy, which is traced up to Aristotle, and his "sensible species," may be further illustrated by one man denying that any thing further exists than the sensible species, or ideas presented by the map to the sensorium; while another man affirms that these sensible species are representations of continents, seas, countries, which have a real existence. The sabaists who preceded Vyasa had gone on with hieroglyphics, and metaphors, until they had made deities of the sun, and planets, of the elements, and personifications of creating, preserving and destroying energies; and other inventions for the purposes of worship; somewhat as astronomers have given the visible heavens to bears, dogs, serpents, fishes, for the purpose of science. Vyasa taught to resolve all these hieroglyphics into one simple Being, whose worship was the great end of the vedam. It might be anticipated that this dogma, if it obtained prevalence, would seriously affect the practice of sacrifices in the vedas, directed to different personifications; for the traditional doctrine of sacrifice was preserved intact by one people alone; to which people Vyasa, in all probability, did not belong. His dogma did get hold, and gain ground; and it superseded sacrifices, as detailed under the heading, Mimamsa.

The mind is not always in tone for such speculations; but when I have been more metaphysically disposed than usual, I have thought much of the system of Vyasa; and have endeavoured to place myself in his position, surrounded by ancient hieroglyphics, and personifications, and trying to look through them to truth and simplicity. It has then appeared to me, that an ingenious mind, otherwise uninformed, might readily enough give into his notion of an evolution of deity, and all things seen only in deity; as we know a modern writer* did, notwithstanding superior advantages.

"All are but parts of one stupendous whole Whose body Nature is, and God the soul."

The term "soul of the world," traced up to Plato, appears to correspond with the original sense of Paramátma—the heavenly soul. But writers of this Indian school, especially such as lean over to the advaitam, use the term chit-ákásham for an exceedingly subtile-ether, as the vehicle, or substratum of deity. It certainly is not immaterial; yet it differs so little from one Omnipresent spirit, as to seem hardly worth disputation. We may however distinguish. One of the most subtile fluids we know of, is the galvanic fluid ; yet it is only the instrument of deity—not God. Light is a very ancient emblem of deity ; yet, like the other fluid, it is subject to polarisation, as also to refraction, and other laws : it can be guided and controlled by man ; it is not God.

The bearing of these remarks, if I mistake not, is that on this topic we have to do with an existence, beyond and above the unassisted powers of human intellect and reason, and that we ought to be thankful for aid. I think it is Florian, a French writer, who, in an ingenious apologue of a Parsee, a worshipper of the sun, has laid down the axiom, that reason is a lanthern to guide our feet in darkness, not a luminary to irradiate the skies.

The dogma of Vyasa was made popular and influential, in consequence of being moulded into the latter portion of the Bhagavat gîta. Thence forward, three schools of divinity were formed, of great influence in the Peninsula of India. Mádhva insisted on the ritual doctrine of sacrifice ; and, as Jaimuni was one of the writers of the veda, this came to be termed the Jaimuni carmam. He also insisted on the distinct existence of God, and the world ; not as one, but as two, and separate. This view came to be known as the Mádhvam, or dwaitam. Sancarácháryа took a different view, both as to sacrifices, and as to the duality. He depreciated sacrifices below knowledge (gnosis, gnánam) and particularly insisted that the soul of man is one with deity. Hence the advaitum (non-duality). Rámanúja, the latest of the Vaishnava áluvàr struck out a medium course : he held the distinct existence of God ; and that the human soul was almost, but not quite one with Deity ; as a thing that is finite, though similar, cannot be quite one with infinity. This is the visishta advaitam, held by most Vaishnavas in, and around Madras. A few learned men (termed Vedantis) go back, I believe, to the original system of Vyasa in the Brahma sutras, and the Bhagavat gîta ; rejecting later glossaries. That the controversy should have become so extensive, and so animated, as it once was, is matter of reflexion on the philosophy of mind. Nothing so absurd, said an ancient, as not to have been held by one or other of the philosophers.

It may perhaps demand apology, if I remark, that the system introduced to Europe by Spinoza and Malebranche, and patronized by Lord Bolingbroke, whose ideas were embodied by Pope, in the Essay on Man, is substantially one with the ancient vedantam. It has an atheistical bearing. I was surprised to meet with it in such a writer,* as the Earl of Roscommon; and that too in a paraphrase, on an ancient poem, in which it is not contained. The passage is—

Fairest, as well as first of things
From whom all joy, all beauty† springs!
O praise! th' Almighty Ruler of the globe,
Who useth thee for his empyreal robe.
Praise him ye loud harmonious spheres!
Whose sacred stamp all NATURE bears.
Who did all forms from the rude chaos draw.
And whose command is th' universal law.

After this may I desecrate the reader's mind by the burlesque of Butler in his Hudibras; who had this philosophy in the scope of his quizzing glass:

By help of these, as he profess'd,
He had first Matter seen undress'd;
He took her naked, all alone,
Before one rag of form was on.

This is the sacti system tacked on to the Vedantam; and in Hinduism they have been found to bear a very friendly relation.

VIRA SAIVAM.

Otherwise known as Shad st'hala margam, and its votaries are termed Vira Saivas or Jangamas or Lingadharis; the first term indicating their destroying tendencies; the second one, that they are moving symbols of deity; the third, that they wear a male symbol only, not together with the female symbol. There is a class of them who are termed 'Arádhis, or worshippers; who retrograde towards the old system, and are not approved by zealots of the new one.

This quondam ferocious sect arose at Kalyana pura, the capital of the northern Chálúkyas; and probably the Galien, visited by officers of Alexander magnus, who reported their conversations with some Brachmanes, on the subjects of religion and polity. From a remote time, ascending to near the commencement of our common era, the ruler and people of that town were Jainas; and the Jainas, I apprehend, were those sectarial Bāuddhas; who, in one of the great Convocations at Mágadha, were cut off from the body ; because of their persisting in the worship of fire, which Bauddhism disallowed.

At a date somewhere about A. D. 1000, the ruler of Kalyana-puri was named Bijjala or Bizzala. From some adventitious and recommendatory circumstances, detailed in the Basava puránam, he took one Basava, a man of low caste and obscure origin, to be his Minister of State; which individual, in the judgment of his followers, was an incarnation of Nandi, the vehicle of Siva; the word Basava in Canarese and Telugu, meaning a bull. The Minister of State took offence at the pride of caste and the ascendency of Brahmans, and resolved to break the bonds of the one, and degrade the pretensions of the other. He was a Saiva of high notions, directly the opposite of the system of the Jainas as to the female energy. Though a married man, he reputedly cohabited with his own sister Nágamma, and by her, had a son named Chenna Basava, the " mark of Basava" (not chinna or little, which is properly a Tamil word). There is no other way of accounting for the fact, that Nágamma being unmarried, had a son ; and yet retained the confidence of Basava, as an inmate of his family. Basava associated with himself one Allama, to whom was afterwards given the title of prabhu or chief. With the aid and counsels of this individual—subsequently taken to be a form of Siva himself—the outlines of a new phasis of the Saiva religion were planned; and the measures proper to be taken were settled.

Basava began to be very liberal with the treasures of his master and to feed large numbers of people ; but on condition that all should eat together ; should drink, in rotation from the same vessel ; and smoke, in turn, from the same hookah, an instrument that appears then to have been known. Besides this bond of fellowship, a distinguishing badge was, the wearing a male symbol of Siva, without the otherwise common feminine adjunct; and some other signs and tokens were adopted, by which the brotherhood were to know each other. A number of Brahmans accepted these terms, on condition of stated maintenance: In the manner of Buddha (his predecessor, in an opposite direction), several early converts or votaries, were taken into special confidence, and became heads or leaders. They are named in the Basava puranam and were not Brahmans, or at least not all of them. Such proceedings produced enemies, and Basava was denounced to the king, as wasting his treasures, and pouring contempt and desecration on the religion of the country. Basava was more than once called to account; but by some means (held by his followers to be miraculous) he contrived to show the king that his treasures were safe; and then he the more easily answered the other charge by silly quibbles, at least they appear so, as detailed in the aforesaid purânam. But such evasions could not last for ever, at the rate of expenditure now attained to; and, as the confederacy had become numerous and strong, ultimate measures were resorted to. An individual appointed to assassinate the king quailed, before the attempt; and, in consequence, was rejected with scorn by his own mother. In the end, this man with two others to help and encourage him, assassinated the king, in the apartments of his palace; and in the consequent confusion, the trusty followers of Basava drew their swords, and slew all the Jainas that came within their reach: an ante-St. Bartholomew. A complete revolution took place, and a new form of religion was inaugurated.

Similar massacres occurred in various parts of the south,—as at Warankal, in the modern Caranatic, and especially at Madura; where the Saivas still annually commemorate the impalement of the Bâuddhas.

Either previous or poseterior to the said revolution, a new cosmogony was framed. The account of the creation, and origin of all things differs from the Saiva purânas; and is made more complex and particular. The future world also became more accurately defined. Six stages, or ascents were marked out, leading up to the highest one that of absorption into deity. The ordinary Saivas have a three-fold beatification; that is, sâmîpam nearness, sârûpam likeness, and sauchchyam identity; but the viras doubled the stages; making them localities with distinct names, which will be met with in the Catalogue. Whether the idea was borrowed from the Parsees, who have a like revelation; or from another common opinion, as to seven heavens, cannot be determined.

Chenna Basava wrote a supplementary purânam, containing more legends of the class, and keener lampoons on the Brahmans. He also drew up a regular treatise, borrowing much from the tatva system, and embodying the so-to-say theology of his clan. The Prabhu linga lîla though chiefly panegyrical of Allama, is also dogmatical, and there have been some later works exegetical.

As in the twelve Aluvar of the Vaishnavas of the south, the last one the most learned, and the most successful, there is a coincidence with the twelve apostles; so, in the first outset of the Vira Saivam, there is a distant resemblance to the community of goods, and fellowship of Christians, after the day of Pentecost. One dogma of proof, which the Jangamas term anubhavam, is similar in name and nature, to what divines term, the experimental evidence of religion. The final bearing of the temptation of Allama, harmonises with apostolic precepts ; but then, this is brought out through a long series of luscious, sexual details, adapted to produce quite opposite effects on votaries: just as Richardson's Pamela might become a guide to Squires Booby (ait Fielding) so as to dispense with marriage. I do not know that it is important to mention such coincidences; but as they occurred to me in the progress of my work, I do so, with the addition that, when brought to the test of "fruits," the one system is seen to have had good supernatural aid, and the other one bad supernatural aid; and the latter under a principle of imitation: conformably to a keen remark of a French writer, to the effect, that "there is no vice which does not assume the semblance of some virtue, and even derive aid therefrom." We all know that counterfeits imply genuine originals, and that if there were no diamonds or pearls, there would be no paste imitations.

It may be added, that the Vira Saivam, as a religious mode, is scattered over the Peninsula. Carpenters, bazarmen, and others have been noticed as belonging to it. They usually have a small silver box on one arm, or pendent from the neck. Their hierophants have the title Tambirān, or lord; and they go through the rites of their pûja in private houses. At Madura a matam, or monastery of this sect was seen, and probably it still exists. One of the ascetics therein had a high repute for Tamil learning. So far well; but to term their system "mystic quietism" or a "religion of love," if not tending deplorably to mislead, would be simply ridiculous.

Orthographical Note.

Rather from inadvertency than design, the 1st volume of this work was issued without remark, as to the mode used of spelling Asiatic words. It was taken for granted that Oriental scholars would recognize the system as Jonesian; the one most commonly used in literary works; readily perceiving the few anomalies; and that so much might suffice. As the subject has recently attracted very great attention, a few brief remarks may not be in this place superfluous.

The defects of the Jonesian system are—

1. The use of a for the sound of u in but. This objection was the foundation of Gilchrist's cumbrous scheme. It is moreover a practical difficulty with the press; from the greatly disproportionate quantity of the a required. Native Compositors add to the difficulty, by fancying that they can spell Oriental words better. The occasional use of the apostrophe as al'ncarám, when perfectly free from equivocation, may be suggested.

2. The Jonesian C. This was objected to by Prof. Wilson, who returned to the k of Wilkins, Sir W. Jones consulted elegance to the eye; and he reserved the k for a Persian letter, best represented (as by Gilchrist) by q; which is besides the identical hollow palatal. I like the C., but never use it before e and i. For the rest, I have not been particular. If K were always used, a practical difficulty, with the press, would occur.

3. The use of s, for s sibilant and z palatal. This confusion occurs in European languages; s., between two vowels, being correctly pronounced as z. The Sanscrit has two distinct characters, and the representing one of these by S. capital with an accent, and s, by a dot subscribed, is inconvenient; for, sooner or later, the diacriticals are sure to be omitted; and the number of capital S's required, is double that of any other letter than r. Sir W. Jones wished every thing native to be made as elegant as possible; and perhaps his eye was not pleased by—Ziva, zastram, zastri, zūdra, and the like. I have not ventured to rebel against his authority; but, I think, in correct orthography, the S should be always the sibilant letter only, and the z always used when that letter and sound occur in the original.

In various discussions on the subject, perused by me, I observed it stated by all, that the Sanscrit sounds absolutely could not be expressed by Roman letters, without the aid of diacritical points. My own recreations in Elocution, some years since, led me to observe, that we use in our vulgar orthography (recte, eacography) all the sounds of that alphabet, without any diacritical mark whatsoever: the connected consonant being the guide. To enable the reader to judge, I give a tabular view of the Sanscrit letters, as represented by (slightly modified) JONESIAN signs for them, and the corresponding sounds in words containing them—as follows:—

a ā i ī u ū ṛi ṛī ē āi o âu suit*a*ble f*a*ther *i*nn pol*i*ce b*u*sh r*u*le thr*o*' th*rew* there *ai*sle b*o*ne c*ow*

ca c'ha ga g'ha ng, || *c*ap, pa*ck*-*h*orse, *g*ang bur*g*her, ba*ng*ing.

cha ch'ha ja j'ha ny, || *ch*ap, chur*ch*-*h*ill *j*ug, lar*ge*-*h*all, main*y*ard.

at t'ha da d'ha na, || *c*an*t*er, boa*t*-*h*ook, comman*d*er, remand *h*im, inter*n*al.

ta t'ha da dha na, || *t*ap, ra*t*-*h*ole, mo*d*e, ba*d*-*h*orse, tan*n*er.

pa p'ha ba b'ha, ma, || *p*at, *p*at-*h*im *b*at *d*istur*b* *h*im, *m*an.

ya ra la va || *y*ard, *r*est *l*aunch, *v*al*i*ant.

za sha sa ha csha, || co*z*en, *sh*am, *s*ir, *h*ave, sec*t*ion (se*k*sha*n*).

l (palatal) as in bu*ll*; rarely used in Sanscrit, commonly in Southern languages.

Whoever enunciates the above words correctly, at the same time enunciates Sanscrit sounds; which, it has been stated, Roman letters cannot represent. So that the expressing Asiatic sounds by them is not so difficult, as, by labored explanations, has been made to appear. For instance, what plain Englishman, outward bound, and forcing a path through the forest of Gilchrist's verbiage, would suppose so near an affinity? between Oriental and Saxon sounds, as the above table evinces.

The authority of Sir W. Jones, as an Orientalist, was once so great, and his taste was so refined, that a departure from his rule could not always be hazarded. Hence, ṛishi, Kṛishna, Siva, Sudra, and the like; though these words would be better spelt rüshi, Krüshna, Ziva, zūdra; and the like, for other words. In cases where he established no precedent, I have not been particular. Hence, graha, gṛiha, grüha, and vrata, vrüta, will be met with; the last mode the best. If rishi, Krishna, &c., be written with i, simply as was Sir W. Jones' practice, it leads to a wrong pronunciation. A Frenchman would pronounce re-chi, and a German rüshi, both correctly. In this work a severe discrimination of long vowels does not always occur: they are properly á initial or medial, à final; î ú ó. If a word appears correctly, once or twice in a page, it may two or three times appear without the long prosodial mark: this was judged better than stopping the press, and giving never-ending annoyance, while waiting till more letters could be cast. No system-builder probably has given so extensive a test of practical working, as is found in this catalogue. At the outset, much delay did unavoidably occur; and that admonished me not to be over-particular. The Orientalist is requested to blame me, in all such cases of apparent oversight.

The above system, founded on either the grant'ha or déva nágari letters, answers perfectly well for the Mahratti, Canarese, Telugu, (with a little exception, as to the ch) Malayalam; and, upon the whole, for Tamil. This last very ancient and original language has various anomalies. A system constructed for the Tamil, and fitted on to the others, is presumed not to be so suitable, as an endeavour to attach the said anomalies on to the more general system—in which for my own part I do not include the Persic or Hindustani. In Tamil, the vowels are the same, omitting ṛ; the vowel uch is never used, in modern times, but by pedants. The peculiar form of ஐ is perhaps best expressed by tt: only it alters the sound of a foregoing a to the slender sound, as in hat. The ழ was expressed by Mr. Ellis zh (as in his pazha mozhi;) but this is an imperfect, and a lisping sound. The letter is neither more nor less than the Greek r aspirated; as in Rhodes, rhoda, murrhine. Mr. Ellis's zh will be met with, in the 1st and 2nd volumes; but I have subsequently adopted rh as the correct expression. The rough palatal Tamil ற and Telugu ఱ is perhaps best expressed by rr, though the English r has both sounds; as in *r*eview, and in hoarse. Any difficulties, as to three n's are obviated by noting that the palatal n is always followed by d, the dental n by t, and the lingual n by r, the ற then becoming also lingual. Hence, I conceive no diacritical mark is required for the three n's. As the Tamil alphabet has no j, nor b, nor h, nor sibilant s, nor sh; it cannot express Sanscrit sounds, but by adopting grant'ha letters, usual at Madras; or by change, as common south of the Cauvery river. There also, they express the ழ by ள l which is censurable, and equivocal: for instance, one not well disciplined as to the lingual l, and palatal l, would not distinguish the word for hill, from the word for rain.

My first Oriental work published in 1835, exhibited an awkward adaptation of the Jonesian system to Tamil words. It was, I believe, the first attempt of the kind in the Madras Presidency: the Gilchrist* system having been rather favored. When I was editing Dr. Rottler's Dictionary, in 1837-9, I came to the resolve to express Sanscrit words in their own orthography: writing, for example, not sepam, but japam, not Takkan, but Dacsha, or Dacshin; not tuvasa, but dvaja, not santódam, or varudam, but santósham, varusham—and the like; and this rule I have usually followed in the catalogue. The lingual l, and the palatal l, have not been always distinguished; but the latter might be put in different type.

* See Campbell's Telugu Grammar, and Dictionary.

And it is of importance to observe, that the using many diacritical points, presents a practical difficulty. Your manuscript may be carefully written, and correctly pointed; but to get this thrown off by the press is the difficulty. Hence, it is believed, that only one press in Madras, can print a page of this catalogue. The matter was managed by consulting with the Superintendent before hand; and by reducing, as much possible, the quantity of the diacriticals. There were two founts of types, newly from England; but neither had any italic letters, or prosodial marks. Italics, and the few signs used, were cast at Madras. Acknowledgment of the tact, and energy displayed, is fully due.

This may be the place perhaps to observe that, notwithstanding great care employed, there are a few typographical errors, both in the 1st and 2nd volumes, and in words, European as well as Asiatic. They are generally such as can be readily corrected by an intelligent person with a pen. A list of errata, besides being unsightly, has the disadvantage of implying that there are no other errors; which never can be safely asserted, and should not be implied.

DONATIVE MANUSCRIPTS.

FIRST FAMILY—PALM-LEAF BOOKS.

A. Sanscrit.

a. Granth'a letter.

I. Advaita.

1. No. 1026. Advaita dîpicà.

By Nrisinha—prose, incomplete, as containing only the 1st parich'heda. Dîpica often means commentary; but as no other book is here indicated, the meaning of the title must be—an illustration of the adváita system.

There is no difference, or division, between the human soul, and the divine Brahm. The verses of the Védas, which state that there is a difference the author interprets according to his own system. The nature of Brahm, and of the human soul described.

[As of philological use it is noted that svarupa, literally proper form, is used for essence, nature. In this book dhermà is used for property, attribute; and dhermi for essence nature. The Vâishnavas use séshi for essence and sésha for complement. ☞ Nature is here another thing from Pracriti matter, or the negative principle, or female energy; in such a phrase as "the God of nature."]

Brahm alone is truth; the world is falsehood, a deception, delusion. The knowledge of tatva, or abstract truth (or divine truth) The position—I am one, and Isvara another is herein termed bhéda buddhi, divided sense, or a false notion, a delusion. Divine knowledge removes that error; and the tatva gnánam or knowledge of truth, is the procuring cause of beatitude (setting aside sacrifices, and penance). These, and other matters of the advâita kind, sometimes designated the smarta system occupy the book; which, as a section merely, lies under suspicion of having been taken from East India House Manuscripts.

The manner of composition is according to native logic, by objection raised, and answer given.

The book is somewhat long, and thick, old without boards, and worm eaten.

2. No. 1027. Sancara bhāsya vyákyánam.

By Vácha spati misra: prose with sūtras from the vēdas: the 1st adhyáyam, divided into four pátas; following adhyáyas wanting.

Sancara bhāsya is a comment by Sancarácháryа on the sūtras of Vyāsa, which the latter termed Vēdantam, the end, or sum of the Védas: this book is an illustration, or explanation of that comment.

A definition of Brahm (the Supreme Being). He is the alone source, whence all elements, and beings, or things composed of them proceed ; by whom also they are protected, or preserved. He who in the time of pralayam (Brahmā's flood) is not destroyed, HE is Brahmam,

All the world is only a manifestation, or appearance of the divine soul. Even so, there is no proper distinction between existing beings or things ; so that one may be accepted, and another rejected ; all alike are parts of God. Such abstracts as vidhi and avidhi (knowledge and ignorance) exist ; but ignorance must be left behind, and overcome ; and then by means of knowledge is beatification.

There is nothing apart from, or outside of Brahmam. One alone divinity is spread out into diverse forms, as human, bestial (horses, cows, &c.) or inanimate things. Wisdom, self-control, mildness (gnánam vâiragyam zánti) and the like qualities are needful to any one who desires to obtain (mócsham) beatification. Moreover there is no (avidhi) ignorance in Isvara. He dwells in every one's mind. He is perfect in blessedness (ánandam). He is (jyoti mayam) formed of light, or wholly light. Besides there is matter similar to that in No. 1026 supra ; both might be translated.

This book is long, thick (23 leaves not numbered, then 44—132) old, worm eaten, without boards.

3. No. 1028. Suncara bhásya vyákyánam.

By Vácha spati misra—prose—another incomplete copy of the same work, as the foregoing one.

Leaf 1—20 Telugu letter.

„ 1—127 Grant'ha letter : and 58 blank leaves, like the written ones, rather old.

The book is long and thick, on talipat leaves, worm eaten.

II. ART of POETRY.

1. No. 1019. Cávya derpanam, mirror of poetry.

By Rája chudámani dicshada.

Nine vilásas, prose and slócas. On the conduct of any poem of some length, and consequence.

1.) Definition of cávyam, that is a work that is free from faults as to words, and tropes, or rhetorical figures ; what are faults defined.

2.) Properties of words, and faults concerning them ; and also as to the right meaning of words.

3.) Details as to how both words, and meaning should be managed.

4.) Excellent poetry defined, as that which, together with a direct meaning, also carries a secondary, or indirect sense : e. g. a woman is represented as saying to her lord, when he is about to go out—"the sun is setting ; where are you going ?"—this, besides the direct meaning, implies jealousy, and a wish that he should remain within.

[There are entire poems, highly valued, which throughout contain two meanings ; and much of the Hebrew prophetic poetry carries a primary, and a secondary sense.]

5.) On poetry of medium quality.

6.) On poetry of (adama or*)* worst kind.

7.) Further observations on rhetorical faults in poems.

8.) On the nature of rhetorical ornaments in poetry : as to phrases

9.) On the sabda alancara, or tropes ; a figure embodied in a single word

Various details on the above points are mingled with quotations, as examples, or as authorities : leaf 1—206 complete.

The book is of medium length, thick, old, a little injured. It seems to be of value ; and worth translating.

2. No. 1018. Sect. 2. Kuvalâiyánantam, a commentary on the Chandra lóca of Cali dása.

By Appaiya dîcshada.

This is a comment on perhaps the earliest work on this subject ; the contents, and their order are as in Sect. 1. of No. 1029 infra. The general subject is on the composition of poems, and rhetorical rules. It also contains slocas in illustration of the different rules, or definitions, taken from many different works : leaf 1—55.

This section is much injured by insects.

For section 1. see III.

3. No. 1029. Sect. 1. Alancára chandrica a comment, or critique on the Kuvalâi yánantam of Appâiya dîcshada.

By Vâidhya nát'ha son of Rama bhatta suri (see 2. supra) prose, complete.

—On upamanam comparison, with its subdivisions.

—uléca various points of view in which the same person, or thing may be taken ; very different in reference to different persons, &c.

—Smṛiti remembered ; brahudhi doubtful, as not common ; sandéca doubt, from any cause ; atizaya yucti wonder, hyperbole ; drishtanda example or simile, vyati réca many points agreeing, one only differing ; vizésha-yucti specialty, haraca dîpica one nominative to many verbs ; visháda sorrow ; avaguya shame, disgrace ; and many others : one hundred are said to be specified, in the original Chandra lóca. The whole relates to the composition of poems ; and the author does not entirely agree with the Kuvalâiyánantam leaf 56--145.

Sect. 2. A lexicon of rhetorical terms, 8 leaves.

By Sambu dása : prose.

From ka down to ja complete, not finished. Technical terms in poetical rhetoric explained ; e. g. Kákátalyánu, false inference, or non causa pro causa: a crow is perched on a palmyra tree ; at that time a thoroughly ripe fruit falls ; it is falsely, or sophistically inferred, that the crow caused the fruit to fall.

Sect. 3. A continuation from ja down to t'ha. Slócas.

By Nîla kant'ha dîcshada. Cavi vidambaram, a discourse on poetry. A few ethical examples are introduced : as on the terms 1. griha avésha, 2. sura mata, 3. lacshmi mata.

1. The possession of an evil spirit causes madness for a short time ; 2, ardent spirits for a watch of three hours ; 3, wealth acquired by a churl, produces the like effect to the time of death : 4 leaves

One leaf medical is added, on the medical use of tippili, or long pepper.

The entire book is long, somewhat thick, very old, and much worm eaten.

III. Dramatic.

1. No. 1018. Sect. 1. Avalóhanam, a comment on a book entitled dasa rūpaca.

By Dhanamjaya cavi : slócas and prose mixed, complete. Author of the comment not known. The original was composed in the time of a king (Manji mahipati) for his gratification.

This is a work on dramatic composition ; and as such, related to the foregoing head ; but the drama is not included in Cávyam, or elevated poetry.

The prakarnam is said to be limited to less than 5 ancas or acts, like a melo-drama.

The nátaca is not so limited, but may extend to ten ancas. The bhánam is a monologue recitative--describing the conduct of one individual, during one entire day ; usually vicious buffoonery. [e. g. Matthews at home, with his tour to Paris]. The prahasnam is a farce, limit not stated. The nátaca may be tragic, or tragi-comic ; the prakarnam only comic.

In the regular nátaca there are five sandhis, relations, or agreements ; 1, muc'ha prologue ; 2, prati muc'ha opening ; 3, garb'ha plot ; 4, avamarisa untying ; 5 vimarisa, full developement. And 64 angas, or subdivisions are included in those five ; not abstracted.

A material part, is to describe the lacshanas, or properties of nayaca hero, and nayicà heroine : (nayaki in other compositions).

The hero.

1. Dîrodart'ha, one who has performed some previous heroical act ; such as killing an enemy in combat.
2. Dîra zanta, one who leaves his kingdom and returns to it ; as Dushmanta in Sacontala.
3. Dîra lalita, one occupied with pleasures in his palace ; and leaving affairs of state with his mantri or mayor de palais.
4. Dîra uddhata, one violent, bad ; in some dramas tyrannical ; one forcing the wives of others (sicut Maximian).

The heroine.

1. Mug'da, a young woman come to puberty.
2. Madhya, one of medium age.
3. Pragalb'ha, one skilful, intriguing.
4. Sriya, proper wife ; 5. Parakriya another's wife.
6. Sadarana, common with others.

Rules as to their appropriate gestures, personal appearance, mode of conduct ; and also matters relative to the conduct of an amour in a drama.

For Sect. 2 see II. 2 supra.

The entire book is long, somewhat thick, without boards, old, much injured by insects.

2. No. 1033. An ethical drama, with comment.

1.) Prabhóda chandródayam, the rising full moon, by Krishna misra.

Complete in 6 ancas, or acts, slócas, prose ; with pracruti slócas and vācya.

Káma, cródha, lôba, móha, mata, ahancára, damba, drishna, or lewdness, anger, avarice, lust, fanaticism, pride, ostentation, pretension, and other evil dispositions ; Vivéca, zanti, karuna, cshama, vâiragya, sraddha, maha vivéca or wisdom, gentleness, kindness, patience, self-control, zeal, great wisdom, these and other good dispositions ; are represented as personified on the stage ; with language, dress, gestures, &c. suited to each ; and the whole intended to support, and illustrate the advaita tatva system ; (see I), or that of the smartas leaf 70--91.

[This came out first, and it was followed by the sancalpa súryódyam, on like personifications, and principles ; advocating the Vaishnava system.]

2.) Prauda pracása ; a commentary on the foregoing Prabhóda, &c. prose.

By Subrahmanya suri ; complete.

It follows the outline of the preceding book which is paraphrased: leaf 59—90.

The book is long, of medium thickness, on broad talipat leaves, without boards, slightly injured.

IV. Erotic.

No. 1023. For sect. 1. 2 see VIII.

Sect. 3. Anangarangham, Cupid's theatre.

On four classes among women termed Padmini, Sankhini, Hastini, Chitreni (chitreni is usually second in order).

Their personal appearance, habits and mental dispositions. The tempers of women, occasioned by flatulency, bile, and phlegm; the last mildest, and best.

Some quasi medical details, as to the binding up the womb, turning grey hair black, giving fragrance to the hair—medicines for bringing over; philtres; on turning black hair white; to cause the female breasts to bear up, not to hang down; incense to give fragrance to the hair; spells, or charms to draw over to any purpose—dispositions of a young unmarried woman, and young unmarried man; faults of the latter as to evil dispositions: against intercourse with wives of others; character of a female messenger; some other matters are best left sub silentio.

The chapters are termed st'halas, or places, nine of them; but not complete: leaf 1—25.

Sect. 4 two leaves Telugu letter.

On the herb, or root muliki, some Sanscrit slócas with a tica in Telugu: this plant together with its root, is much used in the preparation of philtres, as above.

[It is very probably the herb moli, mentioned in the Odyssey].

V. Grammatical.

No. 1030. Siddhanta Cáumudi.

By Bhattoji dieshada—36 leaves from ka to sca, old mode of reckoning by letters of the alphabet.

Three authors preceded—Pánini, Vararuchi, and Patanjali. This one made a collection from the three in an abridged form. The chapter on Samása, or collection of nouns, the last one only being inflected: and of the kinds termed tat purusha; avyayi; bhâva; bahu, vrîhi; dvandva, &c. incomplete.

Tatva bódhini, is a comment on the above Siddhanta Caumudi, by whom not stated. The portion herein contained does not follow the above; but relates to sandhi or coalition of letters; as to vowels, consonants, and final h. also sváti sandhi or of words ending with s. sibilant.

—Vibhacti art'ha nirupanam ; this is in Telugu letter : exemplification of differences in meaning, caused by the cases of nouns.

—Samása prakarana ; from the Siddhanta Câumudi, on the same topics as above, only being in another letter.

The leaves are numbered 125—153 and 1—39, being parts of two different books.

The book is long, but the leaves of different lengths, thick, much injured.

VI. Logical.

No. 1020. Three tracts.

1.) Anambhattiyam, a commentary on the Tarkha sangraha ; by Anam Bhattu author of both ; prose : leaf 1—22.

The four leading divisions, pratyacsha, self-evidence, anumánam, inference, upamána, comparison, sabda, testimony.

Seven padart'has, or common places ; dravya, guna, carma, sámánya, vizēsha, sama váya, and bháva.

They are distributed through the four divisions.

2.) Nyáya bódhim, another commentary on the Tarkha sangraha, by Góverdhana suri—prose, leaves 1--13.

3.) Tarkha bhásha : mūlam only.

By Késava—two leaves only.

On the pramánya vátam ; or discussion, if the Védas are a rule, or standard.

This book goes on the ancient system of sixteen padart'has. A comment termed Ujvala is by Gauri kánta.

The book is long, of medium thickness, without boards, injured by insects.

VIII. Mimamsa.

1. No. 1021. Jàimuni nyaya mála viztárana ; prose mixed with slócas.

By Madháviya—and relating to the system termed Madhaviyam or old ritual code, opposed to the Vedantam.

A selection of sutras from the Védas with an explanation of their meaning, concerning various modes of sacrifices ; such as--jyotya stóma darasa purna mása, sarvajit, raja suya &c. &c. púrvá dása ájya, mode of using the arghya in those various sacrifices. On rawrice put into boiling vessels, and afterwards used for hómam or fire-offering. Some other matter on sacrifices; the material of sacrifice; the various shares of individuals in any sacrifice. Mode of tying an animal-victim to the sacrificial post; sacrifices during twelve days detailed. Mode of calling in the officiating hierophants to share in the sacrifice.

The fruit of the darasa púrna másam, and other sacrifices, is to obtain (not mocsham but) sverga, or paradise.

Many other matters as to the carma cándam or purva mimamsam in the matter of sacrifices,

7th. Adhyáyam and 1st pátam to 12th adhyáyam and end of the 4th pátam; wanting the beginning 49 leaves with letters of the alphabet, and also 1—104: of value.

It is long, somewhat thick, much worm eaten.

2. No. 1022. Bhatta pradipica.

By Khanda déva.

On the púrva mimamsa of Jáimuni: it contained 16 adhyayas, 113 adikaranas 76 pátas, these were formed into a sangraham, or abridged compendium, by Khanda déva and entitled as above; grant'ha and Telugu letter, the latter prevailing.

After learning the proper recitation of the Vedas the writer asks should the meaning also be studied or not, and it is decided that the meaning ought to be known.

Dherma (virtue, or active beneficence) defined; its fruit or benefit; both visible, and invisible: the former in the present life, the latter in a future state; adherma is defined as a doing what is evil, or as a defect in virtue.

The Vedas were not given by any man; but are anádi without beginning, or from eternity. The mantras and other portions of the Vedas, being so recognized, the question is mooted according to native logic, are they a rule or not? decided that they are a rule.

The Smrutis, or law books of Menû and others, are they a rule? as to dherma and adherma (ut supra); decided that they are a rule.

When Vedas and law books do not decide any point there are authorities, or precedents of great men; such, for example, as concerning the Vasantótsavam (a sort of opera, closing the spring festivals of Vâishnavas fanes) and the like. Are such sanctions to be taken as rules, or not? decided that they are; but in so far only as deemed good, and right, by a competent judgment.

The case of the sacti puja or worship of the female energy (or "Nature" as a goddess) is that practice a rule, or not? decided that as the said custom is not mentioned in the Védas, it is not to be followed; but to be rejected.

Concerning sacrifices various passages from the Védas are adduced; and the meaning stated; as to the fire offering by butter oil, and the instrument by which it is poured on the fire; on the yága stambham, or sacrificial post to which an animal victim is fastened. Some other details; concerning sésham and séshi (peculiar meaning;) sésham is the benefit, or present good sought by the giver of the sacrifice, séshi the invisible benefit, not enlarged on here; the mode of performing sacrifices; a sútram of the mimamsa termed écasmam a paraphrase on which closes the book; which appears to be incomplete. From the first adhyáyam 1st pátam to 3rd adhyáyam 3rd pátam, not more. Prose, with obscure sutraş and comment on them, intermingled.

Leaves 1--13 and 1--31. The book is long and thin, on broad talipat leaves, much worm eaten. Though a fragment; yet valuable.

VIII. Miscellaneous.

1. No. 1023. Seven pieces.

1.) Two leaves Telugu letter, slócas on playing the game of chess—incomplete.

2.) Four leaves, same letter—sixty five árya slócas (sanscrit) in praise of Perun dévi, the sacti of Varuda rája, at Conjeveram.

3.) and 4.) see IV, supra.

5.) Patálánjanam. Telugu and grant'ha letter mixed.

Pátála is here used in the sense of under the earth; anjanam eye ointment, a composition to enable any one, whose eyes are anointed with it, to see what is concealed under the earth, as gold, jewels, &c. Also a medical remedy for nîr suruca, burning heat of urine: and another remedy for the sting of a scorpion. Another lépanam or ointment, haud honeste scribere.

6.) Lalita stavam—árya slócas.

Telugu letter leaf 1--12.

By Sancarácharya.

Praise of Parvati, the sacti of Siva.

7.) Kriya gupti—hidden sense.

16 slócas, Telugu letter, distichs in which the verb is not expressed, but understood; hence difficult, a sort of enigmas.

One leaf, with ornate slócas on women, and 18 leaves left blank. The whole book is more or less of a profligate cast.

It is of medium size, without boards, injured.

2. No. 1024. Various matters.

—Vidpatti váta vyakyánam, a comment on a particular mode of dispute in logic.

By 'Anna Pandita—prose incomplete.

It turns much on verbal subtleties. leaf 1—35.

—in Telugu letter. The most dificult words in the 5th and 6th scandams of the Bhagavatam, explained.

—manana prakarnam, 66 slócas on the vedanta system.

By Vasu déva yeti—incomplete.

—jiva surúpam-Isvara surúpa-mucti nirupanam nature of the life, or human soul; nature of God; and an account of beatitude.

—on three kinds of duc'ham or sorrow, by sickness, by bites of reptiles, &c. by lightning; termed ádi daivicam, something like—"fore-appointed." Isvara is nyánam wisdom, and ánanda mayam blessed, and ánanda surúpa of blessed nature. To be learnt only by sátvicas, or meek men. These, and some other matters, on the védantam.

—Mahisa stóttra, 60 slócas, Telugu letter; praise of Dúrga or Parvati, as the great woman, or great lady.

—Siva stuti—8 slócas incomplete.

Telugu letter—Praise of Siva 3 leaves.

—other 3 leaves Telugu letter, prose and slócas on the Vedantam; and on the first formation of the foetus.

—definition of Brahma hatti, or madness, as a punishment for having killed a Brahman—Telugu and Grant'ha letter mixed. The names in the Chandra lóca of Cali dasa, rhetorical terms for tropes and other figures. Some slócas on a kind of ethics—such as "The band (or safeguard) of the eye is the eye-lid, and of a child its mother and father; the safeguard of a people is a king; of a woman her husband; a safeguard of the ignorant is a learned man."

Some slócas on letters of the alphabet; and some on the nigandu or lexicon. Others from the Murari nátaca; quite a hotch-pot good, bad, and indifferent.

The book is extra medium, without boards, much worm eaten.

IX. Sacti, or female energy system.

No. 1017. Kàula dersanam mirror of the "koolin" system (vulgo "koolin Brahmans"); slócas with prose, mixed.

By Visvânánda.

Kula gnáni, is a general term for sectaries of this kind, "family sophists"; whence they derive the term kâula to designate rank, which they arrogate to themselves, it is said, terming others pasus, or beasts.

There are three divisions:

1, kula durtta; 2, dambhîca; 3, shat'ha: their daily rites (áchára lacshana) and snána vidhi mode of bathing—mode of putting on cow-dung ashes—mode of morning, noon and evening homage—yóga vidhi mode of sacrifice; calasa st'hápanam, placing pots for water of lustration, sri chacra pùja homage to the sacred diagram—chacra is not merely a circle, but sometimes a decaedron, and sometimes a triangle, which last has a peculiar signification, with this class of devotees; the daily fire offering—and sacti púja kramam mode of doing homage to the female energy, which is by taking mulier nuda in camera; and doing homage, specially to the triangle, as a representation of the invisible power invoked. These, and like details occupy leaf 1-46.

Other leaves.

Maha tripura suntari stava rāja, royal praise of a form of Parvati, with homage:

Leaf 1—13.

Sri nát'ha Parayani mahà mantram powerful spell to a goddess, so named, with mode of homage and praise—magical in kind:

Leaf 1—18.

Kaúlica nirbandanam—slocas Siva to Parvati—brief on the sacti, ceremonies; and with it dicsha, or mode of initiation to discipleship:

Leaf 1—4.

Kula pradipam, caste explanation.

By Siva ánandáchárya—leaves 5-85.

Not complete—details as to the rites, and practices of this sect.

Kula pūja prasamsa—excellence of the mode of homage by the caste (or craft).

Some rules concerning the sacti worship, and those articles, technically designated, required for it; as flesh, wine, ardent spirits, or the like. The mode of homage, its fruit, or benefit. The entire contents of the book relate to the female energy system; or worship of dea Natura; the secondary or material cause of the universe. The leaves are strung upside down, and other 60 leaves blank in the midst, and at the end.

The book is of medium length, very thick, much worm eaten.

X. Vedanta.

1. No. 1025. Three tracts.

1.) Brahma sútras; Telugu letter.

By Vyása 1st adhyáyam 1st pátam to 4th adhyáyam and 4th pátam; complete.

The original work ascribed to Vyása, after he had collected the matter of the Védas, as their sum and substance; reducing the whole to Pantheism or, God throughout all things, and all things only seen, or developed in God. This systen was expanded in the Bhagavat gîta; and from both arose the advâitam, and visishta advâitam, differing from the ritual system of Madhava: leaf 1—16.

2.) Nyaya vṛtta, a comment on a work, entitled Nyáya mála sangraham, ascribed to Vyāsa; the comment by Bharati tirrt'ha muni. Nyáya mála, so called because it contains some sections from the védas. They are nyáyam, equity; and mála or wreath, is a stringing them, or putting them in order.

Brahm is the essence of the whole Vedantam; it proceeds from Him. The Sanchya matam (atheistical) is opposed, and declared to be a mistake, and a crime. Some sruti verses from the Védas which appear to be contradictory, as to the five great elements, are reconciled. On vîdhi, not as fate, but as the result of the said elements. A paraphrase on several verses of the Vedas. Attributes of Deity: Omniscience; including all souls in one essence, entire freedom from sin (or holiness)

Objection; what certainty is there that there exists any God? Existence of deity proved from many sources.

Vaishnava nara; this is fire; not in the human body; not in the sun; but in Brahmam.

The uttara mimámsa of Vyása, contain 192 sections. In grant'ha letter leaf 1—86.

3.) Nyáya mála sangraham; a fragment of 3 pâtas-slócas in Telugu letter, leaf 1—4.

The book is long, of medium thickness, somewhat old, and worm eaten, without boards. It is evidently of a superior class of writing; and quite capable of a better interpretation than is usually given.

2. No. 1031. Two books.

1.) Védanta pari bháshya; múlam.

By Dherma rája Indra: prose.

Complete in eight parich'hédas, or sections.

Leaf 1—29. This is the original work, and the contents will appear from the following commentary.

2.) Vedánta sic'hámani: prose, complete.

By Ráma Krishna son of the above author, 8 sections as above.

The Brahma gnánam or knowledge of the Supreme, according to the system of the Vedanta, is explained or asserted by the logical sources of intuition, inference, comparison, and testimony; and that knowledge leads to beatitude. On the being of Isvara and his sacti, the sutras of the Vedas are a rule or standard. Sarvatmam is the universally diffused soul (anima mundi.) The Sarvatma surúpa, or soul clothed with universe is Brahmam (the Supreme divinity.)

To suppose that the soul of man and God are distinct, and different is (mayam) delusion. There is other matter similar, in effect, to that in other books on this system; and though not expressly Advaita, yet the learning is towards the system of Sancarácháryа. The mode of discussion is by objection, and answer, according to native logic, leaf 1—113; valuable as complete.

The book is long, and somewhat thick, worm eaten; and one side, injured by termites.

3. No. 1032. Vedanta kalpa taru parimalam perfume of the Vedanta tree of plenty.

By Appáiya dícshada; there should be four adhyáyas, but they are defective.

As the world existed before the deluge so Brahmà created it again afterwards: the same in all respects, and with the same names, as sun, stars, &c.

The vedas are (nitya) eternal. All souls (jiva) are the breath of a former state of existence.

The soul of any one who obtains (mócsham) beatification, issues out from the crown of the head, and goes by the way of the (surya mandalam) solar orb to (Brimha lóca) the world of the supreme. Notes as to the meaning of special words in the Védas. Hiranya garb'ha (the golden-womb) in the Véda means the supreme Brahm; and also Brahmà the creator. Clay is one substance, but many kinds of pottery vessels are made from it. Tree is generic; but there are many species, or different kinds of trees, and individuals; so the supreme Brimham is the all prevading one, and various existences in the world are all so many parts, or portions of Him; and various names, or appellations, all different designations of the same being. As we see various unrealities in a dream, so all we see in the world is deception, a lie, or mere visions. Para Brahm is ananda mayam of blissful form. The author quotes from the mimamsa (the uttara portion) to prove his own dogmas.

The book wants the beginning, and the ending. The 1st adhyáyam wants the 1st and 2nd pátas and beginning of the 3rd pátam. The 2nd adhyáyam wants part of the 1st pátam at the beginning. The 3rd adhyáyam wants the 1st and 2nd pátas, and has only the beginning of the 4th pátám. The 4th adhyáyam wanting. The book is long, thick, old, and much worm eaten.

[Apart from Pope's Essay on man, elsewhere referred to, as teaching this system, there is a remarkable coincidence with the above book, in a Hymn by Thomson attached to his Seasons; in some passages of the poet Akenside; and in a multitude of other books wherein the word "Nature" is used as a substitute for God. This philosophy with the "revival of learning" was imported from Greece.]

b Telugu letter.

1. Advaita.

1. No. 374. Yōga Vasishtam, slócas; Vasishta to Ráma, in some places comment. From 11th to 34th sarga; appears not to finish, and the 10th and 15th sargas are incomplete.

Definition of the right rule, as to the advaita system. The world which we see, and use, with its enjoyments, is a mere visionary deception like that termed Indra jalam, explained below. Any supposed difference between the human soul, and Brahmam is mayam, a delusion. A description of mocsham, on this system: it is a perfect union, and unity with deity; of the which the wisdom of the advaita man is a sort of earnest, or foretaste. On the practice of asceticism. The world, and things in it, compared to the mirage, a deceptive appearance of water. The world is a lie. In exemplification, Bhargava upákhyánam, or tale of a ṛishi is given.

Bandhanam is the tie that binds soul and body together: at death this tie is broken.

A tale is narrated to illustrate the phrase Indra jalam (atmospheric water, or mirage).

There was a certain king to whom a magician appeared: and unfolding a peacock's tail, a horse was seen. The king was told to mount it, that he might see all the world. He accordingly mounted, and the horse carried him at full-speed into a forest. He laid hold of a branch of a tree, and the horse went from under him. He fell from it to the ground; and became faint from hunger. A chandāla woman appeared, of whom he asked food: she said she would give him if he would marry her. At first he declined, as being of high caste; but at length, he complied. He lived with her, and had children by her. Many years thus appeared to pass away. At length he awoke from sleep; and found the whole transaction only a dream, that had occurred within a very short time, not a great many minutes: such is Indra jalam, a sort of magic; and such is the tale of human life, a mere dream thus illustrated: leaves 73—222.

The book is long, and thick, injured by insects.

2. No. 401. Two subjects.

1.) Gita art'ha sangraha ; one copy mūlam.

1—18 adhyayam complete ; one copy tica, to the same, also complete.

The mūlam is the text of the Bhagavat gita ; and the tica explains the meaning in an advaita sense.

2. Uttara gita, mūlam, in slócas, incomplete. From the asvamédha parvam of the Bháratam.

1—3rd adhyayam. On modes of yōga, or bodily austerities : pulses, vital airs in the human body. From the tip of the nose to the top of the forehead, are two sections, called Brahma nadi and sushū uma : between both is a space, which is the seat of the soul ; and like matter : some pertaining to the sanc'hya, and other systems of philosophy.

The book is long, rather thick, having a brass pin, recent.

3. No. 404. Sruta pracásica—sutras.

By Sudarisana suri, with a tica to each sutra. One sutra is then taken as a text ; and the remainder of this large book is a comment, or exposition of the entire subject.

Jivátma Paramátma bhédam ; on the difference between the human, and divine soul ; the latter nitya eternal, the former anitya finite, limited as to gnánam or knowledge.

An enquiry as to the deluge ; avantara pralayam is a partial deluge ; perhaps a Menu's flood : mahà pralayam is a total deluge, or rather perhaps an entire dissolution of all things, when creation ends, and Brahmà dies.

Brahmánda pramánam, on the measure, or dimension of the universe.

Enquiry as to varnas, colors, or castes, and ázramas, orders ; and as to the carma or duties, or deportment proper to each one.

The existence of Para Brahm the supreme proved by the logical sources of evidence, inference, and comparison ; and, in like manner, proof of the existence of pramánam a rule or standard of judgment ; usually considered to be the védas, or " Scripture rule." The title means ; " an illustration of the védas."

On sṛishta, sthiti, layam, or creation, preservation, destruction : all referred to Para Brahm ; no mention of Siva or Vishnu. On the jnána surúpa or spiritual form (or nature) of Para Brahm,

The book is long, and very thick, with a brass pin, and in good order.

Although placed here I am not quite sure of its being advaita in kind. It is clearly monotheistic; quite superior to modern idolatry; and such as perhaps a Hebrew Rabbi would not disown. I was told that, as a scarce book, it had been sent to the college at Benares; and thence returned. A translation would be very desirable; though possibly difficult to be made.

4. No. 407. Vaiyasîca nyáya mála, it has both mulam and tîca. The comment by Bharata tirt'ha muni, 1—4 adhyáyam; to each chapter 4 pátas or quarters; and is complete, but injured.

The intention of the Vedanta-word is to make known Para Brahm, the Supreme.

Jiva and Param, the human soul, and the heavenly are united, or one.

Para Brahm is without body, and without gunas, dispositions, qualities, or attributes. On the pramánam, or rule.

The elements, prit'hiva, earth, appu, water, téjas, fire, vayu, wind, ákása, ether (or electricity). The union of the elements by the power of Para Brahm forms the human body. Even so a potter forms a vessel of clay, large or small, just as he pleases; and breaks it again if he pleases so to do.

As things seen in a dream so all visible things in the world are uncertain; a lie.

On the surúpa form, or nature of Para Brahm. Various advaîta details.

93 leaves; one at the end átmanátma vivécam; of which there is a fuller copy in the collection.

The book is long, of medium thickness, without boards, eat into on one side by termites.

5. No. 408. Gita bhásya; múlam with a tîca, by Sancarácháryа; incomplete.

1—6th adhyáyam the 6th incomplete. This comment gives an advaita sense to the Bhagavat gîta; which is not generally admitted: 53 leaves.

The book is long, of medium thickness, without boards, recent.

6. No. 419. Sancara bhásyam; a comment on the Bhagavat gita: the múlam and tîca in 18 adhyáyas, complete.

This is the gîta as narrated by Sanjaiyya to Dritarashtra.—Sancarácháryа so terms, or interprets, the names and titles of Krishna as to make them designate some name or property of Siva; and by means of this work teaches the advâita system.

Leaf 1—160. The book is somewhat long, and thick, old, with a few leaves broken.

7. No. 425. 'Átma bódha prakarana dipicá, an illustration of a chapter in some book entitled "soul instruction"; slócas: the illustration by Sancaráchárya; not complete.

On the unity of the human soul with the divine soul, or God: no division, or difference. An advaita comment on the vedanta.

" As the rays of the sun are hidden behind a cloud, but re-appear when the cloud has passed, so the mind of man is naturally clouded, by ignorance; but when by tapas, or penance, and a comprehension of the secret meaning of the vedas the mind becomes enlightened, then the cloud of ignorance departs, and the human intellect shines forth clear as the sun."

[The pity is, that in this state of clairvoyance the mind sees no difference between good and evil] leaf 8--24].

The book is of medium length, thin, very old, damaged, without boards.

8. No. 474. Vivéca chudámani; slócas.

By Sancarácharya.

This book contains a brief digest of the advaita system.

—On the birth of man; it is after great trouble sustained. On inferior births, as of animals, &c.

—The best stage above those lower births is to be born a male; above that to be born as a Brahman; above that a Vâidica or religious brahman; above that a pandita or learned brahman.

--átma anátma, on rational and irrational being; including trees, hills, &c.,

--Parama Brahma gnánam the wisdom of the supreme is the acmé of all attainment.

--identification with the supreme, or mocsham, cannot be attained to, until after many births by transmigration.

--so far appears to be introductory.

On the mode of rendering homage to Para Brahmam—on knowledge, as finite and infinite, limited or eternal.

He who desires to obtain beatification must possess the six good qualities; meekness, &c.

Brahmam is truth; the world a lie.

Mode of homage to a preceptor.

On the (nature) surúpa of Brahmam. The entire world is the visible form of Brahmâm. Distinct species of visible objects are seen as in a dream. Example, clay is one substance; but different kinds of vessels of divers appearance are made from it; even so the human soul universal is one, though it appears as Krishna, as a king, as a brahman, as a laborer, &c. &c.

--spiritual nature of Brahmam; immeasurable, infinite, eternal á parte ante et posteriori, without defect, fulness (omnipresence ?) very splendid, as light, and the like. By ascetic meditation Brahmam may be mentally seen.

For the rest the advaita system, in detail: the book ascribed to the author of that system; as such, and as being complete, of value.

It is of medium size, without boards, and much injured near the end.

9. No. 375. Jivàn mukta vivēcam.

The wisdom of one beatified while living—slócas with prose, complete.

There are many differing kinds of Sanniyasams, or ascetic modes.

The ascetic of the advaita class cuts off the (caste) hind lock of hair, and rejects the scholastic thread; he wears only one garment and adheres to the use of sacred ashes. On the duties of such an ascetic. Mode of ascetic practice (Yogábhyásam). The jivan mukta defined, as one who has no remaining earthly passions, to whom pain, and pleasure are alike: and though alive, in a human body, his existence is mocsham, or beatification. Viracta (whence váiragyam) absolute self control (Greek encrateia) the case of one pure and zealous; one who has no desires as to house, or home, or friends, or relatives; but possesses an entire control over his senses, or animal nature.

The world is maya surúpam, a deceptive form, or appearance. The image of the sun seen in smooth water is one: if the water be agitated the appearance is manifold; even so to the troubled human soul, there seems to be many human souls, while there is only one.

That kind of deception is bewilderment:

The soul is one, without duality. It has no (viháram) mutability; it has no (dósha) defect or crime; it has (nitya suddha) constant pureness, a spiritual form, and like properties.

The Jivan mukta is one who represses anger, does not kill any living thing, is true, faithful, liberal, meek, no slanderer, benevolent, not variable, or desiring every thing seen, tender or compassionate; modest (or sage) pure; possesses fortitude; such should be his qualities.

On Yogábhyásyam, or the practice of asceticism. Use of the pilgrim's staff, platter; these are described. Motive must not be to acquire earthly fame, or praise, or favor, or to gather disciples to himself; but he should gather them with a view to their eternal benefit. He should not so much as hear mention of gold, nor ask its nature, nor desire things procurable by it; he should not look at it, nor touch it. Such a one is aham Brahm (I am god). possessed of a divine nature (confer 2 Pet: 1 v. 4).

The temper—duties—worship of the Yeti, or close ascetic, is the sum, of the whole; but, in this book, according to the advaita interpretation of the vedas.

It is on 61 leaves; in tolerable order. It would seem to deserve translation.

10. No. 476. Brihadaranya bhāsya tica, a verbal glossary upon a comment, on an upanishada, termed the "spreading forest." This comment is otherwise termed nyaya nirnayam, a spiritual discrimination.

By Bhagavatánanda gnána: prose.

In eight adhyáyas or chapters, complete. The whole of ritual ceremonies, including all kinds of sacrifice, is herein designated carma. The designed effect of carma is to produce mental purity.

The result is to qualify for, and to attain beatitude.

But gnánam or knowledge is a more direct path. By gnánam the result is immediate, as a second step beyond it is mocsham, or beatitude.

On dherma beneficence, and adherma its defect. From the former results the attaining sverga, a sensual paradise: and from the latter come sorrow, pain, disease, and other evils.

As clay is one, but is moulded into many different kinds of vessels, or utensils; so Brahm is only one, but assumes many and differing shapes, or forms, in animated beings.

In worship the homage of the soul is needful; the mode, or method of that homage.

From being entangled with family, and family cares, comes avidya ignorance.

When that ignorance departs, then gnánam or wisdom is acquired: the result is beatification.

Brahm is not born, and does not die; or is without birth or death; and does not suffer destruction, or is eternal.

The above positions are illustrated and defended in the comment according to the advaita system; they exhibit a system of pure theism: the advaita matter probably being only in the comment: leaf 1---294 and 12 blank leaves.

The book is long, very thick, with a brass pin; and quite new.

11. No. 478. Bhrigu vali bhaásya vyakyā an explanation of a comment on the Bhrigu vali; otherwise known as vana mála the forest wreath: in prose complete.

By Achyuta Krishna ananta tirt'ha.

An inquiry on matter and mind, and on the relation of the human soul to the divine nature. The soul has no division from deity, and is indivisible. This book is taken from ancient advaita authorities : and contains a digest of that system : leaf 1---130.

It is long, and somewhat thick without boards, recent.

12. No. 491. Siddhanta lésa ; sangraha.

By Appaiyya dicshada ; prose, complete.

A compendium of the adrâita system ; in 4 parich'hédas, or chapters.

On the cause of the entire universe ; its birth or origin. On the nature of Brahm ; his properties ; on the nature of the soul, and of Isvara ; being one according to this system. Jivâikyam, the unity of life or only one universal soul, not many different souls.

Brahm has universal knowledge of these varied forms of soul : and of all other beings or things.

In Para Brahm is found the Vedanta or substance of the védas ; the upanishadas refer to his being, and properties.

The visible world is falsehood, a deception ; which the author labors to prove.

Other matters, in a brief epitome, similar to those detailed in foregoing notices : leaf 1---66.

The book is long, of medium thickness, without boards, a little injured by insects.

13. No. 494. Vedanta pari bhásha.

By Dherma rája advari Indra prose. In 8 parich'hedas, complete.

By the logical sources of intuition, inference, and comparison with testimony of the védas and other authorities, the author maintains that Isvara exists ; there is no difference between the human soul, and Para Brahm ; the world is delusive or a lie ; this point argued ; Para Brahm has no parts or members, as hands, feet, &c. and no visible bodily form (apart from the universe) ; is niryuna without properties (the Vâishnavas say no bad qualities the Smartas deny qualities altogether.)

In the way of question the author asks is there a pralayam ? meaning usually a lapse of the universe, but used technically by Smartas for life as a dream or delusion of the senses ; and he replies in the affirmative. What is mocsham or liberation ? he describes it. He gives an exegesis of many passages from the védas : but on the vedanta principle of interpretation : of the Brimha gnánam or knowledge of God ; mocsham or beatification is the reward.

(Hence this is a sort of Gnostic system). Other vedanta matters on the advaita mode of explanation : leaf 1—31 ; 7 leaves blank.

The book is long, of medium thickness, without boards, recent.

14. No. 511. Vácya vrutta pracásica, a comment on an advaita book, prose.

By Visvésvara pandita, complete.

An enquiry as to creation, preservation, destruction : the cause of these being the jivátma human soul, and Paramátma divine soul. Discussion concerning them ; with their nature, and properties. Concerning vairágyam, or abnegation of self, and other good dispositions, assumed to be within the human nature. Also concerning evil dispositions, the six great crimes, lust, anger, &c.,

The book is of medium size, without boards, recent.

15. No. 518. Vacha spati vivaranam. This is a comment on the sancara bhásya, or explanation of the vedanta system by Sancarácháryа, on the advaita principle. Incomplete ; only the 1st, 2nd and half of the 3rd páta of the 1st chapter.

The human soul, and the divine soul are one. On the padarth'has, or classes of things existent ; how many ; and what things. Enquiry as to birth, or origin. Para Brahm is lord of the entire world. Concerning dherma (virtue, or active beneficence) and adherma, its negative. On the fruit of carma, or ritual sacrifice, &c. Concerning mukti liberation, or beatification. Other details ; knowledge (gnánam) is stated to be the chief, and superior to all other homage. This knowledge is that of the soul being one with god : the usual consequence from which is, that good and evil are alike of divine causation : leaf 1—137.

The book is long, thick, old, without boards slightly injured.

16. No. 519, 520. Both numbers appear ; the former on the side label, the other on the end label.

1.) Naishcarmya siddhi—the mūlam or original, slócas, complete in 4 chapters.

On the advaita sense of the vēdantam leaf 1—26.

2.) Naishcarmya siddhi chandricà.

By Njána uttama, a prose comment on the original ; also in 4 chapters.

On the vulgar notion or opinion, as to difference between the human, and divine souls, or human beings and God.

There is an âikyam or unity of the two ; herein illustrated by an awkward simile, to wit—" if any one, after the moon is risen, be seated under a tree, having various branches and these agitated by the wind, he sees the moon, in appearance, not as one object, but as many; even such is the deception of the senses, as to visible forms; but all beings, and things are in God, seen in him only, and one with him."

Condemnation of family life, with its cares; it is a want of sense.

On the padart'has, or generic classes of worldly objects. They are to be regarded like as the human soul; all are in God; besides this wisdom or knowledge, there is no other (mukti) beatification.

Leaf 1---66 with the above 26---92.

The entire book is long, somewhat thick, old, without boards, slightly damaged.

17. No. 521. Brahmándam, or pancha dasi, slócas with tîca, or glossary.

By Krishna vidvan. In 5 chapters including 10 prakaranas, incomplete.

On the five elements in the human body. Discrimination of the Jivátma, and Paramátma, or human soul, and God.

On their unity and eternity. Fruit or benefit of carma, or various kinds of sacrifice; enquiry as to mukti or beatification.

The dvaita-mata described, and condemned; in order to the establishment of the advaita system.

On Yetis or strict ascetics, what they may do, what not do.

On the great bodily, or mental, sins káma, ródha, lóba, móha, mata, mácharyam, or lewdness, wrath, avarice, lust, fanaticism, malice; their evil nature, and bad effects on body and mind.

Leaf 1--117.

The book is long, thick, recent.

18. No. 550. Gîta bhásya, complete.

By Sancaráchárya, múlam and tîca.

In 18 adhyáyas corresponding with the Bhagavat gîta; on which this book is a comment by the founder of the advaita system. It gives the meaning of the song of Krishna in the sense of teaching the oneness of the divine, and human soul, leaf 1---206.

The book is long, very thick, worm eaten: it should be restored, in a copy; being of value as a leading work.

19. No. 666. Tatva suda, a comment.

By Svayampracása Yeti, on the Dacshana murti stava, or praise of the Saiva god of learning, by Sancaracharya.

It inculcates, or insinuates the advaita system. The original stava has only 11 slócas with the comment 20 leaves; or leaf 231—254.

The book is long, and thin, without boards, recent.

20. No. 946. Tátparya bódhini, instruction on the meaning (of the vedas?) the múlam with a prose tíca or glossary. The original by Vidyáranya (or Sancarácháryа).

The glossary by Ráma krishna Pandita.

The subject is the advaita sense of the vedanta system. The world is only a lie, or deception; or outward manifestation of Isvara, or God: illustrated by water bubbles reflecting various colors, &c.

The jivatma and paramátma are one. Concerning inward faculties of the body; as práno life, manassu, mind, buddhi sense, reason; indryam heart reins, and other deha tatva, or material metaphysics.

Mukti vicháranam, enquiry as to release, or absorption, or beatification; that is freedom from any further transmigration of soul into various bodies, and unity with deity; with other details of the advaita system: leaf 1—25 with 12 blank=38.

21. No. 947. Advaita suddhi: prose.

By Sassa dhara. A comment, in 3 sections, on some other book, not named: 1st and 2nd sections right, 3rd unfinished.

Jivátma paramátma surúpa—On the nature of the human, and divine soul.

Illustration by comparison, or example, as to how they are both one.

As people see objects in a dream so is every thing in this world, with its yugas (ages), all illusive, unreal, finite, a lie.

If any one proffer an objection as to visible objects—the cause why and how they appear to be real stated. Some talk of seven worlds, the how illustrated—"as the moon seen through a latticed window, or through the branches of a tree appears as if five or six moons, so from the illusive nature of Isvara is the appearance of various worlds"—as if merely an optical illusion.

[A logical mistake as to the value and extent of comparison, as a proof, it will be seen pervades this system with all its writers: it is a common Oriental failing to mistake a comparison in illustration for proof; and there is mental weakness in the ostentation of mental strength].

The human soul is not self sufficient to discern, and understand this universal prevalence of illusion.

The five elements induce various gunas (dispositions, or tendencies) in the human body; such as the great sins, kama, ródha, &c. how the elements operate to produce them.

As the sum of the whole, no one has any right or property in this world. He cannot say "this is mine;" for every thing is Isvara; as all things belong to Isvara, or emanate from God: leaf 1—187 plus 20 blank leaves.

The book is long, and thick, broad talipat leaves, very small writing, strong boards.

22. No. 949. Fragment.

One chapter in 3 scandas, on the advaita scheme—Sanscrit prose, with a verbal glossary, in Telugu.

Paramátma surúpa, nature of the divine soul; as a bindu, or atomic form, it enters the human body, and forms the soul of man, a common soul in all. There are six kinds of indriyas, or internal faculties; their surúpa or nature described.

An enquiry as to the five elements and on the mode of formation, or origin of the world, with its destruction: both ascribed to Isvara: so far only.

(The leaves are marked by letters of the alphabet, an old mode of reckoning).

The book is long, and thin, without boards, and very much worm eaten.

23. No. 950. Advaita védantam—prose.

By Janga nát'ha sisha. It has also a verbal glossary by the same author.

The world is mityâi a lie.

The jivátma or human soul is an anu or atom. That atom in the body, is the paramátma, or God: Jivátma paramátma âikyam on the unity of the two, or their being simply one.

On defects or evils affecting the body; such as sleep, pain, sorrow; these hinder the soul from possessing real knowledge (tatva gnánam) like the knowledge possessed by God. On the five elements as composing the body, and other like matters.

On the nature of five internal faculties derived from the five senses, sight, touch, taste, smell, hearing: leaf 1—60.

The book is long, of medium thickness, without boards, injured.

II. Arithmetic.

1. No. 755. Lilavati vyákyà—otherwise entitled Ganita pátti, a comment on the Lilavati by Cáli dása. The comment by Bhascarácháryа. The slócas or sūtras, and a verbal glossary.

On arithmetical problems. The slócas are so contrived as to give answers to geometrical problems, as to superficial contents of various diagrams; by giving measurement in rods and looking for the results in the slócas. Also various problems, as to how many birds in a pond? how many flowers offered to an idol ? answered by certain data from the slócas; apparently an amusement rather than useful.

Two leaves of another copy of the same book are at the beginning, leaf 31—43 plus 18 blank.

2. No. 890 for sect. I see X.

Sect. 2. Sapta sloki; slócas with a verbal glossary, amplified.

IV. Astrological.

1. No. 251. For Sect. 1. see XXIV.

Sect. 2. Jyotisham.

Discrimination of lunar mansion, and of the ascendant, as proper times for journeying, and the consequences ; as to auspicious times only.

Anigunda, a lexicon of various words, as designating lunar mansions, grahas or planets, and st'hanas, places or zodiacal signs.

On suitable, and unsuitable times for a first menstruation ; what result from each detailed : leaf 1—8. This is the smaller portion of the book.

2. No. 371. Kála nirnaya chandrica.

By Sita Ráma chandra ; slócas and prose, incomplete.

This work first gives definitions of times and seasons, and special days ; and then states the particular ceremonies as they fall due on those days. Hence it is a sort of calender or almanac, for direction as to those ceremonies, as they ought to occur ; the same regulated by astrological details.

Mahà kálam is a great time or period. Its subordinate divisions : laguna being the zodiacal sign in the ascendant. Time is reckoned by moments (an eye wink) minutes ; hours of 21½ minutes ; days ; lunar days ; solar days ; lunation, bright and dark half ; months ; seasons (rutus each of 2 months) ayana sun's course in the two hemispheres, years. Complement of lunar and solar year, one lunar month being added.

Mala mása, is that on which either two new moons, or two full moons occur ; what things may be done therein, what not.

The planets Jupiter and Venus are liable to what is termed vâlayam, applied to their first appearance as morning stars, after having been in conjunction with the sun. A definition as to what things may be done, and what things not done, at that time. In like manner on their disappearance in the west, by reason of approaching conjunction with the sun, what may then be done, what not done.

In some lunar days food must be eaten only once. Vratas, or special facts, proper to certain lunar days.

Beginning from the bright half lunation in chaitra month, the 1st day of the northern year, detail of ceremonies as they befal in course, throughout the year, to the close. Many parts of this detail elsewhere appear; and the whole is only suited to an almanac: leaf. 1--200.

The book is long, thick, recent.

3. No. 551. Kálamṛitam ambrosia of time, original slócas, with a comment in prose; on Astrology.

On the proper lunar days, days of week, signs in the ascendant for the preformance of auspicious ceremonies, such as at birth, giving a name, first feeding, cutting birth-hair, boring the ears, assuming the scholastic thread, beginning to read the vedas; marriage especially; and a few others.

The mode of performing those ceremonies, as regulated by sacerdotal law.

Twins or other brothers, or sisters: may not be married on the same day.

There are (éca vimsati dósha) 21 faults to be avoided in the matter of betrothal, and marriage: the first of which is to avoid improper birth nacshétras; in some cases very evil, in others of less consequence. [They will be found detailed elsewhere].

On the visha nádi, an evil time occurring once every day: for example, on Sunday $3\frac{3}{4}$ Indian hours 1 h.--25' reckoned from sun rise, the $26\frac{1}{4}$ Indian hour to 30th; so that if the sun rise at 6 precisely the evil time will be $\frac{1}{2}$ past 4 to 6 P. M. On Monday it will be from $\frac{1}{2}$ past 7 to 9 P. M; but the calculation varies with the sun's rising: [another bond of superstition added to the very many already recorded].

On proper times for shaving, and for journeying, and also for renewing the scholastic thread.

Gáuli cácuna, omens from a lizard, if it fall on any part of the person; or derived from its chappering sounds. Omens from other sources, as to taking a journey.

On the apara vishaya, or mournful duties; the suitable time, and the mode of proceeding. In this case is meant waiting for a good sign in the ascendant, on the day of occurrence.

Discrimination as to the sancranti, or passage of the sun from one sign to another, so as to pour out water in homage.

Also suitable times for sowing seeds in fields: leaf 1—249.

The book is long, thick, slightly injured.

4. No. 552. Bhāva dipica, birth lamp—slócas only, and incomplete.

—dhana bháva lacshanam, mode of determining, from the horoscope, how long the native will be prosperous, or the reverse.

—suta bháva lacshanam, the like as to how many male, and how many female children the native will have.

—ribu bháva lacshanam, the like, as to how many enemies, and how many friends.

—kalatra bháva lacshanam, the like as to how many wives, one, two, three, or four.

—vyaya bháva lacshanam, what losses, and gains, both of different kinds.

—púrana and svalpa ayush, long, or short life.

—the raja yógam described ; being that of five planets in conjunction, and culminant ; indicating the birth of a king : leaf 1—64.

The book is long, of medium thickness, recent.

5. No. 553. Parásarîya with tîca, a work ascribed to Párásara, with its glossary : both incomplete.

On the influence (or fruit) of the twenty seven lunar-mansions, from asvini.

On the nature of influence of the nine planets.

Jâtaca nirnayam, judgment on a horoscope, as to health, wealth, sorrow, time of death, &c.

Nava gruha stóttra praise of the nine planets ; whether belonging to this, or to another book, uncertain. The leaves are not regularly strung. 1—16 and 64—86.

The book is long, of medium thickness, without boards, recent.

6. No. 554. On astrology and divination ; slócas—diagrams—calculations : it appears to be complete.

On foretelling, from the horoscope, any diseases to which the native will be subject. On results from the opposition of planets ; good, or evil. [It would seem that the native astrology makes the nature of the aspect to depend on the nature of the planets]. On the jannan naceshétra or place of the moon at birth, results therefrom. The result from different (solar) days of the week. On the proper time to begin the study of any science. On the influence of the zodiacal signs, results stated. The kuhu dósham described ; or results from any one being born on an ámávasi. (The complement between the end of the 14th lunar day, and the conjunction)—life uncertain. That is a punya kálam or meritorious time ; suitable for gifts —On a good time for laying the foundation, and beginning to build a new house. On the proper time for entering on a new house ; or for bringing a newly married bride home.

On horary questions, as to things lost or stolen, or divided ; as to sickness—mode of answering such questions.

On omens, or signs, seen by the way ; such as a serpent crossing the road, which is very evil---or if a cat cross it---if a crow fly from left to right good, if from right to left bad, &c.

On the evil of being born in a time of eclipse.

Sita Ráma chacra, a magic diagram with letters---object not stated. Trisul yentra, triple trident without letters. Yátra yentra serpent figure, to procure good journies : leaf 1---105.

Book is long, of medium thickness.

7. No. 555. Kálámritam—ambrosia of time. [This seems to be a generic title, not limited to a particular book]. Slócas only, and incomplete.

On suitable times for the suba shódasa carma, or sixteen auspicious ceremonies ; from birth to marriage and beyond ; the good lunar and solar days, lunar mansions, and zodiacal signs in ascendant.

What times of birth are evil, or unpropitious, both to child and mother.

Proper time for commencing a vrata, or religious fast, with other observances.

What lunar days and lunar mansions are favorable as to a first menstruation occurring ; and what are evil.

Róga nirnayam, discrimination as to diseases ; if on such a lunar day it will soon end ; on others, not so ; but will be lengthened out.

On driving a stake into the ground before beginning to build a house, or temple : what days of the week are good, or suitable for so doing ; what days not so.

Vára súlam, on what days of the week journies should not be taken in different directions, as Sunday W. Monday E. &c. 37 leaves ; one at the end, only numbers.

The book is of medium size, without boards, recent.

8. No. 556. Sect. 1. Nacshētra chudámani.

On the fruit, or influences of the twenty-seven lunar asterisms ; from asvani onwards ; whether for good or evil.

For Sect. 2. see XVI.

The entire book is very thick, short, recent.

9. No. 557. Súrya siddhantam, the original, with a verbal glossary, and calculations, incomplete.

—The four yugas or ages, and other divisions of time. On the five, divisions of time, used in almanacs, with the mode of calculating them.

—Cycles of the sun, moon, planets, orbits or way, one within that of the other.

—Mode of calculating eclipses of the sun and moon ; the rest wanting leaf 1—40.

[This book contains the Northern system of astronomy, and astrology. See As: Researches Vol. 2. it is not a purely astronomical work].

It is long, of medium thickness, very narrow leaves, old, but not injured.

10. No. 558. Bṛiha játacam, slócas, the original work, author not stated. Jagat chandrica, a comment thereon by Bhattótp'hala ; complete, in twenty-five chapters.

On the difference as to influence between the twelve zodiacal signs and also difference as to the influence of the planets.

If the day of conception be made known, astrology will determine on what day the child will be born.

On the birth of a child ; according to lunar asterism, and other matters, to tell how many days, or how long a time it will live. On the rajayogam, or culminating of five planets together.

On the looking at, or opposition of the different planets : results stated.

On differences in the horoscopes of males and females, and prognosis from both.

Long, or short life determined from the horoscope. If any one be told the exact time of birth, he may state, by aid of this book, how many lights were in the room at the time, how many women inside, how many men outside (if true, silly) : leaf 1—164.

The book is long, thick, old, slightly injured by insects.

11. No. 559. Sarvart'ha chintāmani slócas from 1st to 9th chapter, for other following chapters see No. 564 infra.

An extract on two leaves is prefixed from a book, termed udu dasa, a description of the rája yóga, one born to be a king.

From the horoscope, or birth aspects it is shewn—

—In what years the native will be rich, or poor.

—At what time any one will sell his landed property, and go away a pilgrim.

—How many male, or female children will be born to the native.

—How many times a man will be married, once, or more than once.

—Death (játaca bhanga) foretold, in such, or such a year.

A supplement to this book on the rája yóga or conjunction of five planets in medio cœli (of course very rare) : leaf 1—46.

The book is of medium size, old, without boards, injured by breaking.

12. No. 560. Kála nidana padadhi ; a chapter on determining times, 110 slocas, complete.

It contains a discrimination of good times for performing certain customary ceremonies ; as nishécam, pumsavanam, simantem, prasudha, graha punyahavasam or on husband and wife coming to live together, on pregnancy, at 6 or 8 months, and lustration of the house after child birth. Also on first learning to read, on assuming the scholastic thread, on beginning to read the védas.

Afterwards on marriage ; on a king's learning the use of arms ; on anointing a king ; on sowing seeds in fields ; consecrating an idol ; beginning to build a temple : leaf 85, 87—95.

Prognosis from the horoscope, as to serious accidents, or violent death.

On the shodasa carma, or the 16 auspicious ceremonies, the proper time for them determined : leaf 1—135 does not finish.

14. No. 562. Damodharîyam—slócas.

By Damódhara incomplete.

On propitious times for assuming the scholastic thread, beginning study, and on finishing it ; for marriage ; and going on a journey. On the nine planets with a mode of reckoning them, or reckoning by them. The nature good, or evil of different planets : leaf 75, 101 not ending.

The book is long, thin, very old, without boards, and very much damaged.

15. No. 563. Dâivagnya vilâsam : slócas.

By Lacshmana—two vilasas, leaf 59, 60 wanting.

Some details as to the height and size of images in a temple, where they may be placed, where not ; and then the proper astrological times for fixing them.

Various chambers are built within side a temple ; the good times astro logically determined for putting in doors, and other appurtenances ; leaf 1—31.

The book is of medium length, thin, and a little injured by insects.

16. No. 564. Sarvart'ha chintámani, slócas, adhyaya 9—16. 1—8 wanting.

On the fruit, or influence of the zodiacal signs. On the indications as to long, or short life. On the rája yógam, or five planets culminant, or nearly so ; any one then born will become a king. Mode of erecting a horoscope, or "casting a nativity," and giving a judgment thereupon. The planetary aspects that indicate insanity ; and those which indicate great skill.

Results which are indicated by the different planets, in different signs ; each planet in each one of the signs.

Results which are indicated by each one of the lunar mansions ; in some cases parts of two signs : leaf 35—91.

The book is long, of medium thickness, old, without boards. [If a complete copy can be made out by collation, this might be a good compendium for translation : the influence of astrology is epidemic].

17. No. 565. P'hala grant'ham, on influences, slócas, incomplete (see 20. No. 570 infra).

Discrimination of zodiacal signs, good in the case of a woman, and good in the case of a man ; or promising benefits.

In like manner what planets are good or bad, to either of the two sexes.

The like as to the lunar mansions.

If a man and woman are born in the same lunar asterism ; as asvini, &c. they must not be married to each other.

According to the lunar mansion of any one's birth, length of life determined ; how often married, how many children, &c.

The book is of medium size, with one board, old, and variously damaged.

18. No. 566. Játacábaranam, horoscope jewel.

By Ráma chandra—slócas, incomplete.

On the friendships and enmities between the nine planets—the benefit conveyed by friendly planets—and the evil by those that are inimical. Also on the influence of the zodiacal signs. If a sign, not in itself good, be in the ascendant together with a good planet ; or if the lord of ascendant be a good planet ; then the influence of the sign is changed, and rendered good.

Leaf 1—12 rest wanting.

The book is short, and thin, without boards, recent,

19. No. 567. Parasarîyam, slócas ascribed to Parásara ; incomplete, see 553.

In estimating a nativity, the time of birth, and the laguna, or sign in the ascendant, are leading points. From the position of the sun, and other planets, inclusive of the lunar nodes, the dasa and bhakti are determined, e. g. One born in 10°. of asvini the first half of mésha (aries) has the kéta dasa, which contains 7 years ; which period will include the bhaktis of the nine planets ; thence are derived prognostications as to future good, or evil. When one dasa with its bhaktis has been gone through, then another dasa with its bhaktis is taken in hand ; and so on throughout the nine planets—whence good or evil, health, sickness, prosperity, poverty, death, &c. are determined [at all events very artificial] : only 5 written leaves, others blank ; of medium length, without boards recent.

20. No. 569. Sarvart'ha chintámani ; slócas, incomplete.

—graha bhávam, influence of the planets.

—dasa bhávam, the like, as to zodiacal signs ; whether prosperous or adverse : (see 19 No. 567).

If sol is in aries how long good fortune, when a change may occur, &c. Compare as to dasa art'ham with No. 1208 Uriya letter. Vol. I.

Leaf 169—194.

21. No. 570. P'hala grant'ham, slócas, incomplete, (see 17 No. 565 supra).

On planetary influences.

A list of the lunar mansions, by other names than the usual ones ; thus asvini is termed turagam, &c. a list of the zodiacal signs mésha &c. also called by other than the usual names ; as mésha termed ájà ; rishabha is uja &c The sun, and other planets have also altered names.

Influences or results from lunar mansions, signs, and planets, simple and combined.

Good, or bad indicated by the time of a first menstruation. Also on good, or bad omens, when setting out on a journey.

Health, or sickness in a child, determined from the time of its birth.

Tit'hi súlam, vára súlam ; on what lunar, and solar days it is not advisible to journey in specified directions ; and other days on which allowable ; with results in either case.

Horary questions, as to a cow ; whether lost or stolen. Mode of answer. At the end two yentros, or diagrams, with letters of a mantra.

By Pati Bhata ; only the 20th adhyáyam. Bhára sátana nirupanam ; on the lagana or sign in the ascendant, at the time of birth of a child ; with results, whether good or otherwise, 2 leaves ; on two other leaves tables of figures, and a diagram with letters in it.

The book is of medium length, without boards, recent.

23. No. 572. St'hána nigandu : slócas, incomplete.

A lexicon of other than the common names given to the zodiacal signs, planets, lunar mansions, and signs in the ascendant at birth.

On the proper time for anointing with oil ; not from 6 to 9 A. M.—after 9 A. M it is allowed. There are some days suited : others not permissable. Discrimination of varja an evil time, occurring every day once ; but varying according to the days ; it is eleswhere noted as visha nádi.

Leaves 1—6 and 14 left blank,

The book is long, and thin ; without boards, slightly injured.

24. No. 573. Graha bhásyam, slócas ; only the 1st adhyáyam without tíca.

On the powers, and influence of the nine planets ; their nature good, or evil.

On two leaves, horary questions as to property lost, or stolen, with answers : in Telugu tíca to this portion : leaf 1—5.

The book is short, and without boards.

25. No. 574. Sata yóga manjeri, on the yógas.

The yoga is the fourth astrological division, to determine auspicious times ; but, in this book, the term is used otherwise, for certain situations, and aspects of the planets, their distance, &c. from the laguna, or sign in the ascendant.

—Vasu yoga : indicates wealth.

—Bheri yoga „ musical skill.

Siva „ „ great prowess, and so on ; as is the yoga in which a child is born, so will be the results in future life.

Leaf 1—10, at the end 5 blank.

The book is of medium length, no boards.

26. No. 575. P'halas, influences, diverse leaves collected together.

—Place of the planets. To every planet a particular zodiacal sign is ascribed, to some planets two signs, as a house : when any planet is in its own house the result is good, and when in the house of a friendly planet good; in some other planets' houses bad : [this accords with the European system].

—lagunas—nature or influence of different zodiacal signs in the ascendant described : length of life thence predicted. Horary questions, as to loss of property, thence determined.

—Amṛita yóga, what is done on this day will succeed, or prosper.

—Marana yóga, the opposite, and fatal to life.

On the three ganas, or classes ; that is déva, manushya, rácshas ; their results ; for example one born under the rácshasa gana may go any where at night, without fear or danger.

—Some diagrams, without letters in them.

—Bháva p'halas,. On the general nature, or influence of zodiacal signs : without any special regard to the ascendant : leaves 1—55.

The book is of medium size, with banboo boards, recent.

27. No. 576. Párasarîyam, slócas with tîca, incomplete (see 5. No. 553 supra).

On bháva, zodiacal sign, laguna the sign in ascendant, grahas, planets nacshétras, lunar mansions, the different influences, and results from each one stated, down to a description of the rája yóga, or 5 planets culminant.

One leaf contains diagrams with letters, or figures, in some of the compartments. [One figure having two crosses (as in a union jack) is like the figure of a horoscope used by European professors of this art : but I have not met with the mention of houses in that artificial sense.]

The book is long, thin, without boards.

28. No. 577. Two subjects.

1.) Váncha nadîyam, slócas.

By Váncha nát'ha, complete.

The twelve zodiacal signs, and the differences between them described; with the influences of each one.

2.) Párásari, slócas complete.

By Párásara.

On the influences of lunar mansions, and planets; játaca p'halam, results from the horoscope. Ayur yóga on the length of life, determined by the horoscope.

Leaf 13—38 and 10 blank leaves.

29. No. 578. Jyótisham; slócas, incomplete.

---Indications of short life, and long life.

--Indications from planetary aspects, whether wealth, or learning, or lands, may come to be possessed: leaf 1--14.

Two leaves at the end; at what times instructions in the Sâiva credence may be given, and when not given, astrologically determined.

The book is of medium length, without boards, slightly injured by insects.

30. No. 579. Kálamṛitam, slócas.

(See 3 No. 551 and 7 No. 555—incomplete.

On auspicious times for performing the shódasa suba karma, or sixteen auspicious ceremonies, from birth onwards.

Also horary questions, as to suitable or unsuitable times, for taking a journey, or for making (yátra) a pilgrimage.

Leaf 1—75. The book is long, of medium thickness, without boards.

31. No. 580. Vastu dévasta, slócas.

Details as to building a new house—the suitable times for the different parts of the work, with putting in doors, digging a well (the moon in bharini, and a good planet in the nadir, suitable for excavations) results that follow those various operations, at different times—if not well chosen, evil. Hence if any particular result is desired, an astrologer must be consulted, in order to learn the appropriate time.

Description of the rája yógam, or conjunction of five planets, culminant: leaf 85—97 incomplete.

The book is of medium length, old, without boards, much damaged at the beginning.

32. No. 581. Laghu manassu—mūlam with a tica and calculations; it is a ganita sastram, arithmetical in part.

On the mode of reckoning, or calculating the tit'hi, váram, nacshetra-yóga-karana, the five divisions used in almanacs. Rules for calculating the positions of the planets, so as to know their places in the day time, though not seen. Discrimination as to the exact time of sancranti or passage of the sun from one sign into another one : so far here : but the book does not finish : 21 leaves.

The book is long, without boards, a little injured by insects.

33. No. 582. Jyotisham ; astrology ; various chacras, or diagrams, incomplete. Horary questions and answers to them : by a sort of divination ; that is, reckoning the number of letters the question contains, and then answering by certain rules.

6 leaves suddhi yógam, good or propitious times for journeying, or other proceedings.

—amṛita yógam—this is good ex. gr. if the fifth lunar day fall on Wednesday, or on Monday.

—marana yógam—this is bad ; auspicious occurrences, such as marriage, or the like, must not then be attempted, as the results are fatal to life.

—the rácshasa yógam, is also a bad time.

—Gáuri páncháṅgam, from it are taken the vâra p'halam, or discrimination of what is suitable, or unsuitable to be done on different days of the week (solar).

—2 leaves nashta Jatacam, the horoscope being lost, early or premature death of an infant predicted, in some cases, from the lunar mansion and zodiacal sign in ascendant, if known at the time of birth : in all 12 leaves.

34. No. 583. P'halas influences ; slócas, with prose, and glossary in Telugu, incomplete.

On the zodiacal signs, and differences of results from each one. Dasa nát'ha p'halam, certain periods allotted to the sun, and other planets, as successive reigns ; and results as to health, sickness, and various other matters, thence predicated ; the entire course of these decemvirs extends to 120 years (see 19 No. 597 supra).

The book is of medium length, thin, without boards, slightly injured by insects.

35. No. 584. Déva kéralam—slócas. Fragment.

A king of Kérala désa named Achyutam performed severe penance ; when Vṛihaspati (regent of the planet Jupiter) appeared to him in a visible form ; and instructed him in Astrology. The result of the dasas, cycles or periods of the different planets, with indications of health, sickness, &c. Notice of some gandas, or ill-conjunctures ; when, according to the horoscope, accidents may be expected to happen to the native.

—Not finished : leaf 1—11. The book is somewhat long, on broad talipat leaves, without boards, injured by insects.

V. Dramatic.

1. No. 412. Sect. 2. Prabódha chandrodayam, Sanscrit and Pracruti; slócas and prose of both. By Krishna misra.

1st to 6th anca, an ethical drama.

Evil dispositions, káma, cródha, lóba, móha, damba, are personified, with appropriate dresses and language, and also good dispositions in the same way, as chama, sraddha, zanti, trishma, the evil as men, the good as women ; and the dialogue is intended to support the sâiva advâita system. [The Sancalpa surydóaya is the converse Vâishnava drama].

For sect. 1. see XI. Sect. 2 see XXXII.

The book is of medium size, old.

2. No. 603. Prabódha chandródayam.

By Krishna misra, slócas, pracruti.

3. No. 604. Three dramas.

1). Sacontala, slócas, prose, pracruti.

By Cáli dasa 7 ancas, complete.

King Dushmanta when out hunting saw, and fell in love with a very young girl, brought up in a hermitage. A gandharba marriage followed, with gift of a ring, which was lost, and miraculously recovered : birth, and recognition of Bharata a sovereign of the northern empire.

2.) Vicrama Urvasiyam, slócas, prose, and pracruti, in both. In 5 ancas or acts complete.

By Cáli dása.

The enemies of the dévas captured Urvasi, a courtezan of Indra's court, Purúrava, an early monarch, went and conquered those enemies, and released her. Both became enamoured ; a gandarbha marriage ; with passion, sufferings from absence, according to the ars poetica.

3.) Málavica agni mitreyam,

By Cáli dása, in 5 ancas, complete.

Haridhatta and Ganadasa had a dispute concerning their skill in teaching music, and dancing. The latter of the two had trained Málavicà a figurante. She was of royal descent, and was brought to exhibit her teacher's skill, and her own talent before the king. He became enamoured, and she also. Poetical matters, devices ; and, ultimately, a left handed marriage.

The above three come under the term Sṛingara ornate, amorous: leaf 1—192 and 40 blank.

The book is of medium length, very thick, a little injured by insects.

4. No. 616. Cumara giri rajîyam, a new comment on the Sacontala of Cáli dása.

By Cumara giri rája; prose, incomplete.

—There should be seven ancas but they are not all here. [There is an older comment, entitled Vâikanasîyam by Vâikanasa].

Leaf 1—82 and 74 blank.

The book is of medium length, thick, recent.

5. No. 626 Vicramórvasiya, a drama.

By Cáli dása; Sanscrit, pracruti, slócas, and prose in both: 5 ancas complete.

8. No. 675. Prasanna Rághavam.

By Jaya dēva cavi, slócas, prose, with pracṛuti verse and prose : anca 1—4 complete, with only part of the 5th anca.

A selection of incidents from the Rámáyanam ; the marriage of Ráma and Sita—Sita carried off by Rávana—consequent war—Ráma's encounter with Párasu Ráma.

Names of different kinds of dresses, or costumes, worn by actors, are sutra dharanaltan—tándyáyana—vidushaca—kubja—bechu : leaf 1—39.

The book is long, of medium thickness, recent.

9. No. 693. Jagan móhana nátacam, only 66 slócas, incomplete.

A drama contrived to exibit the costumes, and toilet of different women.

—Saiva women—their dress, and mode of putting on beads, and ashes on their body.

—Cárnata women—their dress, jewels, personal appearance, gait.

—Andhra women } as in the last instance.
Yavana women }

Also their modes of painting their eyes, and other parts of their toilet, on first rising, and before going out : their different modes (dante davadi) of cleaning their teeth, and manner of putting on the (tilacam) forehead spot, and other feminine ornaments : leaf 1—10.

The book is of medium length, leaves narrow, without boards.

10. No. 699. Sacontala nátacam.

By Cáli dāsa—slócas, pracṛuti.

1—7 ancas complete.

On the amour of Dushmanta with Sacontala ; gandharba marriage, birth of Bharata, &c.

Leaf 1—55. The book is somewhat long, without boards, worm eaten.

11. No. 719. Prabódha chandródaya.

By Kṛishna misra—slócas and pracṛuti.

1—4 ancas the 5th a little defective at the end ; an ethical drama, on the advaita system.

In the guise of men—lust, cruelty, avarice, lasciviousness, pride, &c.

In the guise of women, meekness, integrity, friendship, affection, favor or goodness, wit or sense, self control, &c. dress, and language appropriate.

Leaf 1—40. The book is of medium size, without boards.

12. No. 767. Murári vyakhyà, a drama.

By Hari hara dicshada—tîca form.

1—5 ancas, incomplete.

A comment on an original—the subject taken from the Rámáyanam, but not in a regular order, and adapted to scenic representation: leaf 87—163. The book is of medium size, without boards, very old, very greatly, and variously injured.

13. No. 770. Three subjects.

1.) Title not legible, appears to be a bhánam or monologue drama; subject, the amours of Siva and Parvati: 15 leaves, much injured.

2.) Murári nátaca—rejecting all the prose, the slócas only are taken out from 7 ancas, and put together in a string; this extracting being the work of Vencatâ suri: the subject, incidents from the Rámáyanam, but not in regular order; 42 leaves.

3.) Sacontala—only the slócas, as in the last instance, and taken from the entire 7 ancas: 11 leaves, in all 68. The book is long, of medium thickness, without boards, old, much damaged.

14. No. 771. Murári vyakyà—tîca form.

By Rámánanda mahà yógi.

Another comment on the murári (known also by the title anarc'ha raghavam) but only to the 1st anca: as above, incidents from the Rámáyanam: leaf 1—37.

The book is long, on talipat leaves, very much, and variously damaged.

15. No. 999. Sect. 2. Prabódha chandródayam.

By Krishna misra, slócas, and pracruti—only 3 ancas; wanting the others v. supra leaf 1—27. For sect. 1. see XIV.

VI. Dreams.

No. 568. Brihaspati mata grant'ham—the zópana adhyáyam or section on dreams only, 24 slócas, incomplete.

The night is divided into four yámas, or watches; and according to the occurrence, in any one of these watches, dreams are classified, as to force, and period of fulfilment.

Good and bad dreams described, e. g. if, in a dream, a crow is seen to enter a house the import is bad. If a river with a boat, or ship on it be seen, a relative in a distant land will soon return: and the like. Only two leaves broken at one end.

VII. Ethical.

1. No. 411. Bhagavat gita, slócas.

1st to 18th adhyáyam, the original complete without comment—leaves 1—31.

2. No. 415. Bhagavat gîta, slócas.

1st to 18th adhyáyam, the original complete, without glossary. Prefixed are 1 leaf praise to Vishnu 3 leaves from the 3rd cándam of the Amara cosha—leaves 1—73.

The book is long, of medium thickness, old, without boards, injured.

3. No. 426. Bhagavat gîta, slócas. Ascribed to Vyása: it has a tîca in Telugu, by whom not stated. At the beginning 20 slócas are wanting; otherwise the 18 adhyáyas complete: leaf 4—129.

The book is long, of medium thickness, without boards, damaged.

4. No. 428. Bhagavat gîta; slócas and tîca in Telugu 1—18 adhyáyas complete. Original 37 leaves; glossary 73 leaves—110.

The book is of medium size, recent.

5. No. 430. Gita bhásyam, comment on the Bhagavat gîta.

By Rámanujáchárya.

It is complete, including the original in 18 chapters; the comment is in prose, and gives that view of the vedanta, known as visishta advaita: leaf 1—156.

The book is long, thick, with brass pin, recent; of value, as the southern Vaishnava system.

6. No. 470. Subódhini, a comment on the Bhagavat gîta; only 1st and 2nd chapters.

By Srî dhara svámi.

It has the slócas of the original, corresponding to the comment; but wants 16 chapters of both: leaf 1—19. The book is long, without boards, slightly injured.

7. No. 471. Uttara gîtaiyaha, matters founded on the Bhagavat gîta.

He who has the knowledge of Brahm must attend to the following things; that is to say: He must bring the mental idea of God to be within the space between his eye brows; and fix his meditation upon that idea; the mode of doing so.

The surúpam form, or rather nature of Brahm described, or defined; as nirmalam without defilement, prabha sunyam light, manassu mind, butti sense, nirmayam without bodily pains, or concerns—sarva sunyam-nirabásám without trifling cares—so far matter of the 1st chapter. In the second chapter, on áruda one perfect, or accomplished in asceticism; arurucha one who ascends towards perfection. The two described. There is a unity between the human soul, and God. On pulses in the human body; these are Brahm's seat or residence: with some other like matters. 3rd adhyáyam, he who properly venerates, and honors Brahm, does what is right, and ought to be done. The nature of Brahm again described.

A copy of the original of the Bhagavat gîta is attached in 18 chapters complete, slócas only. And also the 49th adhyáyam from the zánti parvam of the Bháratam, Bhishma's homage to Krishna 137 slócas.

And further Krishna stuti, praise of Krishna from the mócsha dherma 82 slocas; with two other small pieces containing praise of Vishnu. The book seems made up of different pieces, as the leaves are numbered 1—10 and 1—34 and 1—10, and 3 without No.

The book is long, of medium thickness, without boards, slightly damaged.

8. No. 510. Jiván mukti vivécam, slócas, prose. (see 1. 9. No. 475).

This is an incomplete portion, chiefly ethical, of an advaita work.

On zeal in asceticism—the pilgrim's staff; such a one must not put on sandal, perfume, nor use flowers nor betel leaf, &c. He must avoid the evil dispositions of lust, anger, covetousness, fanaticism, and malice; must control or overcome them. He must not strike or abuse superiors, or aged people. He should acquire good wisdom. Some duties peculiar to the yeti are stated. By the various means stated, such a one is jivan mukti, already beatified while alive: leaf 1—12.

The book is long, without boards, recent.

9. No. 630. Anyóbadésa—100 slócas.

By Pandita raya. 1 ulāsam, others wanting.

As fable teaches by way of apologue, so one object of this book is to convey instruction to rational beings, by professing to address parts of the irrational, or inanimate creation; as a bee, a bird, a tree, to convey lessons to a husband, or a king.

O bee! thou oughtest not to leave the Camalam or lotos, to suck honey from every baser flower.

O bird! thou oughtest not to leave thy own nest, to sleep in other nests.

O tree! thou art a standing refreshment from heat, and fatigue giving shelter; so ought a king to be to his people: leaf 1—9, with 28 blank.

The book is of medium length, new.

10. No. 636. Prasanga retnávali, slócas.

A selection of beauties from various authors ; chiefly such subjects as the following—the duties proper to this last age ; praise of Brahmans ; on learning ; and on poets and poetry ; properties of friendship ; on good, and evil people ; on fate ; on desire ; on asking alms ; on a bad son ; on poverty ; on rectitude of character ; on the temper of a mantri or chief adviser of a king ; on the art of dancing. Also specimens of antar lábhi and bayar lábhi : the latter open meaning, the former recondite ; in which letters are taken from different words to form a word, in reply to a question ; for example ; if a woman be asked the name of her husband a direct reply is thought indelicate ; she therefore gives a word or two, from which possible names are formed, and one selected as the right one : 633 slócas.

Leaf 1—89 and 15 blank, this book is a copy, from another one β. A. c.

The book is of medium size, new.

11. No. 653. Vidacta muc'ha mandánam.

By Sárangadhára—slócas, complete.

On good and bad people : on poor and rich men, on family concerns ; on poets or learned men ; on women or wives ; on husbands ; on beasts, and birds. In all a difference of good, and bad noted. As to birds the hamsa and parrot, good ; the crow bad, &c. (Curzon, a late writer on Armenia, mentions large flocks of red geese ; which species seems to be the hamsa, fabulous in India ; but fables derived from the north west.)

Some matter on the antar lábhi and bayar lábhi. Here the former designates a word concealed in a slóca, which is to be picked out from many letters.

Rája nîti, or kingly morals treated on ; and some rules for people how to obey : leaf 1—72.

(This also seems to be a copy, as above.)

The book is long, of medium thickness, without boards, recent.

12. No. 669. Prasanga retnavali—slocas : in padhatis, or decades of slócas, incomplete.

Elegant extracts, on various subjects, resembling the Bartri hariyam.

Subhashita padhati	—on elegant writing.
Samsára	,,	family duties.
Chatur yuga	,,	the four ages.
Vidvat	,,	on learned men.
Mitra	,,	on friendship.
Sajana	,,	on good people.
Durjana	,,	on bad people.

Dariddhra padhati—on poverty.
Bhâgya ,, on prosperity.
Karma p'hala ,, fruit of destiny.
Yáchaca ,, on alms begging.

Leaf 1—15. The book is of medium length, thin, without boards, slightly injured.

13. No. 683. Prasanga retnáváli, slócas.

63 padhatis or decades, of which the following are a few subjects. (See 10 No. 636).

Eulogy of Brahmans; on the poor, their becoming temper; on the rich, their conduct, with an eulogy; on the good and bad dispositions of family men; good people described, and praised; bad people described, and censured; description with praise of the ten avataras of Vishnu; covetousness condemned; on those who live by begging alms; praise of good offspring; evil dispositions condemned: benefit from gifts; duty of hospitality to guests: and various other matters: leaf 1—50, not finished.

The book is somewhat long, of medium thickness, without boards, recent.

14. No. 692. Cháttu slócas 90, Varieties.

Various distichs collected, each one distinct in subject, ethical chiefly (as in 9 No. 630 supra) example translated.

O bee! that sipp'st the lotos flow'r,
Why flit about from bow'r to bow'r?
Can other flowers more honey give,
Than she with whom thou ought'st to live?
O bee! be wise, in thy frail hour,
And keep thee to thy lotos flow'r.

5 leaves only 66—70. long, no boards.

15. No. 748. Anya upadésa prastábham.

By Jaganát'ha pandita, slócas, incomplete.

1—3 ulasas, the 1st right, 2nd and 3rd defective (see 9. No. 630 supra).

Indirect instructions, given under the semblance of addressing a bee, a bird, different beasts, and through such medium conveying moral lessons on good and evil.

Leaf 1—14 and 17—21, at the end 1 leaf, an account.

The book is of medium length, thin, without boards.

16. No. 761. Sect. 1 Prastab'ha slócas, incomplete; dialogue form: examples—if any one thinks to destroy another, the deity will destroy him. It is not right to associate with a bad man, even though he may be learned ; for if a serpent were twisted in with a long string of beads, and offered to you, would you accept the gift ?

For sect. 2—3 see XX.

17. No. 1016. Cháttu slócas ; varieties.

Detached distichs on many subjects, not connected, though mostly of moral bearing ; as

For example—other women are to be regarded as one regards a mother ; other people's property should be regarded as worthless potsherds ; other people should be regarded, as if one's own-self : he who acts thus is a Pandit (learned man). A slóca on giving food. On inequalities in the present life. Some learned men are poor, some stupid men are very rich, some persons unaccountably prevail, some in like manner succumb ; some men live by catching snakes, elephants, birds : when I see all these things I conclude that Isvara is powerful and that such results are from vidhi, fate or destiny : leaf 1—18 and 35 blank leaves.

The book is short, on narrow talipat leaves, without boards.

VII. Erotic.

1. No. 81. Ananga rangha, Cupid's arena.

[Ananga (without members) is an epithet of Cáma or Manmata ; rangha an island in a river, of hieroglyphical reference]. No author's name, 10 st'halas or places : the last one incomplete.

On the four classes of women Padmini, Chitreni, Sankhini, and Hastini ; their bodily appearance ; dress ; habits ; mental qualities. Discrimination as to men, their personal appearance, and dispositions. Different qualities and tastes in women of various countries described. The lilas, or sports which they prefer. On the means of causing barren women to become pregnant, by aid of medicine. On the use of medicines, as philtres, with mantras, or spells accompanying. On certain bodily appearances (dóshana) in young women, rendering marriage with them not advisable ; such as long teeth, short arms, bristly hair, bearded upper lip. On like indications in men ; such as short arms, indolent habits, a being fond of much eating ; very tall stature, sickly constitution. Qualities of heart are to be discovered only by acquaintance ; such indications are for the guidance of parents, or friends of a woman.

On the mode of imparting a sweet breath to women, by medicals for the mouth, as betel-leaf ; folded up with nutmeg, mace, cloves, all spice, &c. An unguent to turn grey hair black. Other details haud honesta. [Such books, as a whole, may be mischievous ; but the native mind is tinctured by them, and to know the latter, the former must be known also]: leaf 1—24.

The book is long, without boards, recent.

2. No. 96. Rati rahasya pracsicà—a comment on a work entitled Rati rahasya (ars amoris). The comment by Káma chandra. Only part of the 4th parich'heda, defective at the beginning, and ending.

Other two ganas, are termed dhátu málica, and gana páta. On vowels and consonants, their union, and formation of cases, and mode of forming words from roots. Some roots of the second gana are given, with the meaning of each stated in prose. The third gana relative to the uniting indeclinable words. Of the three classes only so much as is in common use is given in this book.

It is somewhat long, of medium thickness, without boards, recent.

20. No. 867. Two tracts.

1.) Káraca parich'hedam, sútras and vrütti.

By Rudra Bhattácharya.

Only one chapter, complete.

On the meaning of roots, as to past, present, and future time, and also the various words by union (pratyayam) of other letters, or affixes to them forming words (sabda); with their meaning as to the three times.

2.) Samása váta art'ham—sutras and tica.

By Jaya Ráma, complete.

Twenty-eight samása chacras or modes of uniting words, so as to form compounds, the last one only bearing any sign of inflexion (of course of great service in poetry): leaf 1—43.

The book is long, without boards, and very slightly injured.

21. No. 871. Two pieces.

1.) Siddhanta cáumudi, prose tica.

By Bhattoji dicshada, fragments.

Leaves 1—23 and from 50—70 and 108—172. Subjects by consequence not connected. A little on sandhis; a little from the chapter on nouns; some matter on samásas; and also the káraco kriya, ut supra 20.

2.) Ashtádhiyayi—the 8 chapters of sutras. By Pánini, complete; 1—8 to each, 4 pátas or 32 sections in all. In this work the different subjects do not come in regular order; as in ticas; the matter on sandhis is at the end: the subanta and tignanta complete: leaf 173—225.

The book is of medium length, thick, on narrow leaves, in one place injured.

22. No. 872. Prándha manórama.

Leaf 1—76 and 106—210.

The book is somewhat long, thick, not injured.

23. No. 873. Siddhanta cáumudi.

By Bhattóji dicshada, found on the sutras of Panini. The púrva and uttara art'has, both complete.

Purva, the subanta on 5 sandhis on nouns with genders and cases, and 28 kinds of samása, or compound words, and on indeclinable words; with káraca kriya, or formation of words from roots.

Uttara, the tignanta —roots (there are 4,000) form of three times, and three persons of verbs, with singular, dual and plural (éca, dvi, bahu, vachana), leaf 1—261.

The book is long, twice the usual thickness, with broken wooden pin; of recent writing, valuable copy.

24. No. 881. Sect. 1 Ashtádhiyayi.

By Pánini. 1—8 adhyáya, in 32 pátas 4 to each chapter. The subanta, nouns and indeclinable words; tignanta, roots and formation of finite verbs: leaf 1—48, long, very much worm eaten. For Sect. 2. see XXXII.

25. No. 882. Vilásam, prose tica.

By Lacshmi Nṛisinha.

A comment on the siddhanta câumudi: only the subanta, the other part wanting: on the 5 sandhis, cases and genders of nouns, and the various samásas not regular; 209 leaves not in regular order, as to numbers on the leaves. The book is long, very thick, old, without boards, much damaged.

26. No. 884. Subódhini, prose tica.

By Jaya Kṛishna.

Another commentary on the siddhanta câumudi. Three prakriyas, 1 váidica, 2 svara, 3 tignanta, under 1, the 5 sandhis, genders and cases of nouns and samásas. 2, various accents, especially rising, falling, and prolonged. Under 3, roots and their formation into the different moods, tenses, and persons of verbs: leaf 1—38 and 1—76=115.

The book is very long, of medium thickness, without boards, looks recent; but is much worm eaten.

27. No. 886. Siddhanta câumudi, sutras and tica.

By Bhattóji dicshada, incomplete.

Part of the subantam, on sandhis and nouns and part of the tignanta: but both incomplete; the numbering of the leaves not uniform; in all 168 leaves, and 68 blank leaves are intermingled; an unfinished copy, intermediate parts skipped.

The book is of medium length, thick, on talipat leaves, damaged.

28. No. 887. Sirómani, prose, tica.

Another comment on the siddhanta câumudi, the latter portion having also original sutras. The tignantam, on the formation of verbs, with kriya mála, a list of roots, of three times, and difference of form, corresponding with such meanings; leaf 3—159.

The book is long and thick, without boards, very slightly injured.

29. No. 890. Sect. 1. Práudha manōrama.

By Bhattóji dîcshada; a tîca to his comment, entitled siddhanta câumudi, prose, incomplete; it has only the beginning. On the subantam—the 5 sandhis; genders of nouns, how formed from the root, termed káracam: leaf 1—50.

For Sect. 2 see II. The book is long, and much worm eaten.

30. No. 891. Tatva bodhini, prose, tica.

By Njánéndra sarasvati, incomplete.

A comment on the siddhanta câumudi, including the original sutras, without quoting the siddanta caumudi it proceeds upon it, and is more copious, or particular where needed.

Only the former part, on the subanta and this not fully—the 5 sandhis on nouns, their genders, and all the samásas; also indeclinable words; and karacâ kriya, or forming words from roots, by increment: leaf 1—81, and 1—28, and 1—59=168 leaves.

The book is long, and thick, without boards, old, injured by insects.

Written by Purushóttama ánanda sarasvati.

If a father become a strict ascetic, he is virtually, or legally dead. The duties of a son in that case. Dhatta mimámsa a book so called is herein included. On adoption. Question—must the children of one adopted go to the line, or posterity of the person adopting, or to his own line. Some say to his own line; but this book, by many arguments, and logical rules, proves that the posterity is to be reckoned to the race of the individual adopting.

On the question—if a king have many children, to which one of them does the inheritance of the kingdom pass? Answer—to the child of the eldest lawfully married wife.

Various other questions on the subjects of adoption, and inheritance; together with the mode of adoption—fire offering at the time. (If the dhatta mimamsa be not already translated, it would be worth translating).

Abinava shada shita vyakyánam a commentary, otherwise called Dherma pradipica, on a work entitled Abinava sada shita.

By Subrahmanya sudhi, i. e. pandita.

On the periods of ceremonial uncleanness, caused by death of children at various ages ; also on birth and death afterwards, at various times, soon after birth—with other matter on ceremonial purifications, caused by death—previously noted.

Smṛti bhâscaram—the various ceremonies from pregnancy forwards to be followed, or observed, by Sudras; with the apara kriya, or funereal ceremonies, as to Sudras; leaf 1—5 and 1—190 ; at the end three leaves as to who must light the pyre, and a few like matters by Naradîya, or ascribed to him.

17. No. 247. Two books.

1.) Hémádri—dherma sastra.

By Hémádri, slócas, incomplete.

Chiefly on prayaschitas, or expiatory punishments.

On the duties of the Brahman, Cshetriya, Vâisya and Sudra, according to their class. If they do not fulfil the precepts of the Vedas, concerning them, they incur guilt ; nevertheless, in such cases, an expiation to remove the guilt is provided : and for such matters as theft, adultery, drunkenness, &c., the specification is minute, and in great variety ; and, like Den's theology, might suggest, to innocent persons, crimes or vices, not otherwise known, or even thought of.

2.) Kála Madhavîyam—slócas.

By Mádhava complete.

The two áyanas and dark half lunations, lunar days, and mála másam in which two new moons, or two full moons occur, the mahályam in September—October. These various modes of noting time are described, with full details ; as also what may, and what may not be done in them. The mahályam is a commemoration of ancestors for 15 days from full to new moon, according to the tit'hís on which each one died, though in other months.

Jayanti nirnayam, adjustment of the exact time for the observance of Kṛishna's birth day.

Siva ratri nirnayam, adjustment of time for the special night of Siva, in the month of February.

Adjustment of special days, on which one meal only is to be eaten.

Regulations as to gifts, on days of special observance.

Details of the 4th lunar day, as devoted to Ganésa, and various other fasts, or observances in each tit'hi throughout the year.

Duties to be attended to at the time of eclipses : leaf 1—5 and 1—23 and 1—117.

The book is very long, thick, on narrow leaves, injured by insects.

18. No. 249. Two books.

1.) Visvésvara smṛiti sáram.

By Svapracása yógi, slócas.

Enquiry as to the form of entering on the profession of Sanniyasi; what is to be done, and what forbidden ; with the fruit or result. Properties of the pilgrim's staff used by ascetics.

Daily duties of strict ascetics. Their mode of bathing, and manner of seeking alms. Practice of the yógam or meditating on God, and on their own mind. The virtue of pûja or ritual homage, by an ascetic is very great. Praise of Hari or Vishnu. Mode of annual commemoration of the death of a sanniyasi: leaf 1—52.

2.) Dherma pradîpica, slócas.

By Subrahmanya suti : complete.

A commentary on a work entitled Abinava shada siti.

Description and periods of ceremonial uncleanness from various causes. What things many be done during such times, and what things are forbidden : leaf 1—13.

The book is of medium size, and a little injured by insects.

19. No. 254. Smṛityatya sáram, an epitome of sacerdotal law, incomplete.

What are suitable duties to be performed in the Cali yuga, and what are not now permitted.

On the sixteen propitious ceremonies, and the suitable times for them prescribed.

Mode of making the sacred thread, as well as of putting it on. Description of deer skin strips, and a staff as pertaining to a Brahmáchari. Srávana vidhi or upacarma vidhi in the event of not reading the Védas, or of laying aside the sacred thread, a prayaschita, fine or punishment in expiation of such an omission, quasi penance, and absolution.

On what days the Védas may be read, and what days are prohibited.

In the case of a proposed betrothal an examination prescribed, as to the respective gótras or tribes of man, and woman. The relationship of tribe, or family must not be too near. If the ṛishis, at the head of the two gótras, are different the marriage may take place ; but if, as may happen, the ṛishis at the head of both are the same, then the pair may not marry.

On noon day bathing, and sitting on grass, and at evening time also. Mode of evening fire-offering.

Sraddha or mournful matters ; what may and may not be eaten on those occasions. Fire offering to remove any accidental uncleanness : leaf 1—45.

The book is long, of medium thickness, without boards, somewhat injured.

20. No. 255. Two books.

1.) Asláyana kárica—slócas.

Dherma sastra áchára cándam.

—Stalica páca, a kind of domestic fire-offering—its mode prescribed.

The shódasa carma, or sixteen propitious ceremonies up to marriage ; often before particularized.

—Srávana carma (or ávani avuttam in Tamil) the ceremony on an annual change of the scholastic thread.

The preceding are púrva, or primary.

The apara carma, or subsequent duties, are mournful in kind.

—Púrvana sraddha, yearly commemoration of death of ancestors.

—Hasti sanjayanam, down to the end of funereal ceremonies, i. e. sapinda carma.

This kárica, or brief compendium, contains four adhyáyas, and so far complete.

Appended—mangaláshtacam, an octave of benedictions, on auspicious occasions.

2.) Zántis, precative chants.

—If a male and female crow are seen.

—If white ants (termites) appear in a house.

—If a child be born on an amávási, or a little before the new moon.

—If a child be born in múla aslésha or jyest'hya, lunar asterisms ; that is, the moon being in them at the time of birth.

—If a child be born at the time of an eclipse.

—To prevent sickliness of constitution.

—újya avéshana, a mode of zánti soon after birth : a vessel of butter oil is provided ; the child's image is thence reflected, the father must look on the image only, and afterwards the butter oil is given to a Brahman.

Added—sraddha Brahmana nyéma lacshana, or careful selection of a Brahman suitable to prepare the sraddha, and to eat the food then given.

Mode of sraddha for a Sanniyasi or strict ascetic : leaf 1—78.

The book is long, of medium thickness, old, and damaged.

21. No. 257. Vignaneśvaram.

The vivahára cándam complete.

The prayaschita cándam incomplete.

The vivahára section, civil jurisprudence.

—On division of property—mother's share, or mother's property, how divided—a daughter's share, the stri dánam—on division of ancestral property—difference of portions among children, as maintained by some authorities, by others an equal division is enjoined. (There exists an English translation of the preceding matter).

Definition of vivahara or legal control.

—Quality of a mantri as adviser to a king.

—Modes of examining in legal cases.

—Examination of plaintiff, and defendant ; and of examining witnesses.

—On securities, on proportioning fines to the means of the parties.

—On written bonds, or securities.

—On disputes as to boundaries.

On thefts, as the stealing cows, sheep, &c.

The Prayaschita candam.

Mode of penalties or punishments to expiate various faults, or crimes.

Penalty for theft of jewels—for drinking ardent spirits—for some faults as applicable to women, and children—for theft of gold ; for adultery—for breach of a strict ascetic's vow—for the sale of a child—for leaving off the custom of reading the védas :

Leaf 1—24 and 1—213.

The book is long, very thick, has only one board, is much worm eaten, and some leaves are broken, parts only remaining.

21½. No. 270. Vignánésvara dipica, the múlam Sanscrit, the comment Telugu.

By Basavópádhayya súri.

The Vivahára cándam, 8 prakaranas.

A description, or definition of jurisprudence.

Definition of a bond, or engagement, to do any thing stipulated.

On pledges, or deposits of valuables to receive something valuable.

Characteristics of an evil person.

On hidden treasure found on land, if after the selling the land, to whom the treasue belongs, seller, or buyer.

If treasure is recovered after having been stoled by a thief, what is to be done with it—how apportioned.

On debts, and their payment.

On bail—securities—what kind of person can be accepted as bail.

On the subject of witnesses.

Daya vibhága—division of property: what property can, and what cannot be divided. The case of a father giving his daughter to another man in marriage, the father having no son, and saying to the husband—whatever is born of my daughter is my son, as well as yours—the proceeding as to division of property in the case of such a child; this is Dviyamushayayana. Twelve kinds of sons described.

The case of a játi prasht'hana, or one fallen from caste; his property goes to others: stri dhanavibhaga on the division of the property of women.

Ten kinds of marriage defined Brahma, dâiva &c.

If any one sells another's property without the owner's consent, the mode of proceeding. Punishment for stealing goods and chattels, taken forcibly from a house; great severity allowed: specimens only of multifarious matter—see other notices: leaf 1—90.

The book is long, of medium thickness, without boards, slightly injured.

22. No. 288. Tulā purusha padadhi, a chapter from the code by 'Atreya or Hémādri—slócas with prose and véda extracts, complete

On good, and evil days—veti páta evil, some days are defective in the proper number of lunar digits; on such a day nothing important should be done.

The Yugádi beginning of an age; upa rága or grahana, eclipse; sancránti passage of sun from one sign to another, chaturdasi fourteenth lunar day, and ashtami first and last quarters; the full and new moons—these are all bad times, and any great affair—such for example, as a king giving his own weight in gold—ought not then to be done. The mála másam is when two new moons happen in one solar month. Important matters should not then be transacted.

But with such exceptions, and selecting good lunar days—then any one may go and do homage to Ganésa in a temple, or on the bank of a river—or may perform the consecrating water for lustrations, or may perform fire offerings, or may make the tulà nirmánam weighing self against gold for a gift to Brahmans; and other matters.

The book seems designed to adjust the time for this said great gift, with precision : leaf 1—44.

The book is of medium size, without boards, recent.

23. No. 314. Vignānēsvaram, or Yágnaválcya dherma sastra vivrāti, a paraphrase on the code of Yágnaválcya.

The three divisions ácharam, vivahára, prayaschita cándams are nearly complete : the last one only defective.

1.) The áchára cándam—the ceremonies from pregnancy up to taking the vow of a celibate Brahman student—also on cleansing after evacuations ; on closing the nostrils in homage—on the morning, noon and evening homage—details on marriage—discrimination as to duties—what food may be eaten, what not—also on sraddhas.

2.) The vivahára cándam, for details see preceding notices, and especially β. A. b. No. 1141, Vol. I.

3.) Prayaschita cándam—the Náráyana bali, a mode of sacrifice as an expiation—various modes of uncleanness expiated—who may perform a prayaschita—on the expiation of venial faults—on other faults—as drinking ardent spirits—adultery—murder, and associates in such crimes—punishments for principals, and associates, or accessories ; this part, as above stated, is not complete : leaf 1—359.

24. No. 317. Four pieces.

1.) Vignánésvaram—the prayaschita candam—incomplete : it seems as though it would joint on to the end of No. 314 ; and so render that complete.

—The punishment of adultery with a chandála woman—punishment for killing any woman, and especially a Brahmani—and for cutting open any fruit, and unintentionally killing any worm therein (perhaps enigmatical, fruit for womb) and for cutting down any poisonous shrub, or any other shrub, or tree. A punishment, if a Sanniyasi in any wise fail of fulfilling his vow. The various modes of marriage defined ; from Gandharba upwards ; penalties lie against one or two of them. Various other punishments, or penalties for various faults, or crimes : leaf 1—58.

2.) Asâucha nirnayam—slócas with prose.

By Bhattoji dicshada.

—The uncleanness caused by abortion, of how many days continuance—if in the midst of one uncleanness another supervene the mode of proceeding; in the case of death by drowning, or other violent deaths, the uncleanness thereby caused to relatives, and mode of proceeding. If any one die before assuming the scholastic thread, the period of uncleannèss to relatives—mode of proceeding as to the funerals. If during the ceremony of putting on the thread an uncleanness occur, it must not impede the completion. On the natural death of father, and mother in one day—the mode of proceeding: if any woman die when under removal, an expiatory ceremony. In such a case pollution does not attach to a silver pot, or vessel with the woman, but it must be at once removed. If two or three sráddhas happen on one day, what is needful to be done.

3.) Dhatta mimámsa—law of adoption—enquiry as to an adopted son—the portion that comes to one adopted, or daya bhága. If a child be adopted before the navel string is cut the bond is much closer than otherwise; and then if the child's own father and mother die, the uncleanness occasioned to the child is slight.

On uncleanness, by reason of menstruation—kind and duration.

At what time the assuming the scholastic thread, and marriage may not take place—not when the mother is fully pregnant—or in her menses—nor in the same year with that of a father's death. Mode of performing the ceremony of assuming the scholastic thread. What things the husband of a pregnant woman may not do.

A pregnant woman may not cook food for her household.

Description of the mála másam or when two new moons, or two full moons occur, in one solar month.

Mode of sráddhas in such a month. Discrimination as to an eclipse; what may then, or may not then be done. Rules concerning many kinds of gifts.

4.) Parásara kṛita dherma sastram, the code by Parásara—slócas.

Definition of law in the four yugas. Rules, or laws as to observances by the four colors, Brahma, Cshetriya, Vâisya, Sudra. On sacerdotal observances by Brahmans and others: leaf 1—76.

The book is long, somewhat thick, recent.

25. No. 318. Seven brief codes.

1.) Vyása smṛiti slócas, complete, law ascribed to Vyása.

2.) Atreya smṛiti, slócas complete, ascribed to Atreya, elsewhere Hémádri.

3.) Sádátapa smṛiti slócas, complete. By Sádátapa ṛishi.

4.) Párásara smṛiti slócas, complete. By Párásara.

5.) Sandilya smṛiti slócas, complete. By Sandilya.

6.) Hárîtaca smṛiti slócas, complete. By Hárîtaca.

7.) Menu smṛiti slócas, complete. By Menu through Bhrigu ṛishi.

The subject is similar in all these tracts; to wit, the duties of a ceremonial kind from the early morning to the evening; as they ought to be observed by all Vâishnavas. There is a general agreement, with some difference, as to the exact kind, or extent of observance; on which account the seven different authorities are brought together for comparison of agreement, or difference.

The duties of the four colors, Brahma, Cshétriya, Vâisya and Sudras; and of the four ázramas orders, Brahmáchári, Grahasta, Vanaprast'ha, and Sanniyasi; some of the authorities are full, others brief: leaf 1—174.

The book is long, thin, with a brass pin, recent.

26. No. 319. Wrong title on the label.

The book relates to dherma sastra—áchára cándam—in measured prose.

At what time three of the colors ought to put on the scholastic thread; the Brahman at 8 years, the Cshetriya at 11 years, and the Vâisya at 12 years of age. Duties of the Vanaprast'ha or hermit. Modes of marriage. Duties of the Grahasta or householder, and duties of the Brahman, Cshetriyá, Vaisya, Sudra. Periods of ceremonial uncleanness in each case, on death of relatives.

What things may be eaten, what are forbidden: Surà bánam or drinking spirits and theft, are forbidden.

Crime of adultery, in a disciple, with the wife of his preceptor. Description of various crimes—punishments to be awarded. Expiations for various sins, and the fruit of such faults, or the diseases which they cause. (It seems to be a settled rule, that every disease is the punishment of some sin, in this life, or a former one): leaf 1—24.

The book is long, and thin, without boards, injured.

27. No. 372. Two subjects.

1.) Abinava shad ziti nirnaya; áchára cándam of dherma sastra.

Ceremonial uncleanness defined; and specification of cases wherein their occurrence must not impede progress. For example—if a person is performing a sacrifice, and a relative die, the sacrifice must be concluded, without any hindrance. In like manner if a marriage ceremony is in progress, and a relative die, the marriage must not be thereby hindered; incomplete.

2.) Viváha canya varana niyama, definition of affinities within which marriage is not allowed; and on what principles, as to gótra, tribe, kula, family, &c. the selection must proceed:

Leaf 1—13 complete.

The book is of medium length, thin, without boards, in tolerable order.

28. No. 450. Sect. 1. Gâutama dherma.

By Gáutama, 16 sutras complete.

The book relates to Brahmans only. A prayaschita expiatory punishment, if, through ignorance, in the darkness of the night improper familiarity be held with a near relative, and the mistake is afterwards discovered.

A similar punishment if by mistake, or ignorance, any one eat of a sudra's rice.

Like punishment, if familiar intercourse of a social kind, be held with Mlechch'has, or foreigners.

An expiatory punishment if any one steal gold, silver, or any other article of value: 9 leaves only.

For sect. 2. see XXXII.

29. No. 585. Three pieces.

1.) Trimsa sloki vyakyánam—30 slócas with a comment, or paraphrase, complete.

On ceremonial uncleannesses. That occasioned by birth of a child to the father, and mother of the woman in parturition; and to other relatives; how many days of separation, in each case.

In any case of death occurring, how many days of separation to relatives, and when they may bathe, and return to their family, or other duties.

2.) Dherma sástra, slócas.

Discrimination of various kinds of crimes. How to be enquired into by means of witnesses—their character and value—rules of evidence; if the crime be proved, the nature of the punishment, in each case, to be awarded: 1—18 leaves, incomplete.

3.) Dherma sástra, slócas, incomplete.

Rules as to lighting the funereal fire; if a husband die without a son, the wife, that is widow, must light the fire—various other cases provided for; the point being, that the individual, lighting the pyre, becomes entitled to the deceased's property: a primary point in Hindu law: leaf 1—3, in all 21.

XIV. Lexicographical.

1. No. 586. Dvi rúpa cósham.

By Srî Harisha—slócas, complete.

A collection of words which are spelt in two or more different manners, by various authors; which yet are one and the same, as to meaning; as Hanuman or Hanúman. In some words there are three, four, or five variations though two, as the more common, is specified in the title. (The cause may be difference of age, as the spelling of Ennius is not that of Virgil. The spelling of Chaucer not that of Pope; the spelling of Froissart not that of Voltaire).

The book is of medium size, thin, without boards, much injured by insects.

2. No. 613. Amara cosha, slócas.

The three cándams complete, and without lacune. Apparently a complete copy has been but recently made, from other copies in the collection, rarely complete.

The champu Rámáyanam, ascribed to Bhoja raja is appended; possibly as an exemplar of words—prose and verse.

By Lacshmana cavi.

The bála to the sundara cándam; wanting the yuddha cándam. The story of the Rámáyana adapted to court minstrelsy: leaf 1—118.

The book is of medium size, and looks new.

3. No. 638. Bhatti cávyam, slócas.

By Bhatti cávi, 2 sargas, with a tîca, or verbal glossary, by himself.

The birth and nurture of Rama, and his marriage with Sita, to his meeting with Jamadagni or Párasu Ráma. The main object, it appears, is not the story; but to exemplify the greatest possible number of Sanscrit roots, in memorial verses. The Sanscrit is said to contain four thousand roots, and many of them are contained in this fragment of 14 leaves.

The book is somewhat long, without boards, slightly injured.

4. No. 756. Dasa Nigandu slócas.

There are ten kinds of lexicons, or dictionaries in Sanscrit—a specimen from each one of these is given in this book: 27 leaves, incomplete.

45. No. 1010. Amaram—slócas.

Part of the 1st cándam, the sverga, vyóma and dic, vergas are complete, the kála verga incomplete: leaf 1—12.

The book is long, without boards, recent.

XV. Logical.

1. No. 809. Four pieces.

1) Gauri kándiyam, on logic.

10 leaves—prose, incomplete.

A discrimination of some of the padart'has, and on the principle of there being only seven.

2.) Dhî diti—logic, prose, incomplete.

By Tarkhica sirómani, 4 leaves, a list of sixteen padart'has, the names only without amplification; 4 leaves left blank.

3.) Bhavē nandiyam, logic, prose.

By Bhavánanda bhágîsa, complete.

Two pracásams, that is, the pratyacsha and anumati.

This book maintains seven padart'has, under pratyacsha, it is asserted that manassu mind, and átma soul, are two distinct existences.

The manassu is an existence without perception, or consciousness, a sort of vital air; but by junction with átma all sensation, or perception, with knowledge thence resulting exists. In sleep the two are disjoined, so that there is no right perception, or knowledge as to the external world. The object is to prove the existence of atma, denied by some disputers. [It would seem that manassu, is tied to the body, a sentient soul ; átma is that which passes from body to body : a distinction of the kind existed anciently among various nations, as animus and anima ; pneuma and pysche ; nismát and nephesh.] 40 leaves.

The book is long, of medium thickness, very old ; it includes a few smaller leaves.

For Sect. 4.) see XI.

2. No. 816. Tarkha sangraham.

By Annan bhatta vidván, prose complete.

Four khandas—pratyacsha—anumana—upamána and sabda. There are seven padart'has, these are discriminated and described : knowledge of them is mócsham, liberation (from ignorance ?) leaf 1—6.

The book is somewhat long, without boards.

3. No. 817. Bhavánandiyam—a comment on the sirómani, on logic.

By Bhavánandam siddhánta vágîsa.

In four pracasams, incomplete.

The pratyacsha, anumati, upamána, and vyapti, this last defective.

Definition of the seven padart'has. Then follows átma vicháram, an enquiry as to the jivátma, human soul, and paramátma, divine soul. This discussion proceeds on the advâita principle of their being one.

Chacraverti lacshanam, properties of a universal ruler over mankind.

Mitra lacshanam, qualities of a friend—how he should conduct himself —vyapti, on the omnipresence of Isvara : 74 leaves, not numbered.

The book is of medium size, old, slightly injured by insects.

4. No. 819. Gajádhara tarkham, prose, incomplete. It contains seven vátas or disputations.

1. Anumati váta, doubtful, is there a god (Isvara) or is there not ?
2. Vyapti v : On omnipresence.
3. Upa samhara v : against atheism and materialism ; confuting the charvacas.

4. Upádhi v : objections against deity considered,
5. Pracshata váta·
6. Linga karumata v :
7. Kévala vyati réchi v :

} These were not examined.

The last vátam is defective, the leaves broken.

The book is of medium size, old, with thin bamboo boards, injured by termites and wear.

5. No. 838. Mat'hura nát'hîyam.

By Mat'hura nát'ha, prose incomplete.

Four rahasyas, mysteries (for sections) ; 1, pratyacsha ; 2, anumidhi ; 3, upamidhi ; 4, sabda, this last defective.

On dravya, and the other seven padart'has: discrimination and properties. Enquiry as to átma, Isvara, carma, indriya, on the Nyaya school.

The book is of medium size, very old, extremely damaged by worms, and breaking.

6. No. 839. Muktà vali, logic.

By Visvánát'ha bhatta—prose, complete.

Four khandas—1, pratyacsha ; 2, anumánam ; 3, upamánam ; 4, sabda ; divided amongst seven padart'has, from dravya to abháva ; each padart'ha defined and described. Some faults as to a correct definition pointed out : such as including in a definition what is applicable to more than one person, or thing : leaf 1—36.

The book is long, thin, old, without boards, injured by worms and wear.

7. No. 840. Siddhanta manjeri.

By Jánaki nát'ha sarma—prose.

In three parich'hedas, incomplete, on pratyacsha, anumána, upamána, the last one defective, and sabda wanting.

It maintains seven padart'has, and condemns the older system of sixteen.

Leaf 1—22. The book is of medium length, thin, without boards, injured by worms.

8. No. 841. Mukta vali, logic.

The pratyacsha section only, and this defective ; dravya, one of the padart'has, subdivided into nine, from bhúmi to manassu : leaf 1—21.

Four leaves are appended, chátu slócas 96—166 distichs on various subjects, moral, or ornate.

The book is long, thin, without boards, slightly injured.

9. No. 842. Chintámani, logic.

1st leaf wanting—prose, incomplete.

The subject is an enquiry as to the padart'has; nature and properties; seven, not more: leaf 2—71.

The book is of medium size, injured by insects.

10. No. 844. Gadà dhari, logic.

By Gada dhara bhatta, prose, incomplete.

It contains only the anumána khanda. The chief contents are a discrimination between the jivátma, or human soul, and the paramátma, or divine soul; with an enquiry whether there is any paramátma; the affirmative sustained. Profuse illustrations are given by váta, objection, and prati váta, reply: leaf 1—40.

The book is long, of medium thickness, without boards, old, and injured, very neat handwriting.

11. No. 845. Gáuri kántiyam "perfume of Parvati" logic, prose,

Two vátams—the pramánya vátam and the prameya vátam.

The first is a discussion on the need of a standard or rule of judgment, of authority on controverted topics; and maintaining, against opposers, that the veda is such a pramánam or rule.

The other is a discussion concerning certain theological, or mythological facts; as for example the ten avatáras of Vishnu—objected to, as denied by some; maintained against them to be true; and in this vátam there are various illustrations: leaf 1—32.

The book is long, thin, without boards, the 1st leaf broken, the others slightly touched by insects.

12. No. 846. Annambháttiyam, logic.

By Annam bhatta—a tica to another book.

Four khandas—or pratyaesha, anumána, upamána; sabda. This book condemns the old system of 16 padart'has, and admits only seven. The seven are defined and described, to understand them is mukti, liberation.

—7 leaves, avvyápti, is a dósham, or fault, consisting in a definition of one thing, or subject, which contains in part what may be predicated of something else; according to this view a correct definition is that which applies to the subject in hand alone, and to nothing foreign thereto.

—adhi vyápti—if a definition is intended to be applicable to a class, or genus, and any one part of it does not apply to some individual, or species, then this fault of incorrect definition is adhivyapti: leaf 1—40.

The book is of medium size, without boards, and slightly injured by insects.

13. No. 847. Chandrica, logic.

By Mucunda, a comment on the Tarkha sangraha, two sections.

1, pratyacsha; 2, anumánam. On the seven padart'has from dravya to abhávam, and on buddhi, mind, sense; whether átma, or soul, exists or not—from the nyána vátam.

The book is long, and thin, without boards, worm eaten.

14. No. 848. Tarkha sárum—epitome, prose, incomplete.

The pramána and praméya vatams, vide supra. Their qualities; with proofs as to the distinct existence of Deity, and the human soul. The nature of the soul—on the indriyas or internal faculties; srotriya faculty of hearing, faculty of seeing; manassu, mind, is added as a 6th indriya. Subdivisions of the dravya padart'ha from bhúmi to kálam, as classes of beings, or things. The discussion throughout has reference to opposite systems: leaf 1—8 and 1—38 = 46.

The book is of medium length, slightly injured by insects.

15. No. 855. Vynopatti váta art'ha.

There are sixty-four vátams, or discussions, which relate to the Tarkham, or Nyaya school of philosophy.

This vátam is one of them.

By Hari Ráma, prose, incomplete.

On four kinds of karma, or kriya here meaning—motion; that is upwards, downwards—projection straight-forward—curving orbicular.

—dravya—guna—karma—three of the padart'has. Enquiry as to átma buddhi—manassu—the union of the three forms gnánam, knowledge or wisdom.

Enquiry as to meaning of special words in the Védas. as, Isvara, and enquiry as to a pramánam, or authoritative rule.

Dherma and Dhermi are used technically, the first means any concrete substance; the second its quality as to value: leaf 1—81.

16. No. 865. Prabhā, a comment on the dipicà, itself a comment on some logical work, by Appa Bhatta.

Four khandas—pratyacsha, anumanám, upamánam, sabda.

Seven padart'has maintained—defined, described.

The reason for a comment upon a comment is stated to be, that in the dipica v: infra 18, some passages were left obscure, or insufficiently explained; to remedy which defect this book was written: leaf 1—43, two khandas, and again 1—40, two other khandas.

The book is long, of medium thickness, on narrow leaves, no boards, much injured at the beginning.

17. No. 866. Sect. 1. Sirómani.

By Sirómani bhattáchárya—prose.

This is a fragment of a work, on which there is a comment; not here.

It is a disquisition on Isvara (or Para Brahm) as the universal soul.

Sect. 2. Chintámani, on logic.

The pratyacsha khandam, incomplete. Seven padart'has, distributed among the khandas; only a part here: leaf 1—24.

The book is of medium length, thin, old, damaged by breaking.

18. No. 876. Dîpiki, a comment on the Tarkha sangraham, no author's name.

One khandam, the anumána, and this not complete. Discussion as to a doubt on the unity of Deity with the human soul, defective.

The book is long, thin, without boards, worm eaten.

19. No. 879. Sect. 1. Mukta vali.

1 parich'héda, prose, incomplete.

The pratyacsha khandam.

The padart'ha termed dravya has nine subdivisions: some of them are described by their qualities: leaf 1—8.

For Sect. 2. see XXV.

20. No. 880. Sect. 1. Extracts from various books on logic; giving specimens of the púrva pacsham or objection, and siddhantam or reply—28 leaves in the grant'ha letter.

Sect. 2. Tarkham, a fragment—on some of the padart'has 24 injured leaves.

Sect. 3. Sacti vátam, discussion as to whether there be a negative (or feminine) cause of creation: 13 leaves.

For Sect. 4. see XXV.

21. No. 888. Tarka sastram, logic.

In 4 prakarnas, incomplete, prose.

The padart'has, without being particular as to their number are divided into causal and consequent; káranam a cause, káryam the effect. To these is added nimitta káranam, a cause occasioned, or produced by some other external power; not voluntary causation,—sámiya nirupanam: the foregoing distinctions are illustrated by descriptive examples; and managed by way of objection end answer: leaf 1—87, 7 blank.

The book is long, thick, without boards, damaged.

22. No. 889. Chatur dasa lacshani, "fourteen properties"—it seems to be a comment on the Gada dhari by Gada dhara bhatta, but has only a portion of it, on the anumati khandam; the seven padart'has described, as to properties; and the "fourteen" in the title appears to relate to properties distributed among the seven padart'has.

Concerning dóshas or faults, 1; avvyápti; 2, adhivyapti; 3, asambhavam—their properties: see other notices (as 12. No. 846) leaf 1—58 complete as far as this chatur dasa lacshana is concerned; but only part of a larger book.

This one is long, of medium thickness, on broad talipat leaves, neat handwriting, a little worm eaten.

23. No. 980. Mat'hura nát'hiyam.

The sabda khandam, or chapter on testimony, the last of the four principal divisions. This book is in Bengáli characters; and beyond the general indication as to subject, the contents could not be fully examined: 244 leaves not injured, see 5. No. 838.

24. No. 1005. Tarkha sangraha, a tica to that book: prose, incomplete.

A part of the pratyacsha khandam on four padart'has—bhúmi—jalam—tejas—vayu or earth, water, light, wind: 8 leaves.

The book is of medium length, without boards, much injured.

25. No. 1007. For Section 1 see X.

Sect. 2. Tarkha sastram, prose.

The sabda khandam—incomplete, from the chapter on testimony, the pramánam discussion as to the Védas being an authoritative evidence in proof; and another on the nature of Iswara, or the Divine being.

The book, as a whole, is long, of medium thickness, without boards: this second section is on narrow leaves, very much worm eaten.

XVI. Magical.

1. No. 1. Mantra pustacam; a book of spells, or charms.

—Samára Bhâirava m: to kill enemies.

—Aditya hrïudayam, given by Agastya to Ráma. who thereby destroyed Rávana.

—Nárayana verma, and Nárayana mantra from the Bhágavatam, to obtain desirables; as the state of mind may be.

—Sudarisana stóttra mantra, like object.

—Bhagavata uttara gita, four chapters on renouncing desire, and practice of asceticism.

—Vishnu sahasranáma bhásyam a comment on the 1008 names of Vishnu.

—Gayatri cavacham—invoking the Gayatri to give aid, or defence.

—Chintámani mantram, to gain learning.

—Lacshmi Ganapati mantra, to gain wealth.

—Bála Tripura sundari mantra.

—Suddha sacti málà mantra, these three are on the sacti system, for desirables.

—Suddha siva mâlà mantra, a string of spells founded on one original.

—Srî chacra nyasa krama, this is of the sacti kind. The word chacra here designates a particular figure, used as the vehicle of the spell. Several books follow with the title of upanishadas———as,

Scandópanishada	These exalt and
Nàràyana up :	praise the names of
Amṛita bindhu up :	persons, or things
Sactiga up :	intimated by the
Kálágni rudra up :	titles; the language
Káivalya up :	is obscure ; and it is
Garbha up :	not certain that they
Brimha up :	are all of them genu-

Sandhya vandana vidhi, mode of homage at morning, noon, and evening with the use of spells.

Gayatri hrudayam, heart of the gayatri; and many other mantras, with the yentras or diagrams of various shapes in which they are inscribed. The malignancy of intention being excepted, they imply senility : leaf 17—41 and 50—212 and 98—103, and from 128 to 191 deficient.

The book is long and thin, very much damaged.

2. Nos. 2, 42, 27. Three books in one.

The contents are as follows :

—Ravaniyam, a book of spells ; in this, and others, slócas, mantra-letters, and prose are intermingled. The contents of this portion are of evil intent.

Hiranya dévi súcta mantram, directed to Lacshmi to gain her over to aid in any design, and to Sarasvati for a fluent, voluble tongue.

—Srî suctam—a hymn from the Vedas, directed to Lacshmi, to gain wealth.

—Karta viryarjuna múla mantra and cavacham : an original spell with invocation for aid, intended to be used in any time of fear, or danger.

—Poncha vactra Hanumán, mantra a spell to the five-faced Hanumán : said to be to discover hidden treasure.

—Padma málini mantram, relates to Lacshmi to gain her over, as the giver of wealth.

—Bhù suctra mantram to Lacshmi for wealth, and eloquence.

—Sani stóttra and mantram, praise and spell directed to the planet Saturn; to remove pain, or disease of body, of which it is supposed to be the cause.

Bhairava mantras—there are eight Bhâiravas, as Srishti, samhára, acása, &c. and the spells to these are of various import, malignant, sexual, deadly.

—Tripura Sundari lalita mantra. These, as well as many of the Bhâirava mantras, are of the sacti kind or female energy system, homage paid to dea natura through a feminine symbol, and with rites obscene; to gain wealth, or any other desired object.

Sudarisana japa stánam, mode of putting writing into a diagram of the discus of Vishnu, and using the same as a charm; as stated, to secure triumph in any dispute.

—Curma chacra lacshana, a figure in form of a tortoise, to strengthen the effect of any foregoing charm.

—Siddhávi chacram, if this succeed, the person using it will have no enemies: leaf 1—42, 13, 14 blank, 23 to 38 also blank.

—Dattátreya mantram, and terpanam, pouring out water.

—Rudra ashstóttra sata náma, a string of 108 names, to bring over the destroyer, and to conquer enemies.

—Garuda bhâirunda Narasinha mantra, eight kinds of charm, designated tiger-face, boar-face, kite-face &c., to evoke Náráyana, and to go to war without fear.

—Sitála déva yentra to propitiate a goddess.

—Lacshmi múla mantra, an original spell to the goddess of wealth.

—Agni púja mantra, a spell in fire-worship, said to be to purify the mind.

The above mantras have their appropriate yentras or diagrams, of various forms; and there are several others in addition to those enumerated: leaf 1—87 and 104—227.

3. No. 5. Book of spells, very various.

—Mode of fixing the five rudras, portions of Siva the destroyer, mode of bringing them over by the union of spell, fire-offering, homage, muttered prayer, and pouring water over the symbol.

—Triyambaca calpam, benefit of a ceremony to Siva, a spell with the mode of repeating it.

—Mode of forming a pit for the fire-offering, used in all spells, for procuring desirables ; and among them, the destruction of enemies ; the foregoing taken from a book entitled Vasishta samhita, 15 padalams or sections.

—Sudarisana calpam, including the diagram, the meditation, muttered prayer, &c., how to write the spell, how to use it, 9—12 adhyáyas the 13th defective. The object, or benefit various, as may be the mind of the votary in such practices.

—Triyambaca mantram, a spell addressed to Siva.

—Gópála Krishna Shadacshari, a six-lettered spell to Krishna ; said to be for offspring.

—Ardhra pattésvara mantra, from the kalica ágama, 10th to 15th padalams to destroy enemies.

—Pratyangira yentra calpam.

36 modes of diagrams, with spell, prayer, fire-offering, with construction of fire-pit, and mode of practising these rites ; the result being to cripple any one ; to reduce to a sitting posture, unable to move any limb.

—Pisáchi karana literally " devil's work" to infatuate any one, to make him quasi a devil.

—Andikarana to make any one blind, with mode of puja, &c

—Nárávana cavacham or verma, appeal to Nárávana for protection, and safety.

—Namaca mantra from the veda on Siva—the meaning given in Telugu. A mode of praise, or of homage to Siva.

—Vana durga maha vidyà a spell to bind the guardians of the eight quarters of the heavens, and then securing the desired object.

—Málà mantra, a string of spells, founded on the Vana durga mantra.

—Srî chacrodhara, this chacra is of feminine signification, in the sacti púja : the object to gain wealth, &c.

—Lalita sahasranáma, and Lalita cavacham, 1008 names of a Siva-sacti ; and an invocation for aid ; wholly on the female energy system.

—Bálà Tripura sundari mantra and cavacham, spell and invocation for aid ; addressed to young Parvati, on the above system, and not admitting of decent description.

The book contains many other mantras with their diagrams, directed to various male, or female deities ; it would be tedious, and useless to specify all of them : leaf 1—233 and 260—280, some leaves are blank in the midst, and at the end.

The book is long, very thick, recent.

4. No. 6. Book of spells.

1.) Sapta sati, slócas and mantras; chandrica navacshari mantra, a spell of nine letters.

Déri cavachum,

The book is of medium length, thin, without boards, recent, leaf 1—30.

18. No. 53. Four pieces.

1.) Dúrga málà mantra, a string of spells from one original to Dúrga and taken from the book entitled Acása Bhairava tatva which is a large work on the female energy system, or symbolical worship of a woman: prose is mingled with the various spells: 12 padulas complete as to this particular portion.

Dúrga—Kápála—Bháirava—Chulini, Dakin, are among the names of various beings, real, or supposed, that are herein specified; with the mode of gaining them over, or subjugating them, for the various purposes of the magician, or devotee performing these dark rites. The bijacshara or special syllabic letter of each one stated. Words without meaning, as krám—krîm &c. &c. are used, and the motions of fingers, and hands proper to these rites are also stated: with hóma vidhi or mode of fire-offering, for the purpose of binding the eight guardians of the octave points in the heavens: also the dhyánam or intensitive meditation, on the whole process, supposed to add power. There are some slócas; remark is superfluous.

2.) Mâri mantra, some prose.

This is a local goddess of small pox, the bijacshara and spell; used it is said to drive away goblins, or evil spirits; this worship has been noticed in villages, at times when the small pox prevailed.

3.) Uchchista Ganapati yentra vidhána vidhi, slócas, incomplete.

Mode of drawing various squares, circles and other figures for one kind of the female energy worship: but without the letters; which are inscribed when the spell is complete.

4.) Bada bálula Ráudra, a so named spell to Hanumàn: with prose, and complete. A mode of calling on Hanumàn; asking if he will come? an answer received, he will come; a using anjanam, or eye-salve, to see treasures buried under the earth.

[There are European pretences to this clairvoyance; and, in some books, magic rites with calling on Orion, or young Orion, &c. to come and to answer questions; the mind must be sunk very low that yields to such things]: leaf 1—32.

The book is short, of medium thickness, without boards, tolerable order.

19. No. 57. Mantra pustacam, diagrams with prose, and spells.

—Pratyangira múla mantra, and other spells, for the fire-offerings: these are of the female energy class.

2.) Váisac'ha mata mahatmyam.

By Suta, from the Scanda puránam:

Legendary account of the month from the middle of May to the middle of June. In it bathing, benefactions : as gift of common fans, of beds, of sandal wood, of fans of cusa grass, and umbrellas ; by such gifts there is special merit.

If water be not given in that month to way-faring people the defect is a crime. On an image of Vishnu—his glory—prostrate bodily homage due. The achettu or 3rd lunar day in that month, and the 12th lunar day are special—suitable for bathing with mantras or prayer, and feeding Brahmans, which are works of merit These are illustrated by many legendary tales from itihasas, or narratives of yore. In 24 adhyáyas or chapters complete : leaf 1—10 and 1—88.

8. No. 239. Sancalpas, records.

It is customary on bathing in sacred rivers of repute as the Godavery, Krishna, Cavéry &c., to make a record of the transaction in Sanscrit lines as to year, ayana, month, day, hour, at which the ceremony for the removal of sin occurred—a general form is here given.

Another custom is to record the gift of a cow to a Brahman just before death, in order to remove sin, and procure an easy dismissal—form for general use given : both are in prose, leaf 1—5 blank 7 leaves.

The book is long, without boards, recent.

2.) Yoga sastram, slócas, mantras, complete.

On tapas, or ascetic penance; the dovotee occupied in profound meditation, closes the apertures of the five senses—six are here mentioned, but this includes the percipient faculty, or brain. Mode in which an ascetic is seated in meditation. Yáma prána yáyáma scása or modes of raising up the breathing, and depressing it, and the like "bodily exercise"—narrated to Sam krṭi rishi by Dattátreya.

3.) Kulárnava rahasyam—"mystery of the caste-sea" 1—11 ulásas, the 12th incomplete.

This book, when entire, is a compendium of the homage, and opinions of the káulas, who consider themselves to be the only kula or family, worth any notice. The rites, homage, spells are all intended to be secret; the feminine symbol is worshipped as an emblem of the power of NATURE, or spontaniety; as it appears to pass by, in silence, any active energy, and to give an inherent power of production, and reproduction to the material universe. The spells are for wealth, or pleasure; and many of them very malignant: occasion will occur to be more full on this topic. Their modes of homage, and meditation; and views of the excellency of their own tribe are herein given.

4.) Dacshana murti púja mantras, incomplete.

Mode of homage to the Saiva genius of learning, as used in temples, by Saivas and Smártas. Sometimes this name veils the female energy system: leaf 1—125.

The book is a little more than medium size, very slightly injured by insects.

8. No. 232. Eight pieces.

1.) Shadasiti—86 slócas.

Discrimination of ceremonial uncleanness, occasioned by the birth of a child—by the death of a father, or other relative—how long the period in each case, and what is to be done. There is a tica in Sanscrit prose.

2.) 'Asáusa nirnayam.

Bhattóji dicshada, author of the Siddhanta câumudi, a grammar.

Cases of abortion, and of uncleanness thence resulting—the like as occasioned by the death of any relative in the houshold—the like occasioned by following a dead body to the burning ground—if within ten days of the death of a father, the mother also die, then what is to be done, is prescribed.

3.) Yeti samscara vidhi—mode of burying a Sanniyási, with salt on the body, and the use of mantras: it is customary to break the skull with a cocoanut.

4.) Aná vrishti zánti prayóga in case of want of rain, Brahmans, under orders of some secular superior, go and stand in the bed of a river; they look at the sun; and perform certain ceremonies, with offerings to bring rain, and to remove the evil, or offence considered to have occasioned the drought.

[I heard of a case of this kind occurring several years ago at Madura: the river Váigái being the scene of operation].

5.) Játaca bháva, a few slócas only.

On horoscopes—the good or evil results from certain times. From the ascendant the yógam or good, or karanam evil, time is calculated.

6.) A few verses on sacerdotal law.

7.) Atura Sánniyási vidhi—mode of speedily making any dying person a Sanniyási. Attached is the Nárayana báli prayógam used on the funeral of a Sanniyási; the ceremony is in the temple or monastery, the 12th day after death: it is the closing ceremony, and ends with feeding Brahmans.

8.) Durmarana prayaschita, an expiatory ceremony with offerings in case of any evil, or violent death: slócas on the dasa dána—a cow, land, oilseeds, gold, butter-oil, clothes, corn, molasses, silver, salt: leaf 1—20, and 17 others, in all 37.

The book is long, without boards, slightly damaged.

9.) No. 244. Itihása samuchayam.

1—20th adhyáyam, incomplete, slócas: part of another copy, put first in order, has 1—3 adhyáyam.

After the great war Yuddhisťhira being grieved at the death of relatives, Vyása and many other ṛishis came; and, by many narratives, condoled with, and comforted him. Many of the tatva principles are detailed. Legends of Senajit—Gáutami—Mudgala, and many others. On the great value of gifts. On seeking an assylum near some one, as a master, a king, the deity. On holy lands, sacred rivers—hallowed mountains—these are discriminated. On the sins which tend to Naraca—and the virtues that conduct to Sverga: on good conduct and how discriminated. Legends of Nahu- sha —and Prahláda —duties of a householder —value of gifts ; of a cow—land food : and other matters. The smaller copy leaves 111—124 : the larger one, leaves 111—169, both apparently detached from some other books.

This book, as a whole, is of medium size, slightly damaged.

10. No. 271. Six pieces.

1.) 'Atura Sanniyási vidhi, the mode of making a dying person a Sanniyási, if a father so made a Sanniyási, die, the mode of sráddha how performed. The following Náráyana báli, supra 8. Some extracts from the védas, and a few other slócas : leaf 1—9.

2.) The mode, and ritual of adoption, with the fire offerings, 2 leaves.

3.) Datta mimamsa, on adoption.

When a boy being of one gótra is adopted by one of another gótra (tribe), some ṛishis, or other authorities, have stated that the child of such an adopted son returns to his father's tribe : this author, on the contrary, asserts that the child passes into the tribe of the person adopting. There are other questions about the sacred thread, and marriage, with reference to intricacies occasioned by adoption. The slócas have a tica : leaf 1—44. See No. 2,450.

4.) 'Atura Sanniyási vidhi, and yeti samascara vidhi : ut supra : leaf 226 to 228, 230.

5.) Vara Lacshmi vrata calpam, homage to wealth bestowing Lacshmi ; on a Friday, the day before the full moon, when in sravana.

6.) Jyotisham, astrology, slócas and a few other matters 10 leaves.

The book is long, of medium thickness, much injured by termites.

11. No. 275. Three principal subjects.

1.) Rituals ; mode of sowing grains on festival occasions—expiation if the household sacrificial fire go out—fire-offering in srávana month—punah santánam a kind of fire-offering, to supply any omissions—the household fire of a newly married pair—a fire-offering on the 1st lunar day—ceremony on pregnancy being ascertained. Nandi sráddha this is an offering to ancestors, before beginning any propitious ceremony ; the materials of the offering are given to Brahmans to ensure prosperity. Ceremony on the 5th or 6th month of pregnancy : some vratas as raja vatya—sâumya, vaisva-déva &c., leaf 10—27.

2.) Sundries 7 leaves without any number.

—Yajur véda mode of chanting it, as to inflexious of voice, and barytones.

—Visha gadicà, on things not right, or fitting to be done, at night.

—Kuhu zanti, when the complement after the 14th tithi to the conjunction occupies a day and night (not usual) that term is called kuhu, if a child be born in that time a zanti to remove the apprehended evil.

3.) Bhódáyana káricas, 400 of them.

By Bhódayana ṛishi.

These karicas are brief aphorisms, on various matters, relating to sacerdotal law. As, a prayaschita if the vessel for holding sacrificial fire be broken, a prayaschita, if the sacred fire go out during the first six days after marriage (it is a rule to look very carefully to it, during those six days). On feeding and clothing Brahmácháris, or celibate students. Ceremony when a son puts on the scholastic thread. Various modes of fire-offerings, and other rituals. How to act if any ceremonial pollution occur during a marriage ceremony. The ceremony 6th to 8th months after pregnancy, and other details : leaf 1—21.

The book is long, of medium thickness, without boards, old, and somewhat damaged.

12. No. 418. Four principal subjects, relative to law—poetry, grammar—logic.

1.) Manu smṛiti, selection of 170 slócas, for special occasions. On secular law—and decisions of kings—on witnesses, false and true ; punishment for adultery, and theft : 9 leaves.

2.) Vásuvadhatta, slócas and prose incomplete. Chintámani a raja and Vasuvadhatta a female—description of their beauty. Bravery of Chintámani. After marriage they were separated ; love pains described. Chintámani called on Macaranta a friend, and they both went together to a forest, or wild of the Vindhya mountains. There are various *slésha*s, or double meanings throughout this fragment : 6 leaves.

3.) Vṛitta mani cósham ; jewel casket of prosody, slócas, complete 1—6 vishcambhas.

On the eight ganas or classes of letters, of great importance in poetry—on long and short betters, as to quantity—mode of arranging the ganas to form a slóca ; if not right the metre will be faulty. Different kinds of composite verse described. On the dandacam or lengthened chant, its properties : 5 leaves.

4.) Mutà vali, logic, prose, incomplete.

On the pratyacsha section only. Discussion as to the need of a recommendatory preface to an author's book ; known as mangala vátam.

Seven padart'has—dravya, and some others of them, defined : 21 leaves, and 31 blank leaves.

The whole book is long, of medium thickness, very much worm eaten.

13. No. 421. Three fragments.

1.) Gîta bhásyam, mulam, and tica, the comment by Ráma chandra ánanda Sarasvati, it is limited to stating the grammatical meaning of the words.

2.) Horoscope of one Cuvéra svami ; only one leaf.

3.) Praise of Gáuri, or Parvati, 2 leaves only.

The principal piece 1) wants the 5th and 8th adhyáyas, out of 18.

Leaf 1—45, 54, 65 and 71—136.

The book is long, medium in thickness, a little injured by termites.

14. No. 423. Three pieces.

1.) Subódhini a comment on the Bhagavat gîta—has the múlam also ;

By Srîdhara. 1—18 adhyáyas original, and paraphrase complete ; only that leaves are broken.

The comment is limited to the grammatical meaning ; without intruding on the dogmas of this metaphysical, and most mischievous poem : 86 leaves.

2.) Vishnu sahsranáma bhasyam. By Sancarácharya—only the tica.

1—10 satacas incomplete. This is a labored attempt so to twist the 1,008 names of Vishnu, as to make them designate Siva. The author's dogma was that Brahmà, Vishnu, and Siva mean one, and the same being : 59 leaves.

3.) Ráma mánassu puja vidhi, said to be from the 35th adhyáya of the Agastya samhita. The mode of mental homage to Ráma : 6 leaves, in all 151.

The book is of medium length, somewhat thick, old, injured so as to vitiate the coherency of meaning.

15. No. 427. Four tracts.

1.) Vishnu sahasranama vyakhyanam.

The original, and comment ; the latter by Sancara bhagavat pátácharya.

The 1,008 names of Vishnu simply expounded, not twisted ; incomplete : leaves 1—44 and 75—93, the end 45—74 wanting.

2.) Smṛiti vácyam. Extracts from law books, on the prayaschit, that is penalty, amercement, or penance imposed with reference to various kinds of illicit sexual intercourse : 14 leaves.

3.) Nárâyana ashstóttra satam, slócas, said to be from the Brahmánda puránam Varáha Svámi to Bhúmi dévi. Panegyric of Vishnu by 108 names—if read, benefit will result : 3 leaves.

4.) Pancha anga Rudrábisheca vidhi—symbol of Siva of five different materials, and mode of bathing them in homage : incomplete.

The book is long, of medium thickness. without boards, much injured.

16. No. 446. Various matters.

1.) Govinda stuti, slócas, praise of Krishna, ascribed to Sancaráchárya, complete.

An ascetical turn is given to Krishna's adventures ; and therefore in union with Sancara's habit of twisting. So Sir W. Jones would pass off the Gita Govinda for a religious poem !

2.) Nárayana varma, the varma, or cavacham is an invocation for protection.

3.) Ráma púrva uttara tápani ; it belongs to the at'harvana rahasya—the first and latter part of "Ráma's splendor " It has mantras —yentras—japa, in a word, magicals ; covered by the name of Ráma ; but relating to a secret system—complete.

4.) Purusha súcta bhásyam—a comment on a part of the Véda relating to Vishnu by Sayanáchárya ; complete.

5.) Surya cavacham, said to be from the Scanda puránam, an invocation to the sun, for health, or cure.

6.) Kálagni rudra upanishada, a supplement to the Veda, concerning Siva.

7.) Brimha upanishada, the like, on Para Brahm.

8.) Kaivalya upanishada, the like ; see former notices.

9.) Sudarisana upanishada, referring to the discus of Vishnu, on the branding the Váishnava marks, on the bodies of votaries (such as practised at Tripeti)—probably spurious, as an upanishada.

10.) Náreda upanishada ; said to relate to puting the urdhva mark on the forehead of Vaishnavas, with the benefit ; probably spurious.

11.) Garbha upanishada, details as to conception, the formation of the fœtus, and its growth in the womb : not medical, but vedaic.

12.) Varáha upanishada.
Varáha to Sanatcumára (spurious ?)

On the manner of putting on the urdhva, or forehead mark.

13.) Gayatri cavacham, the gayatri, used as an invocation for aid.

14.) Gópála purvottara tápani ; mantras, yentras, in the name of Krishna ; the older part ; the fruit ishta siddhi, for desirables ; magical.

15.) Lacshmi stuti, praise of Lacshmi, said to be from the 1st amsa 9th adhyáyam of the Vishnu puránam.

16.) Véda páta stavam, said to be concerning Ráma.

17.) Cshamaca bhasyam, paraphrase on a much used passage from the védas.

18.) Ráma and Hanumán yentras with Ráma chacra; diagrams for spells, and the latter a mode of divination, whether any matter will succeed or not: leaf 62, 63 and 1, 2, 4—68 and 65—84, other five without any number.

The book is of medium length, somewhat thick, a little damaged.

17. No. 456. Five pieces.

1.) Amba stava or stóttra; 12 slócas.

By Sancaráchárya; praise of Parvati; incomplete on 7 leaves.

2.) Góvinda ashtaca, 8 slócas.

By Sancaráchárya; praise of Krishna 2 leaves.

3.) Antar labhi bháva 7 slócas.

These are distichs purposely made very obscure, as enigmas: 2 leaves.

The nominative case, verb and object are requisite to complete perspicuousness. One or other of these is purposely omitted; and renders the sense difficult. The bháva is still more obscure. By one or two significant words, something else meant is indicated. A brief legend to explain, may not be unacceptable.

Krishna put something privately into a small box, locking the box, and taking the key. On one side of the box he wrote the word Siva, and on the other side Hanumán; these two words are bháva. He sent the box to one of his wives. She asked—what is in it? the same question is put to be solved.

The solution is thus—women wear on their heads two jewels called Chandra and Surya (moon and sun). Siva bears Ganga and Chandra on his head—therefore the box contains the chandra jewel.

Hanumán when born, seeing the sun lately risen, mistook it for a fruit on a tree, and leaped to get it, till repelled by Indra, therefore the word Hanumán indicates that the box also contains the surya jewel.

[The Hindu intellect is adapted to such things, being quick and shallow; but wanting the higher, and weightier faculties].

4.) Kaivalya art'ha avabódham.

Brahma to 'Asvalayana, prose, incomplete. Explaining the meaning of beatification. Form of the universe—how produced. Brahma tatva surúpam, or Brahma's real form. In order to attain to Brahma the soul must acquire gnana tatva surúpam, or real mystical knowledge: 25 leaves.

5.) Sanandi lacshana—slócas, properties of an ascetic—mode of bodily exercise, as a devotee ; 7 leaves, incomplete : in all 45 leaves.

The book is long, and thin, without boards, damaged.

18. No. 527. Five tracts.

1.) Bhagavat gita, the original only, without comment, complete. 1—18 adhyáyam.

2.) Gîta sáram, slócas, complete, the essence of the gîta—the especial mystic meaning ; an epitome of the Bhagavat gîta.

3.) Adváita bódham—slócas.

By Sancarácháryа—incomplete : mode of ascetic services, for the perception of the soul ; which is one with Para Brahm ; see 19 No. 528—5).

4.) Siva gita—slócas.

Siva to Rághava (or Ráma).

1—12 adhyáya the 13th defective.

On devotedness to Siva—on ascetic zeal, in renouncing home, and family, the commencement of discipleship. The excellence of the vibhúti, or cow-dung ashes, and merit of bearing it. Ráma rubbed ashes on his body. Siva shewed to Ráma his visva rúpa or universal form.

Description of the faculties, and qualities of the human body ; as the seat of passion &c. On the tatva system.

Some details concerning the nature of proceedings in Câilasa, the paradise of Siva.

5.) Yóga siddhántam, slócas, incomplete : description of the many modes of ascetical observations by a yógi ; such as stopping the breath ; sitting in a particular way ; and the like : leaf 1—46.

The book is somewhat long, of medium thickness, without boards, recent.

19. No. 528. Five pieces.

1.) Uttara gita—slócas, incomplete.

Different modes of performing tapas, or penance. Description of the Brahmándam or universe, under the metaphor of matters contained in a fruit. Description of the soul. Faculties of the body. What faculties of the body produce the bad dispositions káma, cródha, lóba &c. Delivered by Krishna to Arjuna—that is an extract from the Bhagavat Gita 3 adhyayas.

2.) Anu smriti—slocas, complete. 100 slócas from the 48th adhyáyam of some book. Various praise of Vishnu.

3.) Bhishma stava rájyam slócas incomplete. In the Bháratam Bhishma is said to have invoked Krishna before his death. This piece is royal praise of Krishna by Bhishma.

4.) Yóga dharavali, slócas, incomplete. A description of various modes of performing penance.

5.) Advaita bódham, slócas.

By Sancaráchárya 1—3 adhyayam, incomplete. On the smárta system ; but introduced by other matter.

On the performance of homage to a god : while so engaged the mode of yógi asceticism, by stopping the breath, breathing through one nostril &c., a description of the átma darsanam, or perception of the soul ; where the soul is situated. Said to be seen by means of the yógi exercise ; when it is seen that is god; not different from God. Hence abhéda, advaita, undivided, non-dual :. leaves 1—25. The book is somewhat long, thin, without boards.

20. No. 533. Nine tracts.

1.) Sandya vandanam bhásyam.

By Vidyáranya (a title of Sancaráchárya).

The morning, noon, and evening homage ; with the mode as to taking up water with the hands, stopping the nostrils, and repeating the mantras; which have their meaning explained.

2.) Panditaraya satacam, slócas, complete : anyupadésa, indirect instruction.

Panditaraya was a poet near a king of some influence, whom he wished to instruct without offence ; and therefore professedly addressed other persons, or things—as " O bee ! thou hast sipped the honey of the parijata flower of Paradise, canst thou now settle, and draw honey from any inferior flower ? A native version of this is "O king" ! having tasted of thy bounty, can I now go ask aid from any inferior ? But it evidently has a further meaning ; elsewhere noted.

3.) Cháttu slócas—various distichs, such are some times loose ; but these are of a moral kind ; as—

'For a good man to deceive a good and simple minded man, is that skill ?'

'To kill any one whose head reposes on thy thigh (in confidence) is that courage ?'

4.) Dacshina samuc'ha Dacshina murti stava vyakyánam. Praise of the Saiva genius of learning, facing the south—this is by Sancaráchárya. The comment on it herein contained is by Svayam pracása yógi Indra in prose, complete. This subject is to panegyrise the genius of learning; and, at the sametime, to insinuate the advaita system. [Ganésa and Dacshana múrti by Saivas ; by Vaishnavas Hayagriva].

Brimha Garuda upanishada mantra, spell to remove sorrow.

Mani karnica stava.

Praise of a river somewhere in the north.

The book is of medium size, on narrow leaves, injured.

24. No. 660. Seven pieces.

1.) Vásuvadhattà, original.

By Subhanda cavi, prose and poetry.

The work is considered to be a trial of poetical skill, owing to the many sléshas, or equivocal words used.

Chintámani was a king, and Vasuvadhatta a female—a description of their persons, and accomplishments—their mutual attachment before marriage ; the prowess of Chintamani : he and his friend Macaranta go to a wilderness to reside—description of love pains—of the rising of the moon, of the sun, of the stars. In the end Vásuvadhatta came to that wilderness, and a Gandharba marriage followed : leaf 1—34, complete as to this tale.

10.) Sivābisheġa mantras a formule on pouring water over the Sâiva symbol.

11.) Puja mantras, prayer used in Saiva homage.

12.) Nila kant'ha stava, praise of the blue throated, that is Siva.

13.) Lingáshtacam C. praise of the nátha-linga Brahma.

14.) Krishnashtacam C. an octave, Saiva in kind.

15.) Mahadéváshtacam C. an octave in praise of Siva.

16.) Siváshstóttra sata námavali, praise of Siva by a string of 108 names.

17.) Kála Bhairava ashtacam C. an octave in praise of a dog-headed form (hieroglyphic) of Siva.

18.) Rudra cavacham, aid invoked from Siva.

The whole book is of medium size, damaged by insects.

26. No. 695. Cháttu slócas 170, distinct distichs. They are various; but reducible to ethical—erotic—enigmatical.

1.) Nîti as—one who does not know how to speak should be silent—one ought not to do service to a person void of honor, who cannot be trusted; one should attend on the great and honorable; what is the use of waiting on persons of no worldly consequence: sententious matter; like proverbs to be quoted when speaking.

2.) Srıngára, the bála, mugda, práuda, classes of women; their dispositions, and morals. A description of the persons of the two sexes.

3.) Enigmas, a mode of replying by one word or syllabic letter to many enquiries; involving the antar lábi, or inward meaning and bahar lábi or outward meaning.

In some questions, one syllable contained in it points to the answer—as in what place is beauty? the syllable pu in that question points to the answer, as it means body. To whom did Ráma shew his prowess—the syllable csha points to the reply—racshasa; and so on; sphinx-like riddles.

The book is of medium length, thin, without boards, recent.

27. No. 740. Four pieces.

1.) Siva karnamrıtam, slócas 300.

By Bharadwája muni.

3 satacams, complete. In the first one, the glory of Siva described; in the 2nd the beauty of his body—in the 3rd his amours with Parvati described.

1. 103—130 on the model of the Krishna karnamrıtam.

2.) Sri saila sancalpa, prose, complete; description of a Saiva temple in Telingana; on the extent of the hill—its excellency; the same as to the temple—and the form of Art'hanésvari worshipped there, l. 140—148.

3.) Gîta sáram—slócas 78, complete.

It appears to contain an epitome of such parts of the Bhagavat gita as relate to the description of a yogi, and the mystic portion of that ignis fatuus.

4.) Agastya ashtacam, an octave of slócas ascribed to Agastya, a sectarial device. Agastya is made to consider Siva as the one supreme, and to utter matter in his praise: 3) 4) leaf 190—195.

The book is of medium length, thin, without boards, recent.

28. No. 754. Prastábha slócas.

Nothing consecutive—detached distichs, conveying some sort of sentiment; such as,

"A work on science is poison to one who is unlearned. To a dyspeptic patient food is poison. There are three things on which the entry may be pleasant, but the getting out always painful; these are an employ, the womb, and debt. There are two ways by which a disciple may get learning from his teacher; these are are either a doing cheerful personal service, or a giving much money. If friendship be made with a great man poverty will depart, but if with a poor one what is the benefit?"

And so on; leaves 44. The book is short.

29. No. 761. For Section 1 see 7.

Sect. 2. Some matter in prose from the áchára cándam of Dherma sástram; on sacerdotal law.

Sect. 3. Some benedictory slócas.

Sect. 4. Panegyrics Saiva in kind, these on 10 leaves, 17 in all.

The book is short, on narrow leaves, without boards.

30. No. 764. Bartrï hari, 300 slócas.

The satacas complete without comment 1) nîti, 2) sringára, 3) vairágya, the usual order. Each centum has decades, the subjects to please various, and even opposite tastes. See foregoing notices, as No. 634 &c. leaf 1—88, long, without boards, recent.

31. No. 765. Five pieces.

1.) Suryáshstóttra sata náma, prose.

2.) Mulhana stavam, 37 slócas, complete.

By Mulhana cavi. Various kinds of praise, directed to Siva: leaf 48—52.

3.) Siva púja vidhi, slócas, and prose.

Mode of homage to Siva—on wearing the symbol, on what parts of the body it may, and on what parts it may not, be worn : leaf 241—254.

4.) Urdhva punra lacshanam, slócas, incomplete. On placing the náma or Vâishnava forehead mark. Mode of doing so, and connected matters : 62—64.

5.) Syamala dandacam, measured prose, complete. Description of the Sacti ; her glory, panegyric : female energy system : leaf 40—45.

32. No. 852. Eight tracts, grammatical, and lexicographical.

1.) Pariyáya sabda retnam, slócas.

By Dhananjaya bhatta, complete.

3 sargams, synonymes, or words of like meaning, or nearly equal meaning.

2.) Sabda linga art'ha chandrica, slócas in three cándams, complete.

By Sujana, on the genders of nouns.

3.) Drishtanda siddhantam, prose, a vyakyánam or paraphrase on the foregoing work of Sujana, by his grandson Vidvat kalóla bhattáchárya, also in 3 cándams, complete.

4.) Saratvyakyánam, another comment on the above comment; enlarging it for the sake of greater perspicuity, by Vidvat chacora bhatta, grandson of Vidvat kalóba bhatta, a philological tree to the 5th generation.

5.) Sarasvati vilásam, prose, slócas.

By Sarid vallabha misra, in three adhyáyas, complete ; a lexicon of words of two letters only, with their meaning.

6.) Vishamrita pánditya rasáyanam.

By Triyambaca misra, complete words of dvi rupa or two letters, with the meanings of such words.

7.) Amara kandanam, a critique on the Amara cosha, as being an alleged defective work : slócas, and prose.

8.) Visva médini nighantu, slócas.

8.) Cávya lacshanam, slócas 17 leaves; rules for dramatic writing.

9.) Prauda pracásica, a tica to the Prabódha chandródaya, 20 leaves, and 4 blank; the comment is only on the 1st anca.

10.) Cávya retnam, múlam, and tica, the original by Chitambara, the comment by Ananda Nárayana, 3 sargas. Distichs so contrived as to be capable of three interpretations, conveying the meaning of the Bháratam, Rámayanam, and Bhágavatam; and not by a selection of special circumstances, but of the whole; only much abridged. This is almost incredible; but the varied meaning of Sanscrit words, renders it possible, leaf 1—57, grant'ha letter.

11.) Raghu vamsam, múlam the 1st sarga only, complete. An account of king Dilípa, and of his reign.

12.) Sabda alancára yamucu, a rhyming dictionary of ornamental words: relative to the art of poetry, 21 leaves.

4.) Mahimna stottra, 37 slocas, complete.

By Mahimna cavi; praise of Siva, and his glory; Siva has no superior.

5.) Hara gana mála, Canarese.

Praise, and homage to the ganas, or classes of celestials in Siva's paradise, incomplete.

6.) Rávana satacam, 11 slocas, incomplete, on the power, and might of Siva; as if from Rávana.

7.) Aparádha sundara stottra, slocas.

By Sancaráchárya—incomplete.

as—"forgive the faults I have hitherto committed, and henceforward preserve me" &c.

8.) Jangama st'hala mahatmyam, slocas, incomplete; Vira Sâiva in kind.

The Jangama st'hala, is a superior state, or station: praise of those who attain to it.

9.) Pancha pracása gadyam, long chant, concerning Basava, and declaring his glory.

10.) Namascára gadya, prose, complete, Sâiva homage, either when looking to the eight points of the heaven, or in the presence of an image.

11.) Mahésvara páta mahatmyam, slocas, incomplete, glory of Siva's foot.

12.) Cshétra pála Bhâirava ashtacam, an octave, addressed to Bhairava protector of the body: but Cshétra is equivocal—it is sacti in kind.

13.) Linga ashtacam, an octave, complete; the soul is addressed, correcting it; and stating that the Sâiva symbol must be worshipped, not any other god.

14.) Siva sancara ashtaca, defective; praise—each distich ends with "O! Siva, the destroyer."

One leaf is thrown in on Guru mahatmyam, praise of a teacher by a disciple: leaf 1—4 and 9—19 and 42—105.

The book is of medium size, old, on the label is a list of subjects contained.

40. No. 1011. Five pieces.

1.) Siva linga ashtacam, 8 slocas, panegyric; to each sloca four feet completed by the reiteration of "Siva linga."

2.) Rághuváshstottra, an octave.

Praise of Ráma, and his brother; each word made applicable to both; and each sloca, ends with Ráma, Lacshmà.

3.) Bharata, sloca form. Panegyric of Krishna from events in the Bháratam.

The hostile meeting of armies under Duryódhana, and the Pándavas. Mention of chiefs slain in battle, as glorifying Krishna. Distribution of troops after the battles. The succour given to the Pándavas, by Krishna, turned to his praise.

4.) Bháirava ashtacam, an octave.

Praise of Bhairava, protector of the body; glory and power described, with a Yamuca, an alliteration at the beginning of any foot in a caesura; as yana—yana—yana; pana—pana—pana &c.

5.) Sarasvati stottra, slocas.

The tongue personified as a female; then praised as the goddess of eloquence; and asked to rest on the tongue of the writer or reciter; as if by words inspired: leaf 12—54.

The book is of medium length, thin, without boards.

41. No. 1014. Six tracts.

1.) Sráddha vidhi, slócas, incomplete.

Mode of conducting funereal rites.

2.) Mála másа nirnayam, slócas, incomplete.

Discrimination as to months within which two ámávásis occur. Marriage, and other propitious ceremonies must not take place therein; an exception as to pumsa vana in the 6th and simantam in the 8th month of pregnancy: these cannot be deferred till another month. Other absolutely necessary matters may be done.

3.) Tarpana vidhi, slócas, complete.

Offerings to ancestors, usually by pouring out water from the hands; sometimes rice or sesame seed. It is an observance on the ámávási, as an anniversary of the death of father, or mother.

4.) Kailasésa stottra, slócas, with prose, incomplete. Praise, and homage directed to Siva, as dwelling on Cáilasa.

5.) Mahimna stottra 11 slocas.

By Mahimna cavi, praise of Siva, as having no superior.

6.) Nava rátra púja sancalpam, prose and mantra form. Record as to completing the observances of the nine days festival to Durga the Amazon ; as far as to cleansing the place, and putting pots of water ; the rest wanting : leaf 1—15.

The book is somewhat long, thin, without boards.

XXI. Music, and Dancing.

1. No. 757. Bharata sástram, slocas and prose, incomplete.

—lasyam a mode of carriage, or movement, by women ; a man beating the cymbals.

—nrittam, a night dance, with cymbals.

—nartanam, in streets by day, a man only.

—padakâi—tripadakai, and many others ; modes of using the hands, and fingers in dancing, to express various meanings.

—tálam, or cymbals for keeping time, ádi tálam, éca tálam, sama tálam, different modes, or measures, as to time.

—parvâi (Tamil) modes of looking with the eyes as spuritam, lalitam &c., many technical terms applied to signs by the eyes, to express passion, or other meaning.

—áróhanam and avaróhanam, on rising and falling notes in singing, and also forte and piano.

The book is of medium length, thin, without boards slightly injured.

XXII. Panegyrical.

1. No. 165. Sudarisana stottra, 100 slocas, complete, with a tica.

By Kúra Náráyana.

The author had lapsed into some grievous sin, which oppressed his conscience ; when the god Ranghanayaca at Srirangham, appeared to him in a dream, and told him that if he praised the chacra, or discus, his sin would be absolved. On awaking he set about composing distichs, and completed the centum : describing the chacram, and stating its excellence, &c., &c. in the usual way. It is in a metre called yamuca, two long syllables as jválà málà prevailing, with special alliteration : leaf 1—80.

The book is of medium size, slightly damaged.

1½. No. 503. Savantarya lahari, a chant.

By Sancarácháryа, múlam with tíca, both defective: the tíca is only to the 41st slóca.

A description of the person of Parvati from her face down to her feet, with praise. She is the mother of the whole world; the sacti or female energy, or negative quality of the universe. [Though the author inclined to this system, he did not hold it exclusively; and his philosophy differs from his poetry].

The book is of medium length, thin, without boards.

2, No. 637. Kṛishna bhúshanam.

By Narasinha, slócas, two sargas.

Praise of Kṛishna as a prabhu or prince; his disposition—it was good—the character of his ancestors. Kṛishna's good conduct—his liberality—his learning—and like matters; with general panegyric. This it appears is not the demigod; but of one, named after him, a merchant, who could afford to pay the panegyrist.

The book is short, thin, without boards, recent.

3. No. 654. Surya satacam, the original in slócas (100) by Mayura cavi; the tíca by Gopi nát'ha.

In the comment the words are taken in the order of construction, and not as they occur; the meaning of each word is given, and then a connected prose rendering of the entire distich.

Description of the car of the sun—its seven horses—Aruna the charioteer—the mandalam, or rays around the sun—glory of the sun in general, and praise, not in homage, but poetical—like the poet Thomson;

"Around thy beaming car high seen."

"The seasons dance" &c.

39 leaves.

The book is long, of medium thickness, bamboo boards, somewhat old, and damaged.

4. No. 738. Bála manórama, a tíca, or comment on a book entitled Mani manjeri, by Ananta sayi, the 1st and 2nd sargas. Introductory on the glory of Nárayana, as lord of the universe, and then a transition to Ráma as if an incarnation of Nárayana. Because Ráma killed Tádaca—Maricha-karan—Dúshana Váli; and in the end Rávana—all of them being evil persons, therefore his glory is extolled leaf 1—18.

The book is long, thin, without boards.

5. No. 745. Siva kesava sámya bhanya satacam, slócas 52, or the purva art'ha (first half) only.

The author describes the glory of both Siva and Vishnu (Késava); and then, without deciding, says "whichever is greater of the two, him I worship."

Leaf 146—151.

The book is short, thin, on narrow leaves, without boards.

6. No. 746. Cási gita, slócas, with prose, by Nárâyana tirrt'ha sishya.

1—5 prakaranas, complete.

Glory of Cási (or Benares) as a place.

Visva nát'ha and sóma nat'ha, forms of Siva at that place. Praise of their glory. Anna púrna and Lalita ambà are names of sactis; their glory also praised: Mani karnica, a river bank (of the Ganges) its glory. On the táraca montra, its excellence: leaf 1—15.

The book is long, thin, without boards, very slightly injured.

7. No. 752. Satgura stóttram.

By Pálakùr sóma cavi: 100 chants complete, of the kind of verse termed rágali.

Basava is a satguru (or good teacher) his glory—description—the name designates the vehicle of Siva, and also a head of the Jangamas—the latter presumed to be meant—praise, each line ending with satguru: leaf 20—28.

The book is of medium length, thin, without boards.

8. No. 1009. Guru pat'hi, slócas, and prose, complete. Panegyrics of some gurus and yetis, and áluvár; such as Ramanúja yeti; Alavantár áluvár; Kúrataluvar; Nam áluvár; Parásara Bhatta; Parakála yeti; and other ascetics. Also gurus, as Palalocáchárya, Anantáchárya Tirumálácharya, Loca nát'hächárya, and other teachers; their excellency: 7 leaves, and 6 other blank.

9. 1013 Two pieces.

1.) Visva nat'ha ashtacam, 8 slócas, complete.

The glory of Siva described, and praised.

2.) Satguru rágada, complete, a kind of prose chant. A disciple declaring the praise of his teacher. He is one who specially teaches the way to obtain beatification; he is the lord of spiritual instruction. To relinquish family cares is not sufficient, without the aid of such a teacher: 7 leaves, and 11 blank ones.

The book is of medium length, thin, without boards, slightly injured.

XXIII. Polemical.

1. No. 402. Sruta pracásica.

By Sudarisana suri prose form.

Only the 1st páta of the 1st adhyayam.

This book is on the visishta adváita system of Ramanuja. There is a difference between jíva the human soul and parama Isvara. Isvara has nitya gnánam, eternal knowledge, or wisdom; the human soul has anitya gnanam limited, or finite knowledge. An enquiry into the pralayas (deluges) from their birth, or origin.

The measures of the different worlds termed ánda; as Brahmánda is the universe.

By the union of karma sacrifice or rituals, and gnána knowledge, beatification is obtained. (The advâita system makes gnánam the alone cause).

That Isvara exists distinctly is a pramánam or rule. Isvara is Náráyana. This being is sachidánandam, or infinite in knowledge, and bliss.

Other matas or systems, such as the advâita, are condemned.

165 leaves. The book is long, thick, recent.

2. No. 414. Vedart'ha sangraha dîpica.

By Sudarisana suri, a glossary or comment on a work entitled Védárt'ha sangraha, or digest of the sense of the Véda. The subject is the praise of Vishnu, representing him as the supreme; and disallowing any equivocal use of the name as applicable to Siva. Vishnu, being Para-Brahm, is lord of the world. There is a difference between átma the human soul, and Param the heavenly one, or supreme. This point is proved, against the adrâitas, in some detail: 115 leaves.

3. No. 417. Two pieces.

1.) Vishnu sahasranámá bhásyam.

By Sancarácháryа.

The 1008 names of Vishnu are taken to pieces, and are endeavoured to be so turned as to mean Siva. It is asserted that Vishnu and Siva are not different. The comment is enforced by extracts from Védas, and smṛitis: 52 leaves.

2.) Govinda ashtaca tica.

By the same. A comment on an octave in praise of Krishna, so turned as to denote praise of Siva: 11 leaves.

(It must be confessed that such quibbling is unworthy of so learned a man as Sancaráchárya).

The book is of medium size, without boards, and somewhat damaged.

4. No. 422. Rámanúja bhásyam.

By Rámanúja. It has the slócas of the Bhagavat gita, with a tica or comment on them, giving to that work a visishta adwâita sense; opposed to the comment by Sancaráchárya.

When the gita is viewed in its connexion with the entire Bhâratam it is obvious that the author intended it as a splendid sophism to serve a particular purpose; but the fashion has been to treat it as a distinct work; and to make it a doctrinal authority. Ramanúja's view that the human soul is related to Deity, but not undividedly one with deity, is more rational than Sancaráchárya's bhâsyam. This book gives the verse from the Véda in proof of each marked point of Rámanúja's comment, which is a special feature.

The book is long and thick, recent, very slightly injured. In so far as such a controversy may be interesting, this book is valuable, and worth translation.

5. No. 424. Two connected subjects.

1.) Advâita mata nirupanam, slócas, with extracts from the védas. A defence of the adwâita scheme; and proving, from the védas, that the Divine and human soul, are not distinct, but one and the same. Budhavasti is the state of man to whom some things are unknown; muktavasti is the state of Deity to whom all things are known. The objection thence arising is sought to be obviated by attributing this ignorance of the human soul to its union with the body. When separated from the body, and reunited to Deity, then it becomes muktavasti and knows all things. [This seems to me a very clear admission of at least present distinction, and difference]. leaf 15—804 incomplete.

2.) Sancaráchárya vijaya, slócas and prose by Anantánanda giri or the "hill of endless joy." The beginning wanting; from 15 to 74 prakarana, or 60 sections.

Sancaráchârya with his disciples travelled about to many places. He disputed with Mádhavas, Vâishnavas, and Kápálicas, and others; confuting them by the sastras, and overcoming them in argument; and established the Sancara matam, the Sáura matam, and the maha Ganapati matam, making them illustrious. (The Madhavas were those adhering to ritual, and rejecting the Vedanta. The Kápálicas are described as a class that went about the streets with a skull in their hands, uttering mournful tones, acknowledging no védas. The Sancara matam is the adváitam, the Sâura matam worship of the sun, and the other matam though veiled is the female energy system ; to which Sancarácháryа is often stated to have had strong leaning : it is quite consistent with the advaita philosophy, though not consistent with his acknowledgment of Siva, or Para Brahm : error is usually self contradictory in some one point or other) :

65 leaves. 1) is short 2) long, book somewhat thick, with one board, and injured.

6. No. 429. Gîta bhásya vivéchanam.

The gîta bhasyam is a comment on the Bhagavat gîta by Sancarácháryа and the vivéchanam is a critique, or discrimination of falsehood or truth, by 'Ananda gnana, consequently against Sancarácháryа. There are 18 sections, prose, following the original, complete leaf 1—249.

The book is long, and very thick, has a copper pin, with brass head, and is recent.

7. No. 434. Upanishada vácya vivaram.

By Srî Rangha Rámanuja muni prose, incomplete. (It is not quite certain whether this is some one else than Sri Permattúr Ramanúja ; but if so, the system of both is the same). This work contains a detailed explanation of certain extracts from various upanishadas, or appendages to the Vedas in favor of the Vedanta system of Ramanúja, often termed bhásyam ; that is to say, a medium between the dwaita and advaita systems, and therefore termed visishta advaita, or almost non-dual. The system of Ramanúja is shewn to be consistent with Védas, and their supplements ; and it is then further amplified, and enforced. This book opposes the advaita notion of the non-reality of the visible world; maintains that it is real (realist versus nominalist). The advaitas say that Para Brahm is without qualities ; this author says—is without evil qualities, but has all benevolent or good qualities. [It is observable that both systems argue for a divine unity, and ignore the worship, and practices commonly known as idolatry].

On the label of this book the title is Vishaya vácya pradipica sésham :

Leaf 1—85 and 38 blank leaves : it nevertheless wants the beginning. It is of medium length, somewhat thick, quite recent. As a popular system it might merit translation.

8. No. 499. Tantra ádi adikara nirnayam, a discrimination as to the authority of various rituals.

By Bhattóji dicshada.

The systems into which this author looks are—the pásupatam, or pure Saiva;

—the páncha rátram, or idolatrous Vaishnava;

—the Yámilam, the Saiva sacti system;

—the Vámácharyam, a variation of the female energy system.

—the Sánc'hyam, or nástica, or atheism;

—the Bauddha, seemingly including the Jaina.

He condemns their ways, as to rites and ceremonies. The pásupáta dîcsha, or Saiva initiation is condemned.

There is a custom (as at Tripety) of branding the marks of the five weapons of Vishnu, on the body of votaries. This practice he denounces. And whereas some extracts are made from the védas to the effect that the above marks should be worn, he replies—yes, by gundas or children of adultery, or by golas, sons of widows after the death of their husbands; but not by Brahmans.

He condemns the mode of initiation into the páncha rátram: other modes are censured, but especially the páncha rátram, and stamps on the body.

He appears to have been one of the purer Vaishnavas; who, with great reason, reject the modern ritual of idolatry: leaf 1—25 complete: highly worthy of translation. The book is of medium length, thin, without boards, recent.

9. No. 505 and 506. Both Nos. on the label Brahmánándam, original slócas;

By Vidyáranya muni, a title by which Sancarácháryа was known —"forest of learning.". This work has the appearance of a labored system. The first four prakaranas appear to state the opponent system. The term is then changed to adhyayas, and these are on the advâita system.

1—4 prakaranas 5—9 adhyayas in all nine sections, or chapters.

Chapter 1. pancha bâudha prânam, on the five elements; each one a life.

Chapter 2. pâncha kósa vivéca prakarnam, on the five receptacles of the said five leaves. The same in effect as the body.

Chapter 3. Dwâita vivéca prakaranam a definition as to the human soul, what it is; and then of the divine soul, what that is.

Chapter 4. Mahà vâcya vivéca prakaranam, quotations herein are taken from the védas with a comment on them, on the supposition of a difference between the divine and human soul. So far possibly a statement of the position intended to be confuted.

Chapter 5. Brahmânda adhyâya an enquiry if there is or is not in the universe such a being as Para-Brahm perfect in bliss; settled that there is such a Being.

Chapter 6. 'Átmánánda adhyáyam. Is the human soul the same with that Para-Brahm, the enquiry stated.

Chapter 7. Advâitánánda adhyáyam.

The átma (human soul) and paramátma divine soul, are asserted to be one.

Capter 8, Advâitánanda adhyáyam. Enquiry whether Para-Brahm has hands, feet, and other members, as seen in images. The reply is that Para-Brahm is pure intellect, or wisdom. (In Dr. Owen's tract against Biddle the like controversy is discussed).

Chapter 9. Vishayánándam. On ascetical zeal in the service of Siva—on relinquishing evil dispositions—in these is the acquisition of like intellectual wisdom, and the attainment of oneness with the Deity.

[Thus in the advâitam, as also in the Vira Saiva, the Bauddhist and Jaina, systems, there is an agreement that man possesses within himself a power, if rightly exerted, to raise himself to the scale of Deity; the Christian system, in its highest features, approaches towards the result, but by very different means], leaf 79—138.

The book is long, of medium thickness, without boards, recent.

10. No. 507. Sancara vijayam.

By Ananda giri: slócas and prose, complete 1—74 prakaranas. The work has been termed sacala mata dushana, an abusing all systems.

It contains some biography of Sancarácháryа, with an account of his polemical exploits v: supra 5 No. 424—2).

Birth—nurture—study of sastras. On coming to mature age he travelled over the entire country, with some disciples. He disputed with votaries of various matas or sects; such as—árádha matam—bhakti matam—bhágavata matam—Váishnava matam—sacti matam—kápálica matam—Jaina matam—Manmata matam—Sunc'hya matam—and others. He conquered them by the sástras, and established the advaita matam.

The two first designate the Jangama system; the third probably means the followers of Krishna. As to the eighth it is said that some persons worship Manmata (Eros) as the chief god.

The book might merit translation, as a literary curiosity: leaf 1—108.

It is long, somewhat thick, recent.

XXIII. Pauranical.

1. No. 21. For other sections see XII.

Sect. 2. Dévi mahatmyam, slocas from the Márcandéya puránam 1—18 adhyáyas, so far complete. Márcandéya related to rishis the wars of Durja the Amazon, with the asuras, and the slaying of Madhu-keta, Dum-racshasa, Chanda-mandu, and many others.

The whole book is of medium size, and very thick.

2. No. 147. Dévi mahatmyam, from the Márcandéya puránam the 1st to 13th adhyáyam, complete, the 14th adhyáyam defective.

The wars of Dévi, or Durga, ut supra—eleven leaves are added, Siva cavacha stottra, Brahma to Náreda, from the scanda puránam: shorter leaves.

The book is short, of medium thickness, without boards, recent.

3. No. 201. Vishnu puránam, slócas.

1—7	amsa	complete.
1st	„	22	adhyáyas.
2nd	„	16	„
3rd	„	18	„
4th	„	24	„
5th	„	36	„
7th	„	—	„

On creation—the ten avatáras of Vishnu and a variety of other matter, bearing on the glory of Vishnu. Translated.

1—111 leaves, 19 blank ones at the end.

The book is long, of medium thickness, broad talipat leaves; stout boards, with wooden pin; small, and neat writing.

4. No. 208. Cási khanda vyakyánam, from the 14th to the 30th adhyáyam of a tîca on this portion of the scánda puránam.

On the splendor of Benares—preceded by details as to the planets—moon—Mercury—Venus—the Sun, &c. beginning and ending wanting: leaf 1—108.

The book is long, somewhat thick, without boards, much damaged by worms and termites.

5. No. 212. Two subjects.

1.) Brahmánda puránam slócas.

1—10 adhyáyas others wanting.

This portion contains the Srirangha mahatmyam, which it is unimportant to detach. The details relate to the Cávéri river; to various pools for bathing; and to the shrine of Ranghanát'ha. Fuller details appear elsewhere: this piece has 30 leaves.

2.) Scánda puránam, slócas.

1—13 adhyáyam—incomplete.

Legend as to Subrahmanya—on the benefit of fasting on the 11th lunar day, and on the benefit of watching on the special night of Siva. Chants in praise of Hara hari or Siva and Vishnu: 62 leaves, some injured.

The book is somewhat long, of medium thickness, narrow leaves without boards, leaves damaged.

6. No. 216. Sridhariyam, prose.

By Sridhara. A comment, in plain prose, on six amsas of the Vishnu purânam : the 1st has 22 adhyáyas the 2nd has 16, the 3rd has 18, the 4th has 24, the 5th has 36, the 6th has 8 adhyayas.

At the end are—áru ruchu, five slócas on the relinquishment of lust, fraud, lying by those who desire beatification ; and on the wisdom by which it is procured—namaca bhásya an explanation of a formule from the Vedas : leaf 1—160 and 2 and 38 blank=200.

The book is somewhat long, thick, slightly injured.

7. No. 217. Scánda puránam, slócas.

1—52 adhyáyas.

These contain various legends ; said to belong to that puránam.

The legend of the Sétu or isthmus at Ramiseram. On Ráma and his brother Lacshamana. On various tirt'has or pools, named Jadayi—agni—chacra—sanc'hu—yamuna.

Legend of the Ganga gaya river, and chira-kanda pool.

Legend of the Ráma nát'ha linga, or symbol said to have been fixed by Ráma. Account of bathing pools, rïshis &c., in all 202 leaves, 30 not numbered.

The book is long, thick, on narrow leaves, partially damaged.

8. No. 223. Vishnu puránam, slócas.

1—6 amsas, incomplete. The 1st has 22 sections, the 2nd 12, the 3rd 18 ; so far complete, the 4th 1—14 adhyáya not complete, the 5th 12—38 adhyáya incomplete, the 6th 1—8 adhyáyas complete.

The work having been translated into English, abstract is not required.

Leaf 1—135 and 162—230.

The book is long, and thick ; injured, on one side, by termites.

9. No. 227. Padma and Scánda puránam : from the Padma—the mágha mahatmyam.

On the merit of gifts, when given inside temples, in the months Vâisac'ha, Kartikeya and Mágha ; or when given on banks of rivers, or of water reservoirs, when bathing—the great benefit, thence arising, detailed—from the Scánda puránam—great merit of gifts in the Vâisac'ha month.

At the end Siva bhujangam, the praise of Siva, put into the form of a serpent, by Sancarácháryа.

The book is long, thick, old, much injured.

10. No. 231. Scánda puránam, slócas only : Suta samhita.

1.) Glory of Siva—he is supreme in the universe—it is a duty to obtain his approval ; discrimination as to kinds of Brahmans; their appropriate duties or employments—on the excellency of bathing pools in, or near temples, &c. so far 13 adhyáyas—it is called the Siva mahatmya khanda.

2.) Nyána yoga khandam—concerning the Brahmáchári—description of Para Brahm, his form or nature—his service—how to obtain his favor ; sarva pápa prayaschita, expiation for all kinds of sin—benefits resulting from various kinds of gifts—the chief one is to give instruction in learning (this is often quoted, and applied to charity schools) Déhótpati krama—on human life, from the formation of the fœtus in the womb. Ashtanga yóga a kind of bodily homage, with eight members ; connected with prayer and other ascetical matters : 20 adhyáyas.

3.) Mukti khandam—on the means, and mode of obtaining beatification, as serving a guru—praise of Siva, meditation thereon, various gifts &c., 9 adhyáyas.

4.) Vágnya vaibhava khandam.

47 adhyáyas—fame of sacrifices ; what can be eaten at them, what not. On moral retribution—the cause of lameness, blindness, consumption, and other defects or diseases ; here stated to be that in a former birth the sins of an antecedent birth (or life) were punished in part, but with a remainder of demerit, carried forward to the debit of the present life, and leaving open a state of probation for punyam to be rewarded, or pápam to be punished, in a succeeding one. (This is the oldest Hindu system ; coming down from the earliest time).

So far the púrva bhágam, or 1st part the uttara bhágam or second part.

Siva is the Paran or supreme. He must be served. He is designated in the Védas as their end, or object : 8 adhyáyas to both.

5.) Siva dherma sáram, termed an upa purána to the Scánda puránam.

By Nandikésvara.

Glory of Siva—of puja, of stóttras, &c., of which he is the object. Benefit of giving food to flowers of Siva. Value of the vibhúti, or cowdung ashes, of the rudracsha beads, &c., &c., 12 adhyáyas in this upa puránam : 24 leaves. The whole book, leaf 3—141, the 128th wanting.

The book is very long, thick, old, without boards, worm eaten.

11. No. 241. Scánda puránam.

The Brahmóttara khandam, slócas.

1—22 adhyáyas.

On Siva—his votaries—spells—penance ; homage, as directed to him —legends—devotedness—these with their fame, or excellency are narrated.

Or, more particularly—excellency of the five lettered spell—glory of homage to Siva at meritorious times—benefit of homage to Siva at the evening hour of dancing, on the 13th lunar day (at which time the védas must not be read, nor Vishnu worshipped)—Benefit of fasting, or penance on Mondays, especially in the kartikeya month—Siva cavacham, coat of mail, to protect the body of the votary—excellence of the cowdung ashes—value of the triple horizontal mark, on the forehead of the votary—Benefit of penance directed to Uma and Mahésvara—the excellence of the sacred beads. General eulogy on the Saiva system of homage : leaf 1—90.

The book is long, of medium thickness, without boards, a little damaged.

12. No. 251. Sect. 1. Brahmóttara khandam. 23—40 adhyáyas, probably a continuation of 11 No. 241 supra. The contents appear to harmonize very much with No. 241 but this seems occasioned by the legends relating to those common place topics.

For sect. 2, see IV.

13. No. 252. Padma puránam—slócas.

Vasishta to Dilîpa—the Mágha mahatmyam 40 adhyayas, defective at the end.

Chiefly on the great benefit of bathing in the early morning, in such rivers, as the Caveri, Godáveri, Bhagirati, and others, in the lunar month Mágha (July August.) The merit, and the fruit of such bathing ; such as removal of sin, and the procuring of things deemed desirable. Legends of persons who, by this means obtained their wishes, are specified : leaf 49—172, but wanting 52, 66, 170, 171.

The book is long, somewhat thick, without boards, old, and greatly damaged.

14. No. 258. Two pieces.

1.) Brahmánda puránam—the cshétra vâibhava khandam, and in this the legend of srüta giri or sîtádri a hill—the glory of that hill, and of its lord—merit of walking round the hill, keeping it on the right hand.

Value of bathing in two pools, named after Ráma and Sîta, and on the excellence of a Ráma linga said to have been placed there by Parasu Ráma : so far 12 adhyáyas complete, the 13th defective—it contains the excellence of the Brimha kundi, a river which flows from the South side of the hill of Sri Sâilam (the one in question apparently) and runs into the nîlaranyam, surrounding the Góverdhana hills : it loses itself therein : leaf 1—56.

2.) Vishnu dhermóttaram—on the duties of Vâishnavas, detached from a purânam. The 27th and 25th adhyâyas transposed, and incomplete. General subject the glory of Vishnu; homage, meditation, praise, remembrance—houshold homage morning, noon, and evening; the merit of these observances: leaf 62—72.

The book is long, of medium thickness, without boards, slightly damaged.

15. No. 269. Scánda purânam.

By Súta, 1—12 adhyâyas, and 121 slócas perhaps intended for 13.

The contents are termed the núgara khandam. Visvacarma created the worlds (plural) order of the universe: on hills, seas, the planets, the lunar mansions. On rishis, and their various orders. On gods, men, on Gandharbas, and racshasas. On guhica or guhus, a class of inferior beings (as gnomes); the mode of their creation, and existence. Origin of the five elements. Origin of the fœtus in the womb. Legendary stories of the sons of Visvacarma. Arts, ceremonies. Description of the world, &c. In the last portion is a description of the marriage of Parvati.

16. No. 279. Brahmánda purânam, slócas; the Tirt'ha khandam 1—96: adhyâyas, appears complete; though taken out from some larger work.

An account of pools for bathing, deemed sacred. They are classed under a fourfold ascending series, as mânusha—ârasha—âsura—daiva, the first being the lowest, and the last the highest in value. Legend of Ganga's birth; of Parvati's marriage with Siva. Excellence of the Gautama pool. Others are named Kartikeya—Gáruda—Gálava—chacra Nága—linga—surya—koti—Dévi—satru—Vigna—Agni—cumbha—'Atréya—Janardhana; and there are many more specified, with their value and excellency. Panegyric also of some rivers; leaf 131—299.

The book is long, and thick, with a brass pin, recent.

17. No. 280. Marcandéya purânam, slócas.

1—138 adhyâyas, complete.

The following are a few indices of the contents. Bâla deva went on a pilgrimage to various sacred pools, and temples—life of Harischandra—on conception, and growth of the fœtus in the womb—various naracas such as Raurava and maha raurava—description of the pains (yâtana) inflicted by Yama—on sins which lead to naraca; and on sins which lead to other births—on the excellency of a chaste wife—details of the minor avatara of Dattatréya, as a son of Brahma, and his consort; Dattâtréya was a rishi (Vishnu son of Brahma) there is no difference between the soul of man, and Isvara or God. The rules and customs of the four castes of Brahman, Cshétriya, Vaisya, Sudra, and the four áśramas of Brahmachari, Grihast'ha, Vanaprast'ha, Sanniyási. On the birth of Ganga. Description of the creation of the world, and of the beings contained in it—description of Jambu dvipa. Tale of Manu—marriage of Svaróchisa manu. The Devi mahatmyam, or popular legend of Durga killing Mahishásura (known as the sapta sati or 700 slócas) the gods praised Dévi for the achievement—Rakta-bhuja and Sumba were also killed by Devi : some spells, or formules, that have reference to the secret worship of Dévi, with the connected fire-offerings. Chandrica archana vidhi —mode of ritual homage to Dévi; chandrica hrúdaya—Dévi's heart; praise used as a charm—details as to the fourteen Manus, governing as many manuvántaras. Origin of Mártánda, or the sun. Aditya stottra praise of the sun. Details of kings of the solar, and lunar races. On the excellency of this puránam; and the great benefit following from hearing it read ; a common mode of closing a work : leaf 1—263, and 63 blank leaves.

The book is long, very thick, and recent.

18. No. 281. Padma puránam, the uttara khandam containing the Mágha mahatmyam : 1—27 adhyáyas, complete so far, Vasishta to king Dilipa.

Chiefly on the merit of bathing in the month Mágha; illustrated by legends. Occasion for a fuller abstract will occur under the Telugu translation of this 2nd part.

—Mṛiga sṛinga mahatyam a legend to illustrate the miraculous effect of bathing in the Cavéri. It is abstracted elsewhere.

—Ganjéndra mocsha mahatmyam, this differs from the episode in the Bhágavatam—punishment of various sins in the world of Yama.

—Siva rátri mahátmyam, and some others : leaf 1—102.

The book is long, somewhat thick, slightly injured.

19. No. 282. Padma puránam, slócas. The pátála khanda—3rd to 68th adhyáya, incomplete—narrated by Séshan to Bhadsiyaṛyana rishi.

Birth and life of Ráma—origin of Rávana, down to his being killed by Ráma—beginning of an asvamédha yágam by Ráma—the horse seized by Chevana, by Chitrangan, by Pushcara, each one a king, and each one killed. Kusa and Lava seized the horses. Rama went, and overcame them. The matter is like that of the uttara Ramayanam; but it may also belong to the Padma puranam : leaf 6—144.

The book is long, somewhat thick, recent.

20. No. 283. Linga puránam slocas.

By Suta—159 adhyáyas—complete.

1.) Purva bhágam or first part.

On creation—preservation—destruction—glory of Siva—on the origin of the linga and its excellence—Vishnu praised Siva—mode of homage to the Saiva symbol—Siva is Puratvam, or Para Brahm—the dhermas, or duties proper to the kréta, tréta, dvapura and kali yugas. Description of Jambu dwipa, and of Maha meru—regions of the sun and planets—description of them—birth or origin of the devatas or celestials—the solar line of kings—on the burning three towns "Cities of the plain" (Tripura dahanam); excellence of the five lettered Siva spell; some so termed upanishadas relative to Siva. The book is somewhat long, very thick, with a brass pin—recent.

30. No. 298. Cúrma puránam, slócas.

1—44 adhyáyas not in regular order.

This book was not particularly examined owing to the contents of the puranas being better known, than those of many other books. Its name would imply its being Vaishnava; but this is a studied deception, as the book is Saiva in kind. It goes through the usual range of pauranic legends; and might merit translation.

The book is long, very thick, with a brass pin recent.

30½. No. 299. Suta sanhita, the Yagnya vaibhava khandam, slócas.

On the power of the panchacshori or five lettered Saiva spell. Mode of wearing the distinctive marks of a Saiva devotee; as ashes, beads, &c.

Siva is supreme, and sacrifices must be offered to him alone.

At the end one leaf of an almanac, Chitra month of Visvavasu year. leaf 51—87.

The book is long, thin, without boards, slightly damaged.

31. No. 300. Pata yójana, no múlam, a comment on the Cási khanda of the scanda puránam, by Vencata Nárâyana.

68—100 adhyáyam, consequently in advance of 29 No. 297, but still incomplete.

Account of Cási. Legend of kritti vása Isvara ; and on O'm-kara Isvara his glory. Legends of various other gods, or else forms of Siva worshipped there, in different temples; Isvara gave a divine gift to the rishi Durvása. When Vyása lifted up both his hands to declare, or swear that Vishnu is supreme, Siva ordered his hands to remain that way fixed, to teach Vyása his own supremacy. Different Cshétras (places or temples) and tirt'has (bathing pools) are described ; and have their value magnified ; leaf 1—125.

The book is long, somewhat thick, and recent.

The book is long, of medium thickness, on talipat leaves, small writing, recent.

34. No. 303. Scanda puránam.

The Vaisac'ha mahatmyam—slócas, 24 adhyáyas, complete.

On the distinguished excellence of the lunar month Váisac'ha (May, June) and great benefits following from bathing and gifts, in that month. It is good to bathe in the early morning. Gifts of water to drink, of an umbrella, of a fan, of shoes, of a bed or mattras, are of great value in this month. On gifts of garments, of ornaments, of sandal wood ground to a paste with water. If homage is rendered to Krishna by the tulsi plant this is very beneficial. In that month if water be not given to the thirsty, the person who refuses it will be born as a bird. Tales in illustration of foregoing points. Legends as to worship; and benefit of such tales read.

The 11th lunar day bright half in Vaisac'ha month is a time for early bathing, and for gifts—followed by great benefits; leaf 67—103.

The book is long, of medium thickness, without boards, recent.

35. No. 309. Páta yojana, a comment on the Cási khandam of the Scanda puránam, prose, incomplete.

By Vencata Náráyana 1—30 adhyáyas.

By Cáli dása—60 slócas 1st sargam.

The 2nd sargam, also of 60 slócas, has the comment on them, Sanjivini, as above : subjects as above indicated : leaf 56—67 and 14—28.

The book is of medium length, thin, injured.

XXIV. Puranas, local or mahatmyas.

1. No. 224. Setu mahatmyam said to be from the scanda puranam ; slócas ; the 8th 52nd and 45th adhyáyas.

Legends as to the excellency of bathing pools, named respectively pápa vimócha—mangala—écánda—Ráma—Agastya—Ráma—Lacshmi—Agni---Siva—d'hanush—koti and various others ; tending to illustrate the high virtue of the sétu or isthmus, known as Ráma's bridge. Some matter also on the excellence of ashes from the pit of a fire offering to Brahma. One leaf at the end. contains a véda verse, used when bathing in the sea : leaf 36—252.

The book is long, thick, old, damaged.

2. No. 248. Three books.

1.) Vencata giri mahatmyam, legend of Tripeti ; said to be from the Vámana puranam.

Another name is Vencatádri—account of its bathing pools, especially the one named after Capila, which was told by Sanatcumára to Agastya, and others. Also concerning the svámi pushcara pool—which may be said to include all others ; even the Ganges flows into it. Legend of Vishnu's incarnation at this place. On his visva rúpa, or universal form—its display Great benefits flow from gifts made on that hill to its temple. Various other matters as to the hill—its pools, and the glory of Vishnu : from 20th to 44th adhyáyam.

2.) Niládri mahatmyam otherwise Mukti chintámani or Purushottama cshétra mahatmyam or Jaganát'ha mahima ; that is Juggernaut in Orissa.

Details of sacred pools there—if any die at that place (as many do) beatification will be obtained—at that place no distinctions of caste are recognized ; even pariars and Brahmans eat together. The legend of finding the wooden images, floated thither by a river,

3.) Sri rangha cshétra mahatmyam.

Legend of the shrine near Trichinopoly, on an island in the Cavéry river.

On the excellency, and divine origin of the shrine, with various hyperbole.

The Cavéry mahatmyam—or glory of the river—legend of Chandra pushcara, a bathing pool—glory of the lord of Sri rangham—legend of his descent there, with other details ; said to be from the Brahmánda puránam. Fuller notice will elsewhere be given : leaf 1—158, and 12—14.

The book is somewhat long, and thick, with narrow leaves ; some of them broken, pieces only remaining ; and, in other parts, damaged.

3. No. 256. Legend of a pool at Sri sailam.

Then,

—Malli kunda tîrt'ha mahatmyam. Kunda is properly a vessel to receive offerings ; by metonymy applied to a pool at Srî sailam. The legend is said to be from the Scanda purânam. This pool is considered to be the sacred presence of Parvati—its excellency, and the benefit of bathing in it, amplified : 10 leaves irregularly strung, and broken.

The book is of medium length, without boards, damaged.

4. No. 259. Vencata giri mahatmyam, stated to be from the Varáha purânam.

The celebrity of Tripeti : by Vishnu's order ádi sesha, became visible there, in the form of a hill. Legend of Vishnu's first coming thither with Lacshmi, and dwelling there. Vishnu's hunting, and other amusements, on that hill—Anjinâchala—Vencatachala—Vencatádri are other names of the hill, or its peaks—Vishnu received permission from Brahma to come, and reside there, for the benefit of the world at large. (It was once a Saiva fane). If groves for shelter, or pools for bathing are formed there, the doing so is very meritorious. The merit as to quantum described.

On the Svâmi pushacarini, and other pools—their excellency, and the glory of Vishnu as residing there : with many like matters. In exemplification of the said particulars, a variety of legendary tales are narrated.

1—6 adhyâyas 7th defective and 34th to 62 adhyâyas : leaf 1—16, and 1—48.

The book is of medium size, without boards, damaged by termites.

5. No. 261. Hasti giri mahâtmyam legend of Conjeveram—said to be from the Brahmânda purânam, slócas 1—18 adhyâyas.

Description of the locality—a sacrifice there by Brahmâ ; in anger Sarasvati took the form of a river, and quenched the fire of the sacrifice ; it was renewed by Brahma. In the end Varada raja came forth, from the flame of the sacrifice as a warrior ; and devouring the entrails of the sheep offered. Brahma's act of praise to Vishnu, in that form. The mode of closing the sacrifice. The excellence of the hill, known as Hasti giri in Sanscrit or ânâi malai in Tamil, and of the temple of Varada râja built thereon : leaf 25—81 and 45 blank leaves.

The book is long, of medium thickness, recent.

[The above silly legend is not only believed, but multitudes of intellectual Hindus go from Madras to pay their devotion to the warrior god ; and to—the dâsis].

5½. No. 262. Four pieces.

1.) Tirt'ha khandam from the Brahmánda puránam —slocas, 1—12 adhyáyas not complete. On the Penákinni, a river near Conjeveram. On the garuda pool, and Vegavati river, their excellence, and value for the removal of sin.

2.) Tirt'ha cándam, from the Scanda puránam slocas, 1—14 adhyáyas incomplete.

On the Agastya—Arjuna—Parásara; Marga, tirt'has or bathing pools, their excellence, and cleansing virtue stated.

3.) Vencata giri mahatmyam, slocas 1—10 adhyáyam, incomplete.

On the rangha vimanam—the chandra pushcarini pool, the upaya Cáveri another pool, and generally, on the locality and temple of "Seringham" near Trichinopoly; see other notices: 107 leaves in all.

The book is long, of medium thickness, without boards, slightly damaged.

5¾. No. 278. Siva rahasyam, or Cála hasti mahatmyam, slocas 1—90 adhyáyam complete. From a multiplicity of headings a few may suffice.

Siva became incarnate by the desire of Brahma—Vishnu, in some places, paid homage to Siva. High excellence of Cála hasti, and some other Saiva shrines. Details of modes of penance practised at them. Brahma's first creation of the world. Origin of gold, and other metals. Vital energy in living being how formed. How the six great sins arise in the human body. On differences of pulses, and vital airs how formed, their places or sites—spiritual qualities of the soul described. The benefit of a horse sacrifice, and of other sacrifices described. How the hóta and ruchvia in sacrifices, must be managed

On the four classes of Brahman, Cshetriya, Vaisya, Sudra, their subdivisions, and various duties, Siva's supremacy over all—suitable to be worshipped by all men—his glory. Intermediately on the excellence of Visvamitra and other sages. This local purána was told by Rómasa to Bharadvája; leaf 1—391 two leaves 145, 255 broken.

The book is long, more than doubly thick, with a brass pin, recent, a few leaves damaged.

6. No. 293. Svéta giri mahatmyam, slócas stated to be from the Padma puránam.

The "white mountain" is said to be in Svétadwipa, or "white continent," and the site of the Curma avatára: 1st to 30th adhyáyam, the last one defective. Fame of that hill, as Vishnu there assumed the form of a tortoise; glory of Vishnu. There is also a form of Siva worshipped, by the name of Njánésvara—his glory: 27 leaves.

The book is long, thin, without boards, recent; the last leaf broken.

[If Wilford had not pitched on the white cliffs of Albion for his "white island," he might have alighted on Sweden, and turned the Baltic into the "Milk Sea." Sweden seems to be a Sanscrit derivation; and Scandinavia implies the region of Scanda, or Subrahmanya. Both however must be secondary terms. The original sites being farther eastward.]

7. No. 294 Mukti Chintámani, another name for Niládri mahatmyam or legend of Juggernaut. From a book entitled Vishnu rahasyam; only the 21st adhyáyam—slócas, a little prose.

Near the South sea is a hill, known as Niláchala, and on it a Vatu (or pool) a temple also. In the fane is a dalu purushóttama an image of Vishnu, formed of wood. It came thither of old, from Vaicont'ha. The glory of that jagat cuta (peak of the world). If any one die in that temple, or do penance there, his beatification (mukti) is assured. Hence its glory. The high virtue of the water on that hill. These various matters are sought to be authenticated by srüti (tradition, and smritis) written books; various slócas and other verses are extracted from other books: leaf 1—28.

The book is somewhat long, without boards, recent. v supra and 310 infra.

8. No. 304. Pattasa cshétra mahatmyam said to be from the Scanda puránam, Suta to other rishis; Yet is also termed Cumara samhita.

The tirt'ha yátra khandam.

The Bhadra kundam is a bathing pool on the banks of Gáutama's river (the Cavery.) the excellence of that river. The Vira linga Siva—its glory, and value. On the sacrifice of Dacsha—self immolation of Sati—the pattasa cshetra is a circuit of 5 coss—and that place is like Casi. Bathing there on the Siva ràtri is very meritorious—death then is followed by beatification. Váli and Sugríva, by bathing in the Bhadra kundam washed away their sins. Mode of forming the Sri chacra, a diagram to be worshipped according to the Sacti puja, or female energy homage—Legend of Bhárgava or Parasu Ráma, Surya (the sun) fixed the Vira linga. Ráma after killing Ravana bathed together with his brother in the Bhadra kundam. Cumara vijaya vritanda, or conquests by Subrahmanya. Legends of Prahlàda, Hiranya casipu, and Bhishma, 1—41 adhyàyas;

Leaf 1—162, but there are many omissions of passages, leaving lacunes in different places.

The book is somewhat long, thick, recent, but blackened so as to look old.

9. No. 308. Cánchi mahátmyam, slócas said to be from the scanda puránam.

Legend of the large Saiva temple of 'Ecambésvara.

The glory of Ecambésvara nátha. The special benefit of sraddhas, and other ceremonies when performed at Conjeveram. Benefits resulting from various kinds of gifts made there. On some personal observances, before and after sun rise. The benefits of homage directed to Uma and Mahésvara. Concerning the excellence of the symbol named after Agastya, and the mode of homage thereto. If any decay or want of repair occur in the temple of 'Ecambésvara, or in the outer court, or in the surrounding wall, or any other part of the building, then to repair the said defect, or to build any part anew, will be followed by immense benefits.

On the duties, or proper deportment of the four castes residing in Conjeveram, or of the four orders of celibate student, householder, sojourner in wilds, or strict ascetics. The chapters in this book are not regular; and the numbering the leaves 1—30 not in order.

The book is long, without boards.

10. No. 310. Purushóttama cshétra mahatmyam, slócas complete. By Jáimini, yet from the scanda puránam.

Glory of the temple of Jaganát'ha.

Praise of the hill termed Niláchala. It is on the north shore of the sea—on the south bank of the Maha nadi, or great river. Praise of the place, ascribed to Brahma.

On the glory of Krishna, as worshipped there. Excellence of Vaishnava votaries at that place. Many legends in reference to the temple, or its precincts. The excellence of Vishnu-bhakti, or devotedness to Vishnu, there practised. A tale of Cási rája. Legend of the war between Pasupati (Siva) and Krishna; Subhadra a sister of Krishna, worshipped there, is a portion of Lacshmi. The legend of Indradhyumna, a king of yore in that neighbourhood. Days for the public procession of Juggernaut. Many legends about the wooden images floated down by the river, and now deemed gods.

[The word Jaganát'ha or "lord of the universe" is one of the best in Hindu usage; but pitiably misapplied in this instance. It should be remembered to distinguish between contempt for the name itself, and that for the block of wood to which it is unhappily applied]: leaf 1—116.

The book is long, and somewhat thick, recent.

XXV. Ritual.

1. No. 3. Eight pieces with others smaller.

1.) Purusha sucta bhásyam, a comment, or explanation of a passage in the Védas, which declares Vishnu's glory, and is used in ritual services.

2.) Sani ischara stóttra slócas.

Praise of the slow moving Saturn, considered to be the cause of disease: and this piece is a sort of flattery for its removal.

3.) Siva pratisht'ha vidhi: mode of consecrating an image in a Saiva fane; not in any other locality.

4.) Prána pratisht'ha vidhi, mode of injecting life (or deity) into an image, by means of mantras: before this act it is the mere material; after it, a god.

5.) Part'hiva linga puja vidhi: mode of homage to an earthen symbol of Siva v. 6. No. 36.

6.) Stavara deva pratisht'ha vidhi, mode of consecrating an image fixed in a fane; as distinguished from one taken out in processions, which is never more than a representation.

7.) Grahárchana pratisht'ha vidhi, mode of consecrating a god, when brought into a house by the intervention of a water vessel.

8.) Grahana samprocshana vidhi, mode of purifying a house, some verses from the vedas are used; as the Nárayána suctam and the Rudra prasna, which last is herein explained. These are the principal pieces; but there are others smaller, not needing detail: leaf 1—32, and 1—22: from the first set leaf 16—18 wanting.

The book is long, of medium thickness, without boards, slightly injured.

2. No. 10. Three pieces.

1.) Smriti sára sangraha, an extract from the book so called. If any one have lost his caste, a mode is herein described of declaring him virtually dead. A vessel of water is provided, which is broken and cast into a larger one, with attendant ceremonies. The person is then considered dead in law; and, until a recent enactment, was incapable of holding ancestral, or other property, slócas. The matter pertains to sacerdotal law.

2.) Shad carma chandrica on six Brahmanical ceremonies: yagnam sacrifice by one's self; yájanam, sacrifice by another, as by proxy, adhi yayana reading the védas—adhyápana teaching to read the vedas—dána giving alms—ádána receiving alms. In the prose of the smritis. The above matter is preceded by other, stating that Vishnu is entitled to precedence over Brahma and Siva.

Then follows the detail of the above ceremonies, with other details as to sipping water—cleansing the teeth—suitable garments—mode of bathing—putting on the forehead mark—the morning, noon, and evening devotions—use of the gayatri, or homage to the sun—if the stated devotions are omitted, an expiation appointed—mode of fire-offerings—duty at noon-day; offering of water poured out from the hands—mode of deva púja, or homage to an idol—on forbidden kinds of food—on chewing betel leaf &c.—mode of lying down to sleep, varying with circumstances—on sexual, and other ceremonial uncleannesses—such as the birth of a child &c.—mode of bathing on such occasions, and also after recovery from severe sickness.

3.) Sandhya bhásya—vedaic prose.

By Krishna pandita—four guchas or flower bunches: chiefly on the morning, noon, and evening devotional ceremonies prescribed to Brahmans. The meaning of the same explained: leaf 162—368, implying that the whole is taken from some larger book. This one is long, thick, recent, yet insect-bored.

3. No. 22. Panchami stavam, from the Rudra yámalam, a tantra book, slócas, mantras, and prose. At the beginning are mantras relative to Tripura Sundari and relative to XXVIII. with modes of forming diagrams; and stotras intermingled; but the larger part of this book relates to the anushtánam or daily ritual by Smartas in their houses, and throughout the day, bathing, &c. from early morning until reposing at night: leaf 1—195.

The book is short, thick, insect-pierced.

4. No. 28. Pratisht'ha tantram from the Karanágama; modes of consecration, relative to Saiva temples.

Vastu púja with homa—mode of homage with fire-offering to a supposed deity of the soil, requested to quit. Ancurápanam sowing corn of kinds on any solemn occasion. Pancha gavya karuna on five products from a cow: or milk, ghee, curds, urine, dung—all alike deemed sacred. On the mode of beating the great kettle drum at festivals. Ceremony of hoisting the flag—the churnica a homage chant then recited. Mangala ashtaca, an octave on the marriage of the god and goddess. On immersing the image in water of a tank or otherwise; then taking it out, and putting it into a large vessel full of corn. A detail as to all the members of the idol, down even to the finger-nails. On opening the eyes of the image; that is causing the deity to enter it by means of charms. The punyahavásana or consecrating water of lustration to be kept in earthen vessels for use. Minute of the exact time of fixing a flagstaff for the fane, with some similar matters: leaf 1—29.

[As all this is Saiva it follows that much of the páncha rátram, of some Váishnavas must have been borrowed from Saiva customs; and a reason for the opposition of other some appears; in as much as the observances belong to a hostile credence].

The book is long, thin, recent, without boards.

5. No. 30. Three small pieces: slocas and prose, Ganésa púja, Lacshmi púja, Sarasvati púja. Homage of a ritual kind to Ganesa, Lacshmi and Sarasvati, for desired benefits; leaf 21—29, and 12 blank leaves. One leaf at the end—on the period of life of men—an elephant, a lion, a monkey, a crow, a serpent, &c.

The book is long, thin, recent.

6. No. 36. Two pieces.

1.) Part'hivésvara puja—mantras and slócas intermingled; complete.

On the mode of making an earthen symbol of Saiva and Parvati, (linga yoni) as a representation of the biform Art'hanesvari on the right side Siva and on the left side Parvati; and this as typifying the masculine and feminine energy of the universe; an active cause, and passive eternal matter. Homage is rendered to this symbol of deity, by verses from the vedas, by the rudra múla mantra and by the gayatri, with many offerings as food, &c. the mantras used are herein given. The bilva leaf a trefoil is used, and with it a spell. Dhyánam, or meditation to give it intensity, follows. After the whole of this singular symbolic homage is ended, the symbol used is taken to a river, and dissolved therein. It is stated that, if this course be practised daily, riches will be acquired.

2.) Rudra nyásam mantra form.

Five vessels are placed to represent the five-faced Rudra (the five elements personified). To each vessel is assigned a bija letter written on it—then follows the mode of signs with fingers and bodily members, some verses from the védas are recited, doing homage to the aforesaid vessels, as if a god—then the puja or ritual worship is made. [So much symbolism is not immediately plain to a western mind; we may perceive however what natives mean when they say that their homage does not rest on the symbol, but passes beyond]. There are three leaves at the end on Jyotisham, or astrology: 55 leaves in all.

The book is long, of medium thickness, without boards.

7. No. 39. Njána arnavam—sea of wisdom: slócas, Saiva in kind; 13—16 padalas, incomplete.

Yentras and mantras relative to the consecration of images in Saiva fanes.

Certain squares or other diagrams, and the influence or fruit of each one described. Specification of letters inscribed, or circumscribed.

Cleansing the ground—putting the kalasas or water pots on it—marking the diagrams near each vessel—putting other diagrams beneath the ground, or under the intended site of the pit'haca, or pedestal, for the idol—or, according to other usage, putting them on the hands or feet, or under the arms &c., of the images. Then, proceeding to the feet upwards, the various mantras are used to bring life into the image—along with the use of spells, water is poured, or sprinkled on the head of the image, termed mantra snanam—here the book is injured.

Leaf 57—69 and 86—94 and 223—226. [The said charlatanerie is not much superior to that of a mountebank at a fair; but it is apparent that the Brahmans, finding that they had to deal with inferior intellects, gave themselves something to do, and adapted to magnify them in the eyes of the slaves that feed them].

The book is long, thin, damaged, very old; without boards; two fresh palm leaves used instead.

8. No. 40. Shadámanáyam, slócas with mantras 82—87 and a little of the 88th adhyáyam. On six modes of Saiva ritual worship in temples.

Concerning certain mystic sounds as a continuous O'm and bindu náttam of Siva sactis [or mothers] with mystic lingas relating to superior worlds.

Kundatini hóma—mantras—spells used with offerings in fire-pits in some Sâiva fanes. On Ambà and other goddesses in Saiva fanes—the bija letter, or chief letter in the charm directed to each one. On the múla st'hána or páta pit'ha, that is seat, or pedestal of each Siva sacti. Upasára vidhi mode of subordinate courtesies to Sabhápati, and other Saiva forms, by means of lights, and other ornamental appendages: 56 incomplete.

The book is long, of medium thickness, without boards, old, several leaves are broken.

9. No. 46. Five pieces.

1.) Nava griha puja, mantras and prose, incomplete and damaged.

Mode of ritual homage to the sun and other planets, with the mantras used therein.

2.) Charana viyógam—mantras and prose.

In the four vedas are noted patam—kramam—jadi, the difference of these exemplified. They are signs, or notes in chanting—a chorus, or repetition after one singing or leading the chant; (what is by some termed "intoning," of heathen origin). Six angas defined, or described. The result is, the benefit that accrues from meditating on the vedas.

3.) Ráma sahasranáma, complete, homage to Ráma by 1008 names of various usage.

4.) Rudra nyásam—mantras and prose.

Meditation on the different members of the body of Rudra (or Siva).

5.) Ananta vratódhyapana, slócas.

The closing part of a ceremony directed to Vishnu—incomplete: leaf 1—75.

The book is short, of medium thickness, very much injured.

10. No. 48. Shadámanáya anushtána krama; mantra with prose, Saiva in kind.

Daily routine of a sixfold homage in fanes—names not of ordinary occurrence. To Siva—to Sabhápati—to Vinayaca—to the múla st'hanam—to púrna Gâuri—to bála Tripura Sundari—to Chit Sacti nat'ha—to parama Siva nat'ha—to Sri nat'ha—these and various other forms of deities: partially on the Sacti system. Then motions of hands and fingers, and hrüdaya nyasa mantra, or meditative intensity: pátuca puja mantras, or homage to the feet, and bali mantras various offerings with spells. And other like matters—incomplete. 1—26 leaves.

The book is short, and thin, without boards, slightly damaged.

11. No. 60. Three pieces.

1.) Guru cavacham, 28 slócas incomplete; properties of a Guru, and praise of such a one as is described: refers to XII.

2.) Siva puja vidhi—slocas with véda verses. Said to be from a book entitled Sancara samhita—the ritual of homage to a Saiva symbol, with the mantras, prayers or spells then used.

3.) Siva cavacham, slócas, said to be from the 12th adhyáyam of the uttara cándam of the Scanda púranam.

One chapter containing praise of Siva, with spell, and invocation for protection; refers to XII: leaf 1—9.

12. No. 106. Samprócshana vidhi or Sannákîya samprócshana vidhi, slócas, complete. It relates to Vaishnava temples. Modes of expiating faults, or crimes by sprinkling water from a vessel or by hómas, but especially by sprinkling on occasions; such as if a dog, or a pariah enters the temple. [Aqua benedicta appears to have had a heathen origin.]

The book is short, thin, on narrow leaves, without boards, slightly damaged.

13. No. 119. Four pieces.

1.) Siva puja vidhi, mode of homage to a Saiva symbol.

2.) Vira Sáiva lingarchana, mode of homage to a symbol, by Jangamas.

3.) Nila kant'ha astra maha mantram a spell to the blue throated (Siva) the benefit is acquiring desirables. This, and the following relate to XII.

4.) Pánchácshara maha mantra; from the Vama déva samhita—slócas the five lettered Saiva spell: leaf 1—24.

The book is long and thin, without boards, part new, part old, and much damaged.

14. No. 122. Tricha calpa vidhi, worship of the sun—said to be from the áditya puránam.

Modes of rendering homage to the sun, with praise and spells; the object being health, or delivery from sickness. Arghya dána kramam, water with flowers, poured from the hands, as an offering to the sun. Puja krama ritual homage to the sun. Surya stavam another kind of praise. Aditya dvadasa námam—the twelve different names of the sun according to the monthly signs of the zodiac. Surya Náráyana cavacham an invocation for protection to Naráyana, as dwelling in the sun—Saurashtacshari mantrom the eight-lettered spell, directed to the sun. Sancalpam, record of the exact time when the tricha calpam was finished. Kalasa archana consecration of water in various vessels, for service to the sun. Ashta dala pujam with saura yentram eight petals formed to imitate an expanded lotos-flower; and Yentra prana pratisht'ham, ceremony to bring life into that diagram. Homage to the pît'ha or pedestal for the said diagram. [This pedestal and figure united occur, more than once, on the Elliot marbles.] Dic puja homage to the eight quarters of the heavens, Aváhana shódasa upacháras. Sixteen ceremonies complimentary, to bring down the presence of the sun. Dvádasa ávarana puja—homage to the circle surrounding an image of the sun, with twelve petals or rays, one for each áditya or monthly sun.

Appended—Siva bhujanga stottra.

By Sancaráchárya—42 slocas, put into a serpentine form, praise of Siva: leaf 1—71.

The book is short, thick, recent.

15. No. 132. Linga púja vidhánam, mantras and prose, complete.

Spells employed when taking up clay or mud, from the north, or east side of a river or tank ; making a symbol with it ; forming a pít'ha or pedestal for the symbol—pouring out water to it, with spell—offering camphor light and incense ; pouring on it butter oil, with the appropriate spells. Intensitive meditation, when the homage is ended.

The book is short, thin, without boards, slightly injured.

16. No. 134. Siva puja vidhi—slócas, complete.

One slóca is appropriated to each distinct act, or part of Saiva homage—as one for taking up the arghya, one for pouring out the water, and the like: 3 leaves only.

In the Telugu language four stanzas, ending with jaya mangela, relative to Siva; praise: on one leaf, 10 others blank.

The book is short, of medium thickness, without boards, recent.

2. No. 215. Suta sanhita tatparya dípica, slocas—vácyas—tica.

By Mádhavala 1—43 adhyayas, incomplete. The suta sanhita is a Saiva book in various sections ; said to belong to the scanda puránam ; tatparya is meaning ; dípica, illustration or comment ; an explanation of the meaning of portions of the said work.

Whether sacrifices ought, or ought not to be performed ? determined in the affirmative.

Prana vicharam, enquiry as to Saiva explanation of the mystic O'm. An enquiry as to the human body ; and on its being distinct from the soul.

An enquiry as to Siva bhakti ; on six special places in the human body, and six special localities in the other world ; on which Vira Saivas especially enlarge.

Para tatva vichára, an enquiry as to the nature of the Divine Being.

Mayi vicharam—on the female energy, negative power in creation ; that is matter.

Pracrüti vicharam enquiry as to the modus operandi of vikrüti active power, or Deity, on pracrüti or matter. [This is the direct opposite of the Bauddha, Jaina and saiva-sacti, philosophy as to theory of creation, or of spontaneously existent things].

This book gives the sense of the Suta sanhita. [It seems specially antagonistic to the Bauddhas]. Leaf 105—210, part of a large book.

The book is long, somewhat thick, slightly damaged.

3. No. 306. Tatparya dîpica, a comment on the Suta sanhita, slócas, vácyas, prose. By Madhava mantri. This is a much fuller copy, containing 4 khandas, and two supplementary pieces.

1.) Siva mahatmya khanda 13 adhyayas.

On the thread of life, and its lord (Pasupati) a name of Siva. Mode of homage to Siva. On the Saiva sacti púja at some length. Homage to Saiva devotees. Means of acquiring mukti or beatification. Description of játi, or caste. Value of water reservoirs.

2.) Gnána yóga khandam, 20 adhyáyas.

On the traditional descent of the gnána yogi : âzramah vidhi, or state, and proper deportment of the celibate Brahmáchari, the Grihast'ha, the Vanaprast'ha, and the Sanniyási.

Dána dherma p'hala nirvásana, or description of charitable, or religious gifts—on the fœtus in the womb—on the ashtánga yógam, or discipline with eight members of the body.

Mode of being sealed, as an ascetic ; mode of suppressing breathing by the nostrils—mode of meditation—mode of a Sanniyasi's burial.

3.) Mukti khandam—9 adhyáyas.

On beatification, and the means leading thereto. On the beginning of a state of nyánam or wisdom. Mode of a disciple going to guru or teacher, and serving him—learning from him, and the excellency of this noviciate.

4.) Yagnya váibhava khandam púrva bhágam or 1st part 47 adhyáyas; uttara bhágam or 2nd part 20 adhyáyas. This khandam has not been abstracted; but an idea of the contents is conveyed, by 2, No. 215 supra.

Two appendices, or gitas.

1.) Meaning of the védas—of the pranava or mystic O'm. On ascetic zeal. On the six lettered mantra. Finite, and eternal things discriminated. On the import of the Siva linga. Importance of wearing cow-dung ashes. On the union of the human soul with Brahm. On some cshétras, or special places, a visit to which at once gives beatification.

2.) Meaning of Védas as to Brahm: concerning divine bliss. One universal soul is the Brahmatvam or Divinity. Brahm is thus diffused througout all bodies. Ahan (or the abstract I) is Siva and only Siva (something equivalent to "I am"). Description of the soul in the abstract. Meaning of all védantas briefly given. Quotations in support, or proof from veda vacyas, smritis, puránas, and other authorities. Leaf 1—295.

The book is long, of great thickness, with brass pin, and recent.

4. No. 466. Four pieces.

1.) Kálágni rudra upanishada.

By Kálágni rudra to Sanatcumara.

Mode of putting on the triple horizontal lines by Saivas—bathing at the time of putting it on—dimensions—the mantra then used, the presiding deity the benefit &c.

2.) Sri saila vása mangalaradi.

Seven chants in praise of Siva as resident on the hill at Sri sailam.

3.) Siva púja vidhi—slócas in meditation on the guru, or teacher, on the fixed symbol, and moving symbol, or devotee. Mode of putting on cow-dung ashes, and of wearing the sacred beads. The five lettered mantra, homage to the symbol of Siva.

4.) Sancara stuti, slócas, and lingashtacam, an octave of slócas.

Praise of Siva as the destroyer, and of the symbol: leaf 2—15.

The book is of medium length, thin, without boards, slightly injured.

5. No. 467. Váidica ácharya nirnaya.

By Suchidánanda : slócas, prose.

In order to obtain beatification, devotees must render homage to Isvara.

Proof of the existence of Isvara. This Brahm is the cause of the universe. His nature, and properties. By many quotations, as alleged, from upanishadas, it is proved that Siva is parama Brahm, and that he ought to be worshipped.

Preference is due to Siva. Panegyric of cow-dung ashes, and sacred beads.

The custom of branding the discus and shell of Vishnu on the shoulders, and other members of votaries is censured, and condemned.

On a mode of homage, by bathing the Siva symbol.

Various other Saiva customs, and modes of homage described.

Leaf 1—30 and 3 not numbered.

The book is long, and thin, on narrow leaves, old, and much injured.

6. No. 468. Lingárchana kramam; taken from the Vizesha art'ha pracásica, a comment on a book called Siva siddhanta tantra—the 2nd adikarana—slócas, prose.

This piece contains details of the mode of homage to the symbol of Siva, leaning to the Vira Saiva practice, and the opposite of the Saiva-sacti system.

The book is of medium length, thin, without boards, recent.

7. No. 508. Véda páta stavam; the original by Jaimuni from a dictation by Veda páta, with a tica called Siva tatva by Surya Náráyana suri, both complete.

At Pundarica puram, the form of Siva is called Mahà nát'ha—this deity is lord of the world—no one else is like, or equal to him—excellency described, and praise of it : leaf 1—120. This book has a relation to XI.

It is short, thick, recent.

8. No. 530. Chatur véda tatparya sangraham, prose, incomplete.

The title would imply a compendium of the sense of the four védas; but the real intent is to extract from the four védas the dogma of Siva's greatness, and supremacy ; leaf 1—12. The book is long, and thin, very slightly damaged.

9. No. 587. Sanatcumára sanhita, ascribed to Suta rishi—slócas said to be from the Scanda puránam 1—10 adhyáyam, incomplete.

Siva is the most excellent being : he is fit to be worshipped—he is the first cause of the universe. Benefits flowing from homage, and devotedness to Siva described.

On the surúpa or nature of Para Brahm. The moveable, and immoveable (animate and inanimate) components of the universe: on Siva mayam (work or appearance) Maha déva is the sum total of Brahma, Vishnu and all other gods—also of men, and of all other living beings—also of things inanimate—all are only manifestations of his divine form.

Mahà déva, in the work of creation, assumed—or divided himself into the forms of Brahma, Vishnu, and Siva. The human body is composed of five elements—their nature described. By one maya, Siva has very many appearances. The nature of that maya described.

Condemnation of family mode of life—description of the ascetical mode of meditative life. Excellence of the Saiva mode of homage; of the cow-dung ashes; of rudracsha beads, of bilva leaves, and like matters. The benefits of mental homage to Siva—homage to the symbol—praise of it, as to benefits—such are the chief points, leaf 1—61.

The book is of medium size, without boards, much damaged.

10. No. 642. Siva karnamrïtam.

By Bháradwája muni, slócas.

In three satacams, or centos.

Praises of Siva—tales of his conduct, not very exemplary—his disposition—his excellency, or glory—homage to him &c., (got up probably to rival the Krṣhna karnamritam) : leaf 1—38 and 7 blank leaves.

The book is short, of medium thickness.

11. No. 694. Siva karnamṛitam, this copy has only one satacam of 100 slócas.

In addition to the above—duty of Saivas to forego family cares; snakes, skulls, and other ornaments of Siva described: kirîtas or sexual amusements with *Gāuri (*or Parvati) leaf 124—130 taken from a larger book. This one is of medium length, thin, without boards, damaged.

12. No. 762. Three pieces.

1.) Udáharana padyam, or Siva tatva viztára; by Sómasa cavi, slocas, complete.

On the true knowledge of Siva, and his supremacy; praise founded on his glory.

2.) Vrishabha ashtacam, 8 slócas.

By Somasa cavi; Praise of Nandi, the vehicle of Siva; both of the above on leaf 8—33.

3.) Basava gadyam, or dandacam.

By Somasa cavi, prose, complete.

Description of the power, or energy of the vehicle of Siva—its excellency set forth in various praises : leaf 1—10. The leaves of this piece are shorter, and narrower than those of the two others.

The book is of medium length, thin, a little injured.

13. No. 1,002. Five pieces.

1.) Siva puja kramam—slócas with prose and mantras. This relates to anickam a generic term, including cleansing of teeth, bathing of different kinds, putting on cow-dung ashes and beads with homage paid to the Saiva symbol : 24 leaves a glossary in Telugu.

2.) Siva puja vidhi, slócas, complete.

In what manner ritual homage is to be conducted—and its benefits—praise of Siva intermingled : 17 leaves.

3.) Bhaváni vachanam ; two leaves in the Telugu language. Siva and Parvati being separate, this piece expresses Parvati's pain, during absence.

4.) Rudram, two leaves containing a véda extract on Rudra, his glory &c.,

5.) Siva gadyam, complete, a prose chant, declaring Siva's glory, 3 leaves.

The book is of medium size, but has a mixture of differing leaves.

XXVIII. Sacti (or female energy system.)

1. No. 13. Two pieces.

1.) Savuntara lahari vyakyánam—a comment by Lacshmi dhara, on a cento by Sancarácharya. The 100 slócas of the original are also contained in it. It describes the person of Parvati, from her feet upwards in a lengthened paraphrase. Parvati is the general sacti ; the energy being much subdivided, and distributed in other books. leaf 1—100.

2.) Srî chacra puja kramam ; slocas and prose. The chacra is any circular, or other diagram ; but the term Srî confines it to a magical diagram of this sect. As such it represents pudendum muliebre, as that is understood to represent the self-productive universe ; any male energy (as of saivas) or active cause, being passed by, on this system.

To the Sri chacra a variety of homage is made ; those herein specified are.

—Gura puja, homage to initiatory teacher.

—Pi'tha nyasam, finger signs to the pedestal.

—Vacya puja verbal homage.

—Atma puja mental homage ; with a placing many jewels in the chacra, and rendering homage to them. On the outside, the chacra puja, is puja to the dic palacas, homage to bind the gaurdians of the points, so that they may not interfere : 53 leaves in the grant'ha letter.

2. No. 14. Various pieces.

1.) Nava rátri kalpam, said to be from the Brahmánda puranam. In the asvija and cartikya month the Dasara or Durga festival occurs. The first nine days are the maha navami, and the 10th the vijayanti, commemorating the amazonian conquest of asuras. The mode of performing vows, and benefit of vows, and observances are herein stated—they are for ishta siddhi, all desirables ; not always benevolent—mode of homage to different forms of Parvati or Durga. (This homage prevails in Calcutta and Bengal ; and kaûla Brahmans are more numerous in that province, than in the Peninsula.)

2.) Sri vidya, this term which might be rendered "sacred learning" is technical with this class for their own religious way. It is herein said to be a revelation from Siva to Uma, of the mode of sacti homage.

1st. Adi chacra the original diagram.

2nd. the mantras or spells inscribed and repeated.

3rd. the order of the ritual service.

3.) Pancha dasi bhásyam, an explanation of the fifteen lettered spell ; connected with the praise of Cámácshi (lustful eye) the name of the sacti of Ecámbésvara at Conjeveram.

4.) Spurious upanishadas, Dévi upan : ammanya upan :—samhita upan :—samhita upan :—vyakya by Sita Ráma. Many so called upanishadas are coined by this sect.

5.) Sacti treya ashtaca vyakyánam, a comment, by Sita Ráma, on an octave by Seshachala, containing praise of three sactis, Cáli, Lacshmi, Sarasvati.

6.) Sarva ágama arnava sanyaca, compendium in four parts of the sea of the ágamas ; books of Saivas : leaf 1—105.

The book is long, of medium thickness, one board slightly injured.

3. No. 23. Sárada tilacam, slocas.

By Lacshmanáchárya, mantras. 1—25 padalams the end 1st leaf wanting.

—Shad kalà nyásam, finger signs, as to six venereal rites.

—Acshara dévata nirupanam, description of the mode of assigning a letter of the alphabet, and a divinity to each of the lunar mansions, as influencing respective births.

—Para mitra sódhana, examination of agreement, or difference of divinities in certain cases—kurmachacra vidhi a figure like a tortoise, with magic letters inscribed.

The four following pertain to temples.

—Mantapa lacshanam, properties of a temple-porch ; with ancurápana vidhi mode of sowing various grains before consecrating an image.

—Kunda lacshanam, properties of a pit for fire-offerings.

—Samanya avaranam, the initiatory teacher makes eight circles to instruct the disciple.

—Kalávati dicsha nirupanam, an introduction to the venereal rites of this sect in Saiva temples.

The following are of less restricted use.

—Vedamái dicsha nirupanam ; mode of instruction on the vedas.

—Dasacshari vagisvari, an original spell of ten letters with the diagram in which it is written.

—Agneya yentra, a diagram to the god of fire.

—Chaturacshara Lacshmi yentram, a four lettered spell to Lacshmi.

—Description of the pouring water over the different representations of deities.

—One lettered, and three lettered spells to Bhúvanésvari "lady of the world," in Saiva fanes.

—Durga hrüdayam, praise to Durga.

—A spell directed to the conquering Durga in temples. Spell of one letter to Ganapati, and various others of like kind, used in sacti worship : leaf 2—191. See under 2nd family.

The book is somewhat long, thick, old, damaged.

4. No. 34. Káma kalà vyákyánam, a comment : the slócas of the original are given, with a prose tica, in Sanscrit.

The comment by Punyánanda muni.

Tripura sundari, a form of Parvati, her excellence, and description of her form. Spells and diagrams, used in homage to that sacti. The sri chacra and other diagrams. Four forms of the sacti déva (kalà surupa) not decently translatable : leaf 1—23 complete.

The book is long, and without boards.

5. No. 50. Three pieces.

1.) Siva dhyánam, slócas incomplete ; and tatva dhyánam, meditation on Siva, and on truth ; this piece is not sacti.

2.) Syamala dhyánam, slócas incomplete, meditation on the "dark-colored" goddess. The dhyánam is used after the spells have been completed, to give intensity.

3.) Ashta trimsati kalà vyakyánam, a comment on some other book. It relates to thirty-eight forms of passive, or productive nature.

Leaf 1—5 written, 6—11 blank, 12—25 written.

The book is short, without boards, much damaged by termites.

6. No. 56. Three subjects.

1.) Sudarisana dhárana, diagrams and spells, named after the discus of Vishnu.

The Sudarisana diagram has six angles and in each one a bija letter.

The mode of infusing life, or deity, into that figure ; after which process it is worshipped. The fire offerings, and spells employed.

2.) Tripura Sundari puja vidhi ; slócas, mantras and prose. The motions of hands and fingers, and afterwards the mode of homage : complete.

3.) Lacshmi vishyam, incomplete ; some finger motions, spells, and meditation referring to worship of Lacshmi 25 leaves.

The book is short, without boards, slightly injured.

7. No. 63. Fifteen tracts, containing mantras and tantras.

1.) Tripura calpam, slócas, complete.

By Adinat'ha ánanda Bhâirava.

In 16 padalams.

Múla mantras or original spells, with japa and stottra, and the sacti gayatri. The intention of the whole to propitiate the sacti ; to bring her over to any purpose ; and to gain desirables.

Homage to the slipper of the goddess.

Mode of writing the chacra or diagram, with its properties and uses, spells to make the retinue of that goddess to enter the said diagram. With like matters of magic, and mystery.

2.) Vámakésvara tantram, 400 slócas, and therefore known as chátur sati.

Mode of homage to maha Tripura Sundari. In what way the goddess is to be brought over, and her acquired influence used.

The mantra and japam used in these ceremonies, with fire-offerings; in six padalams.

3.) Art'ha retna avali, this is the title of a comment on the foregoing chatur sati.

By Sri vidya ánanda nát'ha.

In 5 padalams prose; subject as in the original.

4.) Ruju vimari sani, or right consideration. By Sivánanda muni —a commentary on a work entitled Nitya shodasikarnava. In five padalams—it contains mantras, fire-offerings, japa, homage, &c. connected with this peculiar way, and having a reference to the sixteen auspicious ceremonies in general usage; though with differences of ritual.

5.) Tripurasara samuc'haya, múlam.

By Bhatta nága—in 10 padalams.

On the mode of the sacti homage. Occasion will occur for fuller details, further on in the volume.

6.) Sampradaya dípica, a comment on the foregoing piece, in 10 padalams.

Mode of purifying the elements—description of the form of the goddess; and her train, or retinue. Mode of homage.

7.) Uttara shadca múlam: said to be extracted from the Rudra yamulam, a kaula book; in 6 padalams.

8.) A comment on the same, without any distinct title: spells, and other matters relative to the kánla worship.

9.) Yogini hrüdayam, with the Vamakésvara tantram. In 3 padalams relative to the same sect.

10.) Yogini hrüdayam dípica.

By Amṛita ánanda yógi.

In 3 unmeshams (winks, or opening of the eyes). A comment on the foregoing piece. Yogini is usually understood of a female demon; but with this sect it appears to denote a minor portion of the universal female energy.

11.) Mátrïca chacra viréca; in 5 khandams, wisdom of the motherly diagram.

12.) A comment on the same, without title.

By Siva ánanda muni.

It contains the various modes, and object of forming diagrams for spells, on the female energy system.

13.) Nitya shódasasikárnava, the múlam or original of 4) sea of the 16 continual ceremonies.

14.) Manórama, delight of the mind; another comment on 13) in 22 padalams.

Details of spells and diagrams, with various other sacti matters.

15.) Siva samayanca matrica.

By Singha chiti nát'ha, in 16 ulásas.

The general subject relates to the kâula, or sacti system.

Leaf 2—368 the end, 1st leaf only wanting.

The book is long, very thick, on broad talipat leaves, damaged.

8. No. 64. Sect. 1. Various pieces.

—'Ananda tantram, taken from the Nitya shodasikárnava : supra 13)— slocas. In 20 padalams; various matters relating to the sacti homage.

—Maha svach'handu sára sangraha, mode of uniting the spells with their diagrams, as used in the homage to the goddess Tripura Sundari; the ritual homage and mental homage included, with stottra or praise.

Thirty-six mudras; seals or motions of hands and fingers used in spells; and mode of using them with effect; also fire-offerings employed.

—Sarira utpatti krama, on the formation, and growth of the fœtus in the womb.

—Guru mandala archana, homage to a form, or body of teachers— or to a particular diagram when possessed, or dwelt in, by the goddess.

For sect. 2. see XVI. Those spells, though more directly magical, yet all have a reference to the practices, and mysteries of this female energy homage.

The entire book is somewhat long, of medium thickness, on broad talipat leaves, and very much damaged.

9. No. 82. Syama archana tarangini.

By Visrésvara sómayajin.

Details of observances of the sacti puja imitating those of other sects.

Observances on first rising in the morning ; such as—cleansing the teeth, bathing, putting the black spot on the forehead, (their mark) using beads; and spells with them ; the repetition reckoned by the beads. The sandhya vandanam, morning, noon, and evening homage. The kálika gayatri or gayatri according to this sect ; with spell, muttered prayer, and pouring out water from the hands.

Dwára pála puja ; homage to two warders, or door-keepers of a temple.

Búda suddhi, a purifying the elements Mátrika mantra nyasa vidhi, mode of writing the maternal spell in a diagram.

Homa krama, mode of fire-offering.

Parivára devata archana, homage to the retinue of the goddess.

Syáma archana with stottra, homage, and with praise to the "dark colored" goddess.

This is the chief point in the book.

Madha dána vidhi, mode of giving honey or sweet, which designates fermented liquor or wine ; an essential part of rites in this system.

Bála Tripura Sundari mantra.

A spell to young Parvati, a term peculiar to this sect.

Sacti puja, other parts of the said homage.

The essential point is worship of a woman ; and specially of the vulva, as a type of the female energy ; as the Saivas make the linga a type of the masculine energy.

Homa vidhi, mode of fire-offering.

To kill sheep, and eat the flesh, and to drink wine or ardent spirits, in this homage, is stated to be no crime (contra to Saivas) but is rather an act of merit, or virtue.

Sri chacra archana, mode of ritual homage to the vulva-diagram ; which when life is put into it, by power of spells typifies the goddess—or universal Nature. Various other details of homage to the female energy ; such as shun the light, and are intentionally closely kept secret by votaries ; leaf 1—228.

The book is long, very thick, without boards, some leaves are shorter than others.

10. No. 112. Tripura Sundari tantram.

By Amṛita ánanda nát'ha.

Formules and other matters of rites to this goddess. Her glory. This sacti formed the whole world; in effect, the whole world is this sacti. Under its command Brahma, Vishnu, and Siva, act and obey.

Dêvi dhyána, meditation of the goddess Kâuláchara mahatmyam, legend of this mode of homage, and mahima its glory.

Sri chacra udhara krama. Mode of writing, or forming the special diagram. It is not strictly a circle, or wheel; but polygonal, with many angles; the spells used, with mode of muttered prayer. What may, and what may not be eaten when using the prayer. Bála puja vidhanam, manner of homage, Bála is an alias, and often prefixed to Tripura.

Mátangi calpam, benefit of homage to the "maternal member."

Anna púrna púja vidhanam—mode of homage to a Ceres, giver of food. Bhuvanésvari mantra; puja; yentra, or diagram, spell, ritual homage to the "lady of the earth-paradise."

Cáli prasamsa, praise of Cáli; also mode of homage to this sacti of Vira Bhadra. Cálica stuti, other laudation. [It is not quite certain whether kâula matam the designation which they adopt, is from kula tribe, or káli the sacti of Vira Bhadra.

Mátangi puja vidhanam mode of spell, fire-offering, prayer to the "matron-member."

Varahi mantra puja spell and homage to a sacti of Vishnu, but only used by Saiva sactis. Cáli mantra—Lacshmi mantra, Sarasvati mantra—three spells named after the Sactis—of Siva, Vishnu, and Brahma—for varied benefits expected. There are as many as 101 vräta calpas beginning as above with Bhuvanèsvari; which of course need not all be specified.

Devi sandhya kramam, mode of homage, morning, noon and evening to another variation, or Siva sacti.

'Ananda lahari vyakyánam.

By Sadà Siva. A comment on a piece of 40 slócas, by Sancarácharya incomplete, leaf 1—46, 49, and 1—4 and 1—13 and 21—23 and 76—98.

The book is long, thick, without boards, old, very much damaged; in various cases, only bits of leaves remaining.

11. No. 114. Many matters, but of one kind.

1.) Káma kalà angana vilásam.

By Punya ánanda, with a comment by whom unknown. Kama kala angana it appears is the name of a sacti; otherwise not translatable.

vilásam is amusement ; but commonly applied to books, or sections of books.

On the supremacy of the sacti, or female energy ; that is, as the Vaishnavas say that Vishnu is the supreme, and saivas that Siva is the supreme, so this book states, that the sacti is the supreme. Sacti stuti praise of this supremacy.

Sri chacra, or diagram representative ; mode of forming it. Description of its angles. Spells to bring different goddesses, or portions of the sacti into its various angles. Different mayas or forms ; such as icha sacti—gnána sacti—kriya sacti—zanta sacti—with the angles of the diagram, in which they dwell.

The múla sacti, central or principal form. The world is sacti mayam ; not so much illusion, as uncaused, or self developed.

Ashta kona, eight principal angles, and the powers or goddesses therein concealed or resident.

Shodasa ara, sixteen chambers, or compartments, contained within a circle, or other diagram. Their appropriate powers, form, mode of homage to them.

2.) Samvidya mahatmyam, or legend of "mixed knowledge ;" said to be from the book called Tripura siddhánta. In this system there are cant terms : samvidh is a term for opium, or spirituous liquor.

Kalanja vacshana prasamsa, praise of drinking wine, or ardent spirits.

Anacreon was a poet of this sect, which undoubtedly prevailed in ancient Greece ; and his pieces are so many sacred hymns : there are various counterparts in sacti books].

Properties descriptive of mixed beverages as kalanja, mingled with other things, as spices, &c.

Srî vidya prasamsa, praise of "sacred knowledge" (that is the sacti way) connected with magic rites to the Sri chacra, ut supra.

3.) Tripura upanishada, a spurious appendage to the vedas. In Hindu ethical books káma or lust, with it accompaniments, is ranked with deadly sins.

In this veda it is rated very highly ; declared most excellent, and virtuous. In various ways this sect goes contrary to the common sense, or universal opinions of mankind.

Connected, or distinct, are various yentras, diagrams, and mañtras, spells for various purposes ; as vyacra, to bind tigers ; sarpa, to bind serpents ; búda, to bind goblins ; préta, to bind dead bodies, or ghosts ; pisácha, to bind evil spirits.

4.) Bhâirava yentra and mantra; the term means a dog-headed form of Siva; but it is used technically, for spells, and ritual of a terrifying, or destructive kind, in which this sect largely deals; assuming the power of killing any one by magic, at pleasure.

5.) Sábara mantra, designates a spell to a hunting goddess; connected with it, as supposed, are :—

Praise of the sacti located in the centre of the sri chacra (quasi, os tincae). The spell, ritual, and manner homage paid to this sacti symbolically.

Dévi dicsha krama, formule of initiatory rite of discipleship to the worship of Dévi. Mode of forming the diagram, and inserting the spell.

6.) Minor pieces.

—Góvata prayaschita, a punishment, or expiation for killing a cow, incomplete.

—Lalita cavacham, praise and appeal to a goddess; name of frequent occurrence in the sacti system; complete.

—Ammanaya stava—praise of the Ammen, a goddess.

—Bhagalà muc'hi stottra and mantra this name like Lalita is untranslatable; but it designates a goddess: praise, and spell used in this sort of homage.

—Trayambaca mantra vyakyanam, a paraphrase on a spell named after Siva; but technical only. Meaning, and power of this spell stated.

—Yógána sássanam, sútras said to be on asceticism.

—Siva stuti, slócas, praise of Siva.

—Krishnashstottra sata namavali, prose, list of 108 names of Krishna with praise; these two last are foreign to the general subject.

—'Ananda vrăta udyápanam; mode of closing a kind of vow, or practice by females.

The leaves are not regularly strung: leaf 2—44, 81—98 and 106—120, and 126—141, other 10 leaves not numbered.

The book is long, of medium thickness, old, slightly damaged.

12. No. 130. Three pieces.

1.) Bála sahita Parámésvara puja vidhi. Mode of homage to young Parvati, together with Siva. This, though not strictly sacti, is known to be such by the term Bála, not used by Saivas.

2.) Shadchacra pracaranam; the language Telugu. Mode of six diagrams; either six concentric circles, or other distinct figures.

Seven petals are attached to form a lotos-flower; and in each of the petals a bîjácshara, or special letter is written. The mode of muttered prayer, used with this figure is given.

The piece has Sanscrit slócas, with Telugu stanzas, and prose.

3.) Makutágamam, crown-book; whether this is connected with the sacti system, or is general, is not known.

Description of the form of the world—of the seven seas—of the dwipas or great islands—of the nine planets, with their distances from each other—of the twenty seven lunar stages—on the formation of the foetus, and of limbs progressivly of the body, leaf 1—28, wanting 6.

The book is long, without boards, recent.

13. No. 143. Mátrica pushpa mála stottram, 55 slócas incomplete. By Sancarachárya.

The "maternal garland" lauded.

Alphabetical slocas from a to csha, each one beginning with a letter in order.

General subject—declaring that the sacti (or Parvati) is mother of the entire world—the passive energy in creation—together with description of beauty, personified as a female.

This book is formed of narrow slips of paper, pasted together.

14. No. 163. Kulárnva maha rahasyam, the great mystery of the caste sea.

In 17 ulasas complete; slocas.

[This sect term themselves the tribe or caste. From kula tribe, it is said comes kâula-matam, the sacti system: and its followers are kâulina (termed koolin in Bengal.) They affect to despise other devotees].

On daily modes of homage, and forms of prayer. Details as to the self-affected superiority of this class of worshippers. Description of spells of their usage. Their construction of the sense of the Vedas; what kinds of food they may, or may not eat. Mode of homage, on special days. Their special caste observances. Six different mode of initiation. One, a probation of six months, one of a month, one of a year, &c. Some household ceremonies, Kámya or sensual benefit, as to pleasure. The book will come under further, and possibly fuller notice, further on, in the 2nd Family of this class of MSS. leaf 1—73.

The book is long, of medium thickness, with wooden peg, slightly injured.

15. No. 164. Kularnava maha rahasyam.

In 17 ulásas—slócas—incomplete, just at the end only. Another copy of the above.

Mode of homage in temples. The greatness of their class, or tribe. Mode of mental homage. Modes of initiation. Observance on special days.

Properties of teacher and disciple. Patuka bhakti lacshanam properties (or otherwise description) of homage to the foot of the goddess. [Homage to the foot of Vishnu or Buddha, is common with Váishnavas and Báudhists].

Kuláchára vidhi—mode of caste observances; besides various other matters 67 leaves in all. This book is an authority—further notice, as stated above.

16. No. 806. For Sect. 1, see X. for Sect. 2, see XXVI. sect. 3, Lalitamba sahasranáma. Praise of a subordinate sacti, by 1008 names; stating her glory, and used in worship: 27 leaves, some of them destroyed by wear. This portion is more recent than the foregoing sections; the leaves are gnawed at one end: in all 122 leaves.

XXIX. Sectarial.

1. No. 27. Ráma púrva and uttara tápaniyam; each has 5 khandas. Alleged to be an upanishada of the at'harvana véda in the shape of veda verses; but, in all probability, spurious as an upanishada. It has a prose tica.

By Nágésvara.

It rejects the human nature of Ráma, and seeks to establish only his divine nature.

His chit surupa describe.

[Chit ákása is the most subtile ether possible; only just material, and the next thing to pure immaterial spirit].

In Para Brahm there is no bhéda, that is division or difference (implying that Ráma is Para Brahm.)

A tetragramma a, i, u, m, is applied to the family of Dasarat'ha, a, Bharata—i, Lacshmana—u, Satrugná—m, Ráma.

By this means a secret, or cabalistic meaning is sought to be given of the at'harvana védam.

In so large a book of course many other, but like, matters are contained.

At the end is the Curma chacra; on one leaf a diagram with letters relating to Ráma, to compare with the last letter of any person's name; and thence good or evil is inferred; a sort of divination.

2. No. 144. Saiva tantram ; slócas with vácya extracts.

A discrimination of the internal divisions among Saivas ; which tend, more or less, to mutual alienation.

1.) Sámáyya saivam, this class receive the Vaishnava system, together with their own : Vishnu and Siva are regarded as coequal.

2.) Púrva saivam. This class insist on the priority, and superiority of their own way ; with the supremacy of Siva

3.) Mitra saivam. They are friendly towards Vaishnavas ; intermarry with them.

4.) Suddha saivam. This class maintain that their system is the only pure system ; by consequence hostile to other systems.

5.) Srâuta saivam. This class profess to follow the védas only, as to sacrifices, which the smartas will not do.

6.) Marga sâivam, not particularly examined—the name denotes a peculiar way.

7.) Vira saivas—these carry the saiva credence to monstrosity, caricature, and violence ; and especially against the female sacti system of Bauddhas and Jainas. They are termed Jangamas (moveable symbols) and Aradhyas (worshippers. It is said they will not enter an ordinary Saiva temple : leaf 1—11 complete.

The book is of medium length, without boards. A translation of so brief a book would be interesting, and probably useful.

3. No. 263. Two pieces.

1.) Bhárata sárata sangraha stottram.

By Appaiya dicshada ; slócas, complete.

Various matters are extracted from the Bháratam, in order to shew that Siva is higher, or greater than Brahmà or Vishnu ; that Siva is Para Brahm ; that he is specially to be worshipped ; and is the First Cause of the Universe. leaf 1—22.

2.) Rámáyana tátparya nirnayam.

By Appaiya dicshada ; complete, slócas, and vácyas.

In like manner as in the foregoing case, extracts are made from the Rámáyanam, and are commented on ; in order to shew that Siva is greater than Ráma or Vishnu. Moreover that Siva is sarvóttama, superlatively best. Ráma did homage to Siva. Ráma consecrated, and established a symbol of Siva at Ramésvaram for worship. Wherefore Siva is Jagat-kárana, the cause of the universe, and also Para Brahm, the alone Supreme : leaf 1—21.

The book is long, of medium thickness, without boards, slightly injured.

There are tracts pro contra by Ananta tirt'ha ; vide supra XXVI.

4. No. 276. Saiva sanjivini, slócas, with a Canarese tica by Siddha linga Siva yogi 1—10 parich'hedas, leaves of the last one broken, otherwise complete.

Another copy of No. 144. On the different sub-divisions of the Saiva way, as Samanya—Púrva—Mitra—Suddha—Srauta—Marga—Vira, with Saivam attached to each term. In addition to what is noted above may be added, the mode of admitting a disciple or young pupil—difference of mudras, or finger signs in homage—sacerdotal ceremonies described. Brahma's form by some ; Vishnu by others ; used as a lingam. Ritual, in fanes, of those who insist on the duty of worshipping in a state of nudity. Ceremony of making a Sanniyasi at the point of death. Saiva ascetic observances ; by such as renounce domestic life, and live by mendicancy : 66 leaves.

The book is of medium size, without boards, the two last leaves broken.

5. No. 307. Uma samhita ; slócas, Siva to Parvati, incomplete ; said to be from the Scanda puranam.

Tale of the Rámáyanam ; a long yarn, twisted.

Description of Cailása—glory of the name of Rama—merit of even pronouncing it. Some vidhyadháras thereby obtained beatification. The Ramayanam contains 24,000, slócas—its excellence. After Ravana was killed Ráma being guilty of Brahmahatti placed a lingam at Ramésvaram ; in order to expiate the crime. This is the chief point ; and connected therewith is a brief abstract of the six candams of the Ramayanam : leaf 1—58.

The book is long, of medium thickness, without boards, recent.

6. No. 312. Siva gîta ; from the Padma puránam ; slócas ; 16 adhyayas, complete.

Merit of Saiva homage : and of walking round a temple, keeping it on the right side. Enlargement on the glory of Siva. Agastya taught Rama a dicsha or initiation to the homage of Siva. The samsaram or family life is proved by Agastya to be nisaram insipid. Some matters on vairagyam, or ascetic zeal.

On the power and kingly conduct of Rama. He was taught the Pasupati vrüta ; a Saiva observance, destructive.

After the performance of this ceremony and the like, Siva appeared to him : Rama obtained various kinds of gifts, in the shape of destructive weapon.

Description of the nature of Para Brahm. Siva shewed to Rama his visva rüpa or universal form : as in himself embodying all being, and things.

On the five elements as component parts of the human form, and on their destructibility. Details as to the body, and as to the soul. Upasanam, or mode of honoring Siva.

An account of mócsham or beatification. Description of the kind of bhakti or devotedness to Siva that insures to its possessor beatification. On the way to beatification; and on any one, who, being in that way, is fit for the boon.

By favor of Siva, the hero Ráma conquered Rávana, and others: leaf 1—36.

The book is long, of medium thickness, without boards, recent.

7. No. 378. Vaisya sandhya vandanam, slócas, mantras and prose complete.

Sálangáyana to Vaisya muni; said to be from the Scanda puranam.

On three varnas or Brahman, Cshetriya, Vaisya. Of the third, the form of morning and evening homage, directed chiefly to the sun. [The gayatri is similar in object; but the use of this is restricted to Brahmans): leaf 95—97. The book is of medium length, without boards. Compare with the following number.

8. No. 392. Kaniká puránam, slócas.

By Sálangáyana muni, in seven adhyáyams, supposed to be complete.

On the Váisyas: their genealogy—rules as to measures of yugas. Origin of the Vaisyas—legend of their devotedness to Siva—gift or favor thereby obtained—by command of Siva to Vishnu this merchant-caste became wealthy on earth. Legend of Bhascarácháryа their guru (not Rámanúja.) On the river Gâutama at Pánàr—their location, by there building a town—thence they emigrated and spread themselves over the towns of the Calinga dèsam. Account of Kusumàn—he was very charitable, and rich, as a Cómti—he performed a yagnya or sacrifice to obtain a child. By the favor of Parvati a son, and a daughter were born to him; their growth, nurture, &c.

Vishnu Verddhana of Talicàd, came on a conquering expedition. He saw the virgin daughter of Kusumàn; and desired to obtain her, details of this affair, as to the catastrophe, and deification of the young woman.

An episode is thrown in, as to Marcandeya, a devotee of Siva. This caste allows of the marriage of first cousins, or children of brothers and sisters. Mode of marriage described: leaf 124—159.

9. No. 496. Nárâyana sabda nirvasanam or Nárâyana pata nirvasanam.

The author endeavours by various authorities, as to roots, and by quotations from many books, so to turn, or twist, the name of Nárâyana, as to make it mean Siva. It is the only name of Vishnu which cannot easily be so turned. Sancarácháryа began this kind of twisting, which is congenial to the Hindu mind. If the name could be so perverted, the distinct existence of Vishnu would be thought blotted out, and that all his names are names of Siva. Hence the subject continues a controversy among Saivas; from Appaiya dicshada of old (as verbally stated) down to Ráma Sastri of Mysore, a Pandit in the Sudr Court, professing to have accomplished the grand object: leaf 47—64.

The book is long, without boards, recent.

10. No. 515. Avaróchána anubyúdi.

By Sancarácháryа, 144 slócas.

In this world ignorant people consider Nárâyana and Siva to be distinct, and different; but the author is of another opinion; and, addressing Ráma, observes—"You O! Para Brahm are in yourself Brahma, Vishnu and Siva." (I do not vouch for this piece being the genuine production of Sancarácháryа. However, he, with his Smarta followers, hold the entire unity, and agreement of Brahma, Vishnu, and Siva, and refuse to set the one against the other; as is very commonly done by other classes).

11. No. 525. Tatva kaustubham, or mata dúshana grant'ha, slócas prose.

Only the 1st parich'hedam, or section.

The puránas which declare Vishnu, to be supreme are of the quality of támasa, or darkness, while the linga and other Saiva puránas are sátvica or excellent.

By means of this last purána it is proved that Siva is tatva purusha, the "real man" or supreme Being; as such his glory is stated. It leans to the advaita system; but is rather Saiva in the extreme, leaf 26—36.

The book is somewhat long, without boards, recent.

XXX. Tales.

1. No. 605. An assemblage of classic poems: in whole or in part. Some of these pieces are elsewhere entered; but this book, as a whole, can only be classed here.

1.) Cumara sambhava, by Cáli dása.

The 7th sargam 89 slócas of the múlam or original ; sanjivini, a comment on the 7th sargam.

By Kola chéla malli nát'ha.

Also the 8th sargam, original, and comment ; both complete.

In the 7th is an ornamental description of Parvati, as to personal beauty, at the time of her marriage ; and, in the 8th, details following marriage, immodesté.

2.) Mégha sandésam, the púrva and uttara, by Cáli dása ; and comment on both of them, by Kola chéla malli nat'ha.

This, as an entire copy, might be put up as a distinct book.

3.) Kirartarjuniyam : slócas.

By Bháravi.

From the 1st to the 8th sargam.

Ganda pata, a comment on the same, the comment following each sargam, and distinct. By Kola chéla malli nat'ha.

The general subject Arjuna's penance on the Himályas.

4.) Mágham, slócas.

By Vanin Magha—5 sargams.

—Sarvanushu, a comment on the same. By Kola chéla malli nat'ha. It follows each sargam, distinct from the original.

The general subject Krishna's expedition against Sisupala, with description of halts, or military encampment, and with ornamental, and erotic matter ; much of this last throughout, though not entirely such : leaf 5—270, but not so written.

The book is long, of double thickness, with a wooden pin, recent.

2. No. 610. Nâishadam—slocas.

By Srî Harisha cavi, the 2nd sargam.

A prose comment on the same.

By Kola chéla malli nát'ha ; in the book this is placed first.

The hamsa bird describes to Nala the great personal beauty of Damiyanti ; leaf 1—29.

The book is of medium size, without boards, recent.

3. No. 611. Sanjivini, a prose comment on the Megha sandésam 1st part only.

By Kola chéla malli nat'ha ; defective.

The 1st part is descriptive of localities ; and extends to the arrival of the cloud at Alacapuri : leaf 1—48, from 2 to 20 new leaves.

The book is long, of medium thickness, without boards.

4. No. 643. Vicramarca cat'ha.

Prose with an occasional sloca. Tales by thirty-two nymphs, imprisoned as statues on the steps of Vicramarca's throne. On Bhója rája attempting to ascend, each statue told a tale of Vicramarca's great liberality, causing Bhoja to retire abashed ; see former notices ; leaf 1—34.

The book is long, with bamboo boards, injured on one edge of the book.

5. No. 656. Naishadam, slócas.

By Sri Harisha 1—3 sargas.

Jívátu, a comment on the same.

By Kóla chéla malli nát'ha.

The size of Nishadha désam. Description of Náishadha or Nala—his mode of charitably protecting the country—his catching a hamsa bird in a pond ; and, at the bird's request, sending it on a marriage errand to Damayanti : leaf 1—77 and 13 blank at the end.

The book is long, of medium thickness.

6. No. 658. Hamsa sandésam, 110 slócas.

By Vedantáchárya—2 uchvasams. Hamsa sandésa tippani—a tica or comment on the same, probably by the same author.

Ráma being on Malya hill saw a hamsa bird in a pond, near at hand ; and, as he had come to a knowledge of Sita's abode, through the means of Hanuman, he caught the bird, and charging it with a detail of his affections &c. he despatched the bird with the message. A mere poetical play of imagination, apparently an imitation of the foregoing, and following works.

Descriptive details of places by the way, and fully so of Lanca, with a description of Sita's person.

The book is long, of medium thickness, without boards, injured.

7. No. 659. Megha sandésam, mulam.

By Cáli dása.

The púrva 67 slócas ; the uttara 53 slócas the uttara is erotic, but the whole is tolerably well known, through the medium of Wilson's translation, leaf 1—23.

The book is short, without boards, slightly injured.

8. No. 661. Naishadha vyakya—a tica.

By Mahobadyaiya, 5—9th sargam.

5. Nárada went to Indra with intelligence of Nála's marriage contract with Damayanti in order to embarrass the same ; recommending Indra to become a suitor.

6. Indra, Agni, Yama, Varuna, these four set out to meet Nala; and, on doing so put him in fear, charging him to go and say, that each one of them would come and marry Damayanti: Nala engaged to do so. (A sort of proceeding termed dâudhya.)

7. Nala in disguise went and spoke with Damayanti; and delivered the messages sent by Indra, and the others. She declined the proposals, being engaged to Nala.

8. Description of Damayanti's person, from her foot to her head.

9. The aforesaid four came in disguise, and sat down to discourse with Damayanti leaf 1—161.

The book is somewhat long, thick, old, not injured.

9. No. 664. Nalódaya tica, a comment on a poem by Cáli dása the Nalódayam.

By Aditya suri. 3 uchvasams complete, the 4th defective. A description of Nala's person, and good qualities; and the like as to Damayanti—not beyond: leaf 1—35.

The book is long, without boards, slightly injured.

10. No. 671. Nalódayam, mulam.

By Cáli dása, with a tica by 'Aditya suri. 1—3 uchvasams—Nala and Damayanti described. A fragment of two leaves on the same subject, grant'ha letter from some other book: leaf 1—76.

The book is of medium size, very narrow leaves, without boards, damaged.

11. No. 672. Bhoja charitra; slócas, with prose, said to be complete.

While Bhoja ruled, he partronized many Panditas, and poets, the former taught him learning, the latter panegyrised him, and all received gifts. Cáli dása, Bhava bhuti, and Dandi were distinguished; and the first one was a great favorite with Bhoja. It is stated in the book, that Bhoja as a trial of skill gave the three poets three words, without meaning, to be the close of a distich. These words were merely gulu, gugulu, gugulu. Bhava bhuti and Dandi failed: Cáli dasa produced this distich.

Jambu p'halani paguváni patanti vimále.

Jalé kapi kamhita sácámbhyò gulu gugulu gugulu.

'A Jambu tree with branches over a pond bore ripe fruit; a monkey shook the 'branches, and the fruits dropped into the water, with the continuous sounds—gulu gugulu 'gugulu.'

Bhoja acknowledged this to be his meaning; having seen the thing when out hunting.

Details of Bhoja's conduct in the management of his kingdom.

The book is long, of medium thickness, without boards, recent, slightly injured.

12. No. 686. Bhásha manjeri, prose.

By Vengalárya vibhuta; incomplete.

In Calinga désam was a king named Subhutti. A Brahman went thither, from Conjeveram, and had an interview with that king; who asked who he was, whence he came, and by way of what countries, with the like. The questions and answers yield a continuous colloquy, expressly intended to aid students in acquiring the language of polite conversation—the object of the slight fiction employed, as a vehicle. See another copy 24 No 744 infra; leaf 1—10.

At the end of the book are two leaves Samasya parnam, an amusement: one person is to guess at what another person thinks in his mind, by means of one word, or more than one. Example, one person stated ten different synonymes for the word samudra, sea, and then demanded what was his mental thought. The other replied that he thought on the ten heads of Rávana for reasons given: 12 leaves, 15 blank.

The book is of medium size, without boards, recent.

13. No. 691. Vicramarca charitra—prose with some slócas.

This copy is very much damaged, and thereby rendered incoherent, and not complete. The places dipped into were, hunting in a forest—presents to Panditas from various countries—rule of his kingdom. See 4. No. 643.

The book is long, thin, without boards, very old, and greatly injured.

14. No. 696. Bútanandana, a comment on the Nalódayam, with the original slócas by Cáli dása 1—4 uchvasams, the tica by Surapura Vencatácháryа. Tale of Nala the hamsa bird—description of the person of Damayanti—marriage.

The book is long, of medium thickness, without boards, recent, slightly injured.

15. No. 698. Mégha sandésa vyákyánam, tica form, without the mulam. The comment on purva and uttara both complete.

A yacsha banished by Curéra, charged a cloud to carry a message to his wife—progress of the cloud by Ougein to Alacápuri—minute description of the person of the yacsha's wife—translated; leaf 1—88.

The book is short, of medium thickness, slightly injured.

16. No. 701. Visva guna darisanam.

By Harisana pála Vencatácháryа, slócas and prose mingled; complete.

A discourse between two gandharbas, as a vehicle—Krisanu abusing and Visvavasu praising, the sun—Narayana; Bhadrica azrama—Casi—Ayodhya—Gurjuru-désam—Maharashtra désam—Carnata-désam—Yadava cshétram—Andhra-desam—Canchi-puri, Chóla and Pandiya-désams—Siva, Vishnu, and other gods—Brahmans, Cshetriyas, Vaisyas, Sudras, Chandálas—Bhagirati and other rivers. The Tengalas of Conjeveram come in for abuse alone which is the intended sting of the hornet : leaf 1—46.

The book is long, of medium thickness, without boards, a little injured.

17. No. 708. Mágha vyakyánam prose.

By Kóla chéla malli nat'ha.

Only the 8th sargam, 17 leaves.

Krishna's sports in water with women : plucking flowers in the forest : and the like. 75 slocas of the 7th sargam, múlam only on 5 leaves added.

The book is of medium length, thin, without boards, injured.

18. No. 714. Mágham, tica only.

By the same author.

75 slócas of the 7th sargam are explained, the gathering of flowers during the march of Krishna's army ; leaf 38—52.

The book is of medium length, without boards, injured.

19. No. 716. Mágha cávyam, slócas.

By Mágha cavi.

The 6th and 12th sargams, with a tica on the same, by the above author. The 6th contains a description of the six seasons. The 12th relates to exercising elephants, and horses in military evolutions : leaf 24—46 and 59—80.

The book is of medium size, without boards, slightly injured.

20. No. 721. Jivátu, a comment on the Naishadham ; the 9th sargam only 1—106 slocas.

By Kóla chéla malli nat'ha.

Nala, disguised, discharged his commission, and Damayanti refused to marry any other than Nala ; leaf 1—24.

The book is of medium length, without boards, somewhat injured.

21. No. 727. Sect. 1. Naishadham.

By Sri Harisha cavi, mulam only, 1st and 2nd sargams, as far as to Nala's catching a hamsa bird : 18 leaves.

Sect : 2, 3, 4 alibi.

22. No. 735. Naishadham, múlam only.

By Sri Harisha cavi.

The 5th sargam, 138 slócas complete.

Náreda's visit to Indra to disturb the intended marriage ; and the professed suitorship of Indra, Yama, Agni, and Varuna.

The book is of medium length, without boards, very slightly injured.

23. No. 741. Bhoja charitram, cháttu slócas, grant'ha letter.

Distinct distichs by various persons on the good disposition of Bhoja raja; such as courage, fortitude, gentleness, generosity, &c. and these variously described so as to display the verbal skill of the authors: leaf 85—91.

The book is long, without boards, injured.

24. No. 744. Bhásha manjeri, prose, complete.

A colloquy between a learned Brahman and a king. The former asking a gift and the latter putting a variety of questions; such as, who are you? what family have you? and the like—only extensively varied. The Brahman replies, and the king dismisses him respectfully, sending him home. See 12 No. 686. As there noted, the intention seems to be to teach the modes of polite language to persons unused to courts. As the language is a dead one, except among Brahmans, its usefulness is less than would be otherwise the case: leaf 1—20, and 40 leaves blank.

The book is long, without boards, recent, a dye has been used to make the letters more legible.

25. No. 769. Naishadham, múlam.

By Sri Harisha.

3rd to 6th sargam, with a tíca to the same.

By Kóla chéla malli nát'ha.

From Nala's catching the hamsa bird, and sending it with a message to Damayanti, down to the return of the bird, with a favorable reply and his preparing to journey: leaf 1—83.

The book is long, of medium thickness, has only one board, and is damaged.

26. No. 773. Damayanti cat'ha.

By Trivicrama Bhatta, slócas with prose mingled, not tica 1—5 uchvasams, only a little of the 6th.

Description of the good disposition of Nala, and of his bodily form. Kundina the town of Damayanti is described. A description of her person. Her love for Nala.

There is a studied use of slésha, or words of double meaning; for example—"she is like the sandhya" or twilight. Now the dawn and evening are sometimes red, but this also denotes desire, so that the meaning is "of roseate hue, and fond of Nala." 46 leaves.

The book is long, on talipat leaves, no boards.

XXXI. Vaishnava.

1. No. 204. Driddha bhakti lacshanam or quality of firm devotedness; from the Vishnu dhermóttara—27 adhyáyas—from the midst of a larger book; the general subject is the Vaishnava dhermam or duties of Vaishnavas; Garuda to Marichi.

The book is long, of medium thickness, very old, and very much damaged.

3. No. 233. Vishnu dhermóttára: slócas.

1—27 adhyáyas 1st and 27th defective.

Excellence of Prahláda, as a devotee of Vishnu, and excellence of dhermam or equitable benevolence—mode of homage to (aditi) a guest—the due deportment of a Vaishnava—duties and deportment of a chaste wife. On the merit of going to look at (i. e. pay homage to) an image of Vishnu—on the value of the tulasi plant, and of sprinkling water, in which it has been put, on the head. Value of giving lamps (or lights). A special value attaches to gifts for the homage of Vishnu, on the full moon of Vaisac'ha month, or on the Srávana dwádasi, and on some other days. To go and see a temple of Vishnu is of great merit. Value of sálagramams or petrified shells. Merit of digging tanks or pools, and of planting groves of trees near them. Mode of doing homage to Brahmans. Great value of gifts made to them : such as a cow, land, food, &c.

Importance of the fast on the eleventh lunar day. Description of naraca and sverga; yama puri is the capital of the former ; sufferings there described, and the happiness of sverga, the paradise of Indra.

Nyána yógam—merit of knowledge, with reference to beatitude.

Description of the four ages, krita, tréta, dwápara and cali—with other matters.

The book is long, of medium thickness, recent.

4. No. 368. Sésha dherma, extracted from the Hari vamsa, slócas.

By Suta. 57 adhyáyas incomplete.

Specification of various kinds of dhermam. Glory of Vishnu, and of his acts in creation, &c. Account of various votaries of Vishnu—and a discrimination of what such ought to be in mildness of temper, and in right conduct. The merit of gifts of food, of a cow, of land. Praise of Sat; that is an excellent man. The benefit of friendship, or intercourse with such a one. Value of the sálagrama shells. Benefit of bathing in the Ganges, and of observing the 11th lunar day, as a fast. As also of giving water to thirsty travellers, and of honoring guests. Benefit of walkng round a Vaishnava temple, keeping it on the right hand. On the great sufferings of the fœtus, when confined in its mother's womb. On family troubles ; which are very great. Discrimination as to a wealthy man, and a fraudulent debtor. The former, if charitable, will go to Sverya after death, the other to Naraca. The excellency of the Cavéri river—of the chandra pushcara pool near it—glory of Rangha (or Vishnu) dwelling there. Legends of other temples, as Vencatadri (Tripeti) Hastigiri (Conjeveram) their excellence. On the birth day of Krishna; and on the nine days' festival to Ráma. On vows of four months' continuance. On a special observance, on the srávana dwádasi. Benefit of fasts on Sundays, and Mondays—with various other, and similar matter ; leaf 1 –180.

The book is somewhat long, thick, old, but not injured.

5. No. 373. Capila dhénu lacshanam.

Properties of the tawny-colored cow. Vaisampayan said that Késava told this legend to Dherma putra. It is an extract from the 100 adhyáyams of the Vishnu dhermótara sastra. Some of the contents—qualities of the tawny cow—its milk is excellent for hómas and the like matters. To eat its flesh is a crime leading to Naraca. If a Sudra keep such a cow, and sell its milk his doom is Naraca. A Brahman must not accept a gift from such a Sudra—if he does, a prayaschita or atonement must be made. The milk of this kind of cow is good to be used in all yagnyas or sacrifices. Laudation of the tawny cow. Benefit of walking round it. There are seven varieties of this species of cow. A gift of this cow to a Brahman, or a temple, removes all sins—when it is proper to be given. More laudation of the cow. The five products, if taken inwardly, produce great benefit (licet, milk, curds, butter-oil, sed—urine, dung ?) A Brahman must not sell the milk of such a cow to a Chandála (or outcast). If a Chandála even taste it, his lot is Naraca !

Leaf 1—9 and 4 blank ones left incomplete.

The book is long, without boards, recent.

6. No. 387. For Sect. 1, see XXVI.

Sect. 2. Sesha dhermam, slócas.

1—23 adhyáyams—incomplete from the ascharya parvam of the Bháratam.

On the glory of Hari (or Vishnu)—Homage and devotedness to Hari lauded. Excellence of gifts, as of land, a cow, food, water, and marriage portions to virgins. On the benefit of strict truth—a lie should not be told, even to preserve life. On the great benefit to be expected by any ruler by duly protecting his people. Benefit of homage, on times termed punya kálam meritorious. Benefit of giving sálagrama shells. On the five colors—Brahman, Cshetriya, Váisya, Sudra, and on the four orders Brahmáchári, Grihast'ha, Vanaprast'ha and Sanniyasi. Their respective duties, and proper deportment. Discrimination as to degrees of crimes ; specifying such as lead to Yama's world. Explanation of conception in the womb ; which is almost always made a part of the Hindu religion—with various other matters : leaf 1—57, and 29 left blank.

7. No. 403. Four pieces.

1.) Tatva dipam, an illustration of the charana slóca, an especial one, with a very long paraphrase.

By Sáumya jamatur muni—slócas are quoted in exemplification, and also passages from the Védas. Atma surupam nature of the human soul. Srima Náráyana surúpam, on the nature of deity ; an enforcing the Náráyana mahatmyam and on the excellency of the Náráyana mantra.

On séshi God, and seshatva mankind. On three modes of obtaining beatification; being karma, gnána, and bhakti. Discussion concerning them.

[Karma here means the old doctrine of sacrifice—gnánam, the refinement of the Sanc'hya, Bauddhist, and Advaita tenet that knowledge alone suffices, bhakti is devoteeism to any particular god, as Vishnu or Siva exclusively].

A casuistic doubt resolved—whether when a disciple has been taught by a guru, and has received his instruction, he will assuredly obtain beatification? The affirmative asserted.

Glory of Nárayana as the great First Cause, producing Rudra and all beings, or things besides.

2.) Stóttra bhásya—tica form, complete.

By Vedantáchárya.

In four adikarams or chapters.

Nárayana has no equal—He is all—his glory stated—reference to a hieroglyphical form with shell, discus, and other emblems—these are discussed, with laudation.

3.) Yeti indra mata dipica, a comment on another book; prose form; complete in 10 avatáras.

By Srînivasáchárya:

This writer adopts the dialectics of the nyáya school; 1, pratyacsha; 2, anumánam; 3, sabdam; 4, pracrüti; 5, kala; 6, nitya vibhúti; 7, buddhi; 8, jiva; 9, Isvari; 10, dravya; and, by these logical appliances, illustrates a book called Yeti indra mata, in a way peculiar to some ascetic of a Vaishnava class; probably partaking of the Sanc'hya-Yoga school of Patanjali. Also some vedanta discussion, on the difference between God and the human soul; which difference is here maintained.

4.) Other vedanta matter, but Vaishnava in kind—prose incomplete.

The difference between the human soul, and God maintained; under the terms jivátma, and Paramátma: 220 leaves, and 25 blank leaves.

The book is somewhat long, very thick, with a wooden pin, recent. [It bears upon the religious, and philosophical controversies of Peninsular India.]

8. No. 413. Stottra bhásyam, prose.

By Vedantácharya, in 4 adikárana complete, a comment on, Alavantár stóttra, a work by an Aluvar on Rangha nát'ha at Trichinopoly, as Vishnu or Nárayana. See 7 No. 403. 2.) supra.

There is no superior to this God—no one equals him—inferior to none—Lord of the universe. He has no evil quality, (such as the támasa gunam).

A description of the image of Rangha nayaca from foot to head—with some véda extracts in proof or illustration : leaf 1—76.

The book is long, of medium thickness, old, damaged.

9. No. 416. Adhyátma chintámani, 1—132 slócas. Meditation on the means, Vaishnava in kind, of obtaining mukti, or beatification; in contemplative distichs, 12 leaves. The book is short, without boards, old, damaged.

10. No. 420. Six pieces.

1.) Vishnu chintiyam—a comment on the Vishnu puránam—only the tica.

1—6 amsas or parts.

1 has 1—22 adhyáyas complete.
2 „ 1—16 „ „
3 „ 1—10 and 16—18 adhyáyas defeetive.
4 „ 1—10 „ „
5 „ 1—38 „ complete.
6 „ 1—8 „

2.) Nyasa tilaca tica, complete.

By Raghu pati, a comment on a book named nyasa tilaca.

On the duty of abandoning wife and family, and all property : giving them up to the God Rangha as if the spot (tilaca) on his forehead; (and of course for the benefit of the Brahmans his servants.)

3.) Rahasya manjeri, slócas.

By Saúmya jámatur yogéndra.

The suitable dispositions of teacher and disciple—proper times of giving instruction. The secret is the duty of renouncing family cares, and manjeri garland is merely ornamental, quasi the "dupe's chaplet." The piece is complete.

4.) Nyása vimsati vyakyà—tica only.

By Náráyana muni, a Sanniyasi, properties of teacher and disciple; duty of relinquishing worldly cares, and the excellency of that mode of conduct.

5.) Sri vachana bhúshana vyakyà.

By Jaganát'ha.

The Sri vachana bhúshana appears to be a Sanscrit book in slocas; this is a comment on it, in which Tamil stanzas are extracted from the tiruvayi morhi. A mixture of véda and vedanta doctrine applicable to Vaishnavas; and in general, the glory of Vishnu stated.

6.) Rahasya treya sara sangraham.

By Vedantáchárya.

This is an epitome of some other book. The "triple mystery" is variously expounded ; this book appears to refer to theological disputes—a threefold mode of obtaining beatification.

(1.) By sacrifices—the carma marga : if not available, from its expensiveness, then.

(2.) Gnána margam, wisdom's way, by acquiring the hidden meaning of books, and learning the true nature of God.

(3.) In default of that, from want of learning, then bhakti margam, devoteeism to a god or teacher, abstract meditation ; ignorance the mother of devotion : the issue beatification, briefly stated.

Some discussion on the átma surupam and Parama surúpam, or nature of the human soul and divine soul as distinct, separate : 240 leaves, 20 blank.

The book is long, of double thickness, leaves narrow, recent.

11. No. 432. Two pieces.

1.) Vivátart'ha sangraham.

By Rangha nát'ha a few slócas, but chiefly prose, complete.

In order to obtain beatification three ways are sometimes specified, that is—karma—gnána—bhakti, but better than these is parapatti margam, or implicitly obeying a teacher. That is, a stupid, or ignorant man should go to a teacher, and be taught to repeat mantras, &c. which is the road to beatification.

The book meets an objection against Vishnu in the form of Ráma : who, on losing Sita, and not being able to find her, wept. The book states that this was only a worldly spectacle, or something to exhibit before men ; unreal. All must worship Vishnu.

2.) Prapanna párijátam, slócas, the flower of paradise.

Description of the form of Náráyana—Description of the form of Visvacsena, and of other attendants around Vishnu. Some say that Lacshmi is not glorious ; this book asserts her glory.

Qualities of a teaching guru, and on the example which a disciple receives from him. Among other matters it is stated, that criminal intercourse with women is an obstacle to the attainment of beatification.

Leaf 1—24.

The book is long, without boards, recent.

12. No. 479. Anusmṛti vyakyánam.

The múlam has 138 slócas herein given; ascribed to Vyása. The comment by whom not stated. As far as 50 slócas the comment is in Telugu; the remainder Sanscrit prose.

The excellence of Vishnu described. Praise of Vishnu with connected matter. Vishnu is Paran, or Supreme; and also Jagat kárana, the cause of the universe. By remembering, and repeating the names of Vishnu all sin departs. His glory. He is Para Brahm; and like matter.

On Vásu déva or Krishna, and mantras directed to him. Many other exclusively Vaishnava matters, sectarial: leaf 1—160.

The book is of medium size, old, without boards.

13. No. 529. Sṛuti gíta bháshya, a prose comment on the 92nd adhyáyam 10th scandam of the Bhágavatam; also with some extracts from vedas, in proof of some assumed positions.

On gentleness, and other mild dispositions which are described; including also fortitude, and bravery, or courage; such as tend to victory. After these matters, it is stated that Náráyana possesses those excellent dispositions, and that he is Para Brahm; which point is sought to be proved from the védás. On the glory of Náráyana.

The book is short, and thin, without boards, damaged in the middle.

XXXI. Veda and Vedanta.

1. No. 66. Nṛisinha púrva tápaniya vyákyánam, slócas, with prose. By Sancarácháryа, complete.

Homage to the man-lion avatára of Vishnu; zánti litany, homa fire-offering—mantra spell or prayer, dhyánam, meditative intensity. The cavacha mantra or spell for protection. Benefit of homage rendered to this form of Vishnu.

The Nṛisinha mahatmya or legends concerning this incarnation. There are internal sub-divisions; but the scope of the whole is the glory of this incarnation: leaf 1—173 and 40 blank.

The book is short, thick, somewhat old.

2. No. 70. Táittiriya upanishada bhásyam.

By Sancarácháryа; the sṛuti and the vácya or comment, both complete.

An explanation is given of this appendage to the vedas, so as to support the advaita scheme. Other portions of the vedas introduced are interpreted, according to that system.

The jiva or human soul, and Brahm God, are described, and are only one.

One leaf, the end of the kali santaruna upanishada: leaf 1—22 and 1—36 and 1—9.

The book is very long, of medium thickness, without boards, worm eaten.

3. No. 74. Sect. 1. Namaca mantra, with stottras; from the veda.

Purusha sucta, a hymn relating to Vishnu, used with a fire offering of the red butter oil; incomplete.

Rudra prasna, mode of using a part of the védas, relating to Rudra or Siva; for Sect. 2, see XVI: a comment on the two Saiva portions of the above in Telugu; the spells are for various purposes, some good, some malignant: leaf 1—7 and 1—48.

The book is long, of medium thickness, a little injured.

4. No. 155. Two pieces.

1.) Ch'hardi Bráhmana—a part of the véda in 12 panchadis or sections, complete. Yágnyaválcya states that such Brahmans as are unacquainted with the védas may study this portion; and they will acquire the merit of knowing the whole: 6 leaves.

2.) Brahma yágnyam, complete, a mantra daily used with pouring out water from the hands to gods, rishis and ancestors. Sancalpa mantras, used to commemorate the date of any special act, or ceremony: 6 leaves.

The second piece is shorter than the other; no boards.

5. No. 226. Sect. 1. Préti sácyam or acshara samámanayam, incomplete: from the yajur védam: on accents, when intoning the védas—different quantity of letters—half measure is termed venjaman: from what organs the letters proceed; as guttural, labial, &c.

Three accents, acute, grave, circumflex: leaf 1—13.

For Sect. 2, see XIII.

6. No. 405. Rámánanda vṛitti, a paraphrase by Dherma balu on a book entitled Rámánanda sútra: the original not here, 1—4 adhyáyas; to each one 4 patas, complete.

On the nature of the jivátma and Paramátma, or human and divine souls—proof from the védas that the two are distinct. The body, as compounded of five elements, is anityam, mortal. According to the védas the human soul is liable to the rajò and támò gunas, or irascible, and depraved dispositions. Para Brahm has only the sat guna, or excellent disposition. He is omniscient; the human soul not so. As lord of the world he has nitya âisva- ryam, eternal fulness. The glory of his world. Description of such as are entitled to beatification. Other matters. Vaishnava—vedanta or visishta, and condemnatory of the advaita system.

The book is of medium length, very thick, recent.

7. No. 409. Vedánta paribhásha, an epitome of the vedanta system.

By Dherma rája advari indra.

1—8 parich'hedas, complete.

1, pratyacsha, self-evident proof of deity,

2, anumánam, proof of the same by inference.

3, upamánam, the same by analogy.

4, ágamam, by vedas and other authority.

5, art'ha ápatti ; 6, anubalabdi ; 7 vicharam.

8, prayójanam.

The world is a lie. Para Brahm is without body—without gunas or qualities. Four pralayas described, sleep and dreaming being one, and the delusion of matter another. To know the entire védas causes inward joy, which is ánanda rupa Para Brahm. Under 8 it is stated that gnánam wisdom is mukti or beatification.

The book is long, thin, old, without boards.

8. No. 410. Three tracts.

1.) Védart'ha sangraham, prose.

By Ramánújácharya complete.

Concerning the four colors or castes, and the four azramas of celibate student, householder, hermit, and strict ascetic.

The human soul is anitya gnáni, or of limited knowledge, the Paramátma is nitya gnáni, or a being of eternal or infinite knowledge. There is a knowledge extending to all things, the limited human soul knows only a few of those things—with like argument of the visishta advita, and against the advâita dogma.

2.) Vélanta dîpam or Brahma-sutras.

By Rámanúja muni.

It contains the Brahma sutras, ascribed to Vyasa, with vedanta prose, and a tica or paraphrase to both; each 4 adhyáyas having each one 14 pátas complete.

Discrimination as to the jivátma and Paramátma, or human, and divine souls. Para Brahm has sat gunas or good qualities, some perfections described—bad dispositions relate only to the human soul. Para Brahm is the generator, or primal cause of all beings, and things besides.

[This tract is as much opposed to the Sanc'hyas as to the Advaitas; and, in so far as this alone is concerned, Rámanúja is worthy of honor. I have observed that his system comes nearer to Christian theology than any of the adverse systems].

3.) Bháshya védanta vyakya art'ham.

Bháshya is Rámanúja's comment on the end of the védas, or vedantam. As that comment was rather obscure, another was made on it, also obscure. The present is an explanation of the second comment by Rámanúja; that is a further elucidation of his own work. It contains the usual discussions as to the jivátma, and the paramátma—but this tract 3) is incomplete.

The following are some included matters.

—praja dherma nirúpanam —popular morality ; mukti vicharam an enquiry as to beatification, and the persons who shall attain to it. On two pralayams, or deluges partial, universal ; there is a technical use of this term. See 7 No. 409.

This book is somewhat long, very thick, leaf 1—244, small handwriting, a very neat book, recent.

9. No. 412. For Sect. 1 see XI. For section 2 see V.

Sect. 3. Vedanta sáram.

By Rámanúja yogéndra.

Sutras, réda vácyas, and prose.

1—4 adhyáyas, to each one 4 patas or 16 patas complete.

On the jivátma and paramátma—their bhédam, or difference. The human soul is in one sense anityam, finite ; as in certain cases, it merges in the supreme, and loses identity. The paramátma is properly nityam or eternal, a parte ante et posteriori.

This book contains the statement of a system ; but not so controversially as in some other productions by Rámanúja. It obtains very much among Vaishnavas around Madras.

In all 3 sections 78 leaves.

The book is of medium size, old. [I was told that it had been sent to Benares, and was returned thence.]

10. No. 433. Vedanta sáram.

By Rámanújáchárya, prose.

1—4 adhyáyas to each 4 patas.

This appears to be the first comment on the last tract, above ; further explained, in a fuller bháshyam, see 8 No. 410. 3).

The properties of Para Brahm as the First cause of the universe. On the powers or faculties of the human soul, so as to cause any effect without. This power comes from the sanction, or permission of Para Brahm. Some extensive details on the glory of the said Para Brahm; which cannot be fully expressed. Even the vedas do not contain all concerning it. Omniscience, immutability, eternity, freedom from ignorance, and every other defect, goodness, pity, compassion, patience. These benevolent qualities are to be compared to a sea. The advaita system, as to nirguna, or no quality in the Divine Being, is opposed. On chit and achit, or living beings, and inanimate things; these are in a manner, the body with which the deity is clothed (following the pantheistic vedanta.) The advaitas do not recognise a difference in chit and achit. Rámanúja holds a relation of the soul to deity, and the soul an amsa or part, without absolute unity. The vinculum of relation must be sought for in his works. [In the Christian system the vinculum is the Holy Ghost; and this system rejects any clothing of deity with matter, as body to a soul.]

The book is of medium size, recent.

11. No. 441. An upanishada said to be of the yajur védam. It can be made out that the subject relates to the world, the human soul, and Brahm, or God. It has only the ancient text: leaf 1—28.

The book is of medium size, without boards.

12. No. 442. Five pieces.

1.) Purusha súcta bhasyam, a hymn or passage from the vedas, having reference to Vishnu: its meaning explained, as to the divine nature, under the name of Vishnu.

2.) Mantra prasna bhásyam.

By Hari dhatta.

A comment on some parts of veda mantras used on ceremonial occasions; as vaisva déva before eating—Brimha yagnya, libation of water, and mode of doing it; terpana vidhi a pouring out water from the hands, of frequent use.

3.) Sandhya vandana bhásyam, prose with matters from the vedas. On morning, noon, and evening homage, being seated, closing the nostrils without breathing—repeating the gayatri—its meaning, and words from the vedas used, are explained.

4.) Shadázita, or 86 slócas.

On ceremonial uncleannesses; the subject derived from the védas.

5.) On marriage—modes of: as, Daiva—Brahmana—asura—pâisácha—racshasa—gándharba, &c.

Expiation for an omission of some of the lesser duties.

Gotra pravara kárica, brief sutras, on examining the tribes of proposed bridegroom and bride. Another form of the same, as stated by one Mukta vali kára.

Some prayaschitas, or penalties for adultery. If an amávási come within the 10 days for funereal ceremonies then the ceremony to ancestors, on that day, must be set aside: 99 leaves in Sections, as 1—4 and 1—7 and 5 - 10, &c.

The whole of the matter seems derived from the vedas, though not all in veda language.

The book is long, of medium thickness, old, and much damaged.

13. No. 443. Varuníyam, an upanishada with laghu dípica a brief comment. The comment is placed first—it is on two anuvácas, but incomplete.

Para Brahm of ananta rupa or eternal nature, has no qualities. The human soul, or soul in the general, is one with him. Para Brahm is Omnipresent. He is Lord of the universe. He receives, in the end, the homage of all sacrifices; to what god soever directed. The origin of the elemental principles of the world, as water, earth, &c.

The words of the upanishada are stated to be from Brahma vidu to yévám veda.

Then the múlam or text of the said upanishada, in the form of réda verses; this is without defect; the comment not extending to the whole: leaf 1—27.

The book is long, without boards.

13½. No. 444. Upanishada.

1st prasna from the yajur véda, 6 leaves.

On Brahm, and duties.

The book is long, without boards, recent.

14. No. 447. Arunam; said to belong to the yajur védam, vedaic form.

1—32 panchatis, complete.

Vishnu has metaphorically a thousand eyes, and a thousand hands or feet. He pervades all the world. His attributes, or qualities described. An enquiry on the creation by Brahm. Results of sacrifices, and all other carmas by the people; benefit tends to sverga or Indra's paradise. The whole turns on explaining the sense of the védas; and may be a sort of comment: leaf 1 - 30 and 19 blank.

The book is short, of medium thickness, without boards, recent.

15. No. 448. Mádhavíyam, or vedart'ha prachása: "veda-meaning light."

By Sayanáchárya.

Yajur-sanhita 4th cándam 5th prasna 11 anuvácams.

The original known as Rudra prasna with a comment or Rudra mahatmyam on the glory of Siva: leaf 1—26.

The book is long, very narrow, injured.

16. No. 450. For Sect. 1, see XIII.

Sect. 2. Yajur véda upanishada 5 khandas, prose, incomplete.

On Para Brahm with questions as to the Being, and attibutes of God: 21 leaves—medium length—no boards.

17. No. 454. For Sect. 1, see XII.

Sect. 2. Yágniki upanishada vyakyà, or Vedart'ha pracasica.

By Mádhava, prose, incomplete.

From the Brahmanam of the véda.

The commentator maintains that Brahm is to be worshipped, and his nature known, by sacrifices; not by gnánam, as taught by the advaitas.

18. No. 457. Nine pieces.

1.) Yágnyaválcya sutras, they relate not to law, but to theology—on the nature of Para Brahm.

2.) Nirálamba upanishada.

It asks—who is Brahm? who is Isvara? what is life? what is pracruti (matter) what is Paramátma? who is Brahma? Vishnu? Rudra? their natures? who is Indra? what is manassu? (the mind, or sentient soul.) What are the sun? the moon? asuras? &c., each question is answered. A translation desirable.

3.) Arunópanishada.

4.) Manducopanishadam, see 7.)

5.) Káivalya upanishadam.

6.) Sálagrama mantra—letters only.

7.) Manducopanishada vyakyanam a comment on 4) prose.

The soul is pure knowledge. In one passage the soul is represented as saying "I am not a man, nor a god, nor a yacsha, nor a Brahman, nor a Cshétriya, nor a Vaisya, nor a Sudra, nor a Brahmáchari, nor a Grihast'hya, nor a Vanaprast'ha, nor a Sanniyási—but I am pure knowledge-possessing form" (or nature) suddha gnána surúpam.

8.) Hastámalakà—a proverbial term, for any thing very plain; an easy explanation of some part of the védam.

9.) Panchicaranam. On the five elements—they are the secondary cause, or material of the human body. On the qualities of the five elements; the linga and pránavam internal life are one and the same; between the fœtus in the womb and Brahm there is a union, or no division.

The book is of medium size (62 leaves not regularly strung), without boards, old, damaged.

[Under the 2nd Family, or Paper books opportunity will occur for a somewhat fuller notice of upanishadas].

19. No. 458. Four pieces.

1.) Purusha súcta vyakyánam, a tîca or comment on a hymn relating to Krishna; as the thousand heads and thousand feet possessing Para Brahm (metaphorical for wisdom and ubiquity). He is lord or ruler of the world, &c. incomplete, 7 leaves.

2.) Samhita upanishada veda and tîca, 1—12 anuvácas—complete.

Concerning the existence, and nature of Brahm—of creation, and like matters.

3.) Taittiriya upanishada vyakyà, a comment on the supplement, so named.

By Sancaránanta, múlam and tîca, 1—4 pátacas, incomplete.

Enquiry as to Para Brahm—on six kinds of sacrifices, or karma, of special order. The umbrella of Para Brahm is spread over his votaries. Enquiry as to mukti, or beatification.

4.) Yajuráranyacam, an upanishada from 6 to 64 anuvácams—incomplete.

On the nature of God; but very little understood.

The book is of medium length, somewhat thick, (108 leaves) without boards, very much damaged.

20. No. 463. Upanishadam.

Concerning the nature of Brahm; and on duties. After the duty of reading the védas—other moral duties said to be enforced. The Purusha súcti is added; a hymn concerning Vishnu, as Para Brahm, wise, ubiquitous: leaf 1—46 and 8 blank.

The book is of medium size, a little injured.

21. No. 464. Rudra prasna or as familiarly termed namaca chamaca, from letters na and cha recurring in it.

On Rudra or Siva, with praises, complete: leaf 14—25.

The book is short, old, damaged—no boards.

22. No. 465. Seven pieces.

1.) Dasa sloki vyakyánam, called siddhanta bindu, by Mata sútana muni.

The ten-distich piece is by Sancarácharya, containing his construction of the Vedantam; this is an enlarged paraphrase on the advaita system. Isvara is entirely separated from ignorance and vice; and is perfectly pure. The union of agnánam with a soul of man is a bandham, or tie to earth; which being unloosed, the soul flows into the supreme. And this unity is mocsham or liberation.

The nature of Brahm described.

2.) A prose fragment of three leaves, like subject; mind, in different states, is the bhandam tie, and also the means of mócsham. Ahancara personal identity, or selfishness, is the cause of three avast'has necessities, or defects—not detailed in the fragment.

3.) Brahma sútra krama, complete.

By Krishna dwaipayana; 4 adhyáyas.

On Brahm, and the human soul; advaita view of the vedantam.

4.) Aparócha anubhuti, s'ocas 145.

By Sancaráchárya.

Detail of the advaita system.

5.) Manducópanishada, múlam only.

On the nature of Brahm.

6.) Hamsópanishadam, múlam only.

Like subject; and on the soul partaking of the divine nature.

7.) Trisica Brahmanam, and the Brihmópanishadam a like general subject—very little understood: leaf 1—43.

The book is long, of medium thickness, without boards, old, damaged.

23. No. 469. Sicsha ch'handamsi, prose; on the prosodial recitation of the védas. Mátri, on quantity of the letters; with rising, falling, and prolonged inflexions of voice in utterance.

The organs concerned in the enunciation of letters, throat, tongue, &c.

Voice loud or soft, or low—rapid with various notes, or modes of utterance—on three particulars—letter—svara sound—mátri time, or quantity. Elocution, as to intoning the vedas.

[If any one acquainted with elocution will read from an accented Greek book, according to the accents, he will convey to himself, and others, an idea on the above subject.]

Leaf 1—31 and 19—22 and 33—36. some few blank, book defective.

It is of medium length, thin, recent.

24. No. 472. Upadésa grant'ha vivaranam.

By Bódha nidhi, complete.

Vedanta in kind, slocas and prose with bhásyám, or comment on both.

By means of védanta vácyas the Brahma gnánam is acquired; and by means of that acquirement all ignorance departs, together with all the evil consequences of ignorance.

An enquiry concerning Isvara. Description of the nature of Brahm.

Isvara is formed by a union of truth, and purity. Isvara formed the world; and also avidya, privation of knowledge, proceeding from himself. In consequence of avidya the soul (a part of Brahm) enters into family cares, and relations. Gentleness, and self control, described; with the mode of being united with gnanam wisdom; whereby an individual comes to know and say "I myself am Brahm," and acquires beatitude (in the present state of being).

As the sky or atmosphere is one, but the air, in a closed vessel, and that in a room, are diverse, so the atma (universal soul) is one, and every where; but it exists under various manifestations, as to outward appearance.

An enquiry as to Vedanta art'ha, meaning of the Vedanta, and on adopting it to the advaita system. The discussion is conducted in anushtup slocas of 44 each—forming the padya bhágam.

—Upadésa grant'ha gadya bhágam. prose—part of the same book, also on the vedanta, with various adváita details: leaf 1—160 and 84, 85 and 300—339.

The book is long, very thick, recent.

25. No. 473. Various matter.

—Rudra prasna or namaca chamaca, a passage of common use relative to Siva.

—Some rüchs used as zántis or litanies.

—Hamsa upanishada, on Para Brahm.

—Sáricopanishada Brahma vidhi upanishada.

—Brahmópanishda—Aranyópanishada—Káivalyaupanishada—Trisica—Bráhmana—what is body ? what is the soul ? what the first cause, &c.

—Manducopanishada.

Sambhavi mudra lacshanam, description of hand and finger signs in homage to Siva.

Garudópanishada and Garbhópanishada. [Reference to the 2nd Family, or paper books].

Atura Sanniyási vidhi vyakyanam.

By Angirasa, an explanatory comment on the summary mode of making a Sanniyási, in articulo mortis : leaf 1—8 and 1—3 and 1—10, in all 28 leaves.

The book is long, without boards, slightly injured.

26. No. 477. Two pieces.

1.) Kat'hà vali upanishada, múlám, six avalis, vine branches, complete.

—Bhásyam on the same, a comment.

By Sancaracharya—6 avalis, complete.

The illustrations are of course on the advaita system. The jívátma and Paramátma are not dual, or diverse.

2.) Táittiriya upanishada múlam.

Jiva—dherma—Brahm, these and other matters defined, and described: leaf 1—5 and 1—23, with 12 blank, and 1—7 with 2 blank.

The book is long, of medium thickness, recent.

27. No. 482. Chandógya upanishada, bháshyam, complete, prose. In 8 prapáttacas, a comment, otherwise termed vivaranam on the following.

27½. No. 483. Chandógya upanishada. In 8 adhyáyas, complete, veda form ; see the following No.

The two pieces are in one book, long, thick, without boards, recent.

28. No. 484. Chandógya bháshyam or vivaranam, a commentary on the upanishada, by Sancarácharya.

The original has 8 adhyáyas, and the comment 8 prapáttacas.

The duty of one who associates this book with the knowledge of Brahm, the soul then attains the acharáti way to beatification, and will ultimately attain to Brahma's world. But kévala karma, or rite sacrifices, &c. form the dumati way, or smoky path, which tends to chandraloca, or the moon. Such persons as miss both of these ways, sink into a low depression of being (naraca &c.) full of sorrow.

[There is a common idea, it seems among Hindus that the vayu (wind, pneuma) of the soul flies up to the moon: it exists among other people also].

Advâita átma gnánam, or knowledge of the non-dual soul is absolutely needful to be acquired.

Description of the nature, and properties of Brahm. Meaning of the pranava or mystic aûm. The prána of the heart (life, sentient soul) has various names, according to its dwelling in different parts of the body; these are detailed with their properties. The meaning of the gayatri explained:

Utgita upásana prabhava, value or excellence of practising the above pranava. Matters relating to Brahm. Mode of reverencing Brahm. His nature—Tatva gnánam, or true knowledge is both the assurance, and cause of beatification. He who acquires mócsham, or beatification is not again born; that is does not transmigrate.

The tradition of the Vedanta gnánam from Para Brahm to Casyapa; from the latter to Menu; from Menu to the people, (this claims divine authority). A detail of various meanings of the vedanta. And thus the above upanishada has its meaning explained (nothing favoring idolatry at all events). Leaf 1—121.

The book is long, somewhat thick, injured near the beginning.

29. No. 485. Adhicarana retna malà.

By Bhárati tirt'ha muni—slócas and vacyas—complete.

This appears to be a comment on a work by Vyása, termed Nyáya mála; the slócas or sutras of that work have their meaning expounded in this one, which has 4 adhyayas each of 4 pátas.

Chapter 1. Brihm is the sum of the meaning of all the versions of the vedanta, by various sectaries.

Chapter 2. A reconciliation of various passages of the vedas which appear to be contradictory; for example, such as ascribe attributes or qualities to the supreme, and such as deny any quality; or such as ascribe body, and such as deny it to an incorporeal deity.

Chapter 3. Tatva vidhi—true knowledge; that is, as to the means, and causes of attaining to beatification.

Chapter 4. The benefit of such knowledge defined; that is, its fruit is mócsham. Explanation of the meaning of many sutras and vácyas of the védas, in reference to the nature of Brahm.

Condemnation of the Sanc'hya and other schools of materialism, or atheism.

On the evidences of the existence of Brihm, or God. What is the soul? what is Brihm? both are one.

Brihm is the cause of creation. A paránam or atom, the 6th part of a ray of light, is the cause of different things, not destructible: so bhumi paránam is the cause of the earth.

Brihm has no body, no gunas, qualities or attributes; but has maya, or a negative power; that is, matter.

On the human body, what? the vitals what? the jivátma is powerless. Para Brahm is all-powerful.

Brahma vidya, or knowledge of God is the procuring cause of mócsham or beatitude—with the like védanta matters, leaf 1—119, the 70th wanting, 20 blank leaves at the end.

The book is of medium size, recent.

30. No. 486. Namaca bhásyam.

By Bhatta Bháscara.

11 anuvácas or sections, complete; a paraphrase on passages of the that relate to Rudra or Siva. Leaf 125—142.

The book is long, of medium thickness, no boards, recent.

31. No. 487. At'harvana maha Nárayana upanishadam—veda form.

In 8 adhyáyas, complete.

Nárayana is the alone Paran or Supreme—the author of creation, He preserves—destroys. He alone is to be worshipped· He is the giver of beatification. These and like matters, as to the supremacy of Nárayana. Leaf 1—15.

The book is long, without boards, recent.

32. No. 488. Aitréya upanishada or atma shadcàm—seven chapters on six properties, or qualities of the human soul: prosaic form.

Aitréya upanishada bhasyam a comment on the same, by Sancaracharya.

The above matters expanded; with the usual discussion, on the oneness of the human, and divine soul.

Leaf 24—41. The upanishada has otherwise the title of Bahrija Brachmana.

The book is long, without boards, recent.

33. No. 492, 493 } Two subjects.

1.) Vacya suta tica, prose, complete.

By Brihmánanda Bharati.

On the vedanta, according to the Adváita interpretation.

2.) Ashtavacra gita, and dipica.

By Visvésvara.

The chants of ashtavacra a rishi, explained by Visvésvara.

These also are on the meaning of the Vedanta; on the advaita system.

Leaf 51—78 and 1—59.

The book is long, of medium thickness, recent.

34. No. 495. Five upanishadas.

1.) Maha Náráyana upanishada. Vishnu to Brahma.

Náráyana is Para Brahm—he created the world—he must be worshipped—he gives múkti.

2.) Káivalya upanishada.

Paramésti (or Brahmà) to Aslayana a rishi. Brahma vidhi or knowledge of the supreme Brahm—his nature—attributes—the mode of obtaining admission to his presence.

3.) Parama rahasya Siva tatva, an upanishada. On the divine nature, as pertaining to Siva. Marcandeya to Savunaca, and other rishis.

4.) Kálágni rudra upanishada. Kalagni rudra to Sanatcumara.

It relates to the use of vibhúti, or sacred ashes, and to various other matters.

5.) Náráyana upanishada—on the nature of Náráyana, as supreme; leaf 1—46.

The book is somewhat long, of medium thickness, recent.

35. No. 497. Maha vácya retnávali.

A selection of 1180 sentences from 108 upanishadas, as from Isadhi ashstottra sata upanishada, the 1st and 107 others.

By Ráma chandra.

32 letters are a grant'ha or an annushtup verse there are 720 grant'has.

The rig veda has 21 sac'has or branches.

Yajur ,, 109 ,,

Sama ,, 1,000 ,,

At'harvana 50 ,,

Each sac'ha is an appendage of the vedas and as such becomes an upanishada.

Ráma (says this book) told to his messenger Hanuman the whole 108 upanishadas from which Ráma chandra made this selection. Hence tàn or tat, in this writer's sense, means that Ráma is Para Brahm.

On the Jivátma and Paramátma surúpam, or nature of the human and Divine soul; here treated as if one—advaita. non-dual.

Mode of rendering homage to Brahm. Description of bandham the soul bound (or imprisoned) in the body ; and of mórsham, the soul liberated re-united to its universal self.

The world is an appearance, a lie. Brahm alone is a certain existence.

Jivá muktan lacshana, the properties of a perfect man of very high attainments, who is liberated from the trammels of the body ; and is one with the deity, in the present state of being.

Chandra, Surya, Siva &c. Indra, Agni are tàn tàn ; that is Rama says they are only himself, as Para Brahm : ádi, madhya, anta (beginning, middle, end) exists not except as predicates of Brahm

Other attributes described ; chiefly negatives, as Sachidánanda—true happiness possessing. Suddham, purity.

Sucshmam subtilety (spirituality ?) Nirakaram without body, or shape, Nirrikaram, immutable.

Niranjanam, without spot.

Apramánam, immensity.

Anyirdesa, unlimited immensity.

Upramánam, ineffable.

Utli indriyam, without bodily senses.

Nirlépacam, nothing defiling adherent.

[In the sense of an old writer who says "though the sun's rays strike on a dunghill they are not the less pure.]

Nirabhayam, without calamity.

Uchalam, without locomotion.

Druvan, firmness.

Satg'hanam, full of truth.

Chit g'hanam, full of knowledge : nityam eternal.

Ananda g'hanam full of bliss.

Avvayayam, without danger, or loss.

Sampúranam, fulness.

Visvata muc'ham, all-seeing.

Aheyam, without dishonor.

Anamaca, without name.

Arúpaca, without shape.

—Anashrayam, without local dwelling, leaf 1—23.

The book is long, recent, without boards.

36. No. 500. Yágnyaválcya upanishada; múlam only, vedaic form.

The subject appears to relate to jivátma the human soul, prána the life, sentient soul; Paramátma, the divine soul; but antecedent to dwaita and advaita disputes.

On the label is the name Brihadaranya, the more ordinary title; it is ascribed to Yagnyaválcya, as its author, leaf 35—60.

The book is long, without boards, recent.

37. No. 501. Two pieces.

1.) Namaca bhásyam, prose.

By Sayanáchárya, a comment on a prasna of the védas; relating to Rudra or Siva, and his glory; here not complete.

2.) Uch'hodaraca vyakyanam, a comment on another book, the subject relating to the svaras, tones, or accents, used in chanting the védas, inclusive of prosodial quantity: leaf 1—32.

The book is short, of medium thickness, without boards.

38. No. 503. Mitacshari, a comment on the Brihadaranya (supra 36) and sometimes called Brihadaranya bhásyam, the 5th and 6th adhyáyas, these complete; the rest wanting—prose.

By Nityanandázrama.

An enquiry whether varna (here meaning sacrifice) is proper to be preferred —answer it must be done.

On dherma, active benevolence, and adherma, its defect, variously illustrated; soul practice, that is a meditation on the nature of the soul, and on God, recommended; from which exercise quietude of spirit results.

The book is long, without boards, recent.

41. No. 514. Ten upanishadas, prose form, and each one complete.

1, Kénopanishada: 2, Manducya upanishada: 3, Sariraca up: 4, chandocya up: 5, Vajra suchi up: 6, Kaivalya up: 7, Brihmópanishada: 8, Brahma hamsa up: 9, Garbha up: 10, Brihadaranya up: leaf 1—14 and 21—34.

The book is long, of medium thickness, without boards, recent.

42. No. 516. Vedanta paribhása; prose, incomplete.

An explanation of the Vedanta system. On the jivatma and Paramátma, and the non-duality or oneness of the two ; the usual topic ; leaf 1—5.

43. No. 517. Three pieces.

1.) Nirálamba upanishada—veda form complete. The world is a lie: all things contained by their classes, are also a lie. There is one Para Brahm, and he is apparent in all existent things, or included by them.

2.) Rája yógámritam—slocas.

Taken from the saiva siddhanta rahasyam—said to be told by Siva to Parvati; only the 1st padalam.

Various kinds of tapas or penance—on the exercise of a yogi—many such described—the rája yogam is chief—its results stated—the leading result being, that the interior soul is discerned by mental vision, and is discovered to be Para Brahm.

3.) Gita sáram; slócas, complete; Krishna to Arjuna.

By various tapas, a knowledge of the soul is attained, and its parama tatva, or heavenly nature discovered: leaf 1—7.

The book is of medium length, without boards, recent.

44. No. 522. Tátparya bódhini.

The múlam in slócas by Bharata tirt'ha.

The tica prose form by Ráma Krishna vidvàn.

In 3 prakaranas, or chapters.

Chapter 1. Chitra dîpa, on the internal parts, and qualities of the body.

Chapter 2. Tripti dîpa, on the nature of paramánandam, or Para Brahm, with qualities.

Chapter 3. Padart'has, how many generic distinctions in worldly things: nature and properties of the same, other matter deficient: leaf 1—92.

The book is long, of medium thickness, with brass pin, recent.

45. No. 523. Seventeen upanishadas véda form. 1, Máitrayana up: 2, Káushataki up: 3, Brihajápála up: 4, Subála up: 5, Cshurika up: 6, Mantra up: 7, Átma prabodha up: 8, Maha up: 9, Nrisinha purva tápani up: 10, Yoga sic'ha up: 11, Vásu déva up: 12, Pranava up: 13, Kâivalya up: 14, 'Aruna up: 15, Rudraesha jápála up: 16, Dhyána up: 17, Bhasma japala up: leaf 1—68, complete. The general subjects, are—concerning the nature of Para Brahm—on mocsham or liberation of soul from body—on the nature of the human soul—origin of all beings and things in the universe—on the four colors Brahman, Csketriya, Váisya, Sudra, and four (azramas) dwellings. Brahmáchari, Grihast'ha, Vanaprast'ha, Sanniyasi—various mantras and connected matters—on the Pranava or mystic aûm—on Vásu déva or Krishna—on sacred ashes, and beads, and ascetic matters. Something fuller will appear under the 2nd family of these Sanscrit books.

This one is long, of medium thickness, writing and leaves not quite uniform; no boards.

46. No. 524. A collection of all the upanishadas attached to the four Vedas 108 in number; chiefly veda form, complete.

A few of the names are :—

Brihmopanishada—Kâivalya upanishada—Jápála up: Hamsa up: Parama Hamsa up: Arúnica up: Garbha up: Náráyana up; Amrita bindu up: (Saiva) Amrita nat'ha up: (Saiva) Art'havana Sira up: Briha jápála up: Máitráyana up: Nrisinha up: Kálâyni rudra up: Maitreya up: Subála up: Cshurica up: Mantraca up: Sarva sara up: Nirálamba up:

Nara up : Rahasya up : Surya up : and so on up to 108—the whole of the names will elsewhere appear : leaf 1—191.

The book is long, and thick, on broad talipat leaves, recent.

This is a valuable book, and could it be fully translated, would leave nothing to desire, as to the theology and philosophy of the appendages to the Vedas.

47. No. 526. Véda namaca chamaca, prose form—the namaca complete, the chamaca defective. On Rudra, or Siva, his glory : leaf 1—15.

The book is of medium length, without boards, very slightly injured.

48. No. 652. For Sect. 1, see III.

Sect. 2, so much injured that the title cannot be made out. It seems to contain the doctrine of Mádhava.

Discussion as to Atma—if there be a soul or not—this is affirmatively determined. Is there a Paramátma or not ? The affirmative : that there is a God, maintained.

On disputes about matams, or religious modes. Customs of various sectaries stated, and objurgated. Such, in particular, as say sacrifices are wrong (Bauddhist &c.) are reprobated. Sacrifices (animals slain) are needful ; 14 leaves, 51 in all.

The entire book is long, of medium thickness, old, without boards, injured.

49. No. 801. For Section 1, see X.

Sect. 2. Nárayana upanishada mantra.

It appears to be some formule extracted from that upanishada ; and some matter, in ordinary prose, on dherma-sastra, or ecclesiastical law is mingled up with the other : this is only 4 leaves, with Sect. 1. 58 leaves.

The whole book is long, of medium thickness, a little injured.

50. No. 866. Sect. 1. Sirómani, theology.

By Sirómani Bhattáchárya—prose.

Isvara or Para Brahm is every where, or omnipresent—description of the nature of the human, and divine souls : not complete.

For Sect. 2, see XV ; in all leaf 1—24.

The book is of medium length, old, damaged.

51. No. 881. For Sect. 1, see X. Leaf 1—48.

Sect. 2. Sútras with tica, or comment, incomplete. On the internal parts of the body—the soul—intellect—to these matters are added others ascetical; a condemnation of the family mode of life, with its attendant cares: leaf 1—49=93.

The book is long, of medium thickness, without boards, damaged, the leaves of Sect. 2, differ from the foregoing portion.

XXXIII. Vira Saiva.

1. No. 29. Váttula tantram, slócas.

In 10 padalas complete.

Chap. 1. Tatva bhéda, difference of beings: as Para Brahm and inferiors, including discrimination of truth.

Chap. 2. Varna bhéda, caste difference; but more especially different vargas or classes of letters, and to what god each class, or distinct letter belongs.

Chap. 3 Triverga bhéda nirupanam discrimination between dherma, art'ha, kama or beneficence, wealth, pleasure; these do not relate to Para Brahm, but only to men. There is besides an attempted detail of the divine nature, in the superior world.

Chap. 4. Chacra bheda, on the difference of diagrams used for mantras or spells: eight concentric circles is a form used by Vira Saivas.

Chap. 5. Mantra bhéda, difference of spells; as of one letter, of two letters; of five letters, of six letters, and other Saiva mantras, the god, or goddess to which each one relates

Chap. 6. Pranava bhéda, the triliteral a. u. m, written as one syllabic letter; they refer to four mystic lingas.

Chap. 7. Brimha bheda búta bhéda, pinda bhéda: Srishti st'hiti. laya. bhedas, discrimination on God, departed souls; creation, preservation, destruction.

Chap. 8. Anga bhéda, difference of bodily members, six in number—heart—head—crown of head—eyes.

Chap. 9. mantra bheda, the spells here are only sacti in kind—to what goddess or portion of the universal female energy each mantra relates.

Chap. 10. Kilacam, same subject, the power of each letter used in spells; as m without vowel, the heart, and so with others.

The book is long, thin, without boards, recent, in part magical, and sacti in kind.

2. No. 95. Siddhanta sic'hámani said to be from a Vira Saiva book, entitled dherma nirnayam, slócas complete, and with a verbal glossary in Telugu.

There is no difference between Brahm, and the human soul.

Sámbu (a name of Siva) is Omniscient. From a defect of knowledge the human soul involves itself in family cares and troubles. The soul is of more consequence than the body.

Isvara is greater than the soul. He is the ruler, or conductor (préréca). Birth and death compared to the continued revolution of a wheel, as to any one soul, at the end of the curriculum is mócsham, or liberation from further births, and deaths. Saiva dicsha krama, mode of initiation as to a young man, or a proselyte. Mode of putting the linga on the body—and of using cowdung ashes, and rudracsha beads.

The panchacshara, or 5 lettered spell with japa &c., and the excellence of that formule.

Sambu—smarana—archana—vandana—kirtana, meditation, ritual worship, homage, praise of Saiva, and by those means mahima or glory.

The value of giving presents to Siva, or to any of his votaries.

Sivárádhana p'halam, benefit of homage to Siva. Siva gnána yóga, on asceticism, with various praise of the Saiva way, and devoteeism of the ascetic kind. Siva puja vidhi, a tract on ritual homage to the Saiva symbol, slócas and prose, with a Telugu tica : leaf 1—198.

3. No. 104. Various pieces.

Vira ágama— slocas, some details concerning the matas, or monasteriums of the Vira Saiva credence, with the modes of observances in them ; and praise of the excellence of the Vira Saiva way.

—Concerning head teachers as Réva, and others ; their offices, and other details.

Bhúvanêsvari stottram, praise of a name, or form of Parvati "mistress of the world ;" this is of sacti kind.

—Bhúvanesvari ashtottra sata nama stottra—panegyric of the said, by a string of 108 names or epithets, complete.

—Guru stottra, Siva stottram, praise of head preceptor, and of Siva.

—Shad st'hala nirúpanam, slocas with tica in Telugu. On six symbolical places in the linga, referrible to parts of the human body, and to steps or degrees of attainment ; and also to steps of ascent, in superior worlds.

—Japa malica krama, mode of a string of prayers counted by beads. Pancha muc'ha sarabha salva mála mantra, a string of spells founded on one original, directed to the five-faced sarabha (half beast, half bird), assumed by Siva to punish Vishnu in the man-lion avatára—the object to kill enemies.

—Sri Ráma cavacham, invocation with spell to Ráma for protection.

At'harvana sirasa ; from a book having this name is extracted the Surya tápaniyam containing spell, japa, ritual of homage and praise of the Sun ; with the mode of these for health, or other benefits. Surya cavacham—from the Scanda puranam ; spell and invocation to the sun, for health and protection.

Trai lócya mangala cavacham, ascribed to Sanatcumara, spell, with invocation, to the delight of the upper, middle, and lower worlds, for pleasure, prosperity, and the like. Sacti in kind.

—Náráyana ashtacshari mantra an eight-lettered spell—O'm-na-ra-ya-na-na-ma-ha, for all kinds of benefits.

Indracshi stóttram, praise to a sacti for all desirables.

Dacshana murti panjara, nest of the Saiva tutelary genius of learning; for learning, money thereby &c., said to be from the Brahmanda puranam.

—Vátésvara stúti—slocas—praise of Siva dwelling in the Fic: Ind. tree, asking protection: leaf 1—32.

The book is short, medium length, thin, without boards, recent.

4. Duplicate No. 107, (the former 107 under XI). A variety of matters, in 26 padalas, slócas, complete, with a supplementary padalam, on mode of initiation to the Vira Saiva way.

On shad st'hala, six places, here said to be represented by as many diagrams, in each of which is a linga, designated by the name of bhakti s: Mahésvara s: prasada s: prána linga s: sarana s: aikya s: these have a typical reference to the human body; but more especially to degrees of ascent in superior worlds; union with Siva being the highest.

The pure soul described as a linga. On the benefit of wearing the hair on the head uncut, and not combed: (this is the jadi of ascetics; sometimes braided, and formed into a sort of coronet).

Origin of the sacred ashes; and benfit of wearing them on the body. The parts of the body on which these are to be smeared. Benefit of wearing the rudracsha beads. The panchácshara mantra, or five-lettered formule; its great excellence.

On certain head teachers named 1, Revana; 2, Marula; 3, Ráma déva; 4, Pandit áráddya; their matas or monasteries, where situated; and particulars concerning them, as leaders of this Sect.

On the various sacerdotal, and food eating observances of the Vira Saivas. Siva puja p'halam, benefit of Saiva homage. Lingas are made of various materials as rubies, emeralds, crystal, gold, silver, copper, &c., the benefit of making such, and of worshipping them when made. Mánassu puja krama, mode of mental homage. On the kinds of flowers proper to be used in various pujas.

—Upasarana vidhi, mode of complimentary service; such as fanning with a chowry, bowing and the like.

—Bhicsha pátra vidhi—the proper kind of basin for collecting alms.

Linga dicsha vidhi, mode of consecrating a symbol, and other matters pertaining to the rituals, and observances of the Jangamas, or Vira Saivas. (Just the opposite of the sacti system, and no less indelicate) leaf 1—222.

The book is of medium size, on narrow leaves, without boards, recent.

5. No. 113. Two distinct books put together.

1.) The rituals and observances of Virá Saivas—Lingarcharna prabháva —value of homage to the saiva symbol.

—Vibhúti dharana krama mantra, the spell used at the time of smearing on the body, cowdung ashes.

—The ácháram or sacerdotal customs of the Laingicas, or Jangamas.

—Siva dicsha prasamsi, praise of the mode of initiation.

—Binna linga nirasana, repairing a stone symbol, if it happens to be broken.

—Guru stottram, praise of head teacher.

—Jangama linga lacshana, properties of the living disciple. [St'hapana linga is a fixed symbol ; jangama linga is one moveable ; that is, the devotee ; whose entire person is considered to be a mere symbolic type of the indwelling deity : hence the worship of such devotees is allowed, sometimes inculcated.]

Of like kind there are other matters ; wholly pertaining to this class, or system of the Linga dharis.

2.) Various chants used in saiva homage.

—Malhana stavam, 36 slocas.

By Malhana ; praise of Siva.

—Mahimna stottra, 38 slocas with a tica in Telugu ; praise of the glory.

—Annamayya stottra, 34 slocas, with tica in Telugu ; praise to obtain health.

—Halayuta stavam, 32 slocas with tica in Telugu ; praise of a weapon of Siva.

Other Jangama matter.

Linga dharana prasamsa, praise of bearing the symbol of Siva.

Siva dicsha mahátmyam, excellence of Saiva initiation.

Jangama linga prasamsa, praise of the living, or moveable symbol.

—Siva puja vidhanam, mode of ritual homage to Siva from the Virágama, slocas.

In 25 padalams, complete.

Linga púja vidhanam, mode of ritual homage ut supra 1,) leaf 1—97, 2) leaf 1—97.

The entire book is somewhat long, of medium thickness, recent.

6. No. 205. Three pieces.

1.) Anubhava sutram, slócas, complete from the Vat'hula siddhantam, 1—8 prakaranas. On shad st'hala or six places in which the supreme Brahm resides; the nát'ha Brahm linga in all.

1, anga s: 2, linga anga sahétya s: 3, prana linga s: 4, sarana s: 5, aikya s. 6. kriyavésa vishranti s:—various gradations through which the liberated soul passes to the last one: which implies an entire absorption into deity.

2.) Vishart'ha pracásica, a comment on the foregoing piece: complete in 5 prakarnas. Mode of instruction, as to the aforesaid six places, or gradations.

—Mode of rendering homage to the symbol of Siva. The teaching of the guru is the means of leading to the possession of Siva's favor. If any fault or defect occur in the said services, a prayaschita, or penalty for the same: so far 46 leaves and 34 left blank.

3.) Chatur véda tatparya sangraha, selection from the vedas; also slócas with tica—incomplete. The object is to prove the supremacy of Siva, as for example. Isvara sarva bhudan, Isa is all existing beings or things. That Siva is supreme is assumed to be proved by extracts from all four vedas: 12 leaves, and 10 blank ones, 102 leaves in the entire book.

It is long, somewhat thick, with a wooden peg, recent.

6½. No. 273. Basava puránam, slócas.

1—42 adhyáyam, as in No. 268, with statement of others overcome in disputation.

Referred to 2nd Family: leaf 1—141.

The book is of medium size, recent, a neat compact book.

6¾. No. 274. Vira Sáiva dherma nirnayam, slócas 20 parich'hedas complete.

Description of Cáilasa—the glory of Siva seated there—mode of initiation of a disciple, and suitable place for it. At the age of 10 years, having put on the scholastic thread, the pupil goes to the house of a preceptor, and becomes an inmate there. The being declared a proficient is attended with a ceremony in a temple, or house: the place described.

The putting on the symbol and wearing it, is a matter of great excellence, if with the approval of the teacher; but of no value if without that approval.

As regards cowdung ashes and the udracsha beads, when to be put on, or used, or worn. Glory of the five-lettered spell declared.

Description of guru bhakti, or devotedness to a teacher. Mode of doing homage to a teacher; and mode of giving gifts to good persons; and mode of doing penance directed to Siva.

The sarana st'halam or approval of Siva: if the above duties are performed, they entitle to âikyam, or oneness with Siva. Sancara samhita upara bhágam a supplement by Sancara 80—85 adhyáyam.

Differences of credence among the Vira Sáivas, and the excellence of that class; they are chief, &c: leaf 1—86.

The book is long, of medium thickness, without boards, worm eaten.

7. No. 277. Sancara samhita—from the scandam puranam, 80th to 85th adhyáyam, slócas with mantras, complete.

On the daily observances of Vira Saivas. The mantras used when putting on the rudracsha beads, and cowdung ashes.

Mode of daily use of the principal five-lettered spell; and of ritual homage to the symbol of Siva. On puja or homage rendered to guests on their arrival. The mode of eating the remains of butter-oil offered to the god.

[The symbol of stone is so contrived as to have a wide groove at the lower part, with a spout; the ghee poured over the top trickles down, fills the grove, and passes off by the spout; beneath which a sufficiently capacious vessel is placed to receive the droppings; these are nearly the whole, and this is the perquisite of the attendant Brahman. It is variously prepared; but eaten with boiled rice only, is considered a delicacy. No wonder that Brahmans heretofore encouraged gifts of money, and lands for what in Tamil is termed néréttiyam. The wonder is that dupes, and dolts could be so easily deceived.]

On devotedness to a guru, or head teacher. If the foregoing observances are attended to, the Vira Mahésvara worshippers will obtain beatification; at least so Rudra told to Scanda or Subrahmanya; and Suta related the same to the rishis, or hermits, 36 leaves.

The book is of medium size, without boards, recent.

8. No. 268. Basava puránam ; slócas.

1—13 adhyáyam so far right, 14th defective.

Legend of Basava's birth, as an incarnation of Siva's vehicle—his childish actions, his studying the sastras—he wrote an explanation of the véda and vedanta, giving both an interpretation in favor of Siva, as supreme, and the Paramátma or heavenly Being. He overcame many persons in disputations. This is merely the beginning portion. Under the 2nd family, opportunity may occur for a complete abstract of this audaciously mendacious book ; 87 leaves and 52 blank ones.

The book is somewhat long, and thick.

9. No. 311. Sancara samhita, slócas from the upa vibhágam of the scanda puránam ; 81—85th adhyáyam.

Mode of homage to the Saiva symbol. Account of the ácháram or sacerdotal customs of Vira saivas. Honor of wearing that symbol, and merit of feeding votaries. Fellowship with lingadharis praised. Praise of Siva ; with other matter : compare 7 supra.

The book is long, thin, 32 leaves without boards, recent.

10. No. 390. Sri Sáila sancalpa, prose.

When any Vira Saiva performs any special ceremony, this is the form of record of the said observance ; leaf 137,138.

Vira Mahésvara árádhana kriya vidhi, prose and slócas ; the mode of ritual service of various kinds ; and the mode in particular of puja to Siva as Vira Mahésvara : leaf 67—79.

The book is short, narrow leaves, no boards.

11. No. 451. Various matter; Jangama, and sacti intermingled.

Some Telugu stanzas in praise of the guru, who teaches, and uses mantras, and on yoga asceticism.

Samvidhi mahatmyam, excellence of " concentrated knowledge ;" but this is a flash-word of the sacti bhaktis, for opium, or ardent spirits, or other strong venereal stimulants. It is herein stated that forbidden food, such as flesh, may be eaten, and spirituous liquor drunk. The doing so is praised, as evincing knowledge.

More Telugu stanzas, on the excellence of the guru, or teacher.

In Sanscrit—átma guru linga, on sixteen kinds of puja, or ritual homage, modes detailed.

On 1128 names of different pujas, with the use of flowers. By Chitambara kesava avadhúta slócas. The said names untied, and given again in prose form : leaf 1, 2, and 1—15, and 1—21, with 22 blank leaves in different places.

A few leaves at the end on strîvasyam in slocas, on bewildering and persuading women. The whole book is long, of medium thickness, narrow leaves, recent.

12. No. 532. Vira Sáiva dicsha vidhanam, preceptive rule as to initiation: slócas, and prose, complete. In the form of instruction from a teacher to a disciple.

Vessels of water are suitably placed and the water consecrated, by the use of veda verses. An earthen symbol is formed; and, by means of the consecrated water bathed and worshipped. Afterwards specimens of the mode in which a teacher instructs a disciple or pupil: leaf 214—226.

The book is somewhat long, thin, without boards.

C. Malayalam letter.

I. Astrological.

1. No. 2328. Jyotisha, slócas.

A little matter on astrology; and other matter on rája niti, or royal ethics.

The book is short, thin, on talipat leaves, cut down to small size.

2. No. 2322. Jyotisham, slócas, incomplete.

On the twelve rásis or zodiacal signs; the nácshétras or lunar mansions; the grahas or planets; and the influence according to sign and lunar mansion.

The book is short, and somewhat thick; on cut talipat leaves, the writing only on a part of each leaf, the larger space blank.

3. No. 2330. Sucra nadi, slócas and tica in Malayalam; on astrology.

Planet—sign—lunar mansion—laguna or sign in the ascendant. On good and bad influences. The ganda signifies the probable time of death, as indicated by the horoscope.

The book is of medium length, very thick, on cut talipat leaves, the writing not close.

II. Pauranical.

1. No. 2315 and 2327 in one book.

Siva rahasyam, or Sancara samhita of the Scanda puranam: slócas.

1—The sambhava cándam 1—50 adhyáyam, on the marriage of Siva with Parvati, and the birth of Cumara, or Subrahmanya.

2, No. 2326. Siva rahasyam.

Three cándams of the Scánda puránam.

1. Déva cándam, birth of the dévas.
2. Dacsha cándam, on the sacrifice of Dacsha, and its disastrous termination.
3. Upadésa cándam, conversation of Siva with Parvati, on various matters, about the world, creation, &c.

The book is somewhat long, thick, on talipat leaves, and fully written.

SECOND FAMILY.

1st Division. "Dafters."

The Proprietor of these Manuscripts in a Telugu Catalogue of 1838, divided them into Ancient, and Modern form; by the latter meaning paper books, bound in the European fashion; and by the former term Palm leaf books, and a kind of books procured from Benares and Calcutta; which he termed "Dafters." They are written on slips of paper, variously colored, shorter and broader than palm leaves; but put together in similar manner, with thin boards over them, and folded up in cloth wrappers, colored red, white, blue. As paper books they come under the 2nd Family; but being of peculiar form, the distinctive term "Dafter" is retained; and, as the oldest, they are ranged under the 1st division.

I. Advaita.

1. No. 794. Rámánandiyam.

By Rámánanda. 2 adhyáyas, but not complete. A tica or bhasyam on a work entitled Retna prabhà; the general subject being advaita; for which see foregoing notices—passim.

The white cloth wrapper contains eight books, from 793 to 800.

2. No. 799. 'Ananda puránam, only a small fragment, leaning to the sacti system.

3. No. 951. Chittra dîpica.

By Ráma Krishna suri, the original in Telugu letter, with a tica by himself, 1—5 adhyáyas, complete.

On the jivatma, human soul, and paramatma, divine soul; the subject is discussed; and they are maintained to be one.

Pancha buda vivaranam, details on the five elements.

Brimha ánanda nirúpanam, a proof of the supreme Brahm's possessing blessedness. Sacti nirupanam—maintains the material, or negative cause of the universe; the female energy; but not excluding a higher cause. The sense however is that Mind and Matter are co-existent, and eternal. It amounts to the Aristotelian doctrine on the subject.

Written on good glossy country paper, without boards, check wrappers.

4. No. 952. Brihadaranya bhashyam or 'Ananda giriyam, Telugu letter.

By Sancaráchárya, 1—8 adhyáyas complete.

An advaita comment on an upanishada, entitled Brihadaranya, "the spreading forest." The leading topics are, on carma, or predestination, as a reward, or a punishment for merit, or demerit, in a former state. On the jivátma and paramátma. The divine and human soul, not dual.

The dimensions, inches $10 \times 6 \times 3$, country paper, thin boards, red cloth wrapper.

5. No. 954. For Sect. 1, see II.

Sect. 2. Mahà vácya retnávali.

By Rámachandra svámi, slócas with a tica. By maha vacya is meant the véda, and retnávali its words—jewels strung. A discussion founded on the Vedas as to the unity of God: that is Para Brahm; and on the nature of the human soul. Para Brahm is one—his spiritual form—his glory. On the soul. Perhaps it is doing the advaitam too great honor to class this tract here. It evidently merits translation, as a theological document.

II. Ascetical.

1. No. 926. Bhakti retnávali, slocas, deva nágari letter: defective.

The tract begins, but does not end.

The subject is a guru's explanation to a disciple of devotedness, or fiducial attachment to God, or to a teacher.

[Such is the general sense of bhakti; but the term is sometimes distinctive, and polemic: bhakti, tapas, gnánam, are three roads to heaven, of which the Smartas hold the last to be the best].

The book is $8 \times 3 \times \frac{5}{4}$ inches, country paper, black and red letter, in a paper case.

2. No. 953. Vivéca sindhu.

Balband letter, and Mahratti language.

A mystical book of the tatva gnána system; which allegorises, or "spiritualizes" the members, and faculties of the human body.

Size $9 \times 3 \times 2$ inches, yellow colored country paper, red and black ink, wooden boards, red cloth wrapper, as a book a curiosity.

3. No. 954. Two pieces.

Sect 1. 'Atma bódha dipica, a tica by Sancaracharya, complete. 'Atma bódha, or soul instruction seems to be the title of an original, on which this one is a paraphrase.

On the duty of relinquishing family, and family cares; and of seeking for, and obtaining gnánam knowledge, as the means of beatification. For sect 2. see I 5. supra. A doubt is felt as to the classification of this book: both sections perhaps present the advaitum under its least objectionable phasis.

Size 9×5 inches, wooden boards, country paper. Sect 1. and 2 differ, blue and green cloth wrapper.

III. Erotic.

1. No. 798. Rája tarangini, or Bútánanda sindhu: nágari letter.

"Royal waves" is a term sometimes applied to kingly genealogies, but the other title shews a relation to the sacti system; and to the sringárá or ornate and amorous. It is Sect: 6 out of 8 in one book, each section having a different number.

2. No. 974. Púrva Cátambari.

By Bhána cavi, déva nágari letter, incomplete.

An ancient love tale of the amours of Chandra pit'ha, a king's son, and Cátambari a female; with the usual intervention of mantri (minister) and saki (confidante). Much scenic, and poetical description. The former proprietor songht out this book with much enquiry: and there are several copies in Telugu or Canarese.

Size 12×4 inches, yellow colored superior country paper, no boards, red cloth wrappers.

IV. Ethical.

1. No. 322. Rájá dherma vyakyánam, or Bhárata bháva dipam.

By Nila kant'hi: sometimes called by his name. A paraphrase on a part of the zánti parvam of the Bháratam, the ápadherma, or duties proper to a season of affliction, or severe trial. Also some details of duties having reference to the desire of full liberation from further transmigration: 1—188 adhyáyam, complete as to subject.

Very superior country paper, like one ½ sheet of demy cut into three pieces; the writing transverse; the book is thick; thin teak boards, red cloth wrapper.

2. No. 435. Bhagavat gîta: múlam, and tica.

The latter termed subódhini by Sridhara.

1—18 adhyáyam; both complete.

Hot pressed country paper, as above, the book is thin, has only one board; red cloth wrapper.

3. No. 437. Bhagavat gita; múlam.

Telugu letter, and the sancara bhashyam by Sancarácháryа, 1—18 adhyáyas.

The parahprase is advaita in kind; the whole of it not here.

Size 6×4 inches, not thick, teak boards; glossy country paper, red wrapper.

4. No. 438. Bhagavat gîta, slocas; déva nágari letter. 1—18 adhyáyas, complete.

Size 6×3×2 inches, country paper, damaged by damp; paper case, without boards, or wrapper.

5. No. 439. Bhagavat gîta, slócas; nágari letter, the múlam only, 1—18 adhyáyas, complete.

Size 5×3×2 inches, country paper, red and black letter, tied with a string, without boards or wrapper.

6. No. 440. Bhagavat gîta, the múlam in coarse nágari letter; tica or paraphrase in Mahratti: múlam, 1—18 adhyáyam complete; tica 1—10 adhyáyam defective.

Size 11×5 inches, country paper, thin teak boards, injured by damp, red wrapper.

7. No. 531. Bhagavat gîta.

Múlam and tica; the latter entitled subódhini by Srîdhara 1—18 adhyáyam. Two copies in one book. 1 copy transverse, writing in good order: 1 copy folded, and damaged; both are on country paper; only one board; blue plaid wrapper.

8. No. 796. Visva guna darsanam; déva nágari letter.

An essay on despising secular things; and in part commending them. See other notices.

In a book with white wrapper, containing 8 pieces, or sections.

V. Grammatical.

1. No. 895. Tatvá bódhini, Telugu letter.

A tica to the Siddhanta câumudi, both sutra and tica on the purvart'ham, or subantam; the part of grammar which treats of nouns, and particles, but without the verbs. This part complete, in its various details.

This piece is the first one out of six, contained in the book, with white wrapper.

2. No. 977. Sect. 6. Madhyacâumudi; sutras on the subanta division of Sanscrit grammar. The last of six pieces in one book, with red wrapper.

VI. Law.

1. No. 797. Mádhaviyam; nágari letter.

By Mádhava.

A tica to the Parásara smrti, or law in force in the Cali yuga: the subject, on ceremonial uncleannesses, and regulations thereto pertaining.

The fifth piece out of eight, in one book, with white wrapper.

2. No. 800. Asâucha nirnayam.

On ceremonial disqualifications, by reason of pollutions.

The last piece of a book containing eight bundles of country paper, without boards, in white wrapper.

3. No. 970. Parásariyam; the code of Parásara, nágari letter.

The áchára cándam, on ceremonial uncleannesses. See previous notices, passim.

Size 12×4×2 inches, country paper, one board, red wrapper.

4. No. 971. Nirnaya sindhu, déva nágari letter; slócas, complete.

Discrimination as to sancranti, passage of the sun from sign to sign; pacsha half lunation; tit'hi lunar days, asaucha kála times of ceremonial uncleanness: the reference is to sacerdotal law.

Size 12×4×5 inches, country paper, no boards, red wrapper.

VII. Logic.

1. No. 793. Uttara vari vasyà.

By Básura ánanda, múlam and tica.

—A fragment without beginning or ending, a vátam of the nyáya school: but having an advaita bearing.

The first of eight pieces in one book, on yellow country paper, wooden boards, white wrapper.

2. No. 795. Karicávali, múlam or original; on which the muktávali is a tica, or a comment, by Visvanat'ha Pandit. A compendium of the four cándas—pratyacsha—anumána—upamána—sabda.

The book is on the modern system; holding seven padart'has, or universals.

Sect: 3 of the book supra.

3. No. 893. A fragment of the dinakaryam v : infra.

4. No. 894. Gadadhara.

By Gadadhara bhatta ; pramánya vátam.

On the need of an authoritative rule.

On the knowledge of Isvara ; and that knowledge is such a rule.

The above 3, 4 are the two last sections, in a book containing five ; white wrapper.

5. No. 896. Muktávali. Telugu letter.

A comment on sutras known as karicas.

On the pratyacsha cándam only.

The modern system of seven universals is maintained.

6. No. 897. Tarkha pracásica.

By Sri kala. Telugu letter, complete.

A comment on a work entitled Siddhanta manjéri.

On the four *cándas—pratyacsha—anumana, upamána,*and sabda.

Nine padart'has or universals are herein mentioned.

7. No. 898. Siddhanta manjéri tica.

By Sri kant'ha dicshada.

Another comment on the same original ; this is incomplete.

8. No. 899. Tarkha sangraham.

By Anam bhatta.

This is a popular work on the subject ; of which there are several copies in the collection.

On the 4 cándas, ut supra, and 7 padart'has.

A little only of a tica on it entitled chandrica.

On some of the topics, the mode of objection and answer is followed.

9. No. 900. Bhavánándiyam.

By Bhavánánda.

This is a comment on some other book, not known, as the piece is incomplete ; what there is relates to the pratyacsha cándam.

The foregoing five are following sections, in one book, containing six : country paper, differing in size ; the whole is 14×6×6 inches, in a white wrapper.

10. No. 956. Chintámani; múlam.

The Chintámani vyakya is a comment on it, entitled Sirómani, on the anumána cándam only, and this complete.

11. No. 957. Dinakara bhattiyam.

A tica to a work entitled Muktávali; itself a comment on karicas v: supra 2. 5. On the pratyacsha cándam only. The two preceding books are the two first pieces of a book containing five, in a white wrapper.

12. No. 976. Three sections.

1). Dinakara bhattiyam; Telugu letter.

By Maha déva, tica form.

The pratyacsha cándam, (defective), of a comment on the Muktávali.

2). Gadadhari: déva nágari letter.

By Gadadhara bhatta.

Two khandas incomplete, on the mangala vátam, &c.

3). Chenna bhattiyam ; nágari letter.

By Chenna bhatta, defective.

On the pratyacsha cándam.

1). A little larger in size than the others; country paper, two small teak boards, red wrapper.

13. No. 977. Six sections.

1). Muktávali; tica to a karica.

By Visvanát'ha, incomplete.

The pratyacsha cándam. It maintains 7 padart'has.

2). Muktávali; wants the beginning, but has the end; being on the sabda cándam, or evidence from testimony, or authority.

3). Muktávali.

The pratyacsha cándam, defective at the beginning, but has the ending.

4). Dinakara, a tica to the Muktávali.

By Dinakara, or Mahadéva.

The beginning of the pratyacsha cándam; but without the ending.

5). Dinakari.

The anumána and upamána candams, complete, the sabda cándam defective.

For sect. 6, see V.

Six packets 10×3 inches, country paper, two satin wood boards, red wrapper.

14. No. 978. Three sections. Telugu letter.

1). Gadadhari; tica form, incomplete.

By Gadadhara bhatta.

The anumana candam ; and on the pramánya and vyapti vátams ; with some others.

2). Dinakari tica, as above.

Fragment of the pratyacsha cándam, beginning and ending deficient.

3). Sirómani, a comment on the Chintámani, containing the anumána cándam, and a little of the upamána cándam.

Size 15×3×2 inches, slips of country paper transversely cut, with two lignum vitæ boards.

15. No. 979. Jagadisiyam ; Bengali letter.

By Jagadisa : incomplete.

On the vátams styled vyapti—pacshata—parámarisa and avaiya_va—size 16×3 inches, tawny colored paper, wooden boards, red wrapper.

16. No. 981. Two books.

1.) A commonplace book of extracts on the general topic of Tarkham, or logic : Telugu letter and prose, as are all books on this topic.

The siddhanta pátità from the Jagadisiyam.

The hetvabhashyam from the Sirómani.

The samánya niructi tippani from the Gadadhariyam—the vyapti vátam from the Sirōmani ; and various like excerpts of difficult language, as being loaded with technical terms : following the apothegm that "the use of language is to conceal a meaning."

Size 12×3 inches.

2.) No name. Bengáli letter.

It appears to be on the subject of Tarkha, or logic : size 20×3×2 inches. This piece is on colored country paper. Red wrapper over two boards.

VIII. Magical.

No. 548 } Tantra sáram, slocas.
162 } Bengáli writing.

Some leaves from the midst are wanting; and there are lacunes, or blank spaces, without any writing.

Reference to Telugu bound books 2nd division. Tantra sáram on the guru—the puja, &c. Size 22×4×4 inches, tawny colored paper, 1 board beech, 1 board deal, red wrapper.

IX. Miscellaneous.

No. 973. Bartṛi hari—múlam and tica 1—3 satacam, the last one imperfect; in the order niti, sṛingara, váiragya, which is the correct order. Each chapter includes many padhadis or decades, each one of ten slócas.

The subjects various; see former notices.

Size 15×4 inches, country paper, deva nágari letter, one fragment of a teak board, red wrapper.

X. Panegyrical.

No. 927. Jánaki sahasranám stottra, slócas—deva nágari.

Praise of Sita the consort of Ráma by 1008 names. [This is not usual in the south]. Size 8×3 inches, a few transverse leaves in a paper case.

XI. Pauranical.

1. No. 320. Dévi Bhágavatam.

The 9th scándam 1—25 adhyáyas slócas. As the adhiyatma Rámáyanam, gives to that story a Saiva turn; so this does the like to the Bhágavatam; properly a decidedly Vaishnava work.

It may be accounted for, by the extensive prevalence of the worship of Devi, Durga or Parvati in Bengal. The work is properly an upa purána.

The book is very beautifully written with some red ink amid the black; on thick and superior country paper.

Size 15×6×1 transverse slips, strong boards, red wrapper.

2. No. 321. Bhágavatam, slócas.

1—12 scándas complete, seemingly a superior copy; country paper, hot pressed, ornamented writing.

1	scándam	1—9	adhyáyas.
2	„	1-10	„
3	„	1-33	„
4	„	1-31	„
5	„	1-26	„
6	„	1-19	„
7	„	1-15	„
8	„	1-24	„
9	„	1-24	„
10	purva	1-49	„
	uttára	1-90	„
11	Scandam	1-31	„
12	„	1-13	„

Size 12×6 inches, teak boards, red wrapper.

3. No. 323. Bhágavatam.

12 scándams complete, on 12 lots of paper, déva nágari letter, the pauses marked with red lines. The múlam is written in the middle of the page, and the tica or comment on either side; in so far resembling the Delphin classics. A Calcutta book: size 16×6 inches, 10 inches thick, on superior country paper, hot pressed, fine writing, red wrapper.

3½. No. 959. Agnéya puránam, déva nágári slócas, no divisions, incomplete, Agni deva to Vasishta.

One of the 18 puránas; and medium between Saiva and Vaishnava: size 18×6×4 inches, boards—country paper of different colors.

4. No. 960. Matsya puránam.

1—93 adhyáyas, slócas, déva nágari complete.

On the first avatára of Vishnu; who also aided Siva in the destruction of the three towns (compare Gen: 19, 1.) Matters concerning Cási, Prayagi and other places, deemed sacred. The examination was but superficial.

Size 12×4×6 inches, transverse slips on good country paper, wooden boards, red wrapper.

[As far as is remembered there is not another copy of this puránam in the Library, Hence it is extremely valuable; and a full translation is very desirable.]

5. No. 961. Vámana puránam, slócas. Telugu letter, 56 adhyáyas; but not in regular order.

Some slócas are added from the Manu charitram as referring to the Vámanávatára: size 10×5×2 inches, mango wood boards—the paper at the sides, crumbling to powder; in the middle good order. This also is rare; there is no other copy in the Library—it should be re-copied, and translated.

6. No. 962. Siva puránam—nágari divided into two parts—purva and uttara complete. It is stated to be copied off in Telugu letter in another book. Vide 2nd division.

Size 12×4×5 inches, on country paper, teak boards, red wrapper.

This purána is also scarce.

7. No. 963. Narasinha puránam, slócas.

1—22 adhyáyas, nágari letter.

This is properly an upa puránam.

Size 12×4×3 inches, on country paper without boards, red wrapper.

8. No 964. Vayu puránam, slócas, Telugu letter, 1—93 adhyáyas incomplete.

This is one of the oldest of the eighteen puránas and scarce; there being, it is believed, no other copy of the work in this collection:

Size 18×10 inches, on country paper, old, the outside crumbling to dust, it has mango wood boards, red wrapper.

9. No. 965. Brimha Káivarta puránam, slócas. Telugu letter; about 45 adhyáyas incomplete. On the Saiva dhermam, a substitute for the B. Vaivarti p: which refers to Krishna as Vishnu.

Size 18×8×1 transverse slips, much injured by decay, broken boards, red wrapper.

10. No. 966. Narasinha puránam. Telugu letter 1—59 adhyáyam.

Another copy of the upa puránam, supra 7 No. 963.

Size 10×8×1 inches, on country paper damaged and outside crumbling to powder, wooden boards, red wrapper.

11. No. 967. Brahmánda puránam.

Telugu letter 22 adhyáyas: stated to be a copy from another book.

Size 14×6×1½ inches, on inferior country paper, in sorry condition, red wrapper.

12. No. 168. (a) Garuda puránam, Telugu letter, 1—67 adhyáyas.

Size 12×6×2, on country paper, decayed, and crumbling; wooden boards tied.

No. 168. (b) Garuda puránam,

Telugu letter, 1—65 adhyáyas.

Size 10×5 inches, on country paper, decayed and crumbling, no boards; red wrapper.

13. No. 969. Varáha puránam, slócas.

Telugu letter 1—233 adhyáyas, Vishnu to Bhú dévi. See foregoing notices. Some matters on devi, and the sacti system, are in the midst: size 10×6×3 inches, on country paper, much injured, teak boards, red wrapper.

14. No. 972. Padma puránam.

Telugu letter—two khandas.

1, pushacara 1—78 adhyáyas.

2, bhumi 1—106 „

But both sections are incomplete.

Size 20×8 inches, on good country paper, outside crumbling, teak boards, red wrapper.

15. No. 982. Scanda puránam.

The Srî saila khandam.

1—65 adhyáyas. Description of Srî sailam—the glory of Mallicarjuna, the form of Siva worshipped there—the excellence of the devarshi, a high order of prophets—many *rishis did penance there in ancient times, legend of the temple, or st'hala puránam.

Size 16×8 inches, on country paper, transverse slips, crumbling through age, teak boards, red wrapper.

XII. Ritual.

1. No. 958. Bhátta pradipîca.

By Kanda déva, a comment on another book of which the sutras are included in this one, with the tica. Only one adhyáyam, or chapter in four pátams or sections; chiefly on sacrifices; and also on the nature of the Paramátma, or Divine soul. This is the third of five books, under one packet. The pieces are put between 3 teak boards, with a white wrapper. The Nos. are 956, 957, 958, 893, 894.

XIII. Romance, historical.

1. No. 324. Sanat sujátiyam.

1.) From the udyóga parvam of the Bháratam, 1—5 adhyáyas—on warlike preparations.

---

* Clearly compounded of the Heb. roos "a seer" and ish a man; the latter transposed to shi; the Southern enunciation is, rooshi.

2.) Extracts on ethical topics from various parvams—as virata—udyóga—Bhishma—Drōna—Karna—Salya—sáuptica : slócas ascribed to Vyása.

1) on yellow paper in parts ; 2) white country paper, hot pressed, teak boards : size 16×8 inches, printed cotton wrapper.

2. No. 975. Naishadam ; nágari letter.

By Srî Harisha cavi, slócas, the múlam without tîca, 1—22 sargas incomplete.

On the sufferings of Nala, inflicted by Sani, or the planet Saturn.

Size 10×3 inches, on country paper, in transverse slips—differing in quality—old, injured, no boards, coarse canvas wrapper.

XIV. Sacti.

1. No. 547. Kálika puránam.

Bengáli or Nandi nágari letter.

The leading work of the Káula matam ; improperly termed a puránam ; but that sect perverts words at their pleasure. It has legends of different forms, or names, of the female energy, with tantras and magical formules. Vide 2nd division infra.

Size 14×3½×6 inches, on yellow colored country paper, of ordinary quality, wooden boards, red wrapper : a curiosity.

2. No. 799. 'Ananda puránam.

Only a fragment—it was entered under advaita, but is more properly on the sacti, or female energy class.

It is 7 in No. out of 8 books in one packet, with a white wrapper.

XV. Vaishnava.

1. No. 436. Vishnu sahasranáma vyakáynam. Telugu letter, tica form 3 copies, the 2nd defective and damaged. Two ticas by Sancaráchárya, the third by Acharya svámi.

A direct comment on the meaning of the names or titles of Vishnu ; not the one twisted to a Saiva bearing.

One of small size, two copies larger. On country paper, injured by insects, broken boards, red wrapper.

XVI. Vedas and Upanishadas.

1. No. 955. Upanishadas.

One book containing 15 sections : these upanishadas (or for the greater part) are believed to be genuine.

1.) 'Isa vásya bháshyam, prose.

By Sancaráchárya, complete.

A comment on an appendage to the védas on the nature of Para Brahm.

2.) Mánduca upanishada, the múlam or original, incomplete.

3.) Mánduca, bháshyam.

By Sancaráchárya.

A sectarial comment on 2) incomplete.

4.) Mánduca bháshyam.

By 'Ananda giri.

Another comment on the same, incomplete.

5.) Prasnópanishada—múlam, and a tica or comment; the latter by Sancaráchárya.

6.) Mándukópanishada; múlam with a tica or comment: this by Sancaráchárya, incomplete.

7.) Kéna vácya bháshyam, or tippani; that is, a prose version.

By Sarvésvara a commentary, by paraphrase on the Kénópanishada.

8.) Tavalaca upanishada bhashyam, tica form incomplete; this comment.

By Sáncaráchárya.

9.) 'Isa vásya bháshyam, another, but incomplete, copy of 1) this comment by Sancaráchárya.

10.) Táittiri upanishada bháshyam.

A comment on Yagnyavalcya's piece.

By Sancaráchárya, complete.

11. Tavalaca rupa vivaranam, a paraphrase on the Tavalacópanishada.

By Sancaráchárya, incomplete.

12.) Tavalaca upanishada bháshyam, a tica or comment on the same by Sancárachárya, incomplete.

13.) 'Isána—múlam, a small portion from a veda. Telugu letter.

14.) Aitarè upanishada—múlam only, complete.

15.) Kat'hà upanishada, múlam only—and complete.

Size $8 \times 5 \times 2\frac{1}{2}$ inches, on country paper, transverse slips, wooden boards, red wrapper.

[Under the 2nd division, near the end, a book will be met with, containing a large collection of upanishadas, some genuine, some spurious, and an indication, as to contents, will there be given.]

Taken as a whole, the books of this first division seem to be of greater value than any other equal quantity of MSS. of this 2nd class, unless by selection, or as copied from these. They much need looking after; so as to be restored on more durable materials. Some appear to have been re-copied; but in a different written character.

SECOND FAMILY.

2nd Division. A: Sanscrit.

b. Telugu letter.

"Modern form," or paper books, bound in the European fashion.

I. Advaita.

1. No. 442. Two volumes, Sancara bhásyam.

Vol. 1. púrva bhágam.

2. uttara „

By Sancarácharya.

Each part has two adhyáyas, and to each adhyáyam there are 4 patams or 16 pátams in all.

A comment on the Védas or Vedanta system, in order to establish the union, or non-duality of the Divine, and human soul.

The former proprietors note:

"The Sancara bhásya—a religious work of the highest authority 'among (smarta) Bramins."

"This book was obtained by me secretly with great difficulty; 'and the transcribers were obliged to copy it with so much haste, that 'they committed innumerable mistakes. These have all been corrected, 'and though the book therefore is full of blots, and interlineations, it is 'wholly free from errors (i. e. orthographical); and quite complete 'in three volumes." See 3 No. 444.

Small folio, thick, full bound in sheep, country paper, damaged by insects.

2. No. 443. Vachaspatya bháshyam, being a supplement to the Sancara bhasyam, tica form, complete: subject as above.

" This book like the sancara bhashyam though roughly copied, and ' full of interlineations is wholly free from (orthographical) error, and ' quite complete; excepting where in the original, the worms had ' injured a few lines."

Thin folio, full bound, in sheep, used, country paper, slightly injured.

3. No. 445, 444. Two Sections.

1.) Pratyacta vivécam; from a book entitled Pancha dasi, mulam and tica.

By Rama Krishna.

On the dissemination of jnánam (gnosis) which has a technical meaning among Smartas.

2.) Sancara bhasyam 1, 2 adhyayas.

No. 444 may be the 3rd vol. referred to under 1 No. 442.

These are two numbers from a book, that bears 7 Nos. and has 9 sections.

4. No. 631. Gita bhásyam, mulam of the Bhagavat gita and tica or comment.

By Sancarácharya.

1—18 adhyáyams, complete.

The non-dual system maintained, from the metaphysical portion of the gita.

Narrow folio, of medium thickness, Europe paper, half bound, lettered on paper labels.

—Visishta advaitam.

5. No. 446. Gita bhasyam, múlam and tica.

By Rámanuja.

1—18 adhyáyams, complete.

A counter comment on the metaphysical portion of the Bhagavat gita: maintaining that the human soul is almost, but not quite one with deity. [It is much nearer the truth than the opposed system.]

Thin folio. French paper, half bound in green cloth, and calf; lettered.

II. Almanacs.

1. No. 421. Almanacs for ten years.

1). Rudrótgarí, cycle year; northern system.
Mésha to Mágha or eleven months.

2). Tárana, cycle year.
Châitra to Páushya, 10 months.

3). Partiba, c. y. Châitra to P'halguna 12 months.

4.) Vicrūti, c. y. Châitra to P'halguna 12 months.

5.) Kara, c. y. 12 months.

6.) Viródhi, c. y. 12 months.

7.) Sarvadhárí, c. y. 12 months.

8.) Vrúsha, c. y. Châitra to Asvija 6 months.

9.) Chitra bánu, c. y. 12 months.

10). Svabánu Châitra to Páushya 10 months. French paper, 16 cahiers, tied by a string.

III. Architecture.

1. No. 524 / 518 } Two pieces.

1.) Mayanu silpi sastram; otherwise termed Cásapiyam: slócas and prose.

1—7 padalams incomplete. The part noticed treats of the mode of constructing the base &c. of a Saiva symbol—statues of gods, proportions of the rat'ha or chariot for festivals—[apparently the origin of the Latin word rheda].

2.) Vástu sástram, slócas with a tica in Telugu: 1—6 adhyáyams. By Sanat Cumára, incomplete.

On foundation work—digging the ground, nature of ground—building a house, statues of Vignésa, and other gods—characteristics—proportions, &c.

The bála yentra was noticed in the midst, shewing the mason-order to be of the female energy class.

2. No. 519. Cásyapiyam—or silpi sastram, slócas, incomplete.

The book is in the nágari letter, and from it as supposed, a copy in Telugu letter was made.

Measures, and dimensions of statues, and buildings.

Short folio, thick country paper, full bound in sheep, used.

3. No. 525. Mánasáram, or vástu sástram, or silpam.

Imperfect adhyáyas, not in regular order; a list is prefixed; but this was stated to be incorrect: 6—68; but thus as to lacunes 6, 17, 19, 25, 26, 30—32, 33—42, 44—48, 51—59, 64—68.

On joints, or joists of buildings—on cars—anga bhushanam or ornaments; on the vimánam or shrine in temples—the rat'ha or festival car—gópara or tower over gateway, &c. &c., rules for the construction of these, and other matters.

"This volume on Architecture was copied from a very ancient, "and imperfect manuscript, found at Tanjore. The work is of extra- "ordinary rarity; and even Sir W. Jones, who enquired for it, in vain, "imagined it was no longer in existence."

Extra quarto size, thin; country paper; full bound in sheep and lettered; binding worn.

4. No. 529. Cásipiyam, slócas.

By Cásyapa, padalam 1—20 incomplete.

This is founded on a larger work more ancient, entitled Maya silpa sastram. Casyapa, on that model, formed this abstract; and there is frequent reference to Maya's work in the course of this one.

The portion noticed, treated on statues of Vignésvara, Gâuri, Art'ha nat'hésvara—the saiva symbol, and other images—their measures, relative proportions, &c., some remarks as to meditating on those deities, &c.

In the book there is a reference to—

"Ward Vol. 2. p. 468," with the remark,

"The Maricham is a more modern work on silpam."

Quarto, thin, English paper, half bound in calf, and lettered.

5. No. 532. Silpi sastram, slócas, incomplete.

—On materials, as clay, wood, stone—proportions of various statues, of gods, &c.

This is probably copied from a palm leaf MS. in the Mackenzie collection. It is the 7th in a book having seven sections, which is lettered "Sanscrit Poems Vol: 1."

6. No. 533. Silpi sástram, slócas incomplete.

Proper measure of statues, as to height, &c. of Brahma, Vishnu, Siva, Vignésvara, &c. &c. as appears, only statuary. The book is the second of three numbers in one book, lettered on the back.

IV. Art of Poetry.

1. No. 462. Cávya derpana, slócas with tica, 1, 2 ulásas, incomplete.

On faults in the letter, and on faults in the meaning of heroic poems.

The piece is the third in a folio book of five sections, and numbers.

2. No. 463. Alancára chandrica.

This is a tica or glossary to the Kuvalayánandam; which is a comment by Appayya dicshada on the chandra lóca; not generally approved; and this work is a critique thereon.

It is the first piece in a thick folio, bearing seven numbers.

3. No. 464. Rasa gangadhara; slocas without any tica—a small fragment—see the next No.

This is the fourth piece in the above book.

4. No. 466. Rasa gangadhara, slócas with a tica.

By Jaganat'ha Pandit, complete.

On the nine poetical rasas or sentiments, (for which see previous notices); and on the one hundred and eight alancáras, or metaphors, tropes, &c., being eight in addition to Cáli dása's figures.

The first piece in a thin folio of two numbers, French paper, embossed-paper, bound and lettered.

5. No. 467. Náuka vyakyánam, a tica to the Sáhitya retnacáram.

By Vencata suri—1, 2 tarangam, incomplete.

On the properties of the nayaca hero, and nayicà or nayaki heroine—not beyond.

The fifth piece in a book of seven; a thick folio, lettered "Sans; Poems, Vol. 1."

6. No. 469. Sahitya retnácaram, a tica to it by Dherma bhatt, incomplete.

On the náyaca and nayicà—details—the rest wanting.

7. No. 470. Alancárendu séc'haram, slócas with prose.

On the properties, and modes of behaviour, in varying circumstances of the náyaca and náyicà, incomplete.

8. No 472. Chitra mimámsa, slócas and prose, incomplete.

On the properties of heroic poems; and on a right elocution or chanting; on the nine poetical sentiments, or emotions; and on figures, as upamánam or simile, and others.

This piece is the third in a folio book, containing 7 numbers, thick, in boards.

9. No. 500. Two pieces.

1.) Chandra lócam, slócas, múlam.

By Cáli dása, complete.

On one hundred tropes, metaphors, or other poetical figures—the rule and the exemplification.

2.) Kuvalayánandam "joy to the earth" a tica to the foregoing.

By Appayya dicshada.

Some slócas are excerpted, in addition to the running comment.

It appears that lacshyam is used for anti-type, and lacshanam for type; or the proper form, and metaphorical description of that form.

Long folio, thin, superior French paper, full bound in calf, and lettered, binding injured.

10. No. 501. Four pieces.

For Sect: 1—3 see VI.

Sect. 4 Cavya ádarasa vyakyà.

By Vacha spati, tica form.

1—3 parich'hedam.

A comment on the Cavya adarisa, as to the art of poetry—faults as to letters or words; as to meaning; and as to cacophony.

A long, thin, folio; on French paper; bound in sheep and worn.

11. No. 520. Sect. 1. Pratápa rudriyam.

By Vidya nát'ha—slócas and prose.

1—9 prakaranam, complete.

On the náyaca and náyicà, or hero and heroine; on faults in heroic poems—on metaphors, or other ornaments; these and like matters, exemplified to Pratapa rudra, as if addressing that prince.

For Sect. 2. see XX.

12. No. 521. Cavya pracásam, múlam with a tica.

1—10 ulásum complete.

On the benefit or use of heroic poetry, on the sound or enunciation, which has a reference to difference of meaning; one by insinuation of some difference, and one guna or simple.

On the nine rasas or poetical emotions. On metaphors, &c.

The book is a long, narrow folio, of medium thickness, on country paper, injured near the end, bound in sheep.

12½. No. 538. Cavya darisanam.

By Acharya Dandi—slocas.

1—3 parich'hedas, incomplete.

On faults in poems ; and more particularly faults in words—in meaning—in sound, or cacophony ; knowing these, then a poem may be written.

The second piece in a book bearing seven numbers, a thick folio.

13. No. 611. Vrätta retnacaram.

1—6 adhyayas—slocas.

A chandasu or work on prosody. On the feet of verses—on properties of the ganas or class letters, quantity of vowels, and consonants.

The ninth piece, out of ten, in a small, but thick quarto.

V. Christian.

1. No. 493. Srí Christa sangita.

One parvam, or Book.

Yeshu utpatti parvam.

1—7 adhyáyam, the 8th incomplete.

A discourse between a teacher, and a disciple ; it has some back reference to prophecy by Isaiah.

Dr. Mill's work, in verse, on the life of Christ.

In seven small cahiers, on French paper, tied together with a string.

2. No. 494. Christa sangita, slocas.

One book only, and of this 1—14 adhyáyas.

Introductory matter on the nature of God, and of the human body—on penitence—various persons introdced, with reference to the incarnation of Christ.

The tenth in a book having so many sections with 8 Nos. a small but thick quarto. It is disgraced by the other books ; of which it is last in order.

3. No. 633. Dayuda gita, slócas.

150 chants : that is, Psalms.

The Psalms of David in Sanscrit verse.

" The Psalms translated from the Hebrew into Sanscrit verse by the "Calcutta Baptist Missionaries; printed at Calcutta 1839."

"The present transcript is made in the Telugu character, from the original printed in the déva nágari character. Transcribed at Madras 1843."

A narrow folio, on superior paper, half bound, cloth and calf, lettered.

VI. Dramatic.

1. No. 453. Prasanna Rághavam. A nátacam.

By Jaya déva.

1—6 ancas, 1—5 complete, the 6th not so.

The subject, selected portions from the Rámáyanam ; but in transposed order.

The fourth piece in a small, but somewhat thick quarto.

2. No. 454. Murári nátacam or Anarga Rághavam ; with a distinct tica : 1—7 ancas complete.

Variously arranged ; selections from the Rámáyanam for public acting—the favorite of pedant Pandits, because of its studied intricacies, and difficult combinations of language.

A thin folio. French paper, fully bound in calf, slightly injured.

3. No. 456. Sancalpa suryódayam.

By Vedantáchárya ; mixed language, 1—10 ancas, complete.

Cáma, crodha, damba, &c. bad dispositions represented in costumes by men.

Cshama, sraddha, bhakti, &c. good dispositions, in like manner, by women.

A drama polemic against the prabódha chandródayam, an advaita production. In this one the dialogue is so contrived as to teach that the divine and human souls are distinct or diverse, on the Vaishnava system.

The first piece in a book having seven numbers ; a thick folio.

4. No. 460. Murári nátacam, a tica to it by Hari hara dicshada. 1—7 ancas, complete.

The fourth piece in the above book.

5. No. 481. Cumára giri rajîyam, a tica or explanatory comment on the drama of Sacontala ; 1—7 ancas, complete.

By Kátayya véma bhupa.

It follows the order of Cáli dása's piece.

6. No. 492. Mucundánanda bhánam.

By Mucundánanda, various metre, &c.

A monologue, describing the amours, sports and illicit marriage of Rádhavida the náyaca, and of Panc'hajani, the náyicà; a low, and obscene production.

7. No. 498. Five dramas.

1). Prasanna Rághavam.

By Jaya déva, mixed metre, &c.

1—7 ancas complete.

On the subject of the Rámáyanam, in transposed order.

2). Málati Mádhaviyam, nátaca.

By Bhava bhuti, 1—10 ancas, complete.

An interesting drama, the site of which is near Ongein. It is translated in Wilson's Hindu theatre.

3). Maha vira charitram, nataca.

By Bhava bhuti, 1—5 ancas, complete.

The subject is taken from the purva Rámáyanam; as another of the same author's dramas is taken from the uttara portion. See 10 No. 508, 3.)

4.) Naracásura vijayam, natacam.

By Dherma suri; of the kind termed vyayogam. The subject is the killing of Naracásura by Krishna.

5.) Prahasnam, a farce, slócas both Sanscrit and Pracrüti.

A bhánam, or monologue by one actor only, detailing the amours of Nipunica a woman, and Jambuca a man, with an especial aim at broad farce.

A narrow folio of medium thickness, country paper, full bound in calf, and lettered.

8. No. 501. Four pieces.

1.) Málavica Agni mitreyam.

By Cáli dása, 1—5 ancas, complete.

A sham contest between two dancing masters, with a view to bring their pupils to perform before Agnimitra a king. Malavicà excelled ; and, the king becoming enamoured, incidents followed, ending in a gandharba marriage.

2.) Vicramórvasiyam, nátacam.

By Cáli dása, 1—5 ancas, complete.

Sanscrit—pracrüti—slocas—prose.

Urvasi being captured by a demon, her companions appealed to Purúruvas, who followed in an aerial car, and recovered the prize ; with which he fell in love ; and Urvasi became enamoured with her deliverer. Purúruvas procured the consent of his wife—again lost Urvasi, and went mad—their offspring succeeded him as a king. A splendid, though licentious production ; in which the only noble character is the king's wife. The great art of the poet lies in his description of the person, and sentiments of Urvasi.

3.) Sacontala, nátaca.

By Cáli dása, 1—7 ancas, complete.

The well known master piece of Cáli dása ; in the skilful drawing of the heroine lies his superiority.

Bharata, the son of Dushmanta and Sakuntala succeeded to the throne.

For Sect. 4, see IV.

The book is a long folio, thin, on French paper, full bound in sheep, worn.

9. No. 505. Sangíta retnacara : it has a reference to the mechanical part of acting, dancing and singing; but is best perhaps referred to XVII.

10. No. 508. Three pieces.

1.) Prabódha chandródayam, the rising of the moon of intellect.

By Krishna misra, varied language ; 1—6 ancas, complete.

A drama inculcating the advaita system—see former notices.

2.) Sancalpa Suryódayam vyakyanam—a tica or comment—on the opposed, and latter drama ; maintaining the Vaishnava system—like in plan ; see former notices, ancas 1, 3—10.

3.) Uttara Ráma charitra, nátacam.

By Bhava bhúti, 1—7 ancas, complete.

A powerful, and magnificent work, full of scenic description—in which Ráma is made to condemn himself, for banishing Sita. Though intended to express the poetical rasa, karuna, (kindness, or tenderness,) it fails from the advanced age of the pair ; and the hyperbole of Lava's shooting arrows, so as to discomfit an army, verges on the ludicrous.

The book is a folio, thin ; French paper, full bound in calf, and lettered, used.

11. No. 510. Prabódha chandródayam, a translation into Telugu by Singhayya cavi pungava ; padya cávyam.

1—5 asrásas complete.

See former notices of the original.

The book is a narrow folio, very thin, country paper, injured, bound in sheep, worn.

12. No. 513. Three dramas.

1.) Dhananjaya vijayam, nátacam.

By Jaya déva, complete.

Founded on the war, narrated in the Bháratam. Dhananjaya is a name of Arjuna; who is the hero of the piece.

2.) Mudrà rácshasa, nátacam.

1—7 ancas, complete.

A political, or Machiavelian drama. Chanacya minister of Chandragupta wishing to bring over Rácshasa (the minister of Nanda, late king,) who was leading on an army of foreigners to avenge the death of his master—accidentally got possession of the seal of Rácshasa; and thereupon proceeded in a long course of crooked devices, ultimately bringing about the desired effect; and then Chanacya retired to private life. An ordinary measure of stupidity, in any one of the agents, would have upset the whole; but Chanacya's agents understand him as if by intuition, and act without a single mistake: they could not have been Hindus.

3.) Mahà nátacam, or Hanumán-natacam, slócas.

A composite drama, founded on the events of the purva Rámáyanam, 6: supra.

A small quarto, of medium thickness, English paper, bound in calf, and lettered.

13. No. 514. Three dramas.

1.) Camalina Calahamsam—Sanscrit praeráti, slócas and prose.

Camalina a woman, and Calahamsa a king—a representation of their amours, and Gandharba marriage; in 4 ancas, complete; an inferior style of comedy.

2.) Véni samháram, nátacam.

By Agni cavi, 1—6 ancas complete, varied language.

Véni means the hair-knot worn by Drâupadi, which Duryódhana rudely untied; implying a particular intention; whereon Bhima secretly vowed vengeance; many years afterwards accomplished by his killing Duryodhana in battle. The drama is founded on those circumstances.

3.) Málati Mádhaviyam, natacam.

By Bhavà bhuti: mixed language.

1—10 ancas.

When Malati was taken off to be offered as a sacrifice to a form of Cáli, Madhava gives to his friend varied details of scenery, and faints away several times in the midst of those scenical descriptions. With this incongruity, and a few other defects, the drama is very interesting ; and very particular attention should be paid to this evidence, as to human sacrifices, and drinking blood in the Sacti worship.

A small quarto, of medium thickness, on two kinds of paper, bound in calf, and lettered, the binding worn.

14. No. 515. Five pieces.

1.) Ananga Brimha vidya vilásam, a bhánam or monologue, in one anca complete : slócas and prose.

A description given on the stage of the conduct and behaviour of women with mimic imitation ; as to indications by the eyes, and in other ways, as to their varying mode of gait in different countries, and the like—farce of a very low order.

2.) Misra bhánam, slócas and prose.

By Gunda Ráma.

One continuous piece. Selections of well known matters among a heap of love tales, (such as Krishna and the gopis), are made by the author ; with some inventions of his own, and more by the actor ; who is left at liberty to dilate as he pleases.

3.) Vasanta tilaca, bhánam ; slócas and prose.

By Varadáchárya—complete.

Various notices were given in Vol. I. The introduction to the monologue merits considerable praise.

4.) Nátaca pari bhásha ; slócas, complete. How to compose a drama as to the number of acts, and other rules. It has a reference to IV.

5.) Vencatésa prahasnam.

By Vencatésa—varied language, complete.

Description of spring—of women as to their persons, and manners—broad farce.

A small quarto of medium thickness, on two kinds of paper, full bound in calf, and lettered.

15. No. 516. Two monologues.

1.) Mucunda ánanda bhánam.

By Cási pati—varied language.

Only one anca continuous, v : supra.

2.) Vasanta tilaca bhánam.

By Varadáchárya, varied language.

Description of Conjeveram, of debauchee's day there ; of the saras pool ; ironical praise of dásis &c. ; see former notices.

A small quarto of medium thickness, French paper, cloth binding, much worn.

VII. Erotic.

1. No. 14. Three pieces.

1.) Kalà sastram, slócas with a tica.

1—8 parich'hédas, complete.

By Kókóca cavi.

An ars amoris ; one out of several, from the Amarúcam downwards. It treats of the four classes of women ; with details as to the persons of the sexes ; and other matters of great interest, and importance with natives ; but unfit for details.

2.) Ananga rangha, slócas.

By Kalyána malla.

1—10 st'halams, complete.

See page 6 IV. No. 1023.

3.) Chandra rekha vilásam.

By Jaganát'ha cavi—Telugu padyas.

1—3 asvásams incomplete.

A bitter (and said to be clever) diatribe, against Niladri raya of Rajahmundry ; who, having been a patron, had discarded the poet. This last prays Siva to bless his former patron, with Siva's vindictive eye ; makes the chief to have fallen in love with Chandra Rekha daughter of a pariah woman, kept by the author—and mingles elegant phraseology, on the topic of love with coarse, and filthy phrases of the lowest colloquial usage : the whole with intent to sink the chief into popular contempt—from a note, it would appear, not without effect.

The book is a thin folio, the binding worn.

2. No. 87. Ananga rangha : slócas.

1—10 st'halam, complete.

Sexual description, &c. v : supra.

The 4th piece, in a book containing four sections, a long, thin folio, boards.

3. No. 107. Rati rahasyam—múlam, slócas and with a tica—kala sastram.

By Kóckóca cavi.

1—10 parich'hedas, complete.

An ars amoris, substantively the same with 1, No 14, supra.

The second piece in a book of four Nos. a long folio, half bound in sheep.

4. No. 113. Rati rahasyam, slócas.

By Hari hara.

1—3 parich'hedas, incomplete.

[I believe this to be the proper name of the author, and the above a poetical epithet.]

The second, in a book of four pieces; a small quarto, bound in sheep.

5. No. 114. Two pieces.

1.) Kalà sastram, múlam with tica, incomplete, 5—10 adhicárams.

The above name is generally given to any thing; on the same topic—the real title may be wanting. It is part of an ars amoris.

2.) Káma kalà sutram with a tica, incomplete.

Káma kalà appears to be the name of a sacti—her glory, and mode of homage; resolvable into worship of the veneranda fœmina.

At the end of a book of 5 Nos; a folio, in boards, the tracts on differing paper.

6. No. 122. For Sect. 1, see XV.

Sect. 2. Kâutica chintamani, "jewel of pleasure," otherwise termed Garuda mantra sastram: slócas.

1—3 dipti, incomplete.

It appears to be occupied with what have been termed coeundi modi.

The former proprietor's note.

"This book is similar to what is called Aristotle's masterpiece."

"This is exceedingly rare. The 1st Chapter was discovered in a MS. in the grant'ha character at Trichinopoly; the 2nd was found at Rajahmundry in the déva nágari character." It is now found in very bad company, par non impar.

The book is a medium sized quarto, calf bound, and lettered—like a jewel.

7. No. 128. Two subjects.

1.) Rati rahasyam, or kalà sastram.

By Cánchi nát'ha, múlam and tica.

1– 8 parich'hedas, incomplete. See other notices.

2.) Ananga rangham, múlam only.

By Kalyána malla.

1—st'halam, incomplete.

See reference at 1, No. 14, supra.

A small and thin quarto, on French paper, bound in calf, and lettered.

8. No. 451. Kalinda mucunda vyakyà, a comment with the original indicated, by only one foot in a line. By Linga bhatta.

It relates to the sports, and adventures of Krishna, in and near the Jumna river.

The book is a long and narrow folio, thin; goodFrench paper, half bound, calf and marble paper, and lettered, neat looking.

9. No. 458. Pushpa bhána vilásam, slócas with a tica complete.

On one of Cupid's arrows. Chiefly on the amours of Krishna; and then deducing various conduct, disposition, looks, and the like matters as to the nayaki, or female, in varying circumstances.

The 1st No. in a book of 8 Nos. and 10 pieces—a small thick, quarto; half bound in cloth and calf.

10. No. 477. Kálinda mucunda—múlam only; 506 slócas—the original of 8, No. 451, supra.

The sports of Krishna in and near the Jumna river.

The last No. in a book of three sections, thick folio, boards.

11. No. 478. Mágha cávyam.

The 3rd and 7th sargas with tica.

A description of Raivata giri, where Krishna's army encamped—and of the sports in water of Krishna with women, and other amatory matters.

The fourth piece in a quarto book, containing ten sections.

12. No. 480. Mágham, múlam only, the 7th sarga: Krishna's amours with women at Rávati, gathering flowers; water sports.

A medium sized quarto, boards, the piece before this one is the first five sargas of the same work. See XIX.

13. No. 482. Kṛishna karnamrita, 300 slócas.

1—3 adhyáyas, complete.

By Lila suca.

Chants, commonly sung—on Kṛishna's boyish sports—afterwards with gopis, &c. ; loose in character ; but very popular.

In four ordinary copy-books, on country paper, tied by a string.

14. No. 483. Bilhanam slócas only.

By Bilhana cavi ; complete.

The Indian Abelard and Heloise—see various foregoing notices.

The 3rd No. in a thick folio, containing seven pieces, lettered "Sans. Poems Vol. 1."

15. No. 484. Châttu slócas—sundries, detached distichs, on the qualities, tempers, passions of women, and similar details ; mingled with others on ethics, as to the benefit of good associations, and evil of bad companions.

This is a very usual, but very singular combination. Three copy books, in a country paper cover

16. No. 486. Gita Govinda, or ashta pati ; múlam and tîca.

By Jaya déva, 1—5 sarga, incomplete.

Chants on the 10 avatáras and then details of Kṛishna's amours with Rádha. Translated by a Chief Justice of Calcutta ; and highly praised by Colonel Moor, in his Hindu Pantheon.

The 6th No. in a book of 7 Nos. thick folio, half-bound, calf, and wavy cloth.

17. No. 496. Châttu dhara 110 slócas.

Distichs selected from the Bhartṛi hara and other books, on amorous, and ornamental topics ; with particular details as to the signs, and gestures which convey their meaning without words, used by Indian women.

18. No. 509. Gîta Govinda, or ashta pati, múlam by Jaya déva.

Sruti ranjini—a tîca by Lacshmana suri, 1—12 sargas complete.

[Being composed in octaves, it has the familiar name—the eight-liner. The original is adapted for public recitation ; and, according to Sir W. Jones, Natives of Bengal sat out in the open air whole nights listening to the performance ; of course giving the following day to sleep away the effects of the opium taken during the recital : such people "better and more moral than Europeans ?"]

A thin folio, French paper, full bound in calf, and lettered, the binding worn.

19. No. 512. Gîta Góvinda, múlam.

By Jaya déva.

Srüti ranjini, a tica or comment.

By Lacshmana súri, 1—12 sargas, complete. Vide supra.

A folio, of medium thickness, on French paper, half-bound in calf, and lettered, looks like a rough copy.

20. No. 522. Four pieces.

Sect. 1. See XVII.

Sect. 2. Amarúcam, múlam 100 slòcas.

By Amaráca cavi, or Sancarácharya.

Sringára dipicà, a commentary.

By Véma bhúpati.

An ars amoris ; and apparently an original from the north ; whence many versions, or imitations in Telingana, and farther south. See notices in Vol. 1.

Sect. 3. Rangha nát'ha prahasnam, a farce by Rangha nát'ha, in various language, and composition.

The amours, dalliance, and language of Nipúnica a woman, and Jambuca, in burlesque, to provoke laughter.

Sect. 4. Mucundánanda bhánam.

By Cási pati; various language.

A monologue describing the amours of Rádha vita, a man, and Panc'ha jani a woman—for the million.

Copies of 3 and 4 are entered under VI.

It was not needful to disjoint this book, as the pieces are in place here also.

A quarto, of medium thickness, sheep, bound and lettered.

21. No. 523. For Sect. 1, see XI.

Sect. 2. Gîta Góvinda múlam.

By Jaya déva—and with a tica in Telugu, the author not named.

1—12 sargas, complete.

Chant on the avatáras—Rádha's jealousy, visit to Krishna, &c. for recitation.

This piece is on French paper, in a short, and thin folio, sheep, bound.

22. No. 531. Hamsa sandésa, múlam.

By Vedantáchárya—2 asvásas, with a tica, its author not named.

A modern imitation by a Conjeveram Brahman of Cali dása's Mégha Sandésa, or cloud messenger. In this the messenger is a hamsa bird; and in so far an imitation of the Naishadam. Such imitation always indicates second-rate ability. The topic, of course, is a love message.

VIII. Ethical.

1. No. 433. Prasanga retnáváli, slócas, incomplete.

Various padadhis in the manner of the Bartṛi hari; on elegancies of language; the avatáras; good and bad people, and the like.

"This volume contains the Sanscrit anthology;" but if by anthology be meant songs, or ballads, then this can only be a small part. It is contained in a very thin folio, French paper, half bound in calf, and lettered.

2. No. 485. Níti sastram—slócas with a Telugu tica.

On kingly ethics, and some selections, from books on like topics.

3. No. 488. Cháttu slocas.

Detached distichs, the ethical and amorous mingled, as customary.

These two pieces are the 4th and 5th in a book containing 7 sections; a narrow thick folio, boards.

4. No. 534. Prasanga retnávali, slócas in padadhis or decades.

These decades are—Subashita, elegancies, dasavatára, on the 10 avatáras. Sujana, on good people, durjana, evil people, &c. There is also (as usual) a mixture of the sṛingara, ornate, amorous, &c.

This is the last piece in a book which contains 3 sections, a medium sized folio, half bound in calf, and cloth.

5. No. 1015. Chánacya níti satacam.

By Chanacya; déva nágari letter.

105 slocas, complete.

On ethics of kings—of people, of women, &c.

For example under royal ethics, persons, or things which attract, and so assume influence—fruit trees attract birds, a tank with water the same, a wood attracts beasts, an odorous flower attracts a bear, a king having sense, a mantri, a wealthy man attracts women; and in each case, the privative "if none (they) fly away."

Under female ethics it is stated, that a wife must regard her husband as a god.

The book is written on eight slips of country paper, found among palm leaf MSS. Sanscrit, Telugu letter.

IX. Fables.

No. 495. Pancha tantram, prose with some slócas; ascribed to Vishnu sarmam.

The five devices complete—see various foregoing notices in Vol. I, and under the 1st Family Vol. 2.

This book is a thin quarto, on royal demy, folded in two ; it has neither cover, nor boards, and is injured at the edges.

X. Grammar.

1. No. 602. At'harvana vyakaranam, or Trilinga sabdà anusássanam, slócas 1—10 cándams, incomplete.

On subanta—tignanta—on sandhi ; gender, &c. The author not stated.

The 1st. No. in a book of four pieces a long folio, of medium thickness, boards.

2. No. 632. Mugdá bódham, sutras and tica, incomplete.

On subantam, from letters to details of the five sandhis—and chapters on nouns, with their cases.

A long narrow folio, thin, on superior wove paper, half bound in sheep.

3. No. 727. Tatva bódhini vyakyà.

By Gnánendra Sarasvati.

A comment on the kritantà a section of the siddhanta caumudi, by Bhattoji dicshada—the tica is complete, so far. It has a list of roots, used in the formation of verbs.

XI. Hymnology.

1. No. 489. Bánuvîyam.

By Mayura cavi, 100 slócas, complete.

Praise of the sun.

The sixth piece in a narrow, but thick folio containing seven sections—boards.

2. No. 523. Sect 1. Surya satacam.

By Linga cavi—100 slócas with a tica.

Description of the sun, and praise, as to a deity.

For Sect : 2 see VII.

3. No. 535. Sudarsana satacam.

By Kura Nárâyana jeyya : múlam 100 slócas, and tica dis-ct.

Description of the glory of the wheel, or discus of Vishnu : h praise.

A small quarto, on fine country paper, and paper cover ; it has ink drawn portrait of the author.

I. Law.

1. No. 369. Harita smṛita, slócas.

By Harita 1—8 adhyáyas, incomplete.

—modes of daily duties, as bathing, &c.

—punishments for various faults, or crimes.

—mode of daily homage to gods, or benefit thereof : with like matters.

The book is a long, and thick folio, French paper of two lors, boards ; the back injured.

2. No. 370. Three pieces.

Sect. 1. Vasishta smṛiti slócas.

1. No. 29. Amanáya mantra málica ; slocas, mantras, prose.

This book contains forty different pieces ; for attracting towards ; for bringing over to any purpose ; for using the aid so acquired, in various ways. Statements as to the powers of the invisible beings addressed : in short tampering with the unseen, unknown ; and being subjugated, while professing to subjugate familiars.

Specimens of some names.

Graha akarishanam, refers to planets.

Sarabhà sálva mantra, vindictive.

Kadga rávanam, power to the sword.

Nila Kant'ha badda bálanam, to Siva.

Vira bhadra badda bálanam, vindictive.

Bhairava suddha badda bálanam. Ib.

Nrisinha mantram
Hanuman mála mantram } sexual, and vindictive.

Dic bandhana mantras, for binding the regents of the cardinal, and semi-points.

Bhagisvari mantras, female energy.

Lacshmi Náráyana cavacham, spell defensive, for protection.

Syámala cavacham, the like ; to the female energy.

Súlini (or Chúlini) yentra and mantram ; spell to a name or portion of Cáli.

Sani ischara náma mantra, spell to the slow-moving Saturn, to avert evil.

And so on, up to forty ; it is useless to detail all.

A medium sized quarto ; the binding worn.

2. No. 38, 115, 54—three Nos. in one book.

It contains a variety of pieces ; some of the sacti kind, others not so.

Gayatri hrüdayam, to conquer enemies.

Gayatri mantra rajam,
Gayatri yentram,
Gayatri panjaram, } The gayatri is a simple invocation to the supposed representatives of deity ; but these pieces pervert the original purpose.

Terpana vidhi, mode of pouring out water from the hands, to Sarasvati and other sactis.

Rudra mantra, Saiva—destructive.

Surya mantras, for health, or its recovery.

Sactágamam—a book or books, on the female energy system; which deals much in magic spells.

Mṛtu lángúla stottram, a queer title; praise of Yama.

Náráyana hrúdaya stottram.

Sarasvati ashstottra sata suddha sacti.

Praise of Sarasvati by 108 names.

Kadga mala stottram, praise of the destroying sword.

Pancha vactra Hanumanta mantram, spell to the five-faced Hanuman.

Dacshina Cáli cavacham, an appeal to the evil goddess for protection [mantra the offensive lance, cavacham the coat of mail, and shield]. Samhára ócta maha vidya calpam.

Vidya (lit: learning) is a cant term with the sacti bhaktis for their mysteries: this piece states the fruit of the destroying feminine energy.

More of the like kind; a general collection of short pieces: magic in ordinary.

The book is a medium sized quarto, on good paper, the binding injured.

3. No. 42. Váma déva samhita, slócas—púrva, and uttara bhagams.

The 1st part has 30 adhyáyas, the 2nd part 42 adhyáyas: an abstract cannot be attempted.

—Vidya puja vidhi, mode of the knowing homage—prasáda puja vidhi mode of food-offering homage.

—Puraschárya—an expiation for any oversight, or mistakes, not intentional.

—Homage to Siva, dacshana murti, Nandikesvara and to other gods, or demons, in the nava rátri festival, which commemorates the victory of the Amazons.

Intermediate notices of tapas, or yóga vidhi, asceticism.

From some marginal notes by the former proprietor, it further appears that the formation of the world by sactis—that is spontaneous developement—is one portion. There is a spell to find gold. The noblest (si fas est) is the spell which professes to re-animate a corpse.

The former proprietor's note.

"A Sanscrit treatise on the worship of demons, magic, and the "like.

"A treatise on magic with the spells to be used on different "occasions" (steganography). "It is very rare; but three copies were "collated, and various readings marked."

The book is a handsome folio, bound in figured paper.

4. No. 59. Various matters.

Prapanja sára sangraham.

By Girvána Indra—slócas with tica and mantras, padalam 1, 2 to 15; wanting 16—32.

11.) Dasa dic bandhanam ; prose.

Mode of binding the guardians of the eight points, and of the zenith, and nadir.

12.) Dévi mahima, slócas.

Praise of Durga, but of a less violent form : sacti worship, complete.

Three cahiers, country paper, not bound, but tied together, a little injured.

6. No. 104. Yentra chintámani.

Various yentras ; that is diagrams of different forms, with mantras or syllabic letters, or words inscribed ; prose.

—stambhana yentra, hindering, stopping.

—vasya ,, bringing over.

Ganapati mála mantram, a string of spells, founded on an original.

Lalita yentra, female energy diagram.

Hanumanta yentra, similar; and others of like, or varying character.

Words used have a meaning, as deva dhatta of frequent occurrence ; syllabic letters as hram, cshám, cshrím have no known meaning. At the end is the special diagram, used by the sacti-bhaktis : two circles, two inscribed triangles, intersecting at the apex of each, a diamond space between ; in that space a very small circle ; with, or without a central point. By that hieroglyphic is intended what other materialists have termed " the laws of universal NATURE."

The book is a thin quarto, country paper, the cover much worn.

7. No. 122. Sect. 1. Káma kâutucám.

" Sexual fruition," but otherwise termed Garuda mantra sastram, which more properly indicates the matter of the 1st section ; prose, yentras, and mantras.

Upadésa (instruction) 1—16 complete.

Times proper for vasya, or seduction (tempora vitiosa agendi). Different kinds of roots, and herbs used in the making of philtres, &c. At what time to be plucked, or culled.

—jala stambhanam, the like as to water.

—pátucá jala gamanam, to walk with magic slippers on water.

—spells to stop elephants, tigers, &c. Herbs, and other matters used, with spells against various distempers.

The book has a great many more diagrams, and spells in them; under the generalities of stambhanam—móhanam—vasyam, and the like.

For Sect 2, see VII.

The book is a medium sized quarto, good French paper, calf bound, and lettered, the binding injured.

8. No. 123. Chitambara nadanam, slócas.

1—27 padalams, complete.

Various diagrams, and mode of forming them; such as—

—Hari hara chitambara chacram.

—Darisana ,,

—Pancha Brimha ,,

Remedies by mulikis, roots &c. for various sicknesses, with use of spells.

On the glory of Chitambara nadésa; and matters pertaining to homage.

By Nágárjuna siddha, slócas.

1—23 padalams, incomplete.

Kula náyaca, and other gods, modes of homage to them.

Kálagnana yógam, a kind of tapas, or penance, to obtain the gift of prophecy.

And a variety of other matters.

Note by the former proprietor.

"The Cachchapati tantram. This is a treatise on magic with all "the old whimsies about owls, corpses, dogs, feathers, and so forth; "and abundance of stupid obscenities about rules for enamouring "people."

The third piece in the above book.

10. No. 138. Bhúta tantram, slócas, padalam 1—13 complete.

Búta means a fat goblin, or demon, or sprite of gigantic human form.

Ascribed to Agastya, 1—20 adhyáyams ; an epitome of the Bháratam for young persons, or use in schools.

The sixth piece in a book of seven sections, a thick folio, half bound in cloth and calf, lettered " Sanscrit poems, Vol: I.

XX. Sacti, or female energy system.

1. No. 1. Five principal subjects.

1.) Mantra málica, garland of spells in the prose form of such subjects, incomplete.

1—160 mantras; such as:

Suddha mála mantram, pure garland.

Suddha vidya mantram, pure knowledge: such is the apparent sense; but suddha, with this class is a covert term for flesh-meat; and vidya means their secret system.

Mátangi mantram. The "maternal member" spell. This is the direct worship of the female symbol. The entire series in this section appear to be of the same class; not requiring minute specification.

2.) 'Acasa bhairava calpam, mantras, slócas, prose, incomplete, from 7th to 70th adhyáyam, short chapters.

Mohana mantra, spell to fascinate sexually, either sex.

Utchátana nigraham, a spell to terrify, cause a panic, drive away.

This book is a compendium of rites, and spells on this system. The title is one of Siva's terrible forms; but the book is on the saiva sacti principle; and there are matters vindictive, and malignant, among the other sexual topics.

3.) Karta virya Arjuna calpam, slócas and mantras. Mahésvara to 'Uma.

The title implies fighting, or single combat; but such titles are arbitrary for distinction-sake: 6—8 adhyáyams, incomplete.

Karunya Lacshmi mantram, spell to the tender Lacshmi; and very mady other matters.

The discourse to 'Uma is termed secret.

4.) Nîla kant'ha pratyacshara vidya; slócas and mantra form: knowledge of the appearance of the blue-throated (Siva or Sivà) Mála mantra, a string of eleven spells, founded on one original.

1—11 adhyáyam, but not complete.

.) Kalpócta bálá ashtacam: slócas, eight mantra, and twelve others, somewhat different from Bálà múla mantra, the original spell of the young (Parvati) down to tatva sódhana mantra, which literally is the true-test spell; but language has not its direct meaning on this system.

The book is a quarto, bound ; the binding injured.

2. No. 2. Sâubhagya udayam, otherwise sâubhagya retnácaram, slócas.

The book is divided into 36 tarangams (or waves) and these are sub-divided th us, The 1st has 20 sub-divisions.:

2nd	12	,,	And so on throughout the 39 chapters.
3rd	9	,,
4th	19	,,
5th	7	,,
6th	6	,,

The title is figurative—vulva bona oriens (ut sol.) and ulva bona gemmata, sufficiently indicating the nature of the contents. These are s ells with a variety of compound syllables, as hrsaum—schraim, and the like—praise of ishta devata, the preferred godless, as in the title—a pouring out water, as a libation to the said symbol of the feminine energy—the mode of being seated, when performing the puja or homage, on this system—some of the anga nyasa or hand, and finger signs used in homage to màtrica "the mother" a godless—saubhagya puja—worship to the female symbolic member, and the like : on the whole reducible to magic, and the sacti rahasyam, or secret system of the kâulas.

The whole is not worth fully exploring ; and possibly that is not practicable, except to the initiated.

The book is thick quarto, one cover a little injured.

3. No. 3. Tantra rája the " magic king," múlam or original slócas 1—36 padalams, or section.

Kula sundari—a mode of homage to the " family beauty," or godless of the caste.

Tvarita homa vidhánam, mode of fire offering in conducting this homage—benefits of this homage—time of penance to obtain ishta siddhi, or desirables.

Excellency of this system.

Prof. Wilson termed the tantra system the "left-handed system," which would convey a different idea in the south. It is obvious from communications to the former proprietor of these books, that Prof. Wilson knew much about it ; but his public references, occasional only in so far as I know, were very cautious.

The former proprietor's note.

" The Tantra rája is an elucidation of the Tantra system of magic &c. Sanscrit verse : with varioius readngs collated by C. P. B. 1830."

"The commentary, in another volume, entitled shódasa nitya Tantra vyakyu manórama."

From this title it would appear that there is some parallel to the shódasa carma or sixteen household rites of the Brahmans, on the ordinary system.

The book is a thick quarta, in good order.

4. No. 4. Three pieces.

1.) Váma déva samhita.

2.) Garbha mala arnavam.

3.) Mantra daiva pracasicam.

Slócas and prose, but incomplete.

15—18 adhyáyams and 36 chap: distinct. The contents refer to Bhairavà and other sacti devata; with benefit of penance, or like observances.

The former proprietor's remark.

"The first sixty pages contain miscellaneous spells, correspon d-ing in part to those in the 'Acása Bhairava" this part is imperfect.

Then follows extract from another book, perhaps the Rudra yamalam, leaf 53—73.

Next an extract from the Váma deva samhita leaf 74—101, hap. 16—18, and 36.

Then a fragment p. 87—92 from Mantra arnava.

Then Váma déva samhita chap. 6—23 with another fragment.

Then the Bija cosa p. 102—114. Then, extract called mudra nidana lacshanam. Then fragment deva rahasya tantarm. Then mantra daiva pracásica chap. 5—7 and 29, the beginning and ending wanting. The leaves are numbered 147—383.

The book is a thin, small folio, the binding much injured.

5. No. 5. Eight pieces.

1.) Rudra yamalam, slócas, mantras.

Siva to Parvati 1—32 padalams, incomplete.

It contains the Kálica cavacham and other matters of the Sacti homage. "Collated from two MSS, one from Palnaud, and one from Yanam, properly" only a section; the tricuta rahasyam"—or "secret of the triple apex; sufficiently indicating the main subject.

2.) Bhairava yámalam slócas, and mantra, form. Various spells and rituals, directed to Chulini, Durga, and other names, or forms of the female energy.

3.) Prayóga retnávali slócas, mantras.

1—16 padalams, incomplete.

Practical detail of rituals of this class.

4.) Pratyangirà calpam a prose comment, on the preceding original but it is incomplete.

5.) Suddha sacti mantras.

The " pure godless" seems a name, or epithet. These spells are directed to her, as a portion of the universal energy.

6.) Nṛsinha stava Rájyam royal praise of the man-lion avatara.

7.) Nṛrsinha ayuta acsharam names of the same.

8.) Nṛïsinha sahasranamávali, and Nrisinha ashstottra sata praise by 1008 and 108 names. These three last pieces are said to be from the Narasinha upa puránam.

8). It is not needful to be in any wise particular as to the contents of these eight sections. The first one is the largest, and the most important. It is frequently alluded to, and sometimes quoted from, in other books of this class. The contents are quite at variance with all ordinary notions of common decency. Three last pieces are less objectionable ; but they may have a recondite sense, as being found in company with books on the Sacti rites. A large proportion of the population of ancient Greese practised these same rites, and mysteries.

The book is a folio, of medium thickness, in good order.

6. No. 6. Six pieces.

1.) Dacshina murti samhita.

1 padalam containing 9 avaranams or divisions, which are subdivided into 133 lesser sections.

These are ascribed to the Saiva genius of learning ; but pertain to the secret sacti system.

2.) Bhúvanésvari cach'ha putam, slócas, no mantra or puja.

1—10 padalams, the 10th defective.

The glory of the " lady of the world," declared.

3.) Maha Lacshmi ratna cosham, slócas.

1—5 adhyáyams, incomplete.

" Lacshmi's jewel casket" glory and praise of that sacti—the piece elsewhere occurs.

4.) Sáubhagya cavacham slócas from the Vámakésvari tantra. By this appeal, with praise, to this ishta devata eight kinds of riches will be acquired. See 2, No. 2.

5.) Nava chandi puja, slócas with mantras.
Homage and benefit of it, directed to a Sacti devata.

6.) Divvya mangala dhyánam, slócas and mantram—divvya mangala, 'divine prosperity' is the name given to a sacti.

The piece is an extract from a book entitled, rája rajesvari tantra; and is an intensitive meditation, following the sacti homage.

The book is a medium sized quarto, in good order.

7. No. 7. Two treatises.

1.) Vari vasyam, a tica to some book.
By Bháscara rája, complete.

Various spells addressed to different sactis with the benefit of using them. The proper times of use—the vasyam or bringing over the said goddesses, so as to be propitious to the object in view; whatever that may be.

The former owner's note:

"This is an unintelligible treatise on the magic syllables—down-"right nonsense; but the Brahmans consider it a great curiosity and a "highly important book."

2.) Tantra rája vyakyánam; múlam and tica, incomplete; not regular as to leaves.

A book is entitled tantra raja, supra 3, No. 3, "royal ritual," to which this one is a comment. It contains spells in general; some addressed to Subrahmanya or Vinayaca; and various others to Sactis under different names; portions of the universal Mother: for special private objects, or in general homage. Of the two treatises, this one is the largest; but it is without beginning, or ending.

The book is a medium sized, neat quarto, the binding somewhat worn.

8. No. 8. Yogini hrüdayam, múlam and tica, in two sections.

1.) The múlam, mantra sastram.
The Vamakésvara tantram, 1—3 padalams not complete.

2.) The dípica, that is tica, or comment.
By Amritánanda yogi Indra.
1—3 unmeshams "winks" or sections.

Modes of tapas and ritual to various personified feminine deities, to whom the term devata is applied.

The ritual in detail: mantra-siddha the answer or accomplishment. [As noted before Yogini usually means a she imp, or fairy; and such beings may have more to do, as to these mantras, than every wiseacre may imagine.]

The book is a thin folio, in good order.

9. No. 9. Fifteen pieces.

1.) Katyánani, difficult prose, with a tica.

Modes of ritual homage to Cáli and other sactis, or goddesses.

2.) Garbha kulárnavam, slócas.

The " sea of the womb-family :" who regard the womb, with its appendices, as typifying universal Nature: the 3rd adhyáyam only, various spells, &c. The glory of the Siva sacti mantras explained.

3.) Vana Durga maha vidya, prose and mantras.

On the ritual to bring over this forest goddess ; and others also.

The bandhanam, or binding down: either not to hurt, or to aid in any device, with stuti or praise.

4.) Ashta muc'ha Narasinha mantra, the spell of the eight-faced man-lion ; mantras and prose.

—Dic bandhanam, binding the regents of the eight celestial points ; and other formules direct.

5.) Angirasa dic bandhanamantra ; mantra and prose form. Another spell to bind the eight points, ascribed to Angirasa, a great rishi, of high antiquity.

6.) Parà puja vidhánam, slócas, mantras and prose.

Mode of homage to a sacti named Parà which appears to be the feminine of Paran, the supreme.

7.) Bhadra Cáli mantram, from the 'Acasa Bhairava calpam, a work on the kaula mysteries. This is a spell to bring over the sacti of Vira Bhadra, for evil purposes.

8.) Chulini mantram, a spell to bring over a sacti of vindictive agency.

9.) Sarabha sáluva mantram, a spell addressed to the form assumed by Siva, to punish the man-lion avatára ; for vindictive objects.

10.) Smasána rudra mantram, a spell to bring over Siva, as dwelling in cemeteries ; of course as a deadly destroyer.

11.) Maya prayógam, a praxis on maya the ordinary term for matter ; in the highest acceptation the sacti of Brahmà, but often used in much lower meaning.

12.) Mátrica terpanam, mode of pouring out water from the hands, as an act of homage to " the mother ;" to bring her over, so as to aid.

13.) Chandrica puja, prose.

Form of ritual to a sacti named after the moon, or perhaps after a jewel which is moon-shaped.

14.) Chaturzashti bhairava mantram, prose spell to a terrific form of Siva, for aid.

15.) Amrita mritanjaya mantram.

Spell to the "Ambrosia death-conqueror" directed to Siva, whom the sacti bhaktis recognize; but only as subordinate to the feminine power.

The book is a medium sized quarto, the back injured.

10. No. 10. Two treatises.

1.) 'Ananda calpávali, "joy fruit-string."

By Avadhúta mahésvara, "the divine teacher" alias Tejánanda nát'ha "lord of splendid bliss," slócas, prose, mantra form.

Parispandam 1—13 that is, sections.

Stri-nát'ha puja, a mode of ritual homage in temples to the "female lord."

Nitya puja, daily, or constant ritual.

Pit'ha puja, homage to the pedestal, or shrine of the image; with a statement as to order, or precedency, among the various goddesses.

Parà Siva puja, and homa vidhi, ritual to the feminine power, with Siva; and mode of fire offering. If any defect occur a prayaschita or expiation, is provided.

[As temple service for the first time occurs, it may be noticed, that this retiring sect does not commonly possess distinct temples. However there is one at Periapolliam, connected with the Siva koil, but on the other, or western side of the river; and one of more regular construction at 'Arani on the eastern bank of the same river. I also casually ascertained the existence of one at Stri Permatùr; it was equivocally termed Iswara Koil; but the speaker, finding his marks to be understood, admitted the fact; and stated that there were about thirty families of that persuasion, in that town; and that they paid no respect to the large Vaishnava fane.]

2.) Nyána arnavam, slócas.

1—26 padalam, complete.

Excellency or glory of the letters used for spell; the term Varna málà may also designate a sacti; and her glory.

Bálà stuti, praise of the girl sacti.

Tripurésvari stuti, praise of that goddess; with Tripura sundari puja mahima; glory of the ritual to the sacti of Tripura i. e., Sancara or Siva.

Stri vidya homa, daily fire-offering to the feminine symbol, described.

Njána homa vivaranam, a detail of the "wise fire-offering" for learning, or knowledge.

Dicsha vidhi, mode of initiation to the mystic rites of this sect—the sacti bhaktis.

Guru vandanam, homage to the religious teacher.

Guru stuti, praise of the same, and other like subjects.

A thick quarto in good order.

11. No. 11. Lalita sahasranáma bhásyam.

By Bháscara raya or Bháswánanda.

The tica to the original slócas.

1—11 kalàs, or divisions, complete.

Praise of Lalita a sacti by 1,008 names, or titles, the meaning of each one paraphrased, or explained. Mode of ritual homage to the said Lalita—her glory declared—so much for substance.

A thick quarto fairly written, in good order, lettered "Mystery, Lalita 1000 names, with commentary." The word 'Mystery' is lettered on many volumes of this class; seemingly as synonymous with 'a secret.' Very likely the Eleusinian, and other mysteries were of this class; but the more legitimate native use is for isoteric doctrine, within some external exhibition; such as Vishnu rahasya the monotheistic doctrine. The sacti system is wholly secret.

12. No. 12. Four tracts.

1.) Tri zati namávali pracásica, a paraphrase or illustration of the names of a goddess. By Sancaráchárya, 1, 15 pracásanam or sections.

Sri vidhya is applied to the recondite knowledge of the class. It is used also for the sàcti, and three hundred names, or epithets; are illustrated in this tract.

2.) Tripura tápani, prose.

The 3rd khandam only.

Between the two words, either sundara, or sundari may be understood. The piece declares the glory, or excellency of the deva or devata; but the real leaning is to the sacti, or female energy.

3.) Váma áchára siddhántam; slocas.

By Mahésvara áchárya.

The 1st padalam only. It appears to belong to the Váma déva samhita, and gives the correct ritual, as to mode of homage to déva the god, or guru the teacher.

4.) Bhagalà muc'hi, slócas, mantras, from the jaya drita yamala, incomplete.

The name (vulvæ prosópa) is applied to a sacti or goddess; with a thousand names or epithets. Some spells are contained; the excellence of the said sacti is declared.

The book is a thin folio, neat writing, in good order, lettered "Mystery."

13. No. 13. Three pieces.

1.) Parásara samhita, slócas.

By Parásara, 1—65 padalams, incomplete.

There are other notices of this work. The part looked into of this one relates to Hanumàn. The pancha muc'ha Hanumàn mantra, or spell of the five-faced Hanumàn. Praise of Anjini, by which name also heis known.

Dwája dhattam, a tale of him; the words appear to be an epithet of the same. A filthy legend, as to the birth of Hanumàn is contained. The ordinary legend makes Hanumàn to leap at the sun, mistaking it for a fruit: here, by an improvement, he is stated to have swallowed the sun. Again we find Hanumàn educated by Súrya (the sun) who gave him to wife his daughter Suverchala.

Trisúla róma vátam—the slaying of one named "the triden t Róma."

Sumuc'ha charitra the tale of one named from a good countenance.

The bearing of the whole apparently is to show the importance of Hanumàn, and of the mantra named after him.

[A small proportion of Vaishnavas lean over to, or adopt the sacti system; and names and persons of their own class, not using Saiva names.]

2.) Paramánanda lahari; slócas; otherwise termed shódasa ashstottra sata náma—no tica. It is the second section, taken out from the garbha kularnavam, v. 9. 2) supra.

Paramánanda may mean "celestial joy;" but the term ánandam has been adopted by this sect, with reference to their own ritual.

It appears here to be applied to the sacti; with a variety of epithets involving praise.

3.) Tatva pracásica, tica form.

It is a paraphrase on a book entitled stuti sucta málà.

It appears to be Saiva and ascetical; but was not very particularly examined.

The book is a folio, of medium thickness, neat writing, binding damaged, lettered "Mystery."

14. No. 15. Sarada tilacam, slòcas and mantras, 1—25 padalams incomplete.

The forehead spot of Sarada, a goddess. A salutation to Dacshina múrti the Saiva genius of learning, to Siva (or Párvati) to Siva and to Vignésvara (Ganésa.)

Mode of propitiatory homage to Indra, and the rest of the 8 guardians of the celestial points—placing calasams, or vessels holding water—with fire—offerings to propitiate, bind, or bring over.

Praise of the aforesaid. As the Vira Saivas have invented a cosmogony of their own, so in this book there appears one differing from the ordinary Hindu puránas.

The main part of the book is on the sacti secret homage; not admitting of full detail. The representative of Mátangi (the maternal member goddess is not, in this book, any altar with diagram and spells inscribed, as most usual; but a living pariah girl; who is to be treated in every way with respect, and presents; so as to propitiate. She is to be placed on a pedestal in an imaginary shrine, after the preceding spells have been used. There is a form for inspiring her with the goddess; and thenceforward she is no longer a mere woman; but the goddess incarnate; and care must be taken not to provoke her displeasure, or curse; which would be the curse of the goddess. The púja to Mátangi is made, not attended with any gross outrage; and the individual hired, as above, is dismissed civilly, with presents. The object is to obtain wealth; and sometimes, for purposes more malignant. Light needs to be thrown on "the dark places" of this country; and some sacrifice of propriety must be made in consequence.

The book is a thick quarto, in good order, lettered "Saradà tilaca Mystery."

15. No. 16. Sixteen brief pieces.

1.) Kula arnavam, slocas.

6—11 adhyáyams.

A part of the leading book of this class on the mode of purifying materials, used as offerings; with details as to the excellency of this mode of homage.

2.) Garbha kula arnavam, slócas.

1—13 padalams.

Sáubhagya, an epithet of the goddess—mode of offerings, and homage to that goddess. Mode of night homage, usual, but not peculiar to that class. The fruit, or benefit of such homage.

3.) Lalita stavam—slócas.

Lalita one of the names or forms of Parvati; praise to that sacti.

4.) Sri chacra lékhana vidhi, slócas, prose, mantras.

The Sri chacra is the diagram of the sect; but it is varied, according to various purposes intended to be answered. The suitable mantra is afterwards written in: mantra siddhi is the accomplished purpose. [The question arises whether people would obstinately usethis, or any other system of magic, if always in vain; and if the mantra siddhi occur for their encouragement so to continue; then, by what agency ?]

5.) Siva ananda lahari—slócas 210.

"The flood of Siva's bliss"; the glory of Siva, and praise rendered; including praise of the sacti of course.

6.) Chitambara natanam—4 slócas.

At some periods Siva dances; these slócas are on an exhibition of that sort, in the great temple at Chitambaram.

7.) Mahésvara ashtacam, 8 slócas.

Praise of Siva—his glory declared.

8.) Sáundarya lahari, 100 slócas.

By Sancarácháryа—The "flood of beauty;" a description of the bodily members of Parvati, with laudation.

9.) Shada amnáyam, mantras, and prose.

The mantram of Syámala dévi.

The mantram of Varahi [it is this form of Durga that has a lion-vehicle; as one of the seven great mothers; having no relation to the Varáhávatáram].

Mantras to bind the six points of the heavens; that is, the four cardinal points, with the zenith and nadir.

10.) Panchami stáva rája, slócas, royal praise of Tripura sundari, and other forms of the female energy.

11.) Kála adarisam, slócas, prose.

Mode of ritual homage to Kálà or kálicà, which is to be distinguished from Káli the sacti of Vira Bhadra, v. No. 17.

12.) Yógini hrúdayam ; slócas.

1—3 upadésa, so far complete ; attributed to Amṛitánanda nát'ha vide 28 No. 30, but extracted from the Vamakésvara tantram.

The mode of tapas or penance, so as to produce benefit ; and of course various details, and mantras of the sacti system.

13.) Sacti Ganapati vidhánam, slócas and mantras, 1—15 padalams, so far complete ; taken from the siddha yamalam.

Details of homage intended to bring over the goddess, so as to be propitious ; and to aid in designs, of what nature soever.

14.) Uch'hista Ganapatiyam, slócas and mantrams. Mode of homage to Ganapati to obtain learning or intellectual skill ; but Ganapati is sometimes used merely as a covert term for sacti rites.

15.) Sveta calpam, slócas.

The 5th padalam only.

Sveta (of the same meaning as Gáuri) is the name, or epithet of a sacti—praise of her ; and benefit of homage directed to her.

16.) 'Aschárya ashstottra satam.

One hundred and eight names of a sacti termed 'Aschárya (wonderful) with praise said to be from the Garbhakula ágamam.

The following note, by the former proprietor, is prefixed to this volume.

" Consisting of extracts from various treatises. These extracts are transcribed unaltered from a palm leaf volume found at Trichinopoly. They regard the ultimate, and most hidden parts of the mysteries. The volume is excessively rare, and vigilantly concealed. These are indeed curiosities. The original MS. is in the déva nágari character, and very ancient." Date, and place not given—the note must have been written at an early period of enquiries. This collection has several copies of some of the pieces.

The book is a medium quarto ; the binding a little injured.

16. No. 17. Two treatises.

1.) Kálicágama, slócas, prose mantras.

1—21 padalams.

With reference back to No. 16, 11 it now appears that kálicà is shad kalà six-fold, or formed ; that is kálica—kála rátri, kála dichva—Bhadra Cáli—kála rúpi—mrítya kálicà. These are all terrific forms ; and drinking the blood of victims offered in sacrifice was among the rites.

Praise of those goddesses, or of the one sextuple—glory—mode of ritual homage, and the like.

2.) Párasu Ráma sútram, sutra form, incomplete.

This recondite piece contains chants, or hymns, in praise of Indrâni, Vignésa, Cálátma, Adi-bindhu, and other names, or forms of portions of the universal female energy, or NATURE. The sculptures on the Amarávati (or Elliot) marbles, which harmonize with the sacti system, represent these forms hieroglyphically by very small circles, within a large circle; or by many dots within a circle. In addition to the said chants, the worship, or ritual homage, to a naked woman as above explained, is given with the direct worship of the vulva ut dea; symbolical of course; though surprising, this homage is less obtrusive than the Saiva worship of the lingam, or phallus.

The book is a thin quarto, the binding a little worn.

17. No. 18. Siva archana chandrica.

By Srînivasa bhatta; slócas, mantras, prose; from the 25th pracásam (splendor) to the 35th incomplete.

The title would imply the phallus-worship; but it is equivocal; Sivárchana may relate either to Siva, or Sivà (Parvati.)

Rules for forming the diagram—mode of repeating the Durga mantram, homage to Dévi, as if seated in a splendid temple; meditation on the imaginary form, of pleasing, and agreeable countenance. Another mode of meditation on Durga, with matted hair; a necklace of skulls; and quite naked. Homage to a living representative of the goddess NATURE, as before explained. Gazing on such a type, and especially when menstruous, is deemed meritorious. Adultery with the wife of another man is herein stated to be an act of the greatest possible virtue. If there be an exacerbation it is this, that oblations of the blood of goats, buffaloes, of men, and of hares are directed to be made; together with the flesh of cats, and the hair of Pariars.

Much of the poetical, and imaginative is mixed up with the other, and grosser matter; and in the most extravagant kind of oriental allegory. The splendid temple, for example, abovementioned is brilliant as gold, has a pillar entirely formed of gems, and a hundred golden windows. The goddess, in one portion, is drawn with all the minute personal description of eastern poets, as a lovely young female; and, anon, is an Amazonian fury, with dishevelled hair, a necklace of skulls, and attributes of terror. All this might be passed by, as mere poetry, though idolatrous. However in the plain, tangible, and intelligible matters of fact, as to manners and morals, these run counter to the common sense, that is, to the almost universal opinion of mankind.

The book is a medium quarto, the binding a little used.

18. No. 19. Siddhágama tantram: said to be from the Rudra yamalam, slocas.

1—8 padalams and the 87th and 89th padalams, cætera desunt.

On the Srî vidya, general learning, or science of this peculiar sect.

Mantras or spells directed to Durga—Vana Durga the forest goddess, Dacshinà múrti v. supra—Bhagalà (dea vulva) Garuda—to bring them over, so as to aid. Modes of homage in connexion with the spells—japa muttered prayer—tápa burning, or intensive desire in meditation—and the like matters. The title indicates magic; the substance gives the specific kind.

The book is a thin quarto, the binding a little used.

19. No. 20. Calpa káustubham, from the Rudra yamalam, slocas.

1—5 padalams, and 83—89 padalams.

Siva is represented as stating that he worships Tripura—the mother of all—by poets termed Maya or Pracrüti, &c., but her primeval name is Vana Durga (the wild, or forest Durga.)

Rules for forming yentras, or diagrams, and inscribing the magic letters, or syllables therein, matters to be used in offerings, flesh, fish, wine, &c., also drugs, as opium, and the like, and flowers. One of those offerings, it is stated, will cause the votary to live six hundred years.

The whole relates to the worship of the female energy, as paramount to the masculine energy. Analogous to Cybele, the "mother of the gods;" or to the "celestial Venus" among the Greeks.

The book is a thin quarto, the binding injured.

20. No. 21. Four treatises.

1.) Sudarsana samhita, slocas, mantras.

1—27 padalams.

Parvati asking Siva, who now protects the world? on Vishnu's ceasing to become incarnate. Siva states some matters as spoken by Vishnu, to his discus (Sudarsana) and adds that Hanumàn, under the orders of Rama, now preserves the world. The spell of Hanumàn, octo-syllabic, is given, with the mode of silent repetition—and describing the form of Hanumàn. Benefit of meditating on that form, with use of mantras; a string of which on the múla mantram is given.

The kinds of diagrams used for those spells.

2). Pratápa Hanumanta calpam.

1—8 padalams, slocas, prose, mantrams.

Pratápa means glorious; and it may be understood of Hanuman, or of the benefit accruing from his worship.

The pancha vactra or five-faced Hanuman-spell for (akarishanam) drawing, or gaining over—bandhanam for binding down, not to oppose; vasyam to seduce, or fascinate—vidvésliana to divide, cause enmity between. The various spells, with fire offering, used for these and like purposes.

[These two pieces tend to explain the use of the words Sudarsana and Hanuman as to their employ by Saivas; which might lead to mistake. A small proportion of Vaishnavas are fallen off to the Sacti way, and such pieces, as the foregoing, may have been intended to draw such entirely over to the Saiva sacti system; and No. 22 infra may yield another exemplar.]

3. Suréndra samhita.

1—14 padalams—slócas.

Account given by Siva to Parvati, at her request, as to the mode of ritual homage to Syamala dévi; that is to a portion of herself; and this, it seems, originally was told by Nárada to Indra.

The Mátangi vidhi, or homage to Mátangi is described, with the mantra used in that ritual. Mention herein occurs of the "right handed" and the "left handed" way; which may need further elucidation. The instruction here is to choose a Chandáli, or Pariar girl, in her first menstruation, on Tuesday, or Sunday of the dark half lunation; and, after the preparatory purification of the place, and binding the guardians, as often noted above, to inspire the said individual with Mátangi; to which being oblations are made, and the spell repeated one hundred times, with motions of the hands accompanying. This book allows the preference to be given to a woman of the military, or mercantile caste, or to a common prostitute. Sandalwood paste is to be put on her body; food and drink given; her eye-lids are to be tinged with antimony. The magician must be self-collected, or restrained; or he may go mad. With all this, a small combustible image is to be at hand, and the operator is to write his enemy's name upon it, and it is then to be burnt on the hearth; it being added, the said enemy will die within a fortnight. Then follows the direct worship of Ucshista Chandáli (the propelling Pariah) with the use of wines, or ardent spirits. It is added that any votary who makes known this secret worship is guilty of incest with his mother. In the 5th padalam are rules for the forms of diagrams; in the 6th the forms of what are termed pit'has pedestals (quasi altars) and fire-pits; the articles for oblations, and the kind of flowers to be offered, described: rules for fascinating kings, chiefs, a Brahmani woman, or Sudra girl are given. Spells for offspring; for release from bondage; and other objects. Spells to Cáli. Mátangi and Syamalá for impediment in war; for arresting the sword; stopping the mouth, bewildering the mind of adversaries ; laming the feet ; blinding the eyes ; and, in a word, all that magic aims at. The potency of the spells is lauded.

[It has been thought right to be a little particular with this book The system prevailed in the province of Bengal ; and mutineer sepoys were probably of this class. It is a depressed system in the Peninsula ; but as the result of enquiry, it is found that it permeates every where ; always existing where there is a small shrine appended to Saiva temples, termed Amman Kovil. They are the Ammoneans of Bryant ; whom that learned writer has managed to find every where.]

4.) Bhadra krityà prasamsa, or "praise of the vengeful-doing ;" slócas.

41—48 adhyayams, incomplete ; but stated to be extracted from the Maha Lacshmi retna calpa (v. No. 22 infra.)

Ritual of homage to the said goddess, to gain over her influence, or power, for use—for the cure of distempers, for the destruction of enemies and the like. The somewhat prudent precaution is given, that if the conduct, of the spell, or spells is without fault, the rite will succeed ; but if faulty it will not ; and will recoil on the operator.

The book is a medium sized quarto ; the binding used, or worn.

21. No. 22. Mahà Lacshmi retna cosham, slócas 1—42 and 45—88 adhyáyams the 43rd and 44th being wanting, and it does not seem to finish.

Isvara relates to Parvati, the glory and excellency of Lacshmi, with details of her worship ; especially as to the spells, with their accompaniments which are used, and are taught in this book. The kinds of diagrams for inscribing the spells ; and their great value. In the midst the Garuda dhyánam, an intensitive meditation is given. On five modes of purifying the five elements. External, and mental modes of homage. Times of offering sacrifices. Some fire offerings for use of women, making this kind of homage —fire pits for those offerings—their forms or properties, and the like things.

[Lacshmi is apparently synonymous with Nárayani, one of the seven great mothers, or forms of eternal matter, personified.]

The book is a thick quarto, bound ; the back injured.

22. No. 23. Four pieces.

1.) Bhagalà calpam, slócas, and mantras.

1—36 padalams, complete.

Ritual for bringing over this sacti—fire offerings to be used—the dhyánam or intensitive meditation—akarashanam securing, or binding down to do the required kinds of service.

2.) Sapta sati, the "seven hundred."

1—21 adhyáyam, incomplete.

Part of the Ch'handipàt'h of Durga.

Durga argalam the door-bolt of Durga.

,, cavacham, praise and invocation for aid.

Vagisvari stottra, praise of the sacti.

Devi stuti praise of Devi or Durga; both names are chiefly used with reference to the Amazonian war; the subject of the Ch'handipàt'h.

3.) Lalita sahasra náma, slócas, the 1008 names, used in the worship of Lalita, one of the sacti forms, or names of Parvati; complete.

4.) Srî vidya vilásam, slócas, prose and mantras, complete.

Sri vidya, a goddess, otherwise, the sacti system. Ritual of homage.

Cálasa st'hápana, the placing vessels of water to be mantricised, and then used in lustrations—prána pratisht'ha, spells for infusing life into any diagram, or image, or inspiring any person with the goddess; causing any one to become possessed. The chacras; that is, the kinds of diagrams, used for spells or homage; the triangle and circle in chief; but variously combined, or posited.

23. No. 24. Akila mantra sangraham or Srî vidya sutra dîpica, a compendium of illustration of the Srî vidya, as above.

This book forms a receptacle for a great variety of pieces, under distinct headings, on the subject of the Sacti worship, and other modes of magic; according to a manuscript note, collected at Masulipatam in 1831.

To detail the whole is useless, some are as follows:

Sri madana gópála mantras.
Dhárana gópála ,,
Murti panjara ,,
Ashta Mahishi nyása ,, Késava and other ,,
Tatva nyása ,,
Retna gópála mantra kramam.
Madana gópála stottra.
Gópála upanishada (spurious.)

} These have chiefly relation to Krishna.

Nava retna stuti, nine jewelled praise.

Pátuca stottra, praise of the slipper.

'Abarana devata stuti, praise of the jewelled goddess.

Ganapati upanishada (spurious.)

Dacshana murti sahasranama, the 1008 names of the Saiva genius of learning.

Rája rajésvari stottram, praise of the royal-queen goddess, ("queen of heaven," Jerem: 44, 17—19.)

Bálà cavacham with puja, defensive spell, and mode of ritual to the young Parvati.

Bhairava mantram, see other notices.

The preceding headings include 95 pieces, or subjects; and the remaining pieces are placed under three headings.

The book is of medium quarto, the binding worn.

24. No. 25. Eleven pieces.

1.) Kartaviryarjuna calpam, slócas, prose and mantrams.

Mode of homage, and its benefits of a vindictive kind.

2.) Kartaviryarjuna mantra vidhanam, slócas, explaining the use of the spells. The directions being followed, the desired object, or objects will be attained.

3.) Rája rajésvari adhyáyam, slócas: intensitive meditation upon a ritual, and spell to a sacti, as above.

4.) Laghu maha vidya kramam, or otherwise Pratyangira vidhanam.

A brief ritual to Pratyangira a sacti.

5.) Sábara chintámani.

By 'Adi nat'ha, slócas, and some Telugu prose, distinct 1—10 padalams, not complete. Ritual mantrams, &c., in the usual way, directed to Cáli, and other sactis to bring over, and render obedient to any designs.

6.) Bétala calpam, slócas and prose.

1—11 padalams.

Bétala is commonly understood of a subservient familiar demon; as in the tale of Vicramarca. It is therein connected with Cáli, and human sacrifices. It belongs to the sacti class of notions; and, in these sections are directions as to homage to the Bétala—its glory or excellence, &c. The design to obtain, and use its services.

[Shakespeare's beautiful fiction of Ariel may be taken as a specimen; though the ideas attached to a Bétala, are more consonant to a Caliban].

7.) Avésha Hanumanta mantram, prose with mantras.

Avésha is usually understood of a subtile, or spiritual form of some unearthly being, that comes over, and possesses people; a belief every where current. These are spells, and other matters so to bring over, and use Hanuman, as to possess and infatuate; and some of the matters are of a licentious character.

8.) Indrácshi mantra vidhánam, slócas and mantras.

Spell and connected ritual to a sacti termed Indra's eye; possibly synonymous with "stella."

9.) Káliká vidhanam, slocas.

Mode of ritual, &c., to a sacti v. No. 17 supra.

10.) Kula nayicà puja vidhánam.

Order of homage to the "family lady" or goddess of the locality, among sacti bhaktis.

11.) Kuláchára paddhi, slocas, incomplete.

Directions as to daily ritual, and customary duties of this class.

The book is a small quarto, the binding worn, and the back injured.

25. No. 26. Six pieces: this is the 3d vol. of "Sactya miscellany;" a collection of spells, &c.

1.) Sarabhà Kálicà agamam, slócas with a Telugu tica: 1—12 padalams.

Spells to drive away—disperse, &c.: some medical charms against agues, and other diseases.

2.) Pratyangira prayoga vidhi—slócas incomplete. The practice of rites to bring over, bind, &c. Pratyangirà a sacti.

3.) Maha Lacshmi calpam, slocas.

Ritual to Lacshmi, with its benefit stated v. supra 21, No. 22

4.) Pratyangira upanishadam 32 ríchs.

On the majesty of this goddess: if genuine, it must belong to the At'harvana védom.

5.) Bhagala mantra vidhána kramam.

Mode of ritual &c., &c., to this sacti above defined.

6.) Anna púrnésvari mantra calpam, slocas with prose and mantras.

[Anna purna is the name of a sacti at Benares, and other places. The mode of ritual, the spells to be used, and the glory of this sacti. Col. Moor in his Hindu Pantheon states that, in the Deccan, this goddess is publicly represented by a naked woman, outside of a temple; whom devotees walk around in homage, and pour upon her offerings of corn; the name means "fulness of food" quasi Ceres].

26. No. 27. Two treatises.

1.) Lalitárchana paddhi, slócas.

By Chitánanda nát'ha.

1—2 parich'hédas complete, some prose and mantrams. Lalita a sacti.

Concerning the officiating hierophant. Meditation on the ishta devata, or preferred goddess—on cleansing after evacuations. Homage to the náva nat'ha (pilot?)

Dwara devata puja, homage to the guardian of the door Matrica puja homage to "the mother". Pit'ha puja kramam, order of the pedestal (altar) homage. Mode of placing calasas or water vessels for lustrations, and the use of the water. Ritual to various sactis, with the fruit, or benefit stated.

2.) Sabhariya calpávali slócas, prose.

By Srînivasa cavi.

1—5 st'hápacams, the 6th defective.

Ch'handi a name, or epithet of an Amazonian goddess. Mode of homage, three times daily, analogous to the sandya vandanam of other classes.

The whole was not particularly examined.

The book is a medium sized quarto, the binding a little worn.

27. No. 28. Five pieces.

1.) Chulini Durga vidhánam.

1—14 upadésams (lessons) complete.

The title limits the homage to a terrific form; and the chief points are akarishanam propitiating, vasyam gaining over; then, by the aid acquired uch'chadana driving away enemies &c., stambhanam impeding progress. The full order of ritual is given.

2.) Ganapati calpam—slócas.

1—14 padalams.

The ritual is termed Uch'chista Ganapati puja for gaining over, and for driving away enemies, or the like. The spells are stated to be shadprayóga of six-fold practice; and may correspond with the shad kalà, before noted. The mantra siddhi or accomplishment of the design. Praise is given to the terrifying Ganésa, for the result.

3.) Kartaviryarjuna calpam, slócas.

The benefit of homage to the Sacti. The name appears to be only distinctive.

4.) Kâumara samhita, slócas.

1—9 adhyáyam.

The Vidya Ganésa mantram, with various adjuncts of ritual homage.

5.) Trisati námam—slócas prose, and mantras. Praise of Lalita-devi, by three hundred names, or epithets. Glory, or excellence of the said sacti.

The book is a medium sized quarto, the binding worn.

28. No. 30. Two pieces.

1.) Yòginì hrüdayam, slócas with tica, the tica by Amrṭananda nàt'ha.

1—3 sankétam, complete.

Praise of the ishta devata, or preferred goddess : mode of teaching books on this system to other persons, as pupils. Some diagrams, with different names, and objects ; which, with their mantras inscribed, and recited, have the power of the sacti inherent : one with nine angles ; one with ten angles, but not regular polygons.

Trailocya móhana chacram, spell, and diagrams, fascinating three worlds.

Sarva róga hara chacram, the like, that destroys every disease.

Mudra vivaram, motions of hands and fingers, used with various spells.

Kâula mata lacshanam, a description of the peculiarities of the sacti mode of homage, and credence. Various modes of penance for obtaining desired boons ; and the like matters.

2.) 'Ascharya ashtottra sata.

Praise of a sacti by 108 names : her glory ; and connected matters.

[Aschar is the name without inflexion. Mr. Layard, at Nineveh read a name in a symbol, clearly of this sect, as if it were Ashur. Query if both are not the same ? as the Assyrians, according to the Hebrew writings, were Yonians, or sacti bhaktis. Ashtar was the Phenician word, according to the same testimony. Athor was the Egyptian name.

They are probably one name. The word " wonderful" used above is, in Sanscrit, áschâryam.]

29. No. 31. Four pieces.

1.) Sangyayana tantram, slócas, prose and various mantrams.

1--36 padalams.

Bhagalà calpam, the benefit of ritual homage to this sacti ; typified by the feminine symbol ; as lingam is the masculine symbol of other Saivas.

Concerning initiation to this way, or system by a guru—mode of abishegam or pouring out water on the neophytes (quasi baptism) excellence of this kind of homage, yentra prayógam, formation of diagrams

Ulca muc'hi, a fire-faced-goddess—a spell to hinder her. The benefit of homage to Bhagalà, repeated.

2.) Lalita sahasranáma—slócas complete.

Praise of Lalita dèvi, by one thousand and eight names ; which are used in ceremonial homage.

3.) Sri vidya puja krama ; slócas with various mantras. Mode of ritual homage to a sacti, bearing a name, which is also applied to the recondite science of this class in general. Formation of diagram, spell inscribed : direct homage paid to it.

4.) Sapta sati, slócas with prose, and various mantras 1—16 adhyáyams. From the Marcandeya puránam.

Praise of Dévi, who led on the war of Amazons, and destroyed various Asuras (or Assyrians). The chief is the Mahisha vàtam, with Dumbra lochana, Rakta bija, Nishumbha ; and many others.

There are also some rites, and mantras to the said sacti a name of Parvati.

The book is a medium sized quarto, the back loose, and the binding worn.

The former owner wrote inside this book, the following :

" Mysteries of sacti puja. This book contains copies of 4 books, regarding the most hidden mysteries of the sacti puja, i. e., the worship of a naked woman, celebrated in secret with flesh and wine ; which the worshipers eat and drink. Hence all (?) castes are confounded ; and inconceivable abominations are practised."

" The goddess Bagalà or Vagalá muc'hi is a form of Maya, the sister of Krishna and is worshipped as a cup of water" emblematic of the vulva.

This book professes to be a supplement to the Culamavam and Garbha Culamavam."

30. No. 32. Sri vidya vilàsam.

By Gangamánanda nat'ha, slócas, with prose and mantras 1—7 ulásams complete, " amusement of sacred science."

Sri vidya goddess. Mode of writing or forming the diagram—homage to it—its excellency or glory—pìt'ha puja kramam, order of homage to the pedestal, or shrine; the fire offering used. The intensitive meditation, and muttered prayer, conveying the wish of the votary : worship of the different members of the said Sri vidya, personified as a female. Praise of that form. Properties of the successful spell ; that is, when it answers to the intention.

Properties descriptive of the mudras, seals or signs, by motions of hands and fingers; and on what places on the body of the worshippers the hands and fingers are to be put, during the progress of homage.

The book is a thin folio, the binding worn.

31. No. 33. Three treatises.

1.) Páushcara ágamam, slocas.

1—8 padalams.

On the different padart'hams, or genera of existing things.

Bindu surúpa—on the nature or properties of Para Brahm—tatva nirupanam—detail of properties—Mayá vivaranam, an illustration as to the negative cause, or female energy.

Pasu padart'ham, the genus of cows, or brutes ; some other castes are so termed ; as the old Hebrews were accustomed to call aliens, dogs. Kala sacti, six sactis, some good, some evil. What is the pramánam, or measure of things, some are finite, some illimited, or infinite. Said to pertain to the púrva Saiva, or ancient system.

2.) Sarva gnána uttaram.

One ágama or book ; slócas.

On the elements of all things ; on the mantra and tantra or formule with its mantra, or its appropriate diagram ; an enquiry, or discussion thereon.

Agni kárya vivaranam, mode of fire offerings. On initiation. Mode of sacrifices in some cases ; and with reference to the karta, maker or person appointing the sacrifice, and paying the costs.

Siva vrüta surúpa, on the form and conduct of Saiva festivals, or other observances.

Throughout the preceding two sections are mingled details on the formation and proportions of lingas, or masculine symbols, with modes of ritual homage, according to what I believe is termed "the right handed way" ; as the following more properly relates to "the left handed way."

3.) Matanga paramésvaram, a Saiva agaman, 1—17 padalams complete. On the work of destruction and preservation ; herein termed layam, and bhógam. Detail of the names of several sactis. Vidya tatvam, Maya tatvam, kala tatvam; these are technical terms. Niti surupa, atma búddhi, guna nirúpanam, are other terms of a mental, or spiritual bearing. Sata, asata, wisdom and ignorance described ; and other like matters.

The book is a thin folio, old, the paper inferior, and somewhat damaged, the binding worn. [The contents would seem to be of remoter antiquity than usual].

32. No. 34. Two treatises.

1.) Yógini hrúdayam—slócas with a tica by Amṛitananda nát'ha.

1—3 unmeshams.

Praise of the preferred goddess.

Modes of instruction in books of this class.

Mode of forming various diagrams—to each a sacti power—diagrams of nine, and ten angles, the seals, or signs used with each one. A diagram and spell, fascinating the three worlds—an enquiry into the rites, and practices of the kâula matam, or family system. Modes of penance, and others of ritual homage to sactis, worshipped by that class of people.

2.) Ascharya ashstottra satam.

Praise by 108 names—an alias is said to be Sáubhágya dévi of frequent occurrence, supra.

The book is a small quarto, the binding damaged.

No. 35. Stated to be "lost."

33. No. 36. Lalita upakhyánam, said to be from the Brahmóttara khandam of the scanda puranam, 1—33 adhyáyams.

Communicated by Hayagriva (a centaur) to Agastya; slócas.

On creation, preservation, destruction—origin of the world—nature of men; ancient wars. On the satvica-rajasa, and támasa gunas. The tatva guna or truth is always inherent in Vishnu. If the paramatma become manifest in the flesh it will always manifest the tatva gunam.

[Hayagriva is the genius of learning among Vishnu-bhaktis; and the first person is used as "I (Vishnu) create, preserve, destroy." The name Lalita belongs to the sacti way; but this book seems more general. The book, on many pages has Latin interlined, or notes by the former owner; who states that the extract is from the Brahmánda puránam].

It is a large quarto, of medium thickness, the binding injured.

34. No. 37. Three pieces.

1.) Kula arnavam, slócas only.

1—17 ulásams, complete.

On the birth and death of mankind. Excellency of the kula matam, or family sect. The ritual used in it. Modes of yógam, or penance for desired boons. Excellence of the mode of homage to the female power. Mode of initiation by a guru; the excellence of the said teacher.

Various other matters: it is an authority with this class; and other notices may be consulted.

2.) Garbha kula arnavam, slócas.

1—24 padalam, complete.

Elsewhere noted—rites in the worship of Sáubhágya—various festivals, modes of homage therein—as the nava ratri (nine nights) the great Durga festival in September—the full moon—the new moon—and Kṛishna angaraca chaturdasi, or Dipávali, and others.

The book is a medium-sized quarto; the binding worn.

3.) Chatur shasti stavam, 64 slócas.

By Sancaráchárya.

A description of the members, and person of Parvati. It may be a part of the Sâundari lahari; but comparison was not made.

The book is a medium sized quarto, the binding worn.

35. Nos. 51, 39, 39, 43. Four pieces.

No. 51. Tripura sundari calpam.

By Amṛtánanda nát'ha, slócas.

1—101 calpam (or fruit).

—Glory of Tripura (of course not a "demon") and glory of Tripura sundari, the sacti of the destroyer of three towns. The excellence of that kula, family, or caste. A discrimination as to what kinds of flesh may, and may not be eaten. Mode of homage by diagrams, with spells inscribed.

Bhuvanésvari puja, to the earthly paradise lady, Cáli púja to the sacti of Vira bhadra, and to other names or portions of the general negative, or passive power.

No. 39. Garbha kula arnavam.

1—24 padalams, complete.

See preceding notices No. 37 et alibi.

No. 39. Bhagalà calpam, slócas.

1—10 padalams, complete.

Various fire-offerings and rituals for akarishanam, subduing; vasyam, drawing over; and the like; see foregoing notices.

No. 43. Siddhanta scc'haram.

6—10 parich'hedams—slócas.

Nine kinds of snapana vidhi, or lustrations for minor faults, or purifications, Pratish'ha vidhi, mode of consecrating an image.

Jirna udhâranam, repairs of temples, or other sacred buildings. With other matters of the Saiva right-handed way. It does not belong strictly to the sacti system; except as those shrines are often found within the boundary wall of Saiva temples, and near the larger shrine.

The former owner's note on this section.

"This is a kind of Saiva code of worship, defining the lingam, with rules for erecting, and worshipping it—properly this is a portion of the silpa sastram."

The entire book is a folio, of medium thickness, in good order.

36. Nos. 41, 40. Two pieces.

No. 41. Siddhanta sec'hara, slócas.

6—36 parich'hedams, incomplete.

Another copy of the preceding No. 43.

1—20 padalams, complete, vide infra No. 52.

The book is a small quarto, the binding used.

37. Nos. 44, 52. Two treatises.

No. 44. Siva samayánca mátṛicà.

1—16 ulásams complete, slócas.

Mátṛicá, an epithet of Parvati, as seated on the lap, or thigh of Siva.

Mode of ácharam, or worship in temples; and also homage in mantapas or choultries.

[If a judgment may be formed from one specimen seen, they differ from the open mantapas of other sects.]

Excellence of the spell used in the homage to this sacti. The puja p'halam, or benefit of homage rendered.

No. 52. 'Ananda tantram, slócas.

1—20 padalams, complete.

'Ananda rupa, "form of joy"—a symbol so termed—the cause of creation, destruction, &c. Vidya surúpa, another form or symbol. Benefit of homage. The recondite services or rites, of the sacti bhaktis are contained in the book, analogous to what has been already stated.

The former owener's note:

"Siva Sama ánca Maluca.

'Ananda tantram or Bhaga Málini samhita—two treatises that explain, in the amplest manner, the most recondite mysteries of the sacti puja, or worship of the good goddess''; (he translates bona dea.)

The book is a folio, handsomely bound in green calf, a little roué; that is, worn.

38. Nos. 82, 46. Four subjects.

1.) Mátṛica chacra vivécam.

1—5 khandas, slócas only.

Various diagrams with their inscribed spells, used in the worship of Mátṛica "the mother," emblematized as usual. The excellency and power of the said diagram, &c. Siva sacti nirupanam, a description of the feminine power.

2.) Mátrïca chacra vyakya—tica.

By Sivánanda, 1—5 khandas.

An exposition, or paraphrase of the preceding original.

3). Trisati bhashya, tica form.

By Sancaráchárya.

This is a comment only, on three hundred names of the sacti—(see No. 28, 5) supra.

1—15 pracasanams; illustrations.

[Parà devata is a name of the sacti; and Parà Paran seems to be the true construction of the word, in Tamil-Christian usage, for God].

4.) Siva samayánca mátricà; slócas.

1—16 ulásas complete.

See 37. No. 44, supra.

The entire book is a folio, half bound, with paper back: marble inside.

39. Nos. 109, 47, 116. Four tracts.

Sect. 1. Njanárnavam, slócas.

1—26 padalams, complete.

Varna málà,—letters, and the sacti or power to which each one belongs.

Bala Tripurésvari. "The young lady of the three towns;" or youthful Parvati.

Tripura sundari, the same; but as matron.

Sri vidya "the sacred learning" of the sect, or name of a sacti; of frequent occurrence, supra; with various others.

The title means "the sea of wisdom;" and self-praise is quite usual with this class.

Sect. 2. See VII. 4 supra.

Sect. 3. Párasu Ráma sutra.

Sutra form (brief, obscure) complete.

These sentences relate to many names or forms of sactis, with some recognition of the masculine, or positive power in creation, &c. Excellency, and matters of homage stated; among others to Indriyáni —Lalita Ganapati—Adi-bindu—Kalâtma, &c.

Sect. 4. Narasinha uttara tápani, mulam, and tica, incomplete.

This professes to be an adjunct of the Veda. It is entitled from the 5th avataram of Vishnu. It was not very particularly examined.

The book is small quarto, in plain sheep binding.

40. Nos. 88, 106, 48, 105. Seven pieces.

1.) Dadhichi samhita—slócas.

2—30 adhyáyams, incomplete.

Bhuvanésvari mantra calpam.

Asuri ,, ,,

Sarabha sáluva ,, ,, Ch'hina masta calpam, supra 50. No. 67, &c. 6.)

Rénuca cavacham, with stuti.

Apamárjana stottram.

Narasinha mála mantram.

Bétala isvari mantram.

Bhagala mantram—Hanumanta mantram, Rajasvala stottram ; and many others.

Several of these occur supra : the second would seem to connect this worship with the Asuras. [The Asurs, or Assyrians were of this class, and the Suras (or Syrians) most probably worshipped the male energy. I have long been of opinion, from various reasons, that the original difference and subsequent wars of the devas and danavas, arose out of this difference of opinion, as to the object of worship].

The entire book is a narrow quarto, French paper, bound in calf, worn.

5.) Bhagalà mahà Lacshmi calpam, slócas.

1—23 padalams, incomplete.

This sacti usually occurs in a Saiva relation. It is here identified with the sacti of the Vaishnavas. The ritual, fire offering, various spells used, and benefits to be derived, are herein contained.

The book is a medium sized quarto, French paper, bound in calf, worn.

72. No. 120. Tantra sára, slócas.

By Bhattácharya : some prose.
On matters relative to teacher, disciple and discipline.

Kalà surupa : appearing to be a deifying of sixteen modi coeundi, each one as a goddess, with the chacram or diagram appropriate to each. Further details on the way of drawing such diagrams, with a description of the laguna, which here must be technical ; and the fruit, or benefit of homage rendered to the said diagrams.

Modes of homage to various sactis or powers; and especially Bhuvanésvari.

[As in Cuttack there are 1,000 small temples close together, named after Bhuvanés-vara, a name of Siva, so it is probable that this particular name of Bhuvanésvari is common in that neighbourhood, whence these books came].

This volume is a thick quarto, good French paper, bound in calf, and lettered ; the binding worn.

73. No. 129. Tripura sundari tantram, slócas 1st calpam, 2nd and 3rd wanting, then 4—18 calpam, the end.

Generally on the kula matam, or "family sect." Glory or excellency of Tripura sundari, and other goddesses.

Great excellency of sambin, or opium; elsewhere termed samvit. [The use of this dangerous article, is uniformly encouraged by these sacti books.]

Kuláchára mahima, the glory of the ritual system of homage, by these sacti-bhaktis, and a variety of other matters; some of them noticed in other copies, supra.

A thin folio copy book, good French paper, not bound.

74. No. 130. Two pieces.

1.) Siva siddhanta tantra, slócas.

1—5 adikaranam, not complete.

Rites, formules, spells, and like matters; apparently pertaining to both right, and left hand modes of this worship.

2.) Vatula tantram—slócas with tica.

1—10 padalams.

This is a standard book of this system, extracts from which appear supra.

It contains some metaphysical matters and discriminations; but the chief things are magical formules for various purposes, and objects—always to the feminine energy.

The book is a thin folio, blue French paper, half bound in cloth, and lettered "Mystery various."

75. No. 131. Two pieces.

1.) Rasa retnà karam, slócas.

By Nitya nát'ha, 1—20 padalams.

Ranaranibhavam, to ascertain the proper time for bringing over any sactis, or female power, to aid in any design.

The mode of meditating on various diagrams, symbols of goddesses.

The practical ritual, offerings, spells, &c., for drawing over various sactis, to aid in any purpose, and like matters.

2.) Njánarnavam, wisdom-sea, slócas 1—26 padalams, complete.

Various modes of homage to different names, or forms of sactis; always resolvable into the feminine symbol.

Shodasa kalà v. 72 No. 120 supra.

Rituals and spells to various powers as—Bálà—Tripurésvari—stri vidya—Durga—Vána Durga, and others.

The book is a medium sized folio, French paper, half bound in calf, lettered.

76. No. 133. Kalica puránam, slócas.

1—90 adhyáyams complete.

Marcandeya to various rishis. [It is properly an upa puranam].

Mahishasura, and others, having greatly troubled mankind, the sacti of Siva, as Káli, Chámundi, Durga, Dévi, &c., fought with and killed those asuras. This matter is probably taken from the Marcandeya-puránam; but there are other matters, ritual, mystical ; pauranical in character.

The following notes are by the former owner:

"The Cálica purana, in Sanscrit transcribed from a MS. written in the Bengali character 1838.

"The Calica puránam a celebrated Tantram, or demoniacal work. It is very rare in the south. I wrote to Bengal for it, in vain ; and at last, obtained a MS. in England, in the Bengali character, from which the present volume was copied. It was given to me by a friend, who had been in Bengal, and who did not know the name, or subject of this volume.

"Regarding this work see Wilson's Vishnu puránam, page 57.

At the end of the book—

"The 56 miri puja, or virgin worship is in Devi Bhágavatam part 3, chap. 26, ait Kennedy apud As: Journ ; March 1841, page 146.

Chap. 63 gives precisely the sactya rules ; and the goddess is worshipped naked—Yoni mandalè."

The book is a full sized quarto, French paper, calf bound, and lettered.

77. No. 135. Two volumes Tantra sára.

By Bhattáchárya, slócas and prose.

Properties of guru and of disciple,

Shodasa kalà surúpa, or nature of sixteen powers, modi cocundi personified, as objects of worship.

Various specimens of yentras or diagrams, with spells, and ritual of homage directed to those typical symbols : at what times this homage to be paid.

Some cavachams, with stuti, praise on defensive spells, with reference to the aforesaid sixteen personified symbols ; and as there are 2 folio volumes, of course other like matter—it is an essence, or compendium of the entire system.

Note by the former owner—

"This book was transcribed for me in the Telugu character from "a MS. written in the Bengali character, which I found in the shop "of a London Bookseller, when I was in England in 1836. I bought "the MS. on mere speculation for a guinea; neither the bookseller nor "I was aware what the title was."

78. No. 137. 'Ananda tantram, slócas.

1—20 padalams, complete.

See previous notices.

A variety of diagrams, and modes of ritual homage with spells. Vidya surûpa, form or nature of a goddess; and of course a variety of other matters: all pertaining to the sacti system.

A scroll occurs often in the margin, made to resemble the shell turris; but as the Telugu letter S. is the basis, it is supposed to mean Srî, i. e. sacti.

The former owner writes:

"This is the authentic facsimile transcript of the most ancient MS. of the 'Ananda tantram. The book is to be printed from this copy."

The volume is a small, thin quarto, half bound, and lettered, worn.

79. No. 141. 'Ananda tantram, slócas.

1—20 padalams complete, déva nagári letter; and probably the copy from which No. 137 preceding was transcribed.

It is a thin folio, cloth bound, and lettered.

80. No. 375. Kálika puránam, slócas.

1—55 adhyáyams, incomplete.

In the early chapters are references to the common legends of Siva—Sati, and Dacsha. Maya (the negative power) became daughter of Dacsha; and was named Sati (pure) as the first consort of Siva. Other legendary matter, including the attack on Siva, by Manmata. The chief details are on the Kaula matam; and they may be gathered on the whole, from foregoing notices. The book is a minor puránam.

Not bound, as not complete; and consisting of 28 cahiers, or copy books, tied up together; French paper.

81. Nos. 536, 528. So placed in a book of ten pieces, and eight numbers.

1) to 4) in preceding books.

5.) Charcha stóttram, slócas, complete.

On Parvati. A sort of jéu d' esprit; an affected raillery, pretending to find fault, and to tell her what she ought to do; badinage turned to praise.

6.) Ambà stavam, slócas, complete.

Praise of Parvati direct, and not in the mode of the last piece.

7.) Sacala janani stavam, slócas.

The name implies the source of all beings and things. Parvati is addressed. "Thou art the mother of all beings;" and praise is founded on that assumption.

The entire book (as several times noticed) is a small quarto, thick; half bound, and lettered.

XXI. Saiva or Vira Saiva.

An old romance on the loves, of Chandra pit'ha a young king, and Cádambari a female. The second part contains their marriage. See foregoing notices.

The first piece in a book of 3 Nos. a medium-sized folio, half bound in calf and cloth, and lettered.

4. Nos. 457, 461.

1.) Megha sandésa vyakyánam; a comment on Cáli dása's poem, by Kóla chela malli nát'ha, entitled sanjivini; prose.

It follows the original of the cloud-messenger. The púrva being the first 50 slócas, the uttara, the remaining 50, complete.

2.) Uttara Cádambari, prose.

By Bána cavi, complete.

As above; and in other notices.

These are the two first pieces, in a book of seven; a narrow, but thick folio; country paper; boards.

5. No. 459. Nalódayam, dawn of Nala; by Cáli dása, with a comment by Kóla chela malli nát'ha; uchvásam 1, 2 complete, 3rd defective.

On the birth of Nala, and introductory matters, as to his marriage with Damayanti.

[Prof: Wilson considers that this author must be another Cáli dása, of later date; his reason does not seem solid].

The matter is contained in five quarto copy books, unbound, with a loose paper cover.

6. No. 465. Cumara sambhavam.

By Cáli dása, múlam and tica, four sargas, from 3 to 6; the rest wanting.

A classic poem: this portion is on the birth of Cumara or Kartikeya.

The fourth piece in a book of 5 Nos., a folio, French paper, boards, injured.

7. No. 483. Vasava datta, múlam and tica.

An old romance on the loves of Chintámani a king, and Vasava datta a female—their amours, and marriage. See former notices.

The second piece in a book of two Nos., a thin folio, French paper, bound in embossed paper, and lettered.

8. No. 497. Suca saptati, slócas.

Seventy tales of a parrot (supposed to be a translation.) Dinálápanica daily tales. Suca a parrot told the same to a king, named Vanni Bhupáti. Some refer to the Rámáyanam, and other great works, for incidents. It is not known whether this, or the Persian work, is original. In the case of another work—Fables ascribed to "Bidpai," the original is the Pancha tantra cadha.

The book is a long folio, of medium thickness, fine foolscap paper, bound in calf, and lettered.

9. No. 502. Púrva Cadambari.

By Bána; prose incomplete.

The introductory portion of an amour between Chanda pit'ha and Cádambari; with many details, and episodes; as a love tale.

The book is a long folio, of medium thickness, French paper, calf bound, and lettered.

10. No. 503. Uttara Cádambari.

The second, or concluding part, narrating the marriage of the pair. It is in déva nágari letter v. note infra: defective.

The book is a long narrow folio; thin; French paper, bound in calf and lettered; but worn, and injured

11. No. 504. Púrva Cádambari.

By Bána cavi. Telugu letter, prose churnica: v. supra.

Note by the late owner:

"It is asserted that a knowledge of this book is requisite if we would fully understand the Telugu Vasu charitra. This first turned my attention to the necessity of discovering it.

"The poet's name was Bána or Vána, also called Bhána chora, and Bhuccunda. The metre, or description of prose, here exhibited, is churnica, which Colebrooke, by error, calls dandaca. As: Res: X. 445.

"This copy of the Cadambari was made from one in the Cási character, found at Trichinopoly. It has been collated with one, in the Telugu character, published at Madras; the various readings found in which are here interlined. Subsequently at Masulipatam I discovered other copies; and finally was so fortunate as to obtain the second part or Uttara Cadambari, which is so rare a book, that the most respectable scholars in Bengal have declared, that it did not exist; 1830.

12. No. 507. Nalódayam, múlam.

By Cáli dása; and tica called Subodhini by Pragnya cara misra.

uchvasa 1—4 complete.

The tale of Nala and Damayanti, from an episode of the Bháratam.

The tradition is, that Cáli dása wrote this piece, in a very obscure, and difficult style, in consequence of having been jeered for writing over easy composition. He wrote a tica to it in his old age; but this tica is much more recent,

Note by the former owner:

"Nalódayam is a poem on the well known adventures of Nala, written by Kali dása. It is a series of puns on a pathetic subject; every verse being so framed as to bear two meanings." Colebr: apud Ward 390."

The book is a narrow, and very thin folio, French paper, half bound in calf, and lettered, used.

13. No 527. Suleiman charitra; slócas.

By Kalyána malla cavi.

1—4 padalams, complete.

Details concerning Suleiman, son of David, a king of Canaan, intentionally sringara or amorous; similar in subject to a poem by Prior, but much more black-guard, and burlesque.

The former owner's note:

"The history of Solomon in Sanscrit verse. This is evidently a modern composition, written at Tanjore or Madura."

The book is royal octavo, thick demy paper, bound in calf, and lettered, used.

14. No. 634. Suca saptati: slócas.

Dinálápanica 1—70 daily tales.

Told by a rishi in the form of a parrot, to Vani bhupati. a chief, to amuse him.

The book is a thick folio, on superior paper; half bound in cloth and calf, and lettered.

XXIII. Vaishnava.

1. No. 89. Rámarchana chandrica.

By 'Ananda vana: slócas.

1—5 padalams, complete; prose and mantras are contained; the whole relates nominally to the mode of ritual homage to Ráma, and therefore is put here; but it veils matters connected with the sacti puja, or female energy system.

I have found that an image is carried about in a box, said to be of Ráma: while the chant, used by the person exhibiting, is addressed to Parà sacti.

The book is a small quarto, bound in sheep, a little worn.

2. No. 126. Rámárchana chandrica.

By Sishyánanda or 'Ananda vanam, slócas prose and mantras.

1—5 padalams, complete.

Ritual homage as directed to Ráma, &c.

Properties of teacher and disciple. Praise of Ráma in veda pata, or imitating the vedas : vide supra.

The book is a medium sized quarto, country paper, cloth bound, and lettered.

3. No. 127. Two pieces.

1.) Ráma tápani vyakyánam, a tica or comment to a spurious upanishada, referring to Ráma. Glory of Ráma and duty of all to worship him : not complete.

2.) Agastya samhita, slócas.

1—35 adhyáyams incomplete.

Brief outline from the birth of Ráma to the destruction of Ravana.

A country paper copy book, not bound, the outside injured.

4. No. 412. Vishnu rahasyam, slócas.

1—55 adhyayams, complete.

Description of the origin of Brahma : account of Maya—on the cause of existing beings, and things in creation. On the five elements in the human body : the control over them by Karma. Note, here meaning predestination—the results, either remunerative, or punitive ; consequent to merit, or demerit in a former state of being—future results, as regards Karma, from the present life, operating on the future ; and from Karma in another sense, for sacrifice, or ritual homage.

Other details of an isoteric system, having little or nothing to do with esoteric idolatry.

Copied from a McKenzie MS.

The book is a medium sized quarto, French paper, bound in calf, and lettered " VISH : RAHA : from the Vasishta upa-puranam".

5. No. 432. Two volumes. Tatva sangraha Rámáyanam, slócas.

In seven cándams from Bála to Uttara.

1. Bala, 1—35 adhyáyams.	5. Sundara, 1—17 adhyáyams.
2. Ayóddhya, 1—32 „	6. Yuddha, 1—42 „
3. 'Aranya, 1—20 „	7. Uttara, 1—22 „
4. Kishkinda, 1—18 „

The abstract is not confined to the Rámáyanam ; but contains other matters; the object being to exalt Ráma : proofs from other works introduced.

The book is a long, and thin folio, French paper, half bound in calf, and lettered.

XXIV. Veda, or upanishada.

No. 134. Two volumes. Upanishada mahima nirupacam—slócas. An exemplification of the glory of the upanishadas.

Brief abstract of the contents, or the substance of upanishadas, 99 in No., wanting 9 of the ordinary number, which is 108. [Referred to, under 1st Family.]

The Brahma—Kaivalya—Jábála—Hamsa—Garbha—Paramahamsa; and so on, to ninety-nine.

If this book could be fully depended on, a full verbal translation would be desirable. Meantime—as "the Oupnekat" of D'Anquetil, from the Persian, is declared, by competent authority, to be "obscure as the original;" and as an abstract of these two volumes by some native, learned in Sanscrit, was met with among papers supplied by the Honorable Walter Elliot, Esq.—it may be desirable to do, what can be done, at once; that is, to give a faithful copy of the said abstract; not correcting the idiom, nor in any wise altering the sense; now and then only altering the spelling, or throwing in a word to clear the meaning. It is in this way, the testimony of a Native, fairly quoted; and the like evidence it gives, be this what it may, has not been tampered with, or garbled. It is the following:

1.) Brahmópanishada.

This upanishada opens with a description of divinity, and enjoins that a wise man (Buddha) should shave the lock of hair (sikha) on the crown of his head, and cast off the sacred thread (sutra), and devote himself to the acquisition of divine knowledge. It further declares, that there is but one god, inherent in all beings; and illustrates that, as oil exists in sesamum orientale, clarified butter in curds, water in a stream, and fire in wood, so does the universal spirit ('Atma) pervade the soul, and that as a spider spins and gathers back (its thread) so does the soul proceed, and return.

2.) Kaivalyópanishada.

This upanishada opens with an account of Asvaláyana, soliciting divine knowledge from Paramesti (Brahma;) and of his instructing him to adore Siva. It likewise teaches the doctrines of the yóga or deep contemplation on the deity; restraining the organs of senses from other objects, by a certain process; which chiefly consists in the management of the breath. It further inculcates the doctrines of the Advaita school; which consists in believing in the identification of the supreme being, with the universe. This upanishada reveals, that he who believes that he himself is the universal-soul will be delivered from the trammels of the world; "every thing emanated

" from me, everything rests in me—and everything will be absorbed in me—" I am the Brahm,": we frequently read in the Bhagavatgîta, that Krishna spoke in this style : " I pervade all things in nature, and guard them with my beams." See verse 13, L. 15.

3.) Jabalyópanishada.

This upanishada comprises six sections, or paragraphs.

Sect. 1. Brihaspati commends, to Yágnyavalkya, the holiness of Avimucta (Benares.)

Sect. 2. Yágnyavalkya, at the request of 'Atri, communicates to him that the infinite (ananta) and imperceivable (avyucta) spirit (atma) exists only at Avimucta (Benares ;) and that beatitude is attained there by his means.

Sect. 3. Yágnyavalkya, at the request of a Brahmáchari, recommends to him the Sata Rudriya, or hymns in praise of Siva, as the means for attaining immortality (Amritwa.)

Sect. 4. Yágnyavalkya, on the application of Janaka, of Védéha, communicates to him the mode of entering into the order of a Sanniyasi, or ascetic.

Sect. 5. 'Atri desires Yágnyavalkya to inform him whether a man without a sacred thread can be considered a Brahman, and the latter replies that a Sanniyasi does not require it, because he is always pure.

Sect. 6. The life a Sanniyasi or ascetic is recommended, as the means to attain beatitude.

4.) Swetaswatarópanishada.

This upanishada comprises in six lectures (adhyáyos). The first lecture treats of the nature of divinity. The second teaches the yóga or the method of contemplating upon god, as the means to attain beatitude ; and the remaining four lectures establish the supremacy of Siva, and inculcate the doctrine of the Advaita school.

5.) Hamsópanishada.

This upanishada opens with a dialogue between Sanatcumara and Gautama, in which the former recommends the adoration of Hamsa, or Brahma, the universal spirit ; and communicates the doctrines of the yóga, or abstract meditation on the deity.

6.) Arunikópanishada.

This treatise recommends the state of a Sanniyasi, or ascetic, as the means to attain bliss.

7.) Garbhópanishada.

This upanishada opens with a description of the internal parts of the body; and proceeds to state, that the chyle produces blood, which creates flesh.

It engenders médha (serous or adipose secretion that spreads among the muscular fibres) from which bones are formed. Majja or marrow which is created from the bones, converts itself into seminal fluid (sucla) which with sanguis mulieris (sonita) causes the fœtus: on the first night it is but watery substance, which in seven days forms itself into a bubble. In a fortnight it becomes embryo (pinda) which is hardened in a month. By two months' time the head is formed; on the third month it possesses the feet; on the fourth month, the belly and waist are made. In the fifth month the backbone is formed. In the sixth month the nose, eyes, and ears are produced. In the seventh month the fœtus is quickened—and in the eighth month it becomes completely organized. Male infants are produced where the male fluid exceeds the female seed, and the female infants vice versa. Hermaphrodites are the issues of the equal portions of the two fluids. If the male, or female be in a perturbed state of mind, during the injection of the male fluid, the infant will be born blind, lame, short of stature, or dwarf: when the male seed divides itself, when injected into the cavity of the womb, twins will be produced. It is further stated that the infant in the womb, being endowed with a knowledge of past events, grieves for the sins committed in a former birth, and prays to God to prevent future transmigration.

8.) Náráyanópanishada.

This tract, which is distinct from another of this name, or Bṛhanarayana, establishes the supremacy of Náráyana, or Vishnu, by attributing to him the power of creation, and of supporting the whole universe; which is stated to be subject to be absorbed in him.

9.) Parama hamsa upanishada.

This upanishada opens with a dialogue between Náreda and the supreme being (Bhagavan) in which a description of the Parama hamsa, an ascetic of the highest order, is given. He is described as an ascetic, who is equally indifferent to pleasure or pain, insensible of heat or cold, and incapable of satiety, or want. He goes naked, in all weathers. He has not the lock of hair on the crown of his head, nor does he wear the sacred thread, nor carry a bamboo-staff in his hand.

10.) Amṛita bindópanishada.

The upanishada (which is composed in anustup metre) opens with a lecture on the subjugation of the mind; and reveals that there is but one god, who is supposed to have diverse forms, as the reflection of the moon appears in waters; and lastly inculcates the doctrines of the Advaita school, as the means of attaining beatitude.

11.) Amṛita nadópanishada.

This upanishada teaches the yóga, or the method of restraining the mind, and confining it to internal meditation on the syllabic "O'm," the mystic name of the deity.

12.) Adharva sirópanishada.

This upanishada assigns supremacy to Siva.

13.) At'harvan sikhopanishada.

This upanishada, consisting of three sections or paras, opens with a discourse between Sanatcumara and At'harva; in which the latter recommends to the former, to meditate on the syllable O'm, the mystic name of the deity.

14.) Kaishitikyópanishada.

This upanishada consists of 4 lectures (adhyáyas). The first lecture, containing six sections, opens with a dialogue between Aruna, Swetketu and Chitra a descendant of Garga. Being required to inform, to what place the departed souls go, Chitra replied that they rise to the moon, where they enjoy the fruits of their good actions, and whence they return to this world to animate new bodies of animals, or men ; according to their deserts. The wise, liberated from worldly trammels ascend yet higher to the abode, and court of Brahma.

The second lecture, which comprises 10 sections, contains a disquisition on the supremacy of the soul, in conference between Koshiti and Painga.

The third lecture, containing nine sections, opens with a dialogue between Indra and Pradardhana regarding the life (prána), perception (pragna); and the sensible organs.

In the 4th chapter which consists of 7 sections Ajata satru, king of Cási, communicates divine knowledge to a Priest Balaka, a descendant of Garga after a long discussion.

15.) Brihajjabalyópanishada.

This upanishada consists of 8 lectures, (adhyáyas).

The subject of the 1st 5 lectures, is a dialogue between Bhusunta, and Kálágni Rudra; in which the latter, at the request of the former, enjoins him to mark his forehead with tripundra or triple transverse lines (☰) ; with vibhúti, or ashes of burnt cowdung, from an oblation offered to god ; or with the ashes taken from the sacrificial fire, and to besmear certain parts of his body with the same.

The sixth lecture contains the following anecdotes :

A certain Bramin by name Dhananjaya, a descendant of Basishta, had one hundred wives; and begat upon his eldest consort a son named Karuna, who married a wife called Suchismita. Karuna being envious of his (half) brothers, visited Narasinah on the banks of Bhaváni, and stole a lime which had been offered to the deity. Those who were present cursed him, and bid him to become a fly, and live in that form one hundred years. He accordingly assumed the form of a fly, but his brothers destroyed it by putting it in oil. His wife who had observed it, placed over the dead fly, the ashes of the sacrificial fire, by means of which he was restored to life, and to his former shape of man.

The second anecdote is that the celestials who were present at the marriage of Gâutama fell in love with his consort Ahalya, but repenting of their conduct, requested Durvâsa to absolve them from the sin, which they had committed. He prescribed to them to besmear their bodies with vibhûti or ashes, and by these means, they regained their former purity.

The 7th lecture contains a dialogue between Janaka and Yagnyavalkya regarding the bhasma or ashes.

The 8th lecture unfolds the merit of daily recital of this Brihatjabalyópanishada.

16.) Maitrayanópanishada.

This upanishada consists of four lectures, (prapatakas), and opens with an account of a king named Brihádradha, who abdicated his kingdom to his eldest son, and retired to a wildernesss, where divine knowledge was communicated to him by Sankyayana.

17.) Kaushitikyópanishada. See No. 14.

18.) Brihajjabalyópanishada. See No. 15.

19.) Narasinha tápani.

Púrva tápani, or the first part.

This part of the upanishada which consists of five lectures, treats of the mantra or spell of Narasinha, an incarnation of Vishnu, and the merit thereof.

Uttara tápani, or the last part of this upanishada, assigns supremacy to Narasinha.

20.) Kálágni Rudrópanishada.

This short upanishada contains a dialogue between Kalágni Rudra and Sanatcumara, in which the former enjoins the latter to mark his head, forehead, breast, and the shoulders, with tripundra or triple transverse lines (≡) with cowdung ashes, muttering certain formules.

21.) Maitraye upanishada.

This upanishada consists of three lectures (adhyáyas). In the 1st lecture which consists of four sections, Sankyayana communicates divine knowledge to a king named Bṛihadradha, enjoining him to abandon the practices of caste.

Varnasramáchára yuta vimúdha karmanu sarena p'halam labhanti.

The ignorant, who observe the practices of the caste (varna) gain the fruits or rewards suitable to their actions.

Varna dharmanhè parityajanta Sivanandah burusha Bhavantè.

They who abandon the practices of caste, &c., enjoy true felicity.

The second lecture contains a dialogue between Maitréya and Siva, in which the latter communicates divine knowledge to the former, and warns him against adoring idols.

Páshána, loha, mani, mrinmaya, vigraheshu puja, punarjanana bhoga kari mumuksho.

Adorations to the idols made of stone, metal, precious stones, and clay subject a person, desirous of attaining beatitude, to future transmigrations and to earthly enjoyments.

The 3rd lecture inculcates the doctrines of the Advaita school.

22.) Subalópanishada.

This upanishada consisting of 16 sections, treats of the creation of the universe ; and contains an account of Raikma having been instructed in the theological doctrines.

23.) Kshurikópanishada.

This upanishada treats of the yóga or spiritual worship of God, by sitting in a retired place, with the body firm, the eyes fixed on the tip of the nose, and the mind intent on the deity.

24.) Mantrakópanishada.

This short upanishada describes the nature of divinity.

25.) Sarva sarópanishada.

This upanishada opens with several queries on theological doctrines—which are explained, and the divine nature is defined.

26.) Niralambópanishada.

This upanishada also opens with several questions, on theological doctrines, viz.

What is Brahma? who is Isvara? what is soul ? what is nature (Prakriti)? who is the supreme being (Paramatma)? who is Brahma? who is Vishnu? who is Rudra? who is Indra? who is Samana? who is the sun ? who is the moon ? who are Suras? who are Asuras? who are infernal beings (pisachis)? who are men ? who are women ? what are the animals, &c. ? what is an immoveable thing ? who are Brahmins, &c. ? what is caste (jati)? what is action (Karma)? what is improper action (akarma)? what is gnana? what is pleasure (sukham)? what is pain (dukham)? what is sverga (Heaven)? what is Naraca (Hell)? what is the bond (bandha)? what is liberation (Moksha)? who is to be adored (upasyaha)? who is disciple (sishya)? who is learned (vidvan)? who is ignorant (mudha)? what is Asuram? what is acceptable (grahyam)? what is to be rejected (agrahyam)? who is Sanniyasi (ascetic)? This upanishada concludes with answers to the foregoing questions.

27.) Rahasyópanishada.

This upanishada opens with an account of the rishis having requested Brahma to communicate to them Rahasyópanishada, and of the latter having complied with their request, by informing them that Siva at the desire of Vyasa, communicated divine knowledge to his son Suka. The four principal formules of the advaita school, viz. Pragyanam, superior, or sublime knowledge—Brahma, the universal soul—Aham Brahmani, I am Brahma, and Tatvamasi, thou art the Brahma—are described. The three constitutent letters of the phrase, Tatvamasi, viz. Tat-tvam and asi, are separately instructed, as so many spells.

28.) Vajra suchi or needle of adamant.

This upanishada opens with the following verse.

" Vajra suchém pravakshyami.

" Sastra magnána bhédanam.

" Dushanam gnana hinanam.

" Bushanam gnana chakshusham.

I shall communicate vajra suchi (adamantine needle)—a weapon to dispel ignorance; abomination to those who are void of understanding, and an ornament to the wise (gnána chekshush).

It proceeds thus: There are four castes (varna) viz. Brahma, Cshetriya, Vaisya, and Sudra. The law, in accordance with the vedas, propounds that the Brahman is the chief of them. This is strange. What constitutes the Brahman? Is it his sentient soul? his material form; caste; or his knowledge; or his peculiar religious observance; or his works of merit? It is asserted that none of the above could make a man a Brahman; but that a knowledge of true god constitutes Brahmanism.

29.) Tejóbindu upanishada.

This upanishada which consists of 6 lectures (adhyáyas) gives a description of the divinity; and inculcates the doctrines of the Advaita school.

30.) Náda bindópanishada.

This upanishada opens with an analysis of the component letters of O'm, the mystical name of the deity; and inculcates the doctrines of the Advaita school, and of yógam.

31.) Dhyána bindópanishada.

This upanishada is written on the yóga, and teaches the importance of meditating upon the mystical O'm.

32.) Brahma vidyópanishada.

This upanishada opens with an analysis of the mystical letter O'm ; and teaches the yóga, and also the doctrines of the Advaita school.

33.) Yóga tatvópanishada.

This upanishada teaches the mode of practising the yóga, which is said to be of four kinds, viz. Mantra yóga, Laya, Hatha, and Rája-yóga ; and prescribes a peculiar diet to be observed by the practiser.

34.) Atmabódhópanishada.

This upanishada recommends adoration of Nárayana or Vishnu, and inculcates the doctrines of the Advaita school.

35.) Náreda parivrajakópanishada.

This upanishada consists in 9 lectures (upadesas).

The 1st lecture opens with an account of Nareda having visited the forest Naimisara, and communicated theological doctrines to the ṛishis inhabiting it.

The 2nd and the subsequent lectures contain the details of Náreda having visited Brahma accompanied by the Ṛishis, and requested him to communicate the method of entering into the order of Sanniyasi. Brahma proceeds by telling him that the following persons are disqualified to take the degree of a Sanniyasi.

1. Shandha, a Eunuch.
2. Patita, an out-cast.
3. Avvavikala, the maimed.
4. Badhira, a deaf man.
5. Arbhaka, a boy.
6. Muka, a dumb person.
7. Pashand, a heretic.
8. Chakri, an oil grinder.
9. Lingi, a worshipper of the linga.
10. Vaighansa, a bramin, or attendant in Vishnu's temples.
11. Haradija, a bramin, or attendant in Siva's temples.
12. Bhritkabhyapaka, a bramin teaching the vedas for hire.
13. Sibivista, a leper.
14. Naynika, a bramin who has not maintained the sacrificial fire.
15. Vairagyavanta, a religious mendicant.
16. Stri, a woman.

A Sanniyasi is required to posesses the following qualities—contentment, forbearance, self-command, honesty, purity, self-denial, modesty, learning, sincerity, and dispassionating, (i. e. absence of desires) he should not be in possession of more than two pieces of cloth, (karcpenam) to cover his nakedness, a quilt, and a staff.

He is prohibited from lying down on a cot, putting on white cloth, having intercourse with women, sleeping in the day time, and riding in any conveyance.

Rules are prescribed for taking the degree of a Sanniyasi on the point of death.

Sanniyasis are stated to be of six classes.

1 Kutichaka.
2. Bahudaka.
3. Hamsa.
4. Parma hamsa.
5. Turiyyatita.
6. Avadhúta.

Kutichaka has the lock (sikha) on the crown of his head, wears the sacred thread, carries a staff and water pot ; possesses the kaupena and kant'ha, respects his parents, and priests, takes but one meal, and marks his forehead with a perpendicular line made of white clay. Bahudaka has the lock (sikha) on the crown of his head, wears the sacred thread, and eats but 8 morsels of food, which he gains by begging. He marks his forehead with the tripundra or triple line (☰)made of the ashes of cowdung.

Hamsa has his hair on the head matted, and marks his forehead either with perpendicular lines (urdha pundra) or triple horizontal lines with ashes of cowdung ; gains his food by begging, and has a langoti to cover his nakedness. Parma hamsa shaves the lock of hair on the crown of his head, and wears no sacred thread ; lives upon the food obtained from five houses ; has a kaupena, and a cloth dyed in red ochre, and carries a staff, and a water pot. He besmears his body with the ashes of cowdung.

Turyatia lives either on fruits or on the food obtained from three houses. He goes naked.

Avadhúta has no rules to restrain him ; eats with any class of people ; and devotes himself to the contemplation of deity ; delighting in his own soul. If an Atura, or a bramin who has taken the degree of a Sanniyasi, on the point of his death, happens to live, he should take the vow, according to form.

The remaining part of the upanishada prescribes the duties observed by the Sanniyasis, and teaches the mode of performing divine worship.

36.) Trisikha Brahmanópanishada.

This upanishada opens with an account of Trisikha Brahmana, having visited the sun ; and requested him to explain, what is this material form ? What is the sentient soul ? What is the cause ? and what is the universal soul ? He replied that all these are identical with Siva himself ; and inculcated the doctrines of the yoga ; and rules are laid down to foreknow the approaching death of a person.

37.) Sitópanishada.

This upanishada contains the narrative of the Devas, or gods, having requested Prajapati or Brahma to inform them who was Sita, and what was her form ? and that the latter replied that she was the Mulaprakṛiti, or that principle which operates in the agency of the instrumental cause of action. She is likewise represented to have partaken of the human nature, in the person of Sita, consort of Ráma. It is further stated, that there are only three vedas, as they are called Trayi, viz. Rig, Yajur, and Sáma, to which the fourth At'harva is added. Twenty-one sákhas are said to belong to Rigveda : one hundred and nine sákhas to Yajurveda ; one thousand sákhas to Sáma veda, and five* to At'harva. The vedangas, or the subordinate sciences of the vedas are enumerated to be six, viz. kalpa, (the details of religious ceremonies) vyakarana, (grammar) siksha, rules of accentuations to be observed in reading the vedas ; niructa, (the explanations of the difficult words and phrases which occur in the vedas ; Jyotisham (Astronomy,) and chanda (prosody). The upangas or subordinate sciences are stated to be, Mimamsa or moral philosophy (?) Nyaya or logic, Dherma sastra or jurisprudence, and Purána history. The upa védas or supplementary vedas are said to be immediately deduced from the vedas. They are enumerated to be four ; viz. 1st, vastu veda, architecture ; dhanurva veda or archery ; gandharva, vocal or instrumental music ; Ayur-veda, a treatise on medicine. It concludes with assigning supreme power to Sita.

38.) Yogachudamani upanishada.

This upanishada teaches the doctrines of the yóga, or the spiritualism of the Hindu philosophy.

39.) Nirvanópanishada.

This upanishada contains the theological doctrines of the Brahmans, as regards the yóga.

40.) Mandala Brahmanópanishada.

This upanishada treats of the doctrines of the yóga.

41.) Dacshana murti upanishada.

This upanishada contains an account of Markandeya having revealed to the Rishis, the mantra or spell of Dacshana murti, or Siva.

42.) Sarabhópanishada.

This upanishada opens with an account of Paippala and others having requested Brahma to inform them which of the triad, viz. Brahma, Rudra and Vishnu was superior, and worthy of adoration ; and of his having communicated to them that Siva was their superior ; for Vishnu and himself were born of him. He further stated that Vishnu in his incarnation as man-lion (Narasinha) having threatened the whole world with destruction, Siva under the form of Sarabha, (a fabulous animal with eight feet) destroyed him with his beak, and talons.

* Compare page 325 supra.

43.) Scandópanishada.

This upanishada identifies Siva with Vishnu; and teaches the doctrines of the advaita school.

44.) Maha Narayanópanishada.

This upanishada, which consists of eight lectures, (adhyáyas) opens with a dialogue between Brahma and Vishnu—in which the latter communicates divine knowledge to the former, and prescribes rules for making a diagram of Naráyana.

45.) Advaita Tarkópanishada.

This upanishada inculcates the doctrines of the Advaita school, and of yoga.

46.) Ráma Rahasya upanishada.

Sanaka and other yogis, as well as the rishis, having solicited divine knowledge from Hanuman, the chief of the monkies, he revealed to them the supremacy of Ráma ; and taught them his spell, or incantation ; prescribing at the same time the mode of making an entra or diagram of Ráma.

47.) Ráma tápani.

This upanishada consists of two portions; viz. púrva tápani and uttara tápani, the first and last part.

Púrva tápani.

This part of the upanishada, consisting of five sections, opens with a declaration that Ráma is the supreme being ; and then gives an account of his life and achievements on the earth. Rules for drawing a diagram, inserting in it the letters composing his name, are also given.

Uttara tápani.

This part, which is also divided into five sections, contains a discourse between Bháradwája and Yagnyavalcya, regarding the supremacy of Ráma. Siva is stated to have practised devotional austerities, and requested Ráma to remain at Cási, and deliver the people from all kinds of their sins. The mantra or spell of Ráma is lauded, and recommended for silent recital, in order to attain beatitude.

48.) Vasudevópanishada.

This upanishada contains a discourse between Nareda and Vásudéva, in which the latter recommends the former to mark his forehead with a perpendicular line, made with gopéchandana or yellow ochre, or with the clay at the root of the basil.

49.) Mudgalyópanishada.

This upanishada contains explanations of Purusha sucta, a section of the veda.

50.) Sandilyópanishada.

This upanishada, which consists of three lectures, contains a discourse between Sandilya and At'harva, in which the technical terms or the principles of the yoga, and theological doctrines are explained, and inculcates the doctrines of the yoga.

51.) Painglópanishada.

This upanishada, which consists of four lectures, contains a dialogue between Paingala and Yagnyavalkya; in which the latter communicates theological doctrines to the former.

52.) Bhikshukópanishada.

This upanishada contains a description of the ascetics, viz. Kutichaka, Bahúdaka, Hamsa and Parma Hamsa; and of their duties.

53.) Mahópanishada.

This upanishada, which consists of six lectures, opens with assigning supremacy to Náráyana or Vishnu, and attributing to him the creation of the universe.

The second and the remaining lectures contain an account of Súka having an interview with Janaka king of Videha, and acquiring from him theological knowledge.

54.) Sarirakópanishada.

This upanishada, which treats of metaphysical ethics, opens with describing that the material form is co-ordinate with the primary elements, earth, &c.; the solid parts of it are assimilated with earth, the liquid portions with water; the warmth with fire; the moving parts with the air; and the hollow portions with the ether. The organs of sense are the ear, &c. The ear participates in the properties of the ether and air; the skin in that of fire; the eye partakes in the qualities of water; the tongue in that of the earth; and the nose of the ether: the objects of these senses are sound, touch, form, taste, and smell. The organs, or members of actions (harméndriya) are the mouth, the hands, the feet, the anus, and the organs of generation: their functions are the speech; giving motion; voiding by stool; and happiness. The remaining part of this upanishada contains a similar description of the mental properties.

55.) Yoga sikhópanishada.

This upanishada contains a dialogue between Siva and Brahma, in which the former teaches the latter the doctrines of yoga.

56.) Turiyyatita Avandhútópanishada.

This upanishada contains a dialogue between Brahma and Náráyana; in which the latter gives a description of Turiyyatita, Avadhúta, or an ascetic of the highest order, and of the duties observable by him.

57.) Sanyásópanishada.

This upanishada contains rules for entering into the order of a Sanniyasi or ascetic, with the details of the duties observable by him.

58.) Parama hamsa parivrajakópanishada.

This upanishada contains a dialogue between Brahma and Nárâyana, in which rules for entering into the order of Parama hamsa are prescribed.

59.) Akshamálikópanishada.

This upanishada opens with a discourse between Brahma and Guha, in which the latter, at the request of the former, describes that rosaries consisting of corals, pearls, crystals, conch, silver-beads, gold-beads, sandal, putrajiva, (a certain tree) dates or plums, and strung in gold, silver, or copper wires should be used : certain rules are laid down for their consecration.

60.) Avyactópanishada.

This upanishada, consisting of seven sections, contains an account of the production of Brahma from an invisible being (Avyacta); of his having performed a penance, and of his interview with a being having an animal face (Mriga-mukha) and human body, with the goddess of prosperity (Srî) seated on a golden car, (rat'ha) and covered by the hood of a serpent (sésha.) It is further stated that he afterwards created the whole universe ; the vedas having been previously produced.

61.) Ekaksharópanishada.

This upanishada lauds the supreme being, inherent in the single letter O'm.

62.) Annapurnópanishada.

This upanishada, consisting of four lectures, (adhyayas), contains a dialogue between Nidugha and Ribhu, in which supremacy is assigned to the goddess Annapurna; and the doctrines of the advaita school, and of the yoga are prescribed.

63.) Súryópanishada.

This upanishada assigns supremacy to Surya, or the sun.

64.) Akshúpanishada.

This upanishada opens with an account of the deity, in the form of the Hamasa or swan, having proceeded to 'Aditya or the sun ; and after praising to a considerable extent, solicited from him divine knowledge : and of Surya having communicated the same to him.

65.) Adhyatmópanishada.

This upanishada contains the theological doctrines of the advaita school.

66.) Kundinakópanishada.

The term kundika denotes "Student's waterpot." Hence Kundikópanishada; which prescribes rules for entering into the order of a Sanniyasi, or ascetic; with a description of the duties observable by him.

67.) Savitryupanishada.

This short upanishada appertains to Savitri; the goddess presiding over the holy verse of the veda.

68.) Atma vidyópanishada.

This upanishada opens with a description of 'Atma the living soul; Antarátma, that portion of the supreme soul which is supposed to be the foundation of life in all animal creatures; and Paramatma the supreme being, considered as the soul of the universe: who, it is stated, was produced by Angira; and teaches the doctrines of the advaita school.

69.) Pasupata Brahmópanishada.

Valkhilya, son of Brahma, having solicited from his father, divine knowledge, he communicated it to him, by revealing that he is the chief of the three worlds, &c., and that all the other deities have their peculiar duties assigned to them.

70.) Brahmópanishada.

This upanishada contains the theological doctrines of the Brahmans.

71.) Avadhútópanishada.

This upanishada contains an account of Sankuti having solicited Dattatreya to inform him the duties of Avadhuta the highest of the ascetics; and of his having communicated them to him.

72.) Tripura tapaniyópanishada.

This upanishada appertains to Devi, under the name of Tripura; and prescribes rules for forming a diagram inserting in it the name of the goddess, It consists of 5 chapters (upanishadas).

73.) Devyupanishada.

This upanishada extols Devi or the goddess. The devatas, or deities are said to have approached the goddess, and asked her, who art thou? She replied, "I am in the form of Brahma; from me the universe emanated," &c. &c. Then the gods prostrated themselves before her, and acknowledged her supremacy.

74.) Tripuropanishada.

This upanishada appertains to Dévi.

75.) Kathópanishada.

This upanishada prescribes rules for entering into the order of the Sanniyasi or ascetic with a description of his duties. It is a dialogue between the Devatas and Brahma.

76.) Bhavanópanishada.

This upanishada appertains to the Devi or Sacti; and teaches the mode of worshipping her mentally.

77.) Rudra Hṛidayópanishada.

This upanishada contains a dialogue between Vyasa, and his son Suka. The former, at the request of the latter, réveals that Rudra is the superior, to all the deities; and enjoins that he should adore him.

78.) Yógakundalyupanishada.

This upanishada consists of two chapters. The 1st inculcates the doctrines of the yógi; and the second prescribes rules for a particular description of yoga called khechari.

79.) Bhasmajabalópanishada.

This upanishada contains an account of Siva, at the request of Bhusunda having prescribed to him to mark his forehead, and several other parts of his body, with triple horizontal lines (☰) made with the ashes of cow dung; and enjoins him to adore Siva.

80.) Rudrajabalopanishada.

This upanishada contains a discourse, between Bhusunda and Rudra; in which the latter prescribes to the former to wear on his person Rudracshas or the berries of eleocarpus ganitrus (Rox.); stating at the same time, that it was produced from a tear which dropped from his eye, during his battle with Tripuras.

This matter is better stated in one of the foregoing books. When Siva burnt the (Tipura) three towns, he shed tears; which were re-produced as berries of the eleocarpus.

81.) Ganapatyupanishada.

This upanishada extols Ganapati, and assigns supremacy to him.

82.) Darsanópanishada.

This upanishada contains a discourse between Dattatreya and his disciple Sankriti; in which the former, at the request of the latter, inculcates the doctrines of the yoga, and impugns the worship of idols.

83.) Tarasarópanishada.

This upanishada opens with a discourse between Brihaspati and Yágnyavalcya, in which the former extols Avimucta, or Cási, as a holy place, where the individuals on the point of their death, are saved by Siva. Bháradwaja solicited Yágnyavalcya to inform him what is Taraka, (preservation) what is that which saves? he replied that the spell O'm Namò Náráyana saves ; and it is to be meditated upon.

84.) Mahavakyópanishada.

This upanishada contains the theological doctrines of the Brahmans.

85.) Pancha Brahmópanishada.

This upanishada contains a dialogue between Paippalada and Mahadeva, in which the latter gives a description of the Pancha Brahmas; viz. Sadyojata, Aghora, Váma deva, Tatpurusha and Isana; each presiding over an element, and recommends the adoration of Siva.

This accords very much with the Bâuddhist system ; only the names differ.

86.) Pranagnihotrópanishada.

This upanishada enjoins that the taking of a mouthful (?) should be considered as an efficacious oblation.

87.) Gópála tápani.

This is divided into two portions, púrva and uttara.

Púrva tapani or the first part.

This part, consisting of five lectures, contains praise of Krishna, and enjoins to recite his mantram, or spell. This is a dialogue between the saints (Munis) and Brahma.

Uttara tápani.

This part of the upanishada opens with the following narration :

Once on a time, certain women, who had spent the whole night in an agreeable manner, asked Krishna the cowherd, and the lord of all, to what Brahman they should present food. He replied to Durvasa. They rejoined—"How could we cross the Jamuna?" He told them,—"Just say that Krishna is a Brahmáchári (a person whose chief virtue is continence) and the river will give you way." He further proceeded by stating—"By thinking of me deeps will become shoals, the wicked will become virtuous, &c. &c." They accordingly went to the river ; and, on uttering the abovementioned word, the river gave them way ; and they went to the other side, and satisfied Durvasa by presenting him with delicious viands, &c. The rishi asked them, how did they manage to cross the Jamuna? one of them replied, that they said Krishna is a Brahmáchári. The rishi first reflected how could Krishna be a Brahmáchári ; and reasoned thus : although the sound issues from the atmosphere, yet they both differ from one another, and so on. He concluded that Krishna is of two-fold nature ; one of divinity, and the other human. The women having requested the rishi to give them an account of Krishna, he revealed to them that he was an incarnation of Náráyana, and his history had on a former occasion been unfolded by Brahma. He related the tale in full which contains a description of Madhura, and the gardens surrounding it. Krishna himself enjoins to worship the idol made in his likeness. The remaining part of this upanishada extols Krishna as the supreme being.

88.) Krishnópanishada.

This upanishada relates that the (wives of) Rishis residing in the forest, seeing the beautiful Rámachandra expressed a desire to embrace him. He prevented them from doing so, by telling them, that he would incarnate himself as Krishna, at a future period. and then they shall as shepherdesses embrace him. The remaining part of it contains a brief account of Krishna; and of the celestials having assumed various forms to please him on the earth.

89.) Yágnyavalkyópanishada.

This upanishada contains a discourse between Yágnyavalkya, and Janaka of Videha, in which the former reveals the method of entering into the order of a Sanniyasi or ascetic, with a description of his duties, and states that he needs no sacred thread, since he is pure in himself.

90.) Varahópanishada.

This upanishada consists of 5 lectures (adhyáyas).

The opening of the first lecture is a dialogue between Varaha and Ribhu; in which the former explains the twenty five branches of metaphysical ethics; and the remaining lectures contain theological doctrines; as well as the principles of yoga sastra.

91.) Satyayanópanishada.

This upanishada contains rules for entering into the degree of a Sanniyasi with a description of his duties.

92.) Hayagrivópanishada.

Náreda having solicited divine knowledge from Brahma, the latter enjoined him to adore Hayagriva (an incarnation of Vishnu with the head of a horse) and communicated to him the spells of that deity.

93.) Dattatreya upanishada.

This tract contains an account of Narayana having communicated to Brahma the spell of Dattatreya.

94.) Garudópanishada.

This tract opens with an account of the Garuda-upanishada having been originally communicated to Náreda who is stated to have related it to Brihatchena. He narrated it to Indra; from whom Bharadwaja learned it; and he initiated his disciples in it. The subject of this upanishada is the mantra, or spell of Garuda, the vehicle of Vishnu, and a bird commonly called "Braminy kite." It is said to be an antidote to poison, (i. e. venom of snakes.)

95.) Kalisantarnópanishada.

This short upanishada contains an account of Nareda having solicited from Brahma, the means for the clearing from sins in the Cali yuga or present age; and of his having communicated to him that the constant recital of the names of Nárâyana or Vishnu, which the following verse contains, would clear a man from all kinds of sins.

Hari Râma, Hara Râma, Râma, Râma.
Hari, Hari, Hara Krishna, Hari Krishna.
Krishna, Krishna, Hari, Hari.

This verse contains the 16 names of Vishnu.

96.) Jabalópanishada.

This upanishada opens with a discourse between Jabali and Paippalada, in which the supremacy of Siva is recognized ; the besmearing of the ashes of the sacrificial fire, and a marking the forehead with tripundra, or triple horizontal lines, are recommended ; as the means to clear from sins. Sanatcumara is one of the dialoguists in this upanishada.

97.) Sâubhagya Lacshmi upanishada.

This upanishada contains a dialogue between Naráyana and the deities, in which the former communicated to the latter the spell (mantra) of Lacshmi or the goddess of prosperity, and recommended her adoration. They are likewise enjoined to practise the yoga in order to meditate upon her.

It is stated that 'Asvalayána at the request of the rishis, revealed to them 10 slocas or verses in praise of Sarasvati, or the goddess of learning, as the means to attain proficiency in the arts and science, or to be able to compose verses. In one of the verses Cashmir is used, viz. Cashmir pura vásini Oh thou who residest in the town of Cashmir.

98.) Muctícópanishada.

This upanishada contains a discourse between Rama and Hanuman ; in which the former enumerates the number of the vedas and names one hundred and eight upanishadas ; and communicates to him theological knowledge.

Ten* more are wanted in order to complete 108 upanishadas ; but either the abstracter paused, or the last leaf of a frail China-paper cahier was torn off, and so lost in transitu. Either way the defect cannot be deemed of consequence. We are reminded of the adage—omne ignotum pro magnifico. At the same time these upanishadas are perceived to be the roots of much spreading foliage in these Manuscripts, passim.

* The numbering was incorrect : hence 98, not 99, as on page 457 17)18) are duplicates.

Four classes of account.

1 Cshétra ganitam, land measuring, however difficult or irregular may be the form.

2 Sutra ganitam, various kinds of account in the briefest form, totals, &c.

3 Svarna ganitam, weight of gold, according to its quality, and mode of adding up.

4 Binna cshétra ganitam, on fractional accounts in land measure (the division of lands is of such a nature as to render fractional arithmetic of the greatest consequence. Near Madras it is customary to divide the whole lands of a village into 5 parts, and the smallest portion held by an individual usually is $\frac{1}{16}$ of $\frac{1}{3}$; but, in extensive lands, still smaller parts, are held by single cultivators. Then the whole product has to be divided: very small fractional shares going to the five classes of village servants, &c.)

The book is of medium size, in good order.

10. No. 709. Ganita sastram, padya cávyam.

—multiplication table—2 leaves.

—brief operations in arithmetic—2 leaves.

—pavalur ganitam, a particular mode.

This is incomplete.

—various other particulars of arithmetical computation.

The book is long, thin, without boards.

11. No. 711. Pávalur ganitam.

By Pávalur Malayya, complete.

On integers up to the highest amount; rules—as Addition, Subtraction, Multiplication, Division, &c.

Accounts of kinds—money, weights, grain measure, land measure, &c.

The book is of medium size, without boards, in good order.

III. Art of Poetry.

1. No. 48. Rághavîya pandavîyam.

By Surayya; padya cávyam, with glossary. Only the 1st asvásam, and this complete.

This is a difficult book; exemplifying what is considered a high poetical excellency, in using words capable of a continuous double meaning. Here the words, taken in one sense, give the story of the Rámáyanam; but, taken in another sense, contain the narrative of the Bháratam.

In this section—on the birth of Ráma, Lacshmana, Bharata, Satrugna, or of Dherma-Raja, Bhîma, Arjuna, Nacula, Sahadéva: leaf 1—14 other 3 leaves, various stanzas: and 11 blank leaves.

The book is long, of medium thickness, recent, bamboo boards.

2. No. 79. Cavi alancara sangraha.

By Sárada murti murti; padya cávyam.

On dramatic composition; 4 asvásas are right, the 5th incomplete.

Description of the disposition of the hero, and his personal appearance. On the rasas, or poetical sentiments. Description of the hero in his amours. The proper character of a drama. Discrimination of differences between a heroic poem, and a drama. Mode of distinguishing theatrical emotions, or sentiments. On the knowledge, and discrimination of amorous signs. On the sátvica, or mild temperament. A discrimination of three defects in words; as to meaning, and manner of union. An epitome of ornamental words; with other details on rhetorical, or dramatic composition; incomplete leaf 1—86, and 26 blank leaves.

The book is somewhat long, of medium thickness, recent.

3. No. 84. Cavi alancára chudámani.

By Vinna kotta peddayya; padya cávyam. 1—8 ulásas complete the 9th, not so. Two leaves are prefixed; on indications as to the lunar asterism under which any one was born.

On the qualities of the hero and heroine.

On the nine rasas, ar poetical sentiments. On various rhetorical divisions, and their properties. Rules and proprieties as to composite stanzas: Words which are not good to be used in certain places. On faults of meaning; such as ascribing to Ráma, actions proper to Siva. With various other matters: 73 leaves, in all.

The book is long, of medium thickness, one board damaged.

4. No. 103. Cavi alancára chudámani.

By Peddayya namadhíya cavi; padya cavyam. The 7th ulása complete, the 8th not so.

On the poetical sentiments—properties of the hero and heroine—mode of fitting up dramatic exhibitions—right mode of composing; as to meaning, and as to forming stanzas: leaf 1—69.

The book is long, of medium thickness, without boards, yet a little injured.

5. No. 221. Rághava pándavíyam;

By Surayya: padya cávyam in four asvásas, complete (see 1 No. 48.)

This book is an exercise of genius, and skill. It exhibits parts of the story of the Rámáyanam and Bháratam by means of words of two meanings: the words of a sloca, read in one sense, give the former, in another sense the latter: this effort does not relate to the entire works; but to special parts only: leaf 1—62 and 7 blank leaves.

The book is long, of medium thickness, without boards, recent.

6. No. 222. Rághava pandaviyam; vyakyanam.

By Surayya, prose.

1—2 asvasas are complete, 3rd not so.

A comment on the preceding, as far as it goes.

The book is long, of medium thickness, very old, and very much damaged.

7. No. 475. Vasu charitra vyakyanam; a comment on the Vasu charitra.

1 asvásam, complete, the 2nd not so.

Chiefly an explanation of the measures, and words of this difficult poem ; but without coherence as to the story : leaf 1—37 and 56—74, 18 leaves wanting.

The book is long, thin, old, damaged.

8. No. 680 Chandasu sastram, some composite stanzas, relating to poetry as an art.

On syllables—and eight principle letters of classes, ma, ya, ra, cha, da, b'ha, ja, na. Their relation to astrological signs, and asterisms. The proper time for composing verses. Various results detailed. Rules for the composition of some kinds of verse, and the like.

The book is of medium length, without boards, in good order.

IV. Ascetic.

1. No. 35. For Sect. 1, see XXXIV.

Sect. 2. Jiva prabódha; padya cávyam.

By Vásu déva 1—3 asvasas complete.

4th defective. On the nature of the soul : its sinful state, and tendencies ; and the means of removing them ; with the mode of obtaining beatification. The reference to deity is by the name Brahm. It so far resembles the upanishadas.

2. No. 305. Sect. 1. Sampagi mana satacam.

On the tatva system, or corporeal members, mystically considered : only 47 kanda stanzas ; a fragment, and a mere prefix to an erotic book ; in a way which though singular, is common.

For Sect. 2, 3, see IX.

3. No. 484. Sampagi mana satacam.

By Paramánanda yeti. 115 kanda padyas.

On the tatva system—sampagi mana would seem to be some local name of a deity : half leaf, loose stanzas.

The book is of medium length, thin, without boards, injured.

4. No. 623. Vijnána pradîpica an illustration of real wisdom ; padya cavyam.

By Virayya. Only the 2nd asvásam.

On ascetic metaphysics, and wisdom; compare No. 607 : leaf 9—19.

The book is of medium length, without boards, recent.

5. No. 624. Three pieces.

1.) Sádana chatushtaiyam, prose with some slócas. On four modes of sentiment, and practice.

(1.) Brihm is eternal, the world finite: this truth must be known, and acted upon.

(2.) All secular desires, and passions must be relinquished, and self-control maintained.

(3.) Sáma, dána, uparedha, tit'hicsha, samadhánam, sraddha, these must be relinquished.

The terms are technical.

2.) Siddhanta sáram, prose.

The essence of rectification—mystic. Sorrow attaches to the soul by reason of the body. The body is the result, or consequence of sin in a former state; and sin came by róga dwesha, passion, involving disease: that came by abimanam (carelessness ?) that by ajnánam want of wisdom, and this ignorance (ratio in circulo) came from sensual desires.

If you ask how the said sorrow will depart, the reply is by gnánam, or wisdom; which proceeds from átmanátma vicharam, or care of the soul.

If you ask what power will he possess who has the said care, the reply is, he will possess the anubandhan chatushtaiyam, or fourfold concord; to wit 1, adikari; 2, bhishayam; 3, samandam; 4, projeyanam; such as possess these four, are gnánis, or wise-men. (I do not recognize what is the exact system of this section; perhaps Jaina).

3.) Sacalópanishada saram, essence of all the upanishadas: prose with slocas mingled. The sum seems to be to extract thence the vedanta doctrine, with the sub-joined practice of asceticism. Modes of it, variously described: 9 leaves and 9 blank ones.

The book is long, thin, without boards, recent.

6. No. 630. Siddhanta saram, prose complete; v. supra 5. 2.)

The various evils incident to mankind, from mental ignorance, to be removed by true knowledge. The mode of acquiring this knowledge stated.

The book is of medium length, thin, somewhat old, and damaged.

7. No. 634. Sarvart'ha sáram, padya cavyam.

By Vencata pati, 3rd asvasam only, or

1. Isvara tatva viréca prakaranam, the chapter on the knowledge of deity, chitátma tatva—kévalátma tatvam.
2. Sádana chadushtaiya prakaranam.
3. Sadanópáya tatva prakaranam.
4. Jivan mukti prakaranam.
5. Jagat prándi vrüti prakaranam, a chapter on worldly desires.

Sancalpa or summary—all creation is the work of Isvara, and the evolution of his form; vedantic, or tatva metaphysics: leaf 1—49, some wanting.

The book is long, without boards, much injured by insects.

8. No. 636. Two pieces.

For Sect: 1. see XVI.

Sect: 2. matter from the Bháratam.

Vyasa conversed with Dherma raja on the duties of spiritual knowledge—on the vagrancy of the human mind, in glancing at things remote; this must be repressed, or kept in order. They who reject the delusive cares of family are truly wise—and like topics; stated as if given by Suta to sages in the Naimisara park: leaf 1—24.

The whole book is long, thin, without boards, injured.

9. No. 640. Gada chacra nirnayam, on the earthen vessel (i. e. the human body) prose; and in a few places, slocas, with a tica.

Details on the universe—On the five elements composing the human body—the product of each single element—details as to the mental, or spiritual faculties. On the ten vital airs—their location, and descriptive of them—the effects of their influence; as sorrow, sickness, joy, &c.; description of the various pulses—mode of growth of mankind. [This union of physics, and metaphysics is deemed religion]. Complete, leaf 141—154; hence taken out from some larger book.

It is long, without boards, recent.

10. No. 641. Gada chacra nirnayam, on the earthen figure or vessel; the slocas in it have a Telugu tica.

Prit'hivi, appu, tejas, vayu, ácásam, these five elements, their properties and nature. The five indriyas or five senses—harmony of elements, and senses. On avast'has or defects; as watchfulness, sleep, swoon, indolence, (simbal)—talking in sleep, sickness, &c.

On the six (matas) infatuations or sins; as kama, lust, cródha, anger, &c. On bones, flesh, nerves, details. On déha tatva, bodily properties, &c. Complete, leaf 48—58.

The book is long, without boards.

V. Astrological.

1. No. 721. Jyotisha retna caram.

By Charikonda Honayya, padya cávyam, complete, in five asvásas. Narrated by Vasishta to Garg'heya.

Year—ayana half-year rutu, six of two months each—month—pacsha half lunation, described.

Tit'hi lunar day, vára day of week, nacshetra lunar asterism, yóga good time, carana (or avuyóga) bad time. Lagna p'halam, influence of zodiacal signs; especially when ascendant.

On six kinds of horary questions. The lunar place for a day is a nacshetra; which of the 27½ are good, which bad for a child to be born in. Thus, the first half of Aries (solar signs) is good, the second half bad, &c.

On the situation of the planets at the time of birth, and their influence.

On gâudam, or accidents, as from snakes, water, &c.

The proper time for assuming the scholastic thread, according to the birth nacshetra, supra.

The same as to marriage; shaving the head; first menstruation; pregnancy; and bathing, or anointing a king.

Such are a few, but there are various other details: 120 leaves.

The book is somewhat long, and thick.

2. No. 722. Five pieces.

1.) Sassiyánandam, padya cávyam.

On natural astrology.

At such times as the sun first enters the lunar asterisms Anuradha and Múla there should be a little rain; if none, then there will be none for fourteen days after, in each case. If the sun and Jupiter are in conjunction in the lunar asterism Jyest'ha, in that year, there will be much rain, or a "good monsoon." Other like matter as to rain or none, in other months, and asterisms, with the good or evil thence resulting. See further No. 744 infra; especially as to times of sowing corn.

This tract leaf 17—30 is complete.

2.) Retnácaram: padya cávyam.

The character and fortunes of a child, according to the nacshetra, and laghuna at the time of birth. Results of the lunar asterisms: as for example: Asvini, good form—sensible—fond of his wife.

Bharini, brave, bold, secret, reserved or taciturn, charitable.

Critica, poor, lustful, fond of others' food, very bold.

Rohini, fond of jewel ornaments—good sense, conqueror of others by power; will possess land, horses, places, or houses. And so on.

Influence of signs in ascendant—as Mésha (Aries) poor, good disposition, servant of a king, or soldier, handsome, hairy body.

Rishabha (Taurus) popular, excellent disposition, tall in stature, length of years; splendid as the sun.

Mit'huna (Gemini) fond of women, and of music, self-conceited, honors kings, handsome, lustre of body.

Carcata (Cancer) weak body, slender, wealthy, beloved by relatives, fond of talking, learned in all things. And the like.

The results stated throughout the lagnas or signs—with other matter on judicial astrology.

3.) Sassiyánándam, padya cavyam.

This is a fragment from the midst of the tract. On cycle years, their influence.

A curious sloca on forming a ring of nine jewels to represent the nine planets, benefit of wearing it: leaf 50—53.

4.) Párásara hera, padya cávyam.

1 asvásam astrological, from a comparison of the lunar asterism, zodiacal sign, and planets places—results calculated, or foretold ; leaf 54—64.

5.) Another copy Sanscrit, original slocas; with a tica in Telugu. Contents as above. Also some matters on sacunas omens, good or bad : leaf, 84—112.

The book is long, of medium thickness, without boards, recent two leaves injured.

3. No. 723. P'hala grant'ha, book of influences, slocas with Telugu meaning.

—tará p'halam, influence of the lunar mansions.

—masa p'halam, influence of different months.

—sancranti p'halam, results from the sun's entering each sign of the zodiac.

—vára p'halam, influence of solar days, taken with planets.

Stripushpavati—on a young woman's coming to maturity, the lunar and solar day, the asterism, yógam, karana, and hálam, time, (day or night) are noted; and from the whole, good or evil is predicted.

Some incomplete observations on the results of the time of birth.

The book is long, thin, without boards, leaves diverse.

4. No. 726. Jyotisha sastram, slocas, in some places Telugu prose: known as Gáuri pánchángam, told by Siva to Gáuri.

Chiefly on muhúrtas, or good, and evil times of short duration. In the course of twelve months, seven days are specified, with the muhurtas by day and night, in which it is suitable to go out to war, and others the opposite ; with the good, or evil results in each case.

On the influences of the planets. In the aforesaid muhurtas, some signs are used as marks to designate them in an arbitrary and hidden sense (as chemical ointment, &c) The terms rájasa and támasa applied to times—in which of them it is proper to proceed in any affair, and in which not so. The proper nacshétras and muhúrtas, suitable for journeying, on various days of the week. On sacunas, or omens, as to journeys. When any horary question is asked, by observing how many letters are contained in the question, a good or evil result is divined. These and like matters. Some schemes of horary questions are given, as examples, incomplete: leaf 1—46 and 12 blank leaves.

The book is short, of medium thickness, in good order.

5. No. 727. For Sect: 1 see VII.

Sect 2. Bhárgava pánchángam.

A planet is stated to have power according to the lunar mansion in which it is posited. A discrimination of such positions, as referring to each planet. The results from the opposition of planets. Answers to horary questions, by looking at the places of the planets. The formation of a figure, or scheme of the heavens: and from that deducing results. Difference of caste among the nacshétras, or lunar mansions. Some Sanscrit slócas relative to answering horary questions. A lunar mansion has four patas or divisions. A letter proper to each one is given; variously used. Other details on horary questions: 28 leaves—incomplete.

The first section is wholly on divination, and the second runs into that subject; an almost necessary result of belief in horary questions.

The book is short, of medium thickness, bamboo boards, recent.

6. No. 728. Sutras on astrology, with tica in Telugu.

By Jaya muni.

On results from the opposition of planets, and on determining length of life.

It is long, thin, without boards.

18. No. 749. Two pieces.

1.) Vastu slocas, padyas and tica.

The results of founding a house, or a column in each lunar mansion, and in each zodiacal sign ; whence the one most suited to the intent is to be selected. [I note, by the way, that old Cairo was intentionally founded on some aspect of the planet Mars, receiving the Arabic name of that planet ; with the intent of conquest in war. It has been conquered oftener than usual with cities ; and always notorious for the plague].

2.) Amsas, prose-form.

The amsa is a technical fraction of any zodiacal sign, the lunar mansions are divided each into four saranas : the coincidence of these is noted ; such a amsa of the sign, such a sarana of the lunar mansion. Thus Asvini's four saranas have amsas four ; 1, Mesha ; 2, Rishabha ; 3, Mit'huna ; 4, Carcata ; Bharini's four saranas have amsas four ; 1, Leo ; 2, Virgo ; 3, Tula ; 4, Vricshica ; and so on.

The 2nd piece is shorter than the other ; without boards ; recent.

19. No. 750. Cumára vástu, slócas, with tica in Telugu.

On building a house—fixing doors in it—placing pillars—gathering grain into it—placing the rice pestle—bringing cows into it; binding up a book, these and like matters; these proceedings have results stated; as to be expected, according to the lunar mansion, the zodiacal sign, the lunar day, the sign in ascendant, &c. A few Telugu stanzas are added, on the same general subject, 28 leaves complete.

The book is of medium length, and has no boards.

20. No. 751. Jyotisham, slócas, with tica in Telugu.

The lords of the different zodiacal signs, Aries, Mars; Taurus, Venus; Gemini, Mercury; Cancer, the Moon; Leo, the Sun; Virgo, Mercury; Libra, Venus; Scorpio, Mars; Sagittarius and Pisces, Jupiter, Capricorn, Aquarius, Saturn.

On the opposition (drishti looking at) of the different planets, and signs.

Effect of the tara or lunar asterisms. Lunar influence, and influence of the different months, as the sun is in different signs, with various other astrological matters; only 9 leaves.

The book is of medium length, without boards, much injured.

21. No. 754. Jyotisha, slócas, with tica in Telugu.

—acshara prasna, looking for, and giving a reply, according to the letters contained in any question.

—anga prasna, doubtful, as having technical words without tica.

—prasna lagna, replies to questions according to the signs in which different planets are posited: leaf 6—11 a fragment.

The book is long, without boards, recent.

22. No. 755. Six almanacs, tied up together.

1. Taruna year, with 2 leaves chants to Ráma, complete, 52 leaves.
2. Chitra bánu year, incomplete, 22 leaves.
3. Dundubhi year, complete, 46 leaves.
4. Rudhotgari year, complete, 46 leaves.
5. Ródhana year, complete, 40 leaves.
6. Ananda year, complete, 44 leaves; with Vicrama year, incomplete, 21 leaves irregular.

These contain the usual five divisions; lunar and solar day—lunar mansion, yoga, karana, the two last, portions of time that are propitious, or the reverse.

Also aspects of the planets; good or bad muhurtas; or two Indian hours each day, deemed special. And the pît'ha, that is, a prognostication, at the beginning of each year, as to its general character; such as war—abundance of grain, &c.

The several books are without boards, not injured.

VI. Commonplace.

1. No. 6. Sect. 1. Subhashita retnavali.

By Bartri hari; padyas, slócas, &c.

A compilation of extracts ; when entire it is in three parts , and then often classed under the heading Miscellaneous. This is a portion of the ethical part ; containing decades on obstinately ignorant people, on those well taught. On the brave ; on property ; on bad people ; on good persons, on doing good to others ; on the gods ; on ritual works, or ceremonies—such as might be copied into a commonplace book, classified.

For Sect. 2. see IX., for Sect. 3—6 see XXVIII.

The whole book is long, thick, recent.

2. No. 300. Chättu cávyam, excerpta.

Selections to suit different occasions. Stanzas on various subjects, and in various kinds of metre. A brief epitome of the destruction of three cities (Tripura). On the Rámáyanam ; a spy having reported to Ráma the state of Ravana's army, Ráma launched a destructive rocket. Stanzas on ther parts of the Rámáyanam. At the end from another book, 10 leaves on medicine.

The book is long, of medium thickness, recent.

3. No. 301. Chättu cávyam.

A variety of verses adapted to special occasions ; so as to answer objections, or to meet any particular case ; or so as to convince, or persuade, or silence. Various metres, down to lalla or lullaby. On the laws of versification ; the subjects, for the most part, are chief : not the metres : a sort of commonplace book for use.

At the end 8 leaves on borrowing, and re-paying loans.

The book is of medium size, recent.

4. No. 310. Chattu cávyam.

Among lesser matters are :

Nila nagáti nayaka satacam, 70 stanzas.

Sudámanda satacam, 39 stanzas.

These two are ethical in kind.

Hasya vaidhya sastram, risible medicine ; a jocose imitation of medical books, in the style of Dr. Sangrado in Gil Blas, or of Moliere's Medecin malgre lui.

Some lists of tribes : chants, &c., &c.

The book is of medium size, recent.

5. No. 327. Various stanzas.

A selection of commonplace extracts from various books, and of very different kinds of poetry, and versification, ornate, laudatory, lállu páttu.

The book is of medium size, thin, without boards.

6. No. 359. Anyáya puri panchacam.

Five slócas, on a ruler of Nilequity town: whose decrees were unrighteous.

A jest book for buffoonery.

Each slóca is made the foundation for a brief tale in illustration.

Examples.—A man went to buy rice from a dealer, which last reversed the measure, and filled in to the small end; and the doing so caused a dispute; carried before the king; who said since you cannot agree as to which end let the measure be laid flat, and rice be poured thereon—of course yielding nothing.

A washerman's ass caused abortion in a woman by a kick, and got its leg broken. Complaint by both parties. The king decreed, let the husband take the ass, till its leg can be cured; and let the washerman take the woman till he can return her to the husband pregnant: leaf 1—15 and 8 blank ones.

The book is very small for the pocket.

7. No. 506. Extracts from various books "by desire of a king" by one Rámasvámi; only 7 leaves. One stanza from Rámadharaca satacam, two from the Calahasti satacam, 3—7 from the Nara sinha satacam, 1 from another book on Cálahasti, 1 from the Bháscara satacam, 1 from Sumati satacam, 1 from the Venugópala satacam, and others.

VII. Divination.

1. No. 313. Palmistry, and like matters; six pieces in all.

1.) 3 leaves padya cáryam—lines on the hands, spots, moles, or other marks on the body, curls in the hair—their significations; a sort of gipsy lore.

2.) 4 leaves Strî lacshanam, on the female person: special marks on the face; and kind of forehead, eyes, nose, &c., thence character, or propensities divined.

3.) Purusha lacshanam 4 leaves, the like as to men; a sort of physiognomy.

4.) The like generally, as to both sexes.

5.) Sanscrit slócas, with Telugu tica, 11 leaves.

6.) Composite stanzas, with prose tica, 27 leaves; and 3 others sisa mulica, lengthy stanzas: on the same general topic.

The sum is "fortune telling." From hand marks, curls of hair, spots, moles, and other such things, to determine the length of life—incidents; such as sorrow—good fortune—dispositions—tendencies.

The book is long, of medium thickness, recent.

2. No. 314. Sámudrica sastram.

Composite stanzas, complete.

Leaf 1—12 on lines in the hand of women, with moles, and like matters, v. supra, leaf 13—20, the like as to men. From both, events of life, time of death, dispositions, and such matters said to be determined.

The book is short, and thin, without boards, neat appearance.

3. No. 315. Sámudricam. Palmistry.

Ascribed to Prahlada; padya cávyam—only a fragment of six leaves.

To judge by the members of the body, from the head down to the feet, their size, appearance, &c., what will be the character, and duration of any one's life. Especially on Palmistry—determining by the lines on the hand, the length of life, and the prosperity, or adversity of the individual concerned.

The book is long, without boards.

4. No. 632. Sect: 1. Svara sastram, dwipada metre. 50 leaves, complete.

This is a divination from the mode of breathing through the nostrils; and, with reference thereto: the astrological commonplaces of day of the week, lunar mansion, sign in the ascendant, bright or dark half lunations, month, season (rutu) are to be considered. From the whole, results as to life, health, &c. &c. are predicted; which must be more or less an imposition, on the weak and credulous.

For Sect 2. see X. infra.

5. No. 724. Sámudrica. Palmistry.

Composite metre, with prose version 95 stanzas, on 19 leaves, incomplete.

By lines on the hands of women and men, and also from marks, warts, moles, on different parts of the body, prognostications of good, or ill, length of life, or the contrary; various other matters are also assumed to be predicted.

The book is long, without boards, injured.

6. No. 725. Pancha pacshi sastram, augury from five imaginary birds.

These suppositious birds are designated by the vowels a, i, u, e, o, to determine their order. Next their order, according to the lunar days—then weeks—then according to the eight points E. S.E. S. &c. these matters are explained. As the said birds, according to the said different orders are considered to be sleeping, waking, &c. so results are augured, as to any event.

Different times of feeding by these birds in the bright, and dark lunations : squares or diagrams to illustrate the same. Other matters are connected with sorcery, and astrology.

Signs of the zodiac, and some binary divisions of each sign, for horary questions. (The word hora is used) also triple divisions ; nonal divisions—duodecimal divisions, with like reference. On the sun and other planets, as lords of signs. Drishti krama, or oppositions of planets, or signs.

Ashtaca varga ; eight squares for divination, or sorcery.

Ganda dósha kramam, accidents, or ill results from the birth of children, to themselves, or to their parents : slócas with Telugu tica. Lagna sputta kramam, mode of forming an opinion from the sign in ascendant at the time of birth. One leaf from the chandriki on shaving the head, on the tenth day after journeying. See Divination in the Introduction.

6½. No. 727. Sect : 1. see V. supra.

7. No. 729. Nava griha chintámani.

On divination.

In this book there is a great variety of answers to such questions, as are likely to be propounded. The mode of proceeding is to have nine couries (small sea-shells) answering to the nine planets. These are thrown nine times ; and the number thrown each time is reckoned (flat side 1, convex 0) the nine are added into one total ; this is divided by nine, as distributed to nine persons. The remainder is used for divination, in answer to any question, e. g. if 1 see the 1st leaf, and take the first line, as an answer ; if 3 look at leaf 3, take out the 3rd line, as an answer. [Evidently to amuse a weak mind ; but with what recondite evil connected is not so apparent].

The book is short, thick, not injured.

8. No. 738. Sacunam, on omens.

These are of five classes.

1.) By the Rámáyanam, by means of a string held in both hands, a leaf of that book is cut or marked—then from the character of the contents just there, good or otherwise is opined.

2.) By sneezing, the day, 1st, 2nd or 3rd watch, from what side heard—and thence good or ill portended.

3.) From week days compared with the planets ruling each one; the numbers of hours in each day, which are told off to each day planet; and conclusions thence deduced.

4.) Gâuli sastram, lizard omens; from the chappering of lizards, according to the days of the week, and the points of the compass whence heard, good or evil is augured; but sometimes of a trifling, or vicious character. The foregoing are complete.

5.) Gâuri pánchangam, it has reference to eight muhurtas by day, and eight by night; if any work be begun, in any one of these, the results foretold. This is incomplete.

The book is short, and not thick.

9. No. 739. Nimitta chudámani, prose.

"The head jewel of signs;" complete.

On divination, from hearing any one sneeze according to the eight points of the compass whence heard; and according to the day of the week when heard; and also according to the watch (day or night). Thus, if any one is heard to sneeze coming from the S. on the 2nd day of the week, and in the 1st or evening watch: and so on.

The book is small for the pocket, not injured.

10. No. 740. Sacuna Rámáyanam, acshara prasna. The practice resembles the sortes Virgilianæ. While one holds the book another one passes a string between any two leaves: the passage is then read, and is taken to be oracular. A trial was made, and the book opened on the place where Lacshmana conveys Sîta to a hermitage; which was then said to be a good omen: slócas with the meaning complete.

The book is small, and recent.

11. No. 741. Sacunam—on omens, prose, complete.

A die, or cube has marks $_0^0)\,_{10}^0)$ 100 on four sides only. A good day being selected, these are thrown three times; and, according to the number turned up, reference is made to corresponding parts of this book, which yield a divination—the book giving the particulars; they relate to food, clothes, health, and other common benefits: the few numbers that were tried, the better to understand the book, gave only favorable results.

The book is small, not injured.

12. No. 742. Sacunam, two kinds.

1.) Gâuli sacunam, lizard omens.

If a lizard is heard to chirp, or chapper, the quarter whence heard is to be noted ; and thence a result divined. It would seem as if this piece is limited to the side whence heard ; usually other points are noted.

2.) Tumma núl sneezing science.

When any one is heard to sneeze, the day of week, watch of day or night, quarter of the heavens, are to be noted, and thence various results are to be divined, as the book specifies.

The book is short, of medium thickness, (23 leaves written 55 blank) recent.

13. No. 743. Nava grïha chudámani, "nine planet jewel": on divination.

The person consulting must be ceremoniously, and otherwise, clean. Then after making puja, he casts nine couries, nine times (see 7 No. 729 supra) then takes the total amount of value upmost, each reckoning one. After dividing the total by 9, the remainder is used by referring to the same leaf, and line of this book ; so remainder 2 on the 2nd leaf and 2nd line is read " This is true, without mistake," and so on, 108 leaves 8 blank.

The book is short, and thick, with bamboo boards, not injured.

14. No. 757. Sect 1. Sámudricam, padya cavyam.

On Palmistry : a fragment relating to marks, lines on the hands of a man, with moles on the body ; and from these the fortune told ; 4 leaves.

Sect : 5, dúta lacshana sacunam, composite metre 13 leaves, incomplete.

By the messenger ; as to number, one, two, &c. and from other circumstances, as to speech or manner, the doctor, when sent for, divines the state of the patient, and forms a prognosis : one messenger is good, two bad, &c.

For Sect. 1, see XVI. For other sections see XX.

VIII. Dramatic.

1. No. 28. Sacontala parinayam.

By Krishna cavi, padya cávyam.

In 3 asvásas, complete. A poem founded on Cáli dasa's drama. Description of Hastinápuri. Náreda came to Dushmanta—their discourse ; description of the six rutus or seasons. Dushmanta's hunting excursion—and enquiry into the parentage of Sacontala—Gandharba marriage. Her journey with her son Bharata—ring lost by the way—denied—Nárayana, and other gods, brought in to solve the difficulty ; ring recovered—Dushmanta acknowledged her, and her son—the latter crowned as second king, and successor ; leaf 1—71.

The book is long, of medium thickness, without boards, recent.

2. No. 43. Bhaktangiri rénu natacam, otherwise termed Vaijayanti vilásam.

Another name is Vipra nárayana charitra. It relates to an 'Aluvar whose secular name was Vipra Nárayana: but by superior direction, he was styled Tondu reddi podi 'Aluvar.

Some special circumstances in his life ; one form in padya cavgam 4 asvásas ; another form yecha ganam various metre, adopted to scenic representation ; exhibiting a character, deemed sacred, to ridicule.

Vaijayanti was a danseuse, who pleased the king by her performances ; and he gave her a mániyam or glebe, tax free, in the temple at Srirangham. She, and a companion made a sort of wager ; by which she engaged to bring Vipra Nárayana under her influence. She began, on seeing him gathering flowers for the shrine—with great difficulty she brought him to ask, who she was, and enticed him to her house, whence he was driven, and beaten by her parents. By his prayers the god gave him one of the five golden cups used for offerings, which he gave to the dási. The cup being missing, the Brahman was brought into trouble. He cast himself at the feet of the god, who rescued him from his distress, by stating that he himself gave the cup to the Brahman ; directing him thenceforward to be named Tondu reddi podi 'Aluvar. The skill of the dási is applauded, by the term jayanti (victrix) added to her name. It may be easily seen how much scope there is for licentious farce ; directed alike to god and votary. The drama is probably written with like animus to Moliere's Tartuffe.

The book is long, of medium thickness, the drama is old, the poem looks recent.

3. No. 67. For Sect. 1, see XXXI.

Sect. 2. Viti nátacam, a farce.

By Sri nát'ha. Composite stanzas.

Subject ornamental, amorous, farcical ; leaf 1—5 the 3rd wanting.

For Sect. 3, see XXXI.

4. No. 208. Nátaca, various metre.

An exhibition of the vésha (disguise or costume) worn by Satyabhaumi, Rucmini, and Lacshana, wives of Krishna.

The costume of Art'hanát'hesvari, a form half Siva, half Parvati.

Costume of Krishna and various of his lewd frolics, publicly acted over again. The beginning, and ending are wanting : 36 leaves remain.

The book is somewhat long, one leaf is broken.

5. No. 283. Nala nátacam, 3 ancas.

The story of Nala dramatized—his marriage with Damayanti—the distress to which both were reduced, by the enmity of Sani (the planet Saturn) and their subsequent return to prosperity.

The book is long, of medium thickness, has only one board.

IX. Erotic.

1. No. 6. For Sect. 1, see VI.

Sect. 2. Rasica jana manóbiramam.

By Timmana cavi ; padya cávyam.

In 6 asvásas complete. As if narrated by Nareda to Varijasana.

2. No. 21. Fragments.

1.) Leaves 1—31 but 10—19 wanting.

By Bhava nisa : 1 asvásam.

The subject the amorous adventures of Krishna.

2.) Vasu charitra vyakyánam, only 10 leaves of a comment on the Vasu charitra.

3.) Cavi alancáram, 2 asvásas, not complete.

By Sarada murti.

Rules of poetic art, as to the hero and heroine, their emotions, gestures, passions, &c.

4.) Rasábaranam, jewel of sentiments.

By 'Ananda, 4 asvásas, incomplete.

On poetical, and amorous sentiments and passions.

5.) Four leaves only from the 'Amukta mála, concerning Vishnu jit, or Namáluvar.

The book is long, thin, recent.

3. No. 22. For Sect. 1. see XXXII.

Sect. 2. Svarochisa manu charitra, 1—3 asvásas, see 6 No. 30 infra.

This copy has 1—6 asvásas, complete, padya cávyam, considered very difficult.

Adventures on Himaut, or Himálya, Birth of a son by a Gandarbha ; the mother gave the child the name of Svarochi ; and caused him to be trained in all learning. One day while out hunting, and being seated, a timid woman came, and asked his aid to kill an asura, that oppressed her father. After intermediate adventures, the father died ; and the remaining pair married. Svarochi had three sons, by three women ; and established them as kings in three towns. Again he met a woman in a forest, and by her had a son named Svarochisa ; who arrived at the dignity of second Manu. (The 1st being Svayambhwà) governing the second manuvantara.

The entire book is long, thick, recent.

4. No. 25. Two pieces.

1.) Satyábhauma asvantam, padyas.

By Sri Kámésvaru 1—4 asvásas, only wanting two lines at the close.

Náreda came to Krishna and told him that Naracásura ought to be killed, because of the trouble caused by him : Krishna consented. Satyabhaumi, one of his wives, requested leave to go with him, and went a little distance. On his leaving her, she suffered from his absence ; the main object of the poem being to describe in detail female emotions, passions, and actions, during the absence of a lover. Krishna killed Naracasura in Prayotisha-puri his capital ; and then returned to his own town.

2.) Manu charitra, padya cávyam.

By Pedda nát'hayya.

A siddha, or magician, told a Brahman and his wife, matters about Udayagiri in the Himálayas. The Brahman determined to go thither. When there a woman saw him, and fell in love with him ; but he avoided her. The usual execrations of the moon, and Manmata are given. A gandarbha assumed the Brahman's form. By him she had a son named Svarochi. For the rest see 2 No. 22 Sec. 2 supra.

The recondite language of this poem is the main cause of its high esteem. The entire book is long, thick, recent with many blank leaves.

5. No. 26. Sect. 1. Rádha Madhava samvátam, padya cavyam.

By Vencatapati cavi; founded on a portion of the last part 10th book of the Bhágavatam.

Intercourse, jealousy, alienation, reconciliation, and so forth, as to Krishna and Rádha his aunt. See 2d Family MSS.

For sect. 2 see XVI. The book is long, thin, without boards.

6. No. 30. Svárochisa manu charitra.

By Pedda nát'ha, son of Chockupádhya, padya cavyam 1—3 asvásas.

Subject as in 4, No. 25 supra sect. 2 down to the Gandharba's disappearance: leaf 1—50, not complete.

The book is of medium size, without boards.

7. No. 31. Svárochisa manu charitra.

1, 2 asvásas complete, 2 leaves of the 3rd; same tale—the copying only begun, and left imperfect.

The book is long, thin, without boards, recent.

8. No. 32. Vasu charitra vyakyánam, a comment on the Vasu charitra of Bhatta murti, by Sóma nát'hayya. It extends to the 3rd asvása, but not beyond; following the recondite original, word by word. The subject fictitious, and amorous romance.

The book is long, thick; with the appearance of having been written at intervals.

9. No. 44. Vasu charitra vyakyánam.

By Sóma nát'ha.

The 4th and 5th asvasas—6th defective.

The book is very long, thin, recent.

10. No. 58. Two pieces.

1.) Rádha Madhava samváta, or vilásam.

By Vencatapati—complete in 3 asvasas.

Rádha was younger sister of Krishna's father. Account of their early intercourse, and amours, or jealousies; and of Krishna taking her home to his house.

2.) Suca Rhemba samvátam, padyas, a fragment of 6 leaves in irregular order: but the name Rhemba indicates the subject. Rhemba tempted Suca rishi but failed.

The book is long, of medium thichness.

11. No. 65. Three poems.

1.) Tarasa sesanca vijayam, padyas.

By Vencata pati ; in 5 asvásas, complete.

Founded on a pauranic legend.

Chandra (the moon) was the son of Atri. He became a pupil in the house of Vrihaspati (Jupiter) Tarà (lunar orbit) became enamoured of Chandra ; and, at length, when Vrihaspati was called away to a sacrifice, by Indra. she succeeded. Chandra became enamoured. Vrihaspati on his return reproached his wife, and sent Chandra away. Tarà sent a female messenger to recall him. In due time Budha (Mercury) was born. A dispute as to the right to the child. The celestials, being called in, decided in favor of Chandra, See further 2nd Family M. S. Books.

[Wilford makes the pauranical tale to be an astronomical enigma ; but if so, Telugu poets have taken great liberties with it].

2.) Cohoko kalá sastram, padyas.

Only the 1st asvásam.

By Yariya namadheya cavi.

On four classes of women, and some discriminations as to personal appearance, dress, habits, phlegmatic or other constitutions ; modes of endearment, &c.

3.) Ahalya sancrantana vilásam, padyas fragment of two leaves.

Ahalya was the wife of Gaûtama.

There are two full versions, elsewhere of this pauranic legend ; one of them close, one very free.

The book is long, of medium thickness, recent.

12. No. 68. Sect. 1. Vélpu satacam.

By Balita cavi ; 69 stanzas only.

Introductory matter on the life of Krishna. His building the town of Dwaraca, on the sea shore ; and living prospersously, with his wives. in his répalli, or hamlet. His amours ; but especially the one with Rádha. Rádha sent a messenger to Krishna, who delivered her errand. Rucmini took occasion to ask her, who is Rádha ? and how came there to be any connexion between her, and Krishna. The messenger enters into a circumstantial reply ; the main object of the work : leaf 2—72.

The book is of medium size, old, and very much damaged, many leaves only half remaining.

14. No. 82. Six pieces.

1.) Calahasti linga satacam, 100 sîsa padyas.

A devotee praises the emblem of Siva.

2.) Paraváti gajancusham ; vrütta stanzas.

Some sectarial praise of Siva, as being the only God. From the connexion in which it is found it appears burlesque.

3.) Varaha narasinha satacam, 43 sîsa padyas, 6 leaves only ; a fragment.

In it a woman, not named, expresses the pains of love towards Vishnu

4.) Sri saila satacam, 18 sisa padyas.

15. No. 85. Sunanda parinayam.

By Cótanda Ráma ; padya cávyam.

In 5 asvasas, complete.

A fictitious love tale. Pradhipa, a king of Hastinapuri went out to hunt, and hearing, when he reposed, from his mantri that Bhima sena's daughter, named Sunanda devi, was away alone in the forest, and of great beauty, he allowed himself to be led to see her ; when a mutual passion arose ; and both afterwards suffered, being apart. At length she contrived to send a messenger ; and the result was her being taken to his town, as his wife, with full and varied description of their amours : illustrating, also the craft of mantris to detach kings from public business.

The book is long, and somewhat thick.

16. No. 87. Rucmini parinayam.

By Timmaiyya; padya cavyam.

1, 2 asvasas, right; but not finished.

Rucmini, was affianced to Sisupála; but did not like him. She was attached to Kṛishna; and sent a messenger, asking him to free her from the other engagement. As a reply did not quickly come, she is herein represented as suffering pain, and anxiety: the rest wanting.

The book is long, thin, without boards, and much damaged.

17. No. 96. Three pieces.

1.) Uma Mahésa satacam; 100 vrütta padyas; 13 leaves complete. The part looked at, represents Ganga as thinking on Siva, and expressing the pains of love.

The book is long, of medium thickness, without boards.

21. No. 157. Siva lîla vilásam, padyas.

By Timma Cavi—1. 2 asvásas, complete.

Under the fiction of having been related, by Bhishmácháryа to Arjuna.

Origin of Ganga; and the reason of her being reared in Sambadayya's (a fisherman's) house. Siva, having put on the disguise of a Jangama, came; and made signs to her. At length Siva and Ganga were married. A quarrel between Ganga and Girija (or Parvati). Siva came and settled it; giving to Ganga the privilege of being borne on his head, and to Parvati that of being one half of himself: 21 leaves.

The book is long, thin, without boards.

[The ascribing lîlas of this sort to Siva, by poets, seems intended to rival the popularity of the sports of Kṛishna].

22. No. 160. Manu charitra; padyas.

By Allasana peddana: 1—3 asvásas; but only a part of the whole poem.

In 'Ariyánanda désam, a Brahman named Pravaran-âriyà varta went to Himánt; and, when returning lost his way. On his asking a woman the road, she fell in love with him; but as he took no notice, and continued his journey, she suffered great pain. A gandharba knowing this circumstance, assumed the Brahman's form; and after cohabiting with her, for some time, he made false excuses, and left her; not more here—v. supra.

The book is of medium length, thin, old, injured, no boards.

23. No. 170. Suca Rhemba samvátam, padya cavyam: Brahma told to Náreda

Indra sent Rhemba, a courtezan of Sverga to nullify the penance of Suca-yogi. Her advances, and conversation detailed. On receiving suitable answers to every proposal, or subtlety of device, she returned disappointed, ashamed and vexed to her place. 15 leaves complete.

The book is long, thin, without boards.

24. No. 173. Ballira kari vélpu satacam.

61 sîsa padyams—incomplete.

Praise of Kṛishna in his various lîlas, or sports and amorous adventures: 34 leaves.

25. No. 177. Two fragments.

1.) Krishna lila vilásam; padyas.

By Ráma rája, defective at the beginning.

Rádha, suffering the pains of absence, sent a messenger once and again to Krishna; who visited her ; and returned. Then, on hearing of Rucmini's passion, he concluded a marriage with her ; and afterwards took Satyabhaûmi, and other inferior wives : 32 leaves remain.

2.) Hamsala divi satacam.

35 sisa padyams, the 36th unfinished, 5 leaves. Praise of Krishna.

The book is long, of medium thickness, without boards, recent.

26. No. 178. Rasica jana manóbiramam.

By Timma cávi, padya cávyam.

1—3 asvásas; but not complete, as a whole.

Archisánanda, a king of Kalyana puram, had a son named Rudra dvaja, who one day went out to hunt ; and, at the end, halted under a banyan tree. Being spring time he, with his companion Mati manta (slow-sense) wandered into the wilderness ; and ascending a hill, termed Cailasa, saw the wonders there ; when returning he heard the daughter of a gandharba with her friends singing, and on going near to see them he became amorous ; but, after much entreaty, the said daughter refused him ; and her companions took her away. The young man without listening to the counsels of his friend gave way to violent grief—not more here : 72 leaves in all.

The book is of medium size, without boards, recent.

27. No. 180. Suca Rhemba vilâsam.

Brahma to Náreda : padya cávyam.

Suca-yogi performing penance, Indra became jealous as to its intention ; and sent Rhemba from Sverga to nullify it. She came to Suca, splendidly attired ; and endeavoured to attract his attention. She also proffered verbal instruction ; but as he steadily rejected her advances, she was abashed ; and with great vexation returned.

The book is long, thin, without boards, a little injured : 1 leaf at end slócas, praise of Hari.

28. No. 185. Rája gópála satacam.

102 sisa padyams, complete.

Various praises of Krishna, and of his sports, and amours ; leaf 1—17.

The book is long, recent, without boards.

29. No, 210. Two pieces.

1.) Sṛngara manjeri, ornate garland: leaf 20—29, slócas and padyas.

They contain an ornamented description of the nayaca and nayaki, or lover and mistress.

2.) Wants the title; 2nd to 9th ulasa the end.

By Bála Kṛishna cavi.

The purport is similar to the above.

Leaf 125—137 and 139—144.

The two pieces have leaves differing in length; as a whole of medium thickness, no boards.

30. No. 236. Ashta patalu.

By Jaya déva, yecha ganam, incomplete; otherwise known as Gita Govinda.

Rádha tells her love-pains to her saki, or confident, who goes with a message to Kṛishna, and returns with the relation of his corresponding sufferings: 17 leaves.

The book is long, without boards, slightly injured.

31. No. 244. Táru vana kṛiṭa.

By Pinnaca poti: 204 peculiar stanzas.

Náreda's report to Siva of the beauty of the ṛishi's wives in the Táru woodlands. He went, in the form of a Jangama, and infatuated the whole of them. The ṛishis their husbands, became incensed, and devised or tried various schemes of revenge; until ascertaining his proper form, and character, they became reconciled.

25 leaves, and 4 blank.

The book is short, of medium thickness, recent.

32. No. 252. Kṛishna lila vilásam.

By Rámarája padya cavyam.

1st asvasam complete, 2nd defective.

Birth and nurture of Kṛishna—intercourse with Rádha; while living in Dwaracapuri, a Brahman came to him, and told him the great beauty of Rucmini, daughter of Bhishmaca: not more here: 49 leaves confusedly strung.

The book is long, of medium thickness, without boards, injured especially at the beginning.

33. No. 253. Two pieces.

1.) Siva parijatam, or Saûra mani nátacam.

By Rama linga—yecha ganam—or mixed metre.

While Siva was with Parvati, Ganga dévi, unable longer to bear the pains of separation, sent a female messenger to Siva. In the interim Náreda came to see Siva, and gave him a necklace of jewels—which Siva bestowed on Parvati. Thereupon Ganga being irritated, went to Siva, and some words occurred between them both. After reconciliation, Siva lived with Parvati and Ganga, without any discord ; and he praised them both.

2.) Petit balêt : leaf 32—39.

Siva, Parvati, Durga, in appropriate dresses, appear on the stage, and dance together. At the end 3 leaves contain some ethical matter ; praise of Siva ; and some lîlas, or sports of Siva.

The book is long, thin, old, without boards, one end damaged.

33⅓. No. 254. Nine pieces.

1.) Gola vésha cat'ha ; mixed metre.

Story of Krishna, &c. delivered by one disguised as a cow-keeper. Various matter on the Yadu, or cowherd race ; birth and training of Krishna : he was of Yadu race ; hence, as they say; that is the highest caste. Humour, or broad farce, founded on this assumption of cowkeepers being the highest caste ; stated to be adapted for scenic representation at night.

2.) The same ; fragment of 14 leaves.

By Potla durti.

3.) Bhoja rája cat'ha, mixed metre.

By the same. (There is another tale of this name).

Story of a daughter of Bhója, named Nilavati. She was asked for in marriage by a king. The father refused ; seeing she was already affianced to Vishnu. He retired incensed ; and in his own town, offered a reward to any one, who would bring away the said female. A clever man made a subterraneous passage, and took her away at night, while sleeping. On the passage she awoke ; when a voice was heard to the effect that, if she invoked Vishnu, aid would be given. She asked it ; and the thieves were destroyed. She was then taken by Vishnu (i. e. Kṛishna) to his palace at Dwaraca. [The difference between the eras of Kṛishna and Bhója of course is nothing in a work of fiction].

4.) Kṛishna vésham ; mixed metre, with some slócas.

A bhânam, or monologue representation, by an actor, in the character of Krishna ; narrating his obscene sports ; for scenic recitative at night : 20 leaves.

5.) Rádha vésham.

The aunt of Krishna—his birth—mode of life, her seducing the boy Krishna—their amours—in his absence, her grief, &c. 5 leaves.

6.) Satyabhauma vésham, mixed metre, fragment of 10 leaves.

Satyabháuma was the head of Krishna's inferior wives—her seeking for Krishna—lamenting his absence—finding him—their quarrels—her abuse of the moon, and of Manmata—the quarrel about the Parijata flower, &c.

7.) Kalinga marddhana—mixed metre.

On killing a nága (snake, or pariah) by Krishna's dancing on its head. The life of the nága was spared at the intercession of his wife : 23 leaves.

8.) Sarangadhara natácam, mixed metre.

By Suba raya cavi.

A drama founded on the popular tale of Sáraugadhara ; in the end he became one of the nava nát'ha siddhas : 44 leaves.

9.) Kzlà sastra, 1 leaf only.

On the four classes of women—hastini—sankhini—chitreni—padmini.

The book is long and thick, has only one board.

34. No. 265. Krishna lila vilásam, padyas.

Vasu deva and Dêviki had a son, named Krishna—who was reared in the house of Nanda and Yasódi (cowherds) his youthful sports—Sahasra gopa's daughter Rádha, one day seeing the behaviour of Krishna, fell in love with him ; and an interview followed, in which they came to an understanding with each other. After Rádha had left, Krishna's grief at her absence is described—breaks off : leaf 1—7 and 4 blank.

The book is long, without boards, recent.

35. No. 271. Sect. 1. Muru malla vira Sancara satacam; 105 rounded stanzas.

Parvati as wife of Siva, suffering from love-pains, addresses him insultingly in scorn—the refrain is—muru malla vira sancará or courageous destroyer ! of the young god of love.

For section 2 see X.

36. No. 280. Sect : 1. a loose song.

A woman addresses her gallant, with a varied change of rá rá ná intiki rá, calling him to her house in the evening—husband away—relatives will not meddle—to stay the night, and go away in the morning ; and this is followed sect. 2, by praise of Rama, for which see XVI.

37. No. 304. Kalà sastram, padyas.

By Yerria námadheya cavi.

1. 2 asvásams complete, 3rd defective.

Prefatory landation of the author by others.

Much on the female person—effects of different lunar days—temperament—a caste woman, and chaste wife—philtres for both sexes; and other matters, haud honesta. They seem derived from the sanscrit Amarúcam, or like books: 54 leaves.

The book is long, without boards.

38. No. 305. For section 1. See IV.

Sect. 2. Usha canya charitra; yecha ganam metre, complete; by Visvanát'hayya.

Banasura son of Balachacraverti ruled in Sonadri-puram. By penance he caused Siva to become a warder at his gate. At length, as he had no adversary to contend with, he challenged Siva; who, being incensed at his pride, told him that another stronger than himself, would come and fight with him.

Then follows a dream of 'Usha daughter of Bánásur, and a message sent by her saki or confidante Chitra rekhi, to Anirudha grandson of Krishna. A furtive amour following, Anirudha was caught, and imprisoned by Bánásura. Krishna came to the rescue, with an army; first fought with, and overcame Siva the warder; and, was about proceeding, when Siva, interceded; the quarrel was compromised; and 'Usha was publicly married to Aniruḍha.

Sect. 3. Káutála lama satacam, 81 sisa padyas, incomplete.

A husband, or lover expresses the pains and sufferings caused, by love of some female.

The book is of medium size, has only one board, recent.

39. No. 321. Fragment, without title: leaf 41—71.

Composite stanzas of amatory kind. In some a man expresses the pains of love, and asks relief from a woman; in others a woman is made to address a man. Matters of like kind as to Kṛishna and Satyabhaumi.

The book is of medium length, without boards.

40. No. 332. For sect: 1, 2, see XVI.

Sect: 3. Chandra dushanam—abuse of the moon—padyas—fragment of 3 leaves.

Women scold the moon, on its rising; as being a received cause of amorous emotions The subject is common place; and may be from the manu charitra, or like other book. This 3rd section is recent in appearance.

41. No. 462. Yera kula kora-vanchi in yecha ganam, or mixed metre.

The kora vánchi is a kind of poem that represen's Siva and Parvati, sometimes others, wandering about as gypsies, seeking each oth r, and acting in the character assumed; till they meet, and recognize each other. The yeravándlu are wild foresters of inferior race. In this book a fictitious female discourses on palmistry, the pulses, and principle of life; and is so learned, as to quote sanscrit slocas, and tells a tale of a lion that lost its mate; the book does not seem complete: leaf 1—116; four other, and miscellaneous leaves, are added. One on Siva's anger in killing Manmata; and a bridal chant on Parvati.

The book is long, of medium thickness, recent.

42. No. 474. Vasu charitra vyakyánam, only 7 leaves of a comment on the Vasu charitra.

44. No. 523. Krishna karnamritam, slocas and padyas mixed; complete.

A poetical description ("as nectar to the ear") of the sports of Krishna with 16,000 gopis or cowherdesses in Vrindávanam.

The book is long, thin, recent.

45. No. 527. Siva parijata, mixed metre, complete.

This book, and others, on like principles as to Siva, seem to have been induced by the popularity of the foregoing subject, in a rival system.

The subject of this one is the sports of Siva as Mallicarjuna. He assumed various disguises; and, in them, came and danced (being the Tándava ráya or royal dancer) to wit.

Gola	vésha,	as a female cowkeeper.
Yerucala	,,	as a wild forester.
Chenzi	,,	as one of an inferior race of aborigines, north of Pulicat.
Harihara	,,	as Vishnu and Siva, in one person.
Bálaki	,,	as a young woman.
Bhagirati	,,	as a river (word equivocal).
Padmácshi	,,	as a goddess ("lotos-eye.")

Kanaka Durga vésha, as a gold colored fiend.
Parvati „ as his own wife.
Ganga „ as his mistress.

There is a tale of Ganga falling in love with him ; enquiring after him ; sending a female messenger to him ; and finding him in company with Minácshi, the form of Parvati at Madura. The loves of Siva and Ganga are detailed. It is needless to note the suicidal tendency of such low ribaldry.

The book is long, thin, without boards, recent.

46. No. 542. Basavana pendla-páttu (of the kind of verse termed mangala). A marriage epithalamium of Basava, author not known.

3. No. 109. Matrü-satacam. 101 vṛitta stanzas ; 94 to 92, defective ; leaf 1—18, 20.

A mother is of chief importance among men. The mother preserves the husband's children—many examples given : excellence of mothers, with many examples deduced from books ; such as the mother of Kṛishna ; the mother of the Pandavas &c.

The book is short, thin, without boards, injured.

4. No. 205. Sect. 1. Bhâscara satacam, 102 vṛitta stanzas, on 9 leaves, complete.

A centum on common places, moralities : example—If the aid of a cruel person be invoked, it will either be small in amount, and soon fall away ; or else it will cause mischief ; even as shell-lime with betel leaf and areca nut is acrid ; a little may be used, but if too much the tongue will become ulcerated.

Four sisa padyas, on one leaf, descriptive of the colors, black, red, yellow, white.

For Sect. 2, see XXVI.

The entire book is somewhat long, of medium thickness.

5. No. 230. Bhâscara satacam, 106 vṛitta stanzas, on 14 leaves, complete.

On moral subjects of various kinds, with exemplifications. Another specimen :

When any one's physical strength is gone, then, however wealthy he may be, he cannot protect his goods, or resist invaders : even as—Arjuna who had overcome Siva, and many others ; when, in advanced age, he was conducting the wives of the deceased Krishna to a place of safety, and was attacked by Boyis*, was fain content to yield these females into their hands ; and himself remained alone, as one worth nothing.

The book is of medium length, thin, without boards, recent.

6. No. 257. Three fragments.

1.) Mâtrŭ satacam, 35 vṛitta stanzas, on 6 leaves, a panegyric on mothers ; as above 3, No. 109.

8. No. 267. Matrü satacam, 101 vṛitta stanzas, complete, on 8 leaves.

There is no guru or god besides (superior to ?) the mother of any one ; very high panegyric throughout : ex. gr.

There is no equal to a mother ; who knowing the time of a child's hunger, places before it five kinds of food, and causes it to eat what is suitable.

The book is of medium length, thin, without boards, very slightly injured.

9. No. 270. Sect. 1, Ráma linga satacam ; sîsa stanzas, on 4 leaves, e. g.

However wealthy any one may be ; yet as he can carry nothing away with him from this world, if he here be miserly, and neglect the duty of almsgiving, is he worthy the name of a rational creature ?

For sect : 2, see XXX.

10. No. 271. For sect : 1, see IX.

Sect : 2. Stanzas on persons, who must not be provoked, or vexed ; as—a cook, a poet, a doctor, a minister of state (king's chief adviser) a sorcerer, a back-biter, one who is associated with an enemy ; a great or wealthy man, any worldly ruler ; any one to whom the speaker's secrets, or private affairs, are known : if these, or any of them, be spoken to, in anger, very bad results may follow.

Composite stanzas, complete.

The word Sumati means "good sense" and whether it designates the author's name, or the subject is uncertain. It is in the usual style of native ethics.

For Sect : 2, see XXVIII, which is different as to the leaves.

53. No. 611. Two pieces.

1.) Bhagavat gita. The múlam, or slócas, in 18 adhyayams, complete, with a comment, in Telugu, by Tirumalappa : leaf 214—315.

From the Bhishma parvam of the Bháratam : Krishna to remove Arjuna's doubts gives him metaphysical instructions ; enjoins obedience ; and terrifies by shewing his risva rúpa ; followed by ascetic matters which look foreign to the subject, but are the root of the advaitam.

2.) Uttara gita ; múlam, and vyakyánam.

The comment by Paramánanda tirt'ha, 1st adhyaya wanting.

From the asvaméda parvam, of the Bharatam. In reply to Arjuna's enquiries Krishna gave many ethical lessons, to console on the death of friends and relatives which he had prompted. The doctrine of the soul, on the vedanta system, is taught, leaf 114—121.

54. No. 619. Two pieces.

1.) Bhagavat gita, slócas with tica in Telugu : only 2 adhyáyas, leaf 202—212, the comment by Sridhara svámi cavi.

2.) Uttara gita, from asvamédha parvam, slócas, with Telugu tica or comment, by Sudarisana tirt'ha cavi, 3 adhyáyas complete ; leaf 1—17.

Both subjects as in the last No. only the comments by other authors.

The book is long, thin, without boards.

55. No. 627. Bhagavat gita.

A Telugu translation, in composite stanzas of 3 adhyayas, the 4th not finished ; by Bhatoji Pandita cavi.

From the Bhishma parvam, as above. Sanjayya repeated to Drita rashtra the metaphysical discourse of Krishna to Arjuna, ut supra.

The book is long, thin, without boards, recent.

56. No. 632. For Sect : 1. see VII.

Sect. 2. Various prakaranas, or chapters on ethical, ascetical, and tatva metaphysical subjects.

1.) Sabda prakaranam, prose with slócas.

2.) Rága dwesha prakaranam, revengeful dispositions in returning injury for injury should be rejected ; as also anger, covetousness, lust, fanatic zeal, envy, hatred, ostentation, pride, by those who wish to obtain beatification ; and sraddha bhakti, or mild devotedness should be cultivated.

3.) Sadana chatushtya prakaranam (see IV).

Four kinds of knowledge or duty. (1.) It must be known that Brahm is nitya, or eternal, and jagat the universe anitya finite. (2.) secular desires, as to women, children, &c., ought to be rejected; even as people reject dung, and things unclean. (3.) The vagrant desires (or sins of the mind) must be rejected, and superior ends regarded; otherwise beatification cannot be obtained. (4.) But they who both know and act according to the above rules will obtain beatification. [This is so like the doctrine of St. Paul, under some variation of terms, that I wonder whence it originally came.]

4.) St'hula prakaranam, on the gross corporeal body of man.

5.) Súcshma prakaranam, on a subtile refined body; which exists after the death of the body; "shade;" or "ghost" of the Highlands of Scotland.

6.) Kárana prakaranam, on the mens immortalis, or universal soul.

7.) Mahà karana prakaranam, on God, the first cause, or Creator.

8.) Nijánanda prakaranam, on true bliss, or eternal happiness.

[A remarkable book, ascending from morals to recondite religion.]

Leaf 1—109, complete.

As a whole, the book is short, very thick, recent.

XI. Exegetical.

1. No. 312. Kálagnánam; prophetic knowledge.

Twenty-five names of celebrity are mentioned such as Vyasa, Marcandéya, Súca, and others, as having uttered predictions; but the book chiefly consists of vaticinations by Vira Bhattayya, by Krishnamacharya, and Sarvágnya: they declared future things, as recorded in this book.

Vira Bhatt, future wonders; these appear to be vaguely stated—indefinite in character; and with names artificially constructed, so as to suit the metre, and rhythm.

Krishnamáchárya, in every land there are to be *agraháram*s (or almshouses) for Brahmans; and sacrifices will be every where offered.

Sarvágnya; Siva is to appear in a certain town. There will be nine rulers. Some of them good, some bad. Dásis (or temple prostitutes) are to rule; and various irregular, and incestuous proceedings are to take place, under their rule. A certain tirt'ha or fresh water bathing pool, is to become salt; and the like prodigies.

At the end are various accounts of different individuals, on 21 leaves: in all 105 leaves.

The book is long, thick; inane, but a sort of curiosity.

2. No. 316. Kálagnánam, foreknowledge, prose.

A fragment which does not finish.

By Virama.

This Virama assumes the office of a prophet ; and foretels things, good or evil, to come after his time ; in the manner, as he states of the sastras. In the few passages looked at there is various mention of a wide, and general destruction—people perishing—and towns, even the memory of the names gone—ten men to one woman—calamities to the Vaishnavas—and to other sects : the whole in vague, and general terms ; not definitely affixed to any country ; or places ; but such as a disturbed imagination might dictate ; only 14 leaves.

The book is long, and has no boards.

3. No. 601. Ráma stava rájam ; padyas.

By Malla árya, in 3 asvásas, complete.

Assumed to be narrated by Vyása, to Dhermarája, and afterwards by Suta to Savunaca rishi.

Praise of Ráma, whence the title ; but other matters follow. Vyása discoursed to Dherma rája on charities. The human mind runs throughout the world, in search of its objects of desire : these desires should be restrained. They who reject and hate the domestic life are truly wise ; on the nature of beatification ; on the proper demeanour of a disciple towards his preceptor Other matters as to the soul—so far of grave complexion.

Dherma raja uses a metaphor mukti kánta (odour of heaven) and asks for a description. Vyasa is represented as replying to the same metaphor, in the style of the Persian Hafiz ; and hence the author contrives a burlesque of the serious ; indulges in ornate parallels, and makes out Moore's "heaven on earth ;" beatification and happiness being found in a beautiful woman ; and so forth ; 46 leaves.

The book is long, thin, recent.

4. No. 615. Sect. 1. Ráma stava rájam, padyas.

By Malla arya cavi ; 3 asvásas, complete.

Vaisampayana to Dherma rája, and Suta to Savunaca. Praise of Ráma and Krishna. Vyasa taught Dherma rája concerning wisdom, devotedness, charity. On the cause of the entire universe. The soul should not be allowed to wander after various objects ; but should adhere to one of superior importance. They are truly wise who relinquish all family concerns—the nature, or properties of beatitude—excellence of a guru, and due behaviour of a disciple ; and like matters.

Afterwards Dherma raja, enquires the meaning of a term used, referring to beatitude ; and Vyása replies, using figurative language, for the love of the sexes ; and thence describes the nature of beatitude, ut supra.

35 leaves. For Sect. 2, see XXXIII, and for Sect. 3, see XXXV.

5. No. 629. Jiva prabódhana, padyas, with some dwipada stanzas ; only 8 leaves.

By Janart'thana Brahma.

Brahma is represented as instructing a (jivátma) human soul—in substance as follows.

On yucti jiva the intellectual soul, and mukti jiva the spiritual soul The latter is conerned in questions of moral merit, and in the great subject of beatification.

The yucti jiva from not understanding the proper mode of conduct renders its possessor liable to a thousand births, by transmigration, and subject to pass through twenty-eight hells.

The mukti jiva : ten dispositions (guna) are needful to be known ; to each one of these there are two vr̤tta gunas, in all twenty vr̤tta gunas. To those who understand these, and act accordingly, the reward is final beatification. Moreover the merit of such a rare character will extend, by reflex action to deceased ancestors, now suffering pains in hell.

It does not clearly appear to what class of votaries this book relates ; and it is therefore classified here : it has a connexion with IV, and X.

The book is recent, and without boards.

41. No. 799. Aushata yógam, slócas with the meaning in Telugu.

The contents are limited to a discription of various diseases, and the appropriate remedies.

The book is long, thin, in good order.

42. No. 800. Vâidhya sastram—slócas and prose—the leaves are in irregular order, several wanting; the work of course incomplete.

On making decoctions—on medical comforts, in convalescence—on mercurial salivation—its treatment—cure of gun-shot wounds—on the various disorders of women—on leprosy and medicines for it—on boils and ulcers—on feeling the pulse, and judgment thereby—on purifying mercury for calcination—on giving purgative medicines—on purifying cinnabar. Nine kinds of calces mercurial—on calcining other metals—calcined corals ; and various other medical preparations.

The book is long, of medium thickness, ends of leaves damaged, the leaves differ in size, and the appearance is that of an assemblage of leaves pilfered, from other medical books.

43. No. 801. Vâidhya chintámani.

By Vallabhéndra, slócas, with meaning.

The beginning of the work is in 54 No. 813. infra.

[Signs of disease by the mode of speaking—and by the eyes—and by the urine. Other modes of diagnosis in diseases—bála chicatsa or expulsion of evil spirits, as causing disease, in very young chidren ; with diagrams, and spell accompanying.]

On the treatment of various diseases ; both as to remedies, and regimen to be observed. Also on purifying mercury for calcining and reducing to powder.

The book is of medium size, somewhat old in appearance.

44. No. 802. Detached leaves, on medicines, slócas with the meaning.

On various diseases, with the appropriate remedy to each ; and, in some cases, directions as to regimen.

This is one out of several other books which has the appearance, like them, of being mere detached leaves, taken from other books, and thrown together without regular order of numbering ; indicating carelessness, or some intended assortment, left unfinished.

The book is long, of medium thickness, recent copying.

45. No. 803. Rasa pradipica padyas.

(See 36 No. 794. supra). Ascribed to Agastya as delivered by him to 'Atri maha muni.

On the formation of mercury, its nature and properties—thirteen diseases are specified, with the mode of cure. On the quicksilver of Darazantara désam—the procuring it thence. Various kinds of chendûram or vermilion. The rasa bhasmam or powder of calcined mercury, mode of use in medical treatment, and regimen to be observed on taking it. The whole in one asvásam, without any subdivision. Some additional matter on philtres, given by women to their husbands. Also on diseases, and on mercurial preparations—not finished.

The book is long, and thin.

46. No. 804. On Medicine.

On the purification of mercurial preparation—on philtres—medicines to expel a dead fœtus from the womb. Also various remedies, adapted to different diseases.

The book is of medium size.

47. No. 805. Púrna chandródayam, or the "rising full moon;" slócas, with meaning, and padyas, also with prose meaning.

Mode of preparing various medical remedies; and of purifying different medicines, chiefly mineral.

On good and evil omens when about to journey, or when journeying: a virgin with a pot of water is good—a cat crossing, evil—a snake crossing the path, worse, &c.

Mode of preparing chendúram, a red calx of mercury.

The book is long, and thin, the leaves of various ages, the oldest are damaged.

[The title given to the book is also the name of a very composite, stimulating preparation; frequently occurring].

48. No. 806. Dhanuvantari nig'hantu, slócas, with vyakyà, or explanation in Telugu, and some Telugu, stanzas; a medical lexicon.

On the diagnosis of diseases; and the proper remedies. On mercurial preparations, and how mingled with other materials, for medical prescriptions.

On the pregnancy of women from the 1st to the 9th month—symptoms and incident disorders. Treatment after child-birth from 1st to 10th day. Each day an evil spirit seizes the infant—spells against such possession—Diseases of children from the first to the 11th month specified; and the proper treatment prescribed: leaf 55 to 322, wanting the beginning.

Also acshara nig'hantu—sanscrit letters used to designate various simples, or medical preparations, which are specified, and explained in Telugu.

Some following matter on the treatment of diseases.

[This probably is a valuable book of its kind—the native system is too little known to Europeans].

The book is long, and very thick.

49. No. 807. Vâidhyam—slócas and Telugu stanzas with prose explanations.

The leaves are not regularly numbered throughout; but each subject has its distinct enumeration.

On consumption—asthma—ague—fever;—fever from dysentry, or excess of phlegm in the habit—treatment of women immediately after child birth—plasters—ointments; and various other medical matters.

The book is long, of medium thickness, recent—the numbering of the leaves is not consecutive, but the book is properly one.

50. No. 808. Vâidhya sastram, slócas, with the meaning in Telugu prose.

At the opening some directions concerning the proper times for gathering or culling simples, or other natural productions ; astrologically determined.

On the climate of different countries, and the diseases most frequent in them, or peculiar to them.

On various remedies for diseases. There are also instructions for paying homage to the remedies, or articles used for medicines (as the Egyptians worshipped onions, &c.) Leaf 17—71, does not begin, or is taken out from a larger book.

The book is long, of medium thickness, recent.

51. No. 810. Vâidhya sastram, prose.

Philtres to be administered to women ; and many other medical recipes.

This book indicates a low state of medical practice—it has more of sorcery than of medicine.

The book is long, thin, without boards.

52. No. 811. Vâidhya sastram, prose.

On cold in the head, and remedy administered by the medium of the nostrils. Diseases of the nerves, or tendons. On disorders occasioned by too great heat of body ; especially lues venerea—its causes, sysmptoms, dolor, and cure, by mercury, by ointment, &c., 21 leaves in all.

The book is long, thin, old, damaged.

53. No. 812. Vâidhya chintámani.

By Vallabhéndra—slócas, with explanation 15 leaves written, 5 leaves blank.

In diagnosis doctors should attend to eight common places of the human system ; that is—the pulse—the general appearance—the gait or mode of walking ; the speech ; or voice ; the eye, the stools, the color of urine—the tongue (the under lip is not specified).

Explanation as to indications by the pulse.

The book is of medium length, thin, recent.

54. No. 813. Vâidhya chintamani, slócas, with the meaning; by Vallabhéndra, son of Amaresvara—another copy.

Leaf 152—309—yet the beginning is here.

Examination by pulses. Symptoms of various disorders; and suitable medicines indicated; including mercurial preparations for diseases specified.

The book is long, thick, recent copy.

55. No. 814. Vâidhya sastram; slócas with meaning in Telugu: 12 leaves, not regular. On strangury, or stoppage of urine. On consumption—on bowel complaints, on arthritic disorders. On the ailments, or diseases of women after child birth. Various other disorders defined, with the appropriate remedies.

The book is of medium length, thin, old, and much damaged.

56. No. 815. Vâidhyam, slócas with explanation in Telugu.

On bhasmam, or calcined powder of various mercurial calces, or oxides. On oils, ointments, electuaries.

The book is of medium size, many leaves deficient, very old, very much damaged.

57. No. 817. Vâidhya sastram; prose, with now and then a slóca and its meaning.

Medical remedies. Preparation of decoctions. Mercurial preparations. On knowledge, and discrimination of pulses: any one not acquainted with these is not properly a medical man: 33 slócas on this topic; some with, and some without translation.

The book is long, thin, some leaves fresher than others. 53 leaves written, with numbers not regular, 20 blank leaves.

58. No. 818. Vâidhyam prose, with various lacunes—not written on.

On philtres to be given to women. Remedies against the bites, or stings of snakes, scorpions, and other reptiles. On disorders of pregnant women—medicines for these, and also for children's diseases.

Pancha rasa bhúpati, a medicine termed a ruler; compounded of five kinds of mercurial calcined powders.

Bála sanjivi rasa a mercurial medicine for children.

Names of the sixty-four mercurial preparations; fancifully formed on the five elements; $64 \div 8 = 8$ divisions; and five of these divisions are applied to the five elements; the remaining three less powerful, are applied to ordinary use. Directions for purifying, preserving and making powders of mercury calcined.

The book is short, and thin (pocket size) recent $\frac{1}{3}$ written $\frac{2}{3}$ blank.

59. No. 819. Various pieces, chiefly medical.

1.) sabda paricsha, diagnosis of disease, from the sound of the voice

2.) nétra paricsha, the like from the eyes.

These two pieces are wholly in slócas.

3.) Two leaves only, on the proper letters to be used in certain places, when composing a poem.

This matter in Telugu padyas.

4.) prayána suba subangalu the most propitious times for journeying, and the evils that will result from going at times not proper to go, in directions specified.

5.) A remedy against megha vyati in women, disease of the womb, or venereal: also an electuary, as a roborific.

6.) The larger half of the book contains, recipes for medicinal preparations, and calces of minerals, especially mercury—this portion is recent.

The book is short, 4 only is damaged, no boards.

60. No. 838. Vâidhya sastram, prose with some slócas, and their meaning.

At the beginning are various mantras or charms. Diagnosis of asthma; suppression of the menses—diseases arising from heat of body, among them venereal infections—on head-ache—fevers of kinds—various sorts of fits, &c., &c.

Also the mode of making decoctions, oils, mercurial preparations, and the like.

The book is of medium length, thin, the beginning old, damaged, the remainder recent.

61. No. 839. Vâidhya sastram—prose incomplete. On venereal, and arthritic complaints, with causes, and remedies.

The book is long, thin, without boards.

Some matters which appear to belong to midwifery are put at the end of this section, from the want of any better place.

62. No. 642. Sect. 1. Pindotpatti—slócas with tica in Telugu. Siva to Parvati.

On the five elements—the five senses; the nature of the five, and difference as to causation. On the male and female fluid concerned in conception. The male fluid termed sucla, the female fluid sonitam, and considered to have an affinity, like that of acid and alkali ; forming by union a new compound. The mode in which the fœtus is formed in the female womb ; with its state, and growth during nine months. The child will be according to the dispositions of the mother, and father ; with connected matters.

For Sect. 2, see IX.

The entire book is long, thin, without boards, recent.

63. No. 731. Svara chintámani, slócas and prose. Parvati having enquired, for the benefit of the world, Siva replied as in the book.

Means of discerning from the symptoms of pregnancy, when the time of parturition will occur. On the influence of lunar tit'his or phases—monthly influences—the influence of the nacshétras, or moon's daily places in the zodiac. Influences of the sun and moon. Benefits resulting from each one, and all. Results also from the time of delivery. (There seems to be nothing which is not made subservient to astrology.)

The book is of medium size, complete and recent.

XXI. Mineralogical.

1. No. 336. Retna sastram, stanzas.

By Bhâirava cavi ; but as if told by Agastya to other munis.

On the qualities, faults and weights of the nine kinds of gems ; that is vajra, kuruvindam, maucticam, maragatam, Indra nilam, vaidura, pushparágam, vidurma, gomédicam : 6 leaves complete.

The book is long, without boards, recent.

2. No. 494. Three pieces.

1.) Retna sastram padya cavyam, ascribed to Agastya ; from him to other munis.

Another copy, and complete of the proceeding work. On the qualities, and defects of the nine kinds of gems : on 10 leaves.

2.) Prayóga retnávali, slócas with their meaning : leaf 4—9 a fragment.

On discriminating between good, and bad qualities of precious things ; as gold, silver, &c.

For Sect. 3, see XXXII.

The entire book is long, thin, without boards.

XXII. Miscellaneous.

1. No. 1. Six subjects.

1.) Gaula sacunam, kanda stanzas.

On divination from lizards; 2 leaves only.

2.) Cálahasti mahatmyam, padyas.

By Durjatti: 4 asvásas.

Description of the town of Cálahasti, and glory of the god Visvésvara, a form of Siva worshipped there. Various legends. A fuller abstract may hereafter be given. One relates to a female domestic of a Vadava rája. A Jangama passed down the street, whom she invited to her house, and fed, &c. Her office being to cleanse vessels at the palace, she was missed; and, on her return, the chief being angry, ordered her head to be shaved (a great disgrace). She complained of the affront to the Jangama; who by placing his hands on her head, caused a choice growth of superior hair. The chief astonished; sought out the Jangama; who told him to build a Vira Saiva fane, which he promised to do, &c., leaf 1—143.

3.) Anubhava sáram, slócas, with a tica in Telugu. Mystic. It opposes the going to temples, and on pilgrimages and compares the doing so to one, who having the five amritas at home yet goes abroad begging.

Moreover they who know the taste of the five ambrosias (meaning an enjoyment of communion with deity within themselves) do not boast of the same abroad, but keep it to themselves for their own benefit.

[Anubhava sáram, is the mental intoxication caused by enthusiasm; and it is not limited to any one class of false enthusiasts. There is such a thing as a true, and noble enthusiasm]. leaf 1—10.

4.) Sarira traya manamam, prose.

A three fold distinction of the human body; an orthodox Hindu dogma.

(1.) St'húla sarîram the gross, corporeal part.

(2.) Sucshma deha, a small delicate refined body, which survives the death of the foregoing one.

(3.) Kárana sariram the causal body, or sentient soul—Psyche. These are defined—but the piece is not finished: leaf 41—55.

[The sucshmá déha is sometimes termed yátana deha, or that which suffers punishment, after the death of the grosser body. The difference between the simply credulous, and the sceptic Sadducee, may perhaps never be settled; but it is nevertheless true, that "Millions of spiritual beings walk the earth,

Unseen; both when we sleep, and when we awake."

5.) Mail vrütta: 12 vrütta stanzas.

Tamil language, Telugu letters.

Praise of the peacock as the vehicle of Subrahmanya or Cumara svámi: leaf 56—60.

6.) Nizámánta rahasyam, composite stanzas.

Yayati, a very ancient king, was making a sacrifice called rája suya yágam. Náreda came to it. The king enquired how the sea of family cares could be safely passed over. Náreda replied by details of the tatva njánam; the object of the book; to which the fiction is merely subservient: leaf 61—69 and 6 blank leaves at the end.

The above is of medium length, very thick, a very recent copy: 2) and 3) are Vira Saiva relative to XXXIV.

1½. No. 10. Six pieces.

1.) Vâisya puránam otherwise known as Canica puránam: in 8 asvásas complete.

By Bhashcara acharya, padya cavyam.

Chalancayana, a great sage, told this narrative to the Vaisya munis.

Origin of the Vaisyas, commonly termed Cometies. The means of their acquiring beatification. Chitra rat'han, a gandharba cursed them; and they returned the curse, owing to a female of their tribe. The Vaisyas having settled at Pennaconda, two among them, Casmi chetti and Cusma gandi, his wife, made a sacrifice in order to get a child. Two children were born to them, Virupacsha a son, and Vasava canya a daughter. The abovementioned gandharba, owing to a curse, was born on earth as Vishnu Verddhana, king of Talcad. In the course of his conquests he came with an army to Pennaconda; and, seeing there the said Vasava, fell in love with her, and asked her in marriage. He was refused; and thereupon manifested anger. In dread of its effects the 614 gotras! fled to the four quarters of the compass. The said female entered the fire, and some of her people with her. On hearing this sad intelligence Vishnu Verddhana was so deeply affected that his head split; and he died.

After some lapse of time the people who had fled returned to their dwellings. The girl who had burnt herself, rather than suffer dishonor, was exalted to the rank of divinity; and is still worshipped by this tribe as a goddess.

There follows a detail of the tribes of the said Vaisyas, and of their ritual in the said gynolatry.

2.) Another copy of the same work, but in dwipada stanzas, without divisions; both pieces are complete.

3.) Niti slócas, with an explanation, in Telugu, examples.

In various transactions of life, which are specified, fear (or false shame) should be relinquished; q. d. "the fear of man bringeth a snare."

If a Brahman be bathed, and his body rubbed dry, and he then be fed; or if cows be well rubbed, and protected; or if herds of cows, when feeding are carefully guarded; the merit of these acts is so great that it will remove the sin of Brahmahatti or killing a Brahman.

4.) Sabhávati vachanam, 6 leaves 239—245.

Panegyric of one named Sabhávati who relinquished everything that ought to be laid aside, or ought not to be done, and who did everything that ought to be done; and consequently was perfect. Nothing as to caste, or tribe, or country, or town.

5.) 'Azirváda kramam, general matter, on customary modes of bestowing benediction.

6.) Fragment of 3 leaves: tale from the aforesaid Vaisya puránam, relative to the attack by Manmata on Siva; and on the penance made by Parvati to procure a husband.

The book is long, very thick, in good order.

2. No. 18. Bartṛi hariyam, múlam in slócas, with translations into Telugu padyas, by Lacshmana cavi. In 3 asvásas.

1 niti, 2 sringara, 3 váiragyam.

The work is complete—an abstract of the multiform contents was given in Vol. I. Sanscrit, Grant'ha letter; page 141.

The book is long, of medium thickness, a recently made copy, from the above MS.

3. No. 47. Bartri hariyam, slócas 300, in 3 asvásas, and Telugu padya for each slóca by Lacshmana cavi: another copy of the foregoing. One leaf is added, slócas on kinds of roots used in medicines, their qualities: this is a little injured.

The book is long, of medium thickness.

4. No. 95. Four subjects.

1.) Bhárata savitri, prose epitome.

The embassy of Kṛishna to Hastinapuri from Dherma raja to Duryódhana. The latter refused to divide the kingdom, giving one-half to the Pandavas. The commencement of the great war, and the destruction of the Káuras, briefly stated; leaf 1—8 complete.

2.) Raja linga satacam, 102 sisa padyas.

By Narasimha, on 19 leaves, complete: chiefly ethical matters.

3.) Siva stottra, 5 sisa padyas; and Sangamésvara satacam, 15 vritta padyas, similar in subject; both incomplete: leaf 20—22.

4.) Ráma taraca satacam, 108 sisa padyas, complete leaf 1—21.

Praise of Ráma for killing Taraca, and like topics. At the end one leaf Srĭngara, ornate, or amorous.

The book is of medium size, without boards, recent, but injured.

5. No. 115. Five subjects.

1.) Chenna mallu sisálu, 32 padyas.

By Vira sáiva achárya, leaf 1—6.

Praise of Siva, but with a vedanta bearing, complete.

2.) Surà bhandésvara, padya cavyam.

By Gattu prabhu namadheya, a satire.

In Casi, or Benares, a Brahman was on terms of too great intimacy with a woman, who sold spirituous liquors. One day, her husband unexpectedly returning, she put the Brahman into a large vessel, used to contain spirits, or palm tree sap. The top being covered over, and the matter forgotten the Brahman was suffocated; and, on the lid of the jar being removed, he was found to be miraculously transformed into a lingam: thenceforward an object of worship.

3.) Nandi isvara ashtacam, 8 slócas on one leaf, complete. Praise of Nandi the vehicle, without whom there is no happiness.

4.) Vishuvashtacam, 10 slócas, complete, on two leaves, praise of Siva. Other two leaves 6 slócas, praise of Siva.

5.) Kirtanas, chants; they represent women as calling out one to another to go and look at Siva: 6 leaves, blank.

The book is long, but leaves not equal, of medium thickness, the second piece is damaged.

6. No. 107. Four subjects.

1.) Amaram, only 24 slócas from the 1st cándam, on the names of gods, 8 leaves.

2.) Krishna satacam, 85 khanda padyas, 8 leaves, praise of Krishna. On a distinct leaf 1 stanza praise of Krishna.

3.) Maha navami chants, 3 leaves; used by children on the Dasra festival; addressed to Ganésa, Saradambha or Sarasvati, Vishnu, and Siva.

4.) Telugu accounts, arithmetic, or yenchuvadi in all 22 leaves.

The book is long, and without boards,

7. No. 161. Nine pieces, or subjects.

1.) Prasanna Rághavâ satacam, 187 vrïtta padyas. An epitome of the entire Rámáyana: complete.

2.) Jánaki pati satacam, 105 vrïtta padyas, complete.

Praise concerning Ráma, the lord of Sita.

3.) Dasarat'ha satacam, 102 vrïtta padyas.

By Gopa cavi.

Praise of Ráma, the son of Dasarat'ha.

4.) Bháscara satacam, 102 vrïtta padyas the 1st leaf wanting, otherwise complete.

On ethical matters.

5.) Sumati satacam 105 khanda padyas.

Also on ethics—complete.

6.) Sárangadhara charitra; padya cavyam.

A fragment only, from the king's going out to hunt, and his returning; with his hearing the feigned tale of his young wife Chitrangi: not more.

7.) Vaijayanti vilásam, padya cávyam.

The tale of two dásis, and of Vipra Náráyana, a Brahman, at Trichinopoly.

The 1st asvásam complete, the 2nd not so. From the beginning to the wager of Deva devi with her companion, that she would conquer the Brahman—her putting on the disguise of a man as a dasari or temple drummer—offering to help him in his garden, so as to serve the god—after a few days, allowing him to perceive the disguise, &c.

8.) Ráma taraca satacam, 99 sisa padyas.

Praise concerning Ráma the slayer of Taraca.

9.) Varaha Narasinha satacam 95 sîsa padyas.

The sacti of the man-lion avatara, in his absence complains, and expresses the pains of love.

The book is long, and thick, variously injured.

8. No. 181. Five subjects.

1.) Ganga viváha dwipada metre.

By Gangádhariya; but as it related by Bhishmacharya to Arjuna, complete.

The mode of Ganga's growing up to woman-hood, in a fisherman's hut; and the progress of an amour, and marriage with Siva described; 17 leaves.

2.) Chatur veda sáram, 230 sisa padyas.

By many examples from smritis, and other authorities, it is sought to be proved that Siva is the alone Supreme Being ; and that he alone ought to be worshipped.

Vishnu, Brahma, and all other gods worship him alone. [Monotheists have only to agree as to a name]. Complete on 47 leaves.

3.) Kirtanas—chants on two leaves : ethical in their bearing.

4.) Ganga siva rája yoga vilásam, 53 sisa padyas ; on 8 leaves, not complete.

Praise on the royalty of Siva.

5.) Bhaváni sancara vachanam, 63 padyas on 31 leaves.

A devotee addresses Siva, as the possessor of Parvati. Suppose a thousand faults committed, yet if the culprit think on them, the sin will be forgiven. A tale is given in exemplification. A Brahman's widow kept a védan, or wild hunter, as her fancy-man ; and, as he desired flesh to eat, a calf was killed, by mistake, for a sheep. On discovering the error she cried out Siva, Siva ! and, in consequence her sin was mildly punished, by being born, in her next birth, as a low-caste leper. In that form she went on a pilgrimage ; and by the way, cried out through hunger. A passing devotee of Siva gave her one flower, out of others, that he was carrying to a temple ; which flower she dropped ; but as it fell, it became a lingam. The writer then apostrophizes Siva "by this lingam thou gavest her Cailasa, (paradise) and therefore save me ; and pardon my many sins, O Bhaváni sancarà !"

The book is long, of medium thickness, slightly injured.

9. No. 182. Two subjects.

1.) Siva lila vilásam ; padya cávyam.

By Timma cavi. Bhishmáchárya told the same to Arjuna : the 1st asvásam but defective.

The birth of Ganga—by the curse of Siva, she was reared in a fisherman's hut. At the suggestion of Nárada the disguise of a Jangama was assumed by Siva : in that way he observed Ganga, while she was playing with her friends in the Udayana vanam. He then came, and spoke with her —so far only : 27 leaves.

2.) Jaganáyaca satacam, vrita padyas 99, on 17 leaves. Praise concerning Vishnu.

One leaf at the end Ráma stottra, praise of Ráma.

The book is long, of medium thickness, 2) has leaves a little shorter than 1).

10. No. 187. Three pieces.

1.) Raja linga satacam, 81 sisa padyas on 13 leaves, not complete. Some wife of Siva herein expresses the pains of love, and absence.

2.) From the Rámáyanam, special kind of verse. From the coming of Marichi in the deceptive shape of a deer, and following abduction of Sita, down to the killing of Vali, and crowning of Sugriva.

3.) An extract, on three leaves, said to be from the Vedas. In the midst of this book are blank leaves.

The book is of medium length, leaves not equally long, thin, slightly injured.

11. No. 197. Ten subjects, or pieces.

1.) Dherma rája stottram—slócas only.

Panegyric of the elder of the five Pándavas.

2.) Raja sechara vilasam—padya cávyam.

By Timmayya, in 3 asvasas, complete.

Balhana rája had two wives, named Chellama and Mellama. As he was reputed to give whatever was asked. Siva came as a Jangama to try him. The request was for a chaste woman, or virtuous wife. As the town could not otherwise supply what was wanted Balhana gave his wife Chellama. See other notices of the tale.

3.) Sáivacharya sangraha padyas.

By Tirumalla nát'ha, 3 asvasas, complete.

Different modes of sitting, when doing ceremonial homage. On the excellency of cowdung ashes, of rudracsha beads, and certain specialties of the lingarchanam or symbol-worship. On the excellence of the five lettered mantra. The pouring melted butter over the symbol; and on rolling the body around the temple. These, and other matters stated. At the end are Sanscrit slócas, used when gathering flowers for temple use.

By Papayya. 15 leaves complete.

Details of the public procession of the festival of Trinomalài, near Madras.

The discourse of the people when going to see the procession in the month of Kartiki or November; their praise of Arunáchalésvara, and speaking of his glory. The mode of burning camphor lights. The public procession of the god through the streets—four of them—at night—and also on the following day. The conduct of the towns' people on these occasions. At the close, on the dispersing of the people to their respective abodes.

2.) Ahalya sancrantana vilásam.

By Vencata krishnapa; padya cávyam.

In 3 asvásas, complete: 81 leaves.

As if narrated by Vaisampayana to Janamejaya.

Notices of early sages, or kings, as Visvamitra, Puráravas, Nala, Cavéra, &c., and also of females in Indra's court, such as Rhemba, and others. There was a quarrel concerning these females, when Indra interposed, and appealed to Brahma; who expressly created a woman, named Ahalya, and said there was no equal to her. Indra fell in love with her; but she was given to Gautama a sage. Indra intrigued, by means of messengers, and otherwise; and won her consent (but the tale is otherwise variously told.) He one morning very early deceived Gautama by the crowing of a cock, which caused the sage to rise, and go out to bathe, when Indra took his place. On the return of Gautama, he cursed Indra, who was made ashamed; and Gautama condemned his own wife to be turned into a stone. As here stated she fell at the feet of Ráma, who removed the curse.

3.) Sarabhésvara dandacam, on 6 leaves, complete.

According to this piece Cúmára Svámi asked Siva what was the skull which he held in his hand; and Siva replied, when Vishnu assumed the appearance of a manlion, and killed Hiranya casipu, the blood of the latter was drunk by Vishnu who thereby became intoxicated. Siva sent Vira Bhadra to heal that disease. As Vishnu would not listen to peaceable proposals, Vira Bhadra assumed the form of the fabulous bird (or rather winged panther) Sarab'ha, and picking the skull of Vishnu, let out blood, and cured his drunkenness. Moreover, said Siva, he brought that skull and placed it in my hands : 6 leaves complete.

The book is of medium size, recent.

20. No. 287. Eleven pieces.

1.) Vignánesvara dherma sastram, padyas.

A translation by Kétana of the code of Vignánésvara, in three parts, achára, vyavahára, and prayaschita ; but very much abridged ; an epitome.

2.) Balhana náṭacam.

By Peddana.

Balhana had two wives Chellamma and Mellama ; and he never refused any request ; but gave whatever was required. Siva came as a beggar, and asked for a chaste woman. In the end Cheltamma was given to him—of whom Siva was born as his own child—afterwards taken to his paradise.

3.) Siva mukunda satacam, 110 kanda stanzas, complete. By Peramananda Yatésvara.

Praise of Siva and Krishna, as not differing; consequently peace making ; and religious. [That the two are different, and the one is superior to the other, forms a grand polemic topic in Southern India].

4.) Dattátréya satacam, 103 kanda padyas.

By the same, complete.

Praise of Vishnu.

5.) Shadhéca st'halam, dwipada, incomplete, Siva narrates to Parvati the excellence of Saiva temples.

6.) Kirártárjuna, mixed metre.

By Ellanambi.

Translation from the Sanscrit, of the tale of Arjuna's penance—his fight with Siva, who came disguised as a hunter ; and afterwards his obtaining the gift of the pasupatastram, or life destroying rocket. There is much ornamental matter inwoven with the leading details. The whole is founded on an episode in the Bháratam.

7.) Pukali mahatmyam, or praise of smoking—narrated by Náreda to Dévendra—4 leaves in dandacam metre; a sort of jeudésprit, or mock-joke.

8.) Mailrávana charitram, in dwipada measure, complete.

The story of Hanuman going to the lower world, and there subduing Mailrávana, one of the adherents of Rávana. This is probably a copy from the Mackenzie M.S.S. and a full abstract will be given under that division.

9.) Sic'hi Narasinha satacam, 174 stanzas, incomplete. On sacunala or signs.

When a messenger comes on any errand to judge by his appearance, and manner, whether good, or evil should be anticipated. On divination from a lizard chirping from the 8 points of the heavens ; by the number of sounds, and the quarter whence they proceed. The like by such sounds at the time of an eclipse ; and further by observing the positions of the planets just then.

Palli páttu—indication by a lizard dropping down on any part of the body as—on the top of the head, disease—on the right shoulder, harm to elder, or younger brothers. Any part of the head some relations will die. If in front of any one wealth will be lost—if on the point of the tuft of hair on the head—death. If on the forehead marriage ; or relatives will come ; or pardon of any fault.

Tonda páttu—divining from the large lizard, or chameleon—the indication, if it fall on any part of the person ; also from a snake crossing the path—or the pálli pacshi a kind of bird—the Garuda or white necked kite ; from the bharadwaja a bird ; and the vasayam another bird ; with other kinds. These form the subject of augury : 14 leaves.

10.) Parijatapa haranam—mixed metre, complete. The episode in the Bhágavatam of the flower of Paradise ; many times occurring.

11.) Sri mantini vijayam.

Sri Mantini had a husband named Chandrangada. It had been foretold that he would lose his life, in her fourteenth year. She advised with Maitreyi, a matron, and performed the Sóma vára vrata. At the time indicated, she and her husband being in a boat on the Jumna river, the boat upset, and her husband was in danger of being drowned ; but by the interposition of a Tacshasa or king of Nágas he was restored to life ; and they afterwards lived happily together.

[Other subjects are mentioned, in a list prefixed, but the above only appear].

The book is long, very thick, on narrow palm leaves, recent.

21. No. 288. Five subjects: a list states nine, but five only are found.

Ages of the various gods—detail of time—glory of Siva—Visva carma, as formed by Siva, made the entire world. Vishnu, Brahma, and other gods, with their several places, or thrones—weapons held in their hands—Visva-carma made for men all things needful for them. The four classes Brahman, Vaisya, Cshetriya, Sudra were made by him. These persons, and everything besides Visvacarma made, or formed. Siva detailed to this Visvacarma everything relating to the pindotpatti, or formation of the fœtus in the womb. Other details of Visvacarma's operations: complete, leaf 46—98.

6.) Vastu slócas, 226 slócas with a Telugu tica.

By Sanatcumara.

Mode of divining, by books and signs, whether the building a new house will be prosperous or not—on the twelve months of the year as suitable for building, or otherwise. Mode of foundation—of fixing the door—placing the door posts—need of examining the ground—benefit of so doing—kinds of timber fit for building houses. On lunar and solar days, lunar asterisms, zodiacal signs—sign in the ascendant—good or evil according thereto prognosticated.

These, and other details relative to silpi or architecture; complete, leaf 99—149

The book is of medium length, thick, neat hand writing.

28. No. 303. Three subjects.

1.) Dásarat'ha satacam 101 vritta padyas.

By Gopa cavi; complete, on 12 leaves.

A devotee praises Rama, the son of Dasarat'ha.

2.) Udyoga parvam, from the Bhárataṁ, padya cavyam : 18 leaves, 1 asvásam only.

When the Pándavas and Kauravas were summoned to the war, Salya met Dherma raja by the way, and practised a stratagem or device upon him : the rest wanting.

3.) Curma avatáram, extracted from the Bhágavatam, padya cavyam, 14 leaves.

—a fragment, the beginning, and ending wanting.

When the devas were oppressed by the asuras they went to Vishnu, who advised them to yield semblance of obedience to Balichacraverti ; and to get the milk-sea churned, by means of both ; and the aid of the serpent Vasuki, used as a churning cable : by this device the amṛta would be produced to give them bodily strength—to conquer their foes—the rest wanting.

The book is long, thin, without boards; slightly injured—a book of extracts.

29. No. 306. Five pieces.

1.) Sarvésvara satacam, 132 stanzas.

By Annayya : incomplete.

Praise of Siva, as universal lord.

2.) Pramata gana mála.

By Mallicarjuna : complete.

A list of 1000 names of Siva's attendants ; with the addition that whoever properly recites them will have his sins removed; and will attain beatification.

3.) Nija lingayya chickayya charitram.

The legend of Chickayya.

By Nimmayya.

Chickayya was of the tribe termed Munnutti (three hundred) in kalyána puram. As a prodigal, he made away with his ancestral property : giving it to vára strilu, or prostitutes ; and having also run into debt, and being unable to pay both debt and interest he ran away through fear ; and, joining himself to thieves, became a robber. One night in the dark, he crept into the temple of Basavésvara. He there observed the worship of the Vira saivas with wonder ; and, forgetting the object with which he came in, he became a worshiper of Basava : wearing the linga on his person. In the Carnataca country one named Gangadhara going to gather flowers, saw him; took him to his house; and treated him with hospitality. This man was a taliari, or watch man, and leaving his guest in the house he went to his watch. On that same night the wife of his host made advances; which were rejected, and he went away. She however cut off the symbol, which he wore, and put it into his bag, which she retained. On missing his bag he came back. Meantime the woman, on her husbands return, had falsely accused the man, and produced the bag in evidence. The husband complained to the assembly of Jangamas. They sent a messenger named Vira dushtulu who thought the charge was true, and cut off the man's head. The head and trunk being brought to the sabha, the head gave an account of what had really taken place; and an aerial voice declared the statement to be true. The people, hearing the voice, were so terrified that they died. Gangadhara drew his own sword intending to kill himself; and thereupon Siva appeared. He raised up the dead people, and gave beatification to all present; not omitting the accusing wife. [The purânas of the elder, and lesser Basavas are stuffed with such legends].

4.) Moral, or ethical slócas in sanscrit.

5.) Siva stottra, prose.

The writer recites accounts of very great sinners, who had been taken to Cailasa the heaven of Siva, and thereupon asks the same favor, incomplete.

The book is long, thin, recent, without boards.

30. No. 308. Six pieces.

The three first from the Rámáyanam.

1.) 'Adi cayan yuddha. The fight of Adi cayan, son of Rávana, with Lacshmana, and the death of Adi cayan.

2.) Pátála homa. When Rávana was grieved at the death of his troops, by the advice of Sucra the regent of the planet Venus, and guru of the yacshas, he began to perform the Pátála hóma; the effect of which was to be the production of weapons, and his own invulnerability.

Vibishana told Ráma that if the sacrifice became complete, evil would follow—Ráma sent the Vanaras with Angada at their head: these fought, and troubled the sacrifice. Mandotiri wife of Rávana cautioned him, but not attending to her remonstrances, he prepared himself to go out to war: dwipada complete.

3.) Angada rayabaram, the embassy of Angada son of Váli to Rávana with a message from Ráma, to which Rávana would not attend; and Angada did not wish that he should respect it.

Angada after some bravado, and affectation of prowess, returned, and reported his ill success to Ráma: dwipada complete.

4.) Kora vanchi.

Sarasvati took the form of a Curatti, or gipsy fortune teller, and going to Rucmini, foretold to her that Krishna would be her husband; and Manmata would be born as her son. Brahma also assumed the gipsy form; and in that guise, came and took away his wife Sarasvati!—mixed metre complete.

5.) Chattu stanzas, varieties in various metre, on four leaves; chiefly erotic stanzas; women express amorous sentiments, and the like matters.

6.) Parijátapa haranam fragment, the episode from the Bhagavatam, on the flower of paradise, and Krishna's going to Indra's world, and bringing away the tree. See various other notices.

The 3rd defective: composite stanzas.

Niladri rája, saw a woman, in a forest; and on her account, fainted away. He was missed, and sought after by his minister, and others. They found him; and offered various modes of sympathy: see notices of Uriya books in Vol. 1, also 2nd Family Vol. 2.

This book is of medium length, thin, without boards, recent, several leaves are blank.

35. No. 339. Six subjects.

1.) Dasa vidha, Vaishnava nirnayam, slócas with a Telugu tica, incomplete.

On ten kinds of Vâishnavas, named advéshi—anukúla—divvya namadhari—chacrângita—mantra pat'haca—vaishnava—srî vâishnava—prapanar—écânti, and parama écânti—these ten variations of Vâishnavas are described; with their conduct, or mode of life, and religious observances. Besides it is stated that opposers of the vaishnava creed have no prospect of mukti or beatitude. The carma margam or sacrificial and ritual is also declared to be wrong; and the tatva, or metaphysical doctrine is supported; leaf 1—10.

2.) Vâsava canya, on a young woman; as putting her to sleep by singing love songs to her, 32 stanzas, leaf 24—28.

3.) Dévânga rishi vamsam.

Siva being in full court on Cailasa observed that the devas, munis, garudas, gandharbas, siddhas, vidyádháras, apsaras, pramata ganas, and all the rest, were without garments. He took pity on them, and causing Dévânga-rishi to exist, commanded him to supply them all with clothes; which he did—leaf 29—30 fragment.

4.) Devanga rishi dandacam; the above circumstance, in poetical measure; and in greater detail: but incomplete.

—as if connected, with the foregoing.

Cari cála chola chacraverti ordered fifteen of his different kinds of people to go to the borders of the sea, and to cut off the head of one Balhana, and to bring it to him. On receiving this order, five persons, of three different castes, proceeded, and by the aid of Parvati, cut off a woman's head; and by the same aid altered it, so as to make it look like the head of Balhana. The head being interrogated if it was that of Balhana uttered a sound ha, which was interpreted, as being the Tamil for yes; leaf 31—47.

5.) A description of certain gold smiths: leaf 48—50.

6.) Velli pratisht'ha. Praise of the Vaisyas.

Siva speaks to Parvati, about marriage; briefly narrated in prose; leaf 54—59. [The book presents the reflection of a singular sort of mind].

The book is short, thin, without boards, very slightly injured.

42. No. 607. Twelve pieces.

1.) Vignána pradipica composite stanzas.

By Virayya cavi, 4 asvásas complete.

"The lamp of recondite knowledge" Atma jnánam or spiritual knowledge is exceedingly difficult to be acquired; even by learned men. To those who know the sense of the Vedantam—to those who practice the eight formed-penance; to those who understand mantras and tantras; to those who are devotees at the feet of Hari Hara (Vishnu and Siva); to such only, that spiritual knowledge is patent; not to others. The writer proceeds to describe the tatva nyánam—the origine of the fœtus, the rule of the four castes; the practice of eight forms of penance; and the grand subject of beatification.

2.) Vishnu maya vilásam, composite metre. Nareda enquires and Krishna replies.

Maya comes not from without, any one's ignorance is a great delusion (maya) all existing things, the five elements, the vedas and their meaning; these, and the like, are maya. There is no difference between Isvara (God) and jivam (the human soul) some matters on those who bury their dead. All have a relation to the advaita vedantam.

3.) Atma darisanam, prose, complete.

The order of creation—man is eight spans (4 cubits) in height, four spans around the body, has 33 crores of hairs; seventy large bones, eight palams (ozs.) weight of liver—four palams of blood, and other integral parts, which compose the 64 tatvas. These are described at length, by a sort of spiritualized anatomy.

4.) Jivésvara nirnayam. The origin of Vishnu, Siva, and Brahma. The mode of protection, and destruction by them. The correcting the evil and protecting the good. Hence they are lords, between them there is no difference. In the end all three are one.

5.) Kirtanas—63 stanzas—these seem to be of a religious kind, relating to the powers of the human mind; and the wisdom needful in order to know God.

6.) Sita Rama Anjaneya samvátam.

The soul asks, and the guru replies, on the mode of obtaining beatification.

10.) Dandacam, long chant.

A devotee praises Siva.

11.) Dwadasa manjeri, 12 garlands, in 12 slócas, with meaning added in Telugu.

The slócas are ascribed to Sancarácháryа.

The subject between a guru and disciple.

On ascetic zeal. The vairágі must renounce the world, with its allurements, and devote himself to deity.

12.) Para Brahm sacala vilacshana.

On all the attributes of the Supreme Being. These are stated, in ornate language.

Para Brahm gives beatification to his votaries—this point is amplified.

On the whole, this book is Theological, though of a mystic cast; yet superior. Such a book should be translated; as tending to remove a multitude of mistakes, and misapprehensions. It would be complete, only for missing leaves. In 178 leaves these are wanting 66—101 and 106—115 and 123—128.

The book is long, thick, recent.

A flower of paradise, brought by Náreda to Krishna was given to Rucmini ; which she wore on her head. Satyabhámi saw it, and was displeased. To appease her Krishna promised her the tree itself ; went to Indra's world for it ; fought for it ; and brought it away.

The book is long, thin, without boards, slightly damaged.

4. No. 41. Vira Bhadra vijayam.

By Potana cavi, or Potu váz—padya cavyam—a little of the 2nd asvása, the 3rd and 4th asvasas complete. From the Vayu puránam.

3rd asvásam, Girija (or Parvati) having received the gift for which she did penance, that is marrage with Siva, went to Cailasa. The concourse of persons present was so great as to incline the mountain on one side. The mountain was again set upright by Agastya. Parvati when seated on the lap of Siva observed the blueness of his throat, and on her enquiry how it came to be so, he commenced his narrative.

4th asvasam. He narrated the sacrifice of Daesha. Siva, and Daesha's daughter Sati were not invited—the yágam proceeded ; and after intermediate circumstances, Vira Bhadra was born from Siva's rage. A dispute between Daesha and Vira Bahdra The latter upset the sacrifice. Daesha was beheaded. Brahma and others complained to Siva. The individual slain was restored—his body only, not his head.

The book is long, and of medium thickness.

5. No. 57. Rucmini parinayam.

By Timmayya : padya caryam.

The subject taken from the Bhágavatam, 1—5 asvásas, complete.

Bishmaca was the father of Rucmini, otherwise unwillingly affianced. Krishna conquered all who opposed him, and was afterwards married to Rucmini. She was properly his wife : others inferior.

The book is long, of medium thickness, very slightly injured.

6. No. 69. Brahmóttara khandam of the scanda puránam : composite metre.

By Vencata krishnayya.

1—5 asvásas, complete. Saiva matters ; Suta to Savunaca, and other rishis in the Nâimisara vanam.

1st asvásam—the translator's father was named Siva Rama, and was chief minister of state to a raya of Vijayanagaram. He derived great benefit from Mallicarjuna, and Camaeshi ; the local god, and goddess. Legend of Vasudámara a Brahman, who did many charitable actions, and was beatified.

2nd asvásam. The glory of the special night of Siva—very bad crimes are removed by observances therein. If a thousand bilva leaves are offered, this is meritorious ; still more so if preceded by fasting ; and the merit is further enhanced by watching ; and if, after these observances, the devotee looks on the symbol of Siva, the office is still more powerful—it amounts to a hundred crores of punyam ! Deva Indra did so, and acquired that amount of moral merit. Legends of others.

3rd asvásam concerning the very great merit of doing homage to Siva on the 3rd lunar day. Also on the use of the 5 lettered charm.

4th asvasam continuance of matter on the 5 lettered charm. Tales of various kings, and of their homage, rendered by the use of this formule.

5th asvásam, legend of Váma déva, a Siva yogi. He wore the jada, or matted hair (Nazarite) and used the vibhúti, cow dung ashes (in place of the ashes of a calf) legendary matters concerning him.

The book is long, of medium thickness, without boards ; in some places damaged.

7. No. 72. Scanda puranum the cshetra khandam—composite metre, translated by Papayya, 1—4 asvásas these contain 52 adhyáyas; narrated by Suta to Savunaca rishi.

The Séta mahatmyam or glory of the isthmus of Ramiseram. The sight of that isthmus will remove every sin—how, and wherefore stated. Sri Rama constructed that bridge (did he ?) Besides there are 24 tirt'has, or sacred pools therein—detailed as follows; each named is followed by the word tirt'ha—Chacra—Bétála vara—Pápa vimésa—Sita saras—Mangala—Kapila—Amrita—Brahma hunram—Hanumat hunram—Agastya—Ráma—Lacshmana—Jada—Lacshmi—Agni—Siva—Choca—Yamuna—Ganga—Garga—Kotti—Sarra—Manasa—Dhanush-kotti. These nadis (rivers) remove great sins: then as to each one; its glory; origin of its name; how it came to be famous—legend illustrating these various points. This book does not appear to contain more than the sétu mahatmyam: 156 leaves, not regularly numbered, the 3 last leaves of the 1st asvása are wanting: not certain if the mahatmyam is complete.

The book is long, somewhat thick, very slightly injured.

8. No. 76. Manu vamsa puránum, Suta to other rishis and translated into padyas by Vira námadhéya, son of Vira Bhadra 1—5 asvásam; of the 6th only 6 leaves.

Origin of Brahma from the navel of Naráyana—his lying on the surface of the milk sea. The legend of the four divisions Brahman, cshetriya, váisya, sudra proceeding from the head shoulders, belly thighs of Brahma (like his own birth, hieroglyphical). From Brahma came Atri, then Chandra then Budha, &c., down to Cuvera.

Matters on the race of Pulast'hya, and down to Rávana and his brothers. A transition to the avatáras of Vishnu and the birth of Ráma—the avataras are briefly stated. In the 4th asvásam the Kartaviriya Arjuna charitram, or destruction of the cshétriyas by Párasu Ráma. Kartaviriya coveted the cow Cámadhénu belonging to Jamadagni. He slew the Manu vamsa, and took the cow. Jamadagni sent his son Parasu Rama to kill Kartaviriya.

—In the 5th asvásam is related how the Manu vamsam obtained rule in the world. Puranjaya and his posterity ruled 438 years. Other names given, for a period of 460 years. On the Cali yuga. Mixture of tribes and people. On the rishi gotras. The foundation of the temple of Mallicarjuna, near Vijayanagaram.

There is a mixture of subjects in this book. By the Manu vamsam seems to be meant Brahmans—a separate and peculiar people; and the gotras, or tribes, with a rishi at the head of each, would bear to be thoroughly well examined. The book is homogeneous; and in appearance, recent.

It is long, and of medium thickness.

8½ No. 97. Marcandéya puranam.

By Marayya, composite metre.

1st asvásam, wanting 2nd to the end of it.

Jadan a bird narrated to his father : legend of Vibacshin, a great king, who went to Yama's world—saw the sufferings there; by bestowal of his great merit he delivered the sufferers.

On chaste wives. Cásiyapa's wife. Birth of Dattatreya a minor form of Vishnu. Legend of Kartaviryan and Parasu Rama. Tale of Kuvalayasva who married in Patala, overcame many savages; and then came back to his own town : and of course much more : leaf 41—60.

The book is long, thin, has no boards. It must have been taken out from some other book, to its injury.

9. No. 98. Parijata pariharana from the Bhágavatam; yecha ganam metre.

On the disturbance occasioned by Nareda bringing a paradise flower to Krishna, which he gave to Rucmini; exciting the jealously of Satyabháumi. Krishna went to appease her anger : not more here.

Leaf 1—80 the 30th wanting.

The book is short, old, damaged.

10. No. 111. Rucmini parinayam; to Paricshita by Suca yógi, composite metre. Taken from the close of the 1st part of the 10th book of the Bhágavatam.

A Brahman, intermediate messenger, was the instrument in bringing about a marriage between Krishna and Rucmini.

78 leaves. Two other leaves are added; containing detached stanzas on ethics, praise of Ganesa, &c., and there are 5 blank leaves—in all 25 leaves.

The book is long, without boards, damaged.

11. No. 118. Bánásura yuddham, in dwipada metre; incomplete, founded on the Bhágavatam.

Bânasura by means of tapas had caused Siva to become warder of his palace, and solicited the aid of Siva in the coming fight with Krishna; consequent to the confinement of Aniruddha, grand son of Krishna; because of a clandestine amour with Usha, daughter of Bánásura. Krishna came with a great army; and beleaguered the town of Banasura—here the book breaks off abruptly; 41 leaves.

It is long, without boards.

12. No. 137. Buc'ha pattana, founded on the Bhágavatam, mixed metre.

There are four different productions, on the subject of the paradise-flower by four authors 1 Patla dústi ancata, 2 Nara kuri, 3 Tari konda Vencama, 4 Buc'ha pattana.

When Krishna was with Rucmini, Nareda brought a flower from Indrá's world, which Krishna gave to Rucmini. On his visiting Satyabháumi she seemed angry, and on his asking what she wanted, she replied the parijata flower. He went to Indra's world, conquered opposers; and brought away the tree itself. As a divertmento, the scolding match between Rucmini and Satyabhaumi is included, the work is incomplete.

The book is long, thin, much injured.

13. No. 164. Sect: 1 Curma puránam.

By Rája linga, composite metre.

In 6 asvásas, complete.

The suras and asuras churned the milk sea, and Vishnu became a tortoise to support the churning stick, mount Mandara. Náreda told to enquery rishis rules as to hermitages; with the origin of the world; its support; and its destruction. The manuvantaras and lists of kings, and other matters of a saiva bearing. There is added one leaf from the Varáha puranam.

For sect: 2 See. XVIII. For Sect: 3, see. XXIX.

14. No. 169. Ahalya sancrantana vilasam.

By Sangamésvara, composite metre.

In 5 asvásas complete.

A legendary tale founded on various puranas. Brahma specially created a very beautiful woman, named Ahalya. Indra fell in love with her. Brahma gave her to Gâutama who was doing penance; and thereby vitiated its merit. Indra conducted an intrigue; and succeeded by stratagem; bringing down a heavy curse from Gâutama, on himself, and Ahalya. The legend is told, with variations, in different books; and needs no detail: 70 leaves.

The book is long, and without boards.

15. No. 190. Vira Bhadra vijayam.

By Potayya, composite metre.

In 4 asvásas complete.

The celestials of Indra's world came to pay respects to Siva. Dacsha, being present, took offence at being treated as insignificant; though the father-in-law of Siva. He made a sacrifice, omitting to invite Siva, and his own daughter. This neglect led to the self immolation of Sati; and Siva, in anger, produced Vira Bhadra, a portion of himself; and sent Vira Bhadra to destroy the sacrifice. He went and upset all; killing many persons, and Daesha among them. But Siva came and restored all to life; with an admonition for the time to come. In this book the destroying the sacrifice is made to follow Siva's second marriage with Parvati (as Sati rediviva) and her stirring him up; but the above is the pauranical account: leaf 1—77.

At the end 10 leaves, containing a chant in praise of Siva and a few Sanscrit slócas. Some stanzas on prosody. The slócas refer to the sraddha—three bindas or balls—the 1st ossu the 2nd rudra the 3rd aditya. If the wife of the person making the sraddha (i. e. son or other relative of the deceased) eat the rudra, she will become pregnant.

The book is long, and somewhat thick, old, partially damaged.

16. No. 214. Siva mṛigáyá vilasam.

By Rangha dana, composite metre.

1 asvásam complete: pauranical legend.

Siva with Parvati, and the celestials of his world went into a wilderness, and took up their residence in a mantapa or lodge, the rishis residing in that park came, and asked Siva to destroy the beasts in it. Accordingly he went out to hunt; and reserved one very beautiful female deer. With this in his hand, he was returning, when the wives of the rishis, in this the Taruga vanam became infatuated &c. Parvati coming to understand the case (aut fallor aut ledor) threw obstacles in the way of Siva's return; and shut herself up. He however returned, and pacified her; and they went on well together; 12 leaves.

The book is long, without boards.

17. No. 282. Casi khandam of the scanda puránam. By Srinát'ha: 3 asvásas.

1st asv. The opposition of the Vindhya mountain to Nareda—his reproof of its pride.

2nd asv. his report, and the distress of the upper world on the subject.

3rd asv. the seeking for Agastya, and finding him. He humbled the pride of the mountain, made it bow at his feet, and allow him a passage at Kolapuri; and he went on to Kishkinda near the Tungabhadra river. Lacshmi shewed him favor. He visited many shrines; and being seated, explained to his wife Lópámudri their various excellencies.

This is merely the introductory part of the work. See a fuller notice of the Cási khanda in Vol. 3.

The book is long, of medium-thickness, somewhat old; and, in the middle, damaged.

18. No. 307. Brahmottara khandam from the scanda puranam; the sómavára mahatmyam, composite metre.

In 3 asvásas complete.

The subject is the great value of an observance on Mondays, and on some special days in particular. The value arise from Siva bearing Sóma or the moon (whence Sóma-varam) on his forehead: hence the rite is acceptable to Siva: leaf 99—135, but 117 wanting.

The book is of medium length, thin, without boards, a little old, and injured.

XXV. PURÁNAS—local, or MAHATMYAS.

1. No. 38. Two pieces.

1.) Bhója rajeyam, composite stanzas.

By Anandayya cávi, 7 asvásas.

Dattatreya to Bhója raja.

This work includes three mahatmyas.

(1.) Prayágі mahatmyam, relating to the confluence of the Ganges, Jumna, and Sarsootee rivers, near Allahabad,

(2.) Hema cuta mahatmyam, supposed to relate to the Himálayas.

(3.) Cávéri matmayam, relative to the Cávéri river, near Trichinopoly.

Dattátreya bathed morning, noon and evening, Bhoja raja asked the reason, and the benefit; and, at the said times of bathing Dattátreya recited to the king one of the said mahatmyams.

Bhoja raja had incurred a curse, involving leprosy, which further influenced the said recital. It dwells on the merit of bathing in special places.

Leaf 1—114 two leaves are deficient in the 2nd asvásam, otherwise complete.

2.) Setu mahatmyam—composite stanzas.

By Lacshmana cavi, 5 asvásas.

2. No. 54. Sri saila mahatmyam.

By Sesha nát'hadhárya, composite metre.

In 6 asvásas, complete.

Vyása told this legend to Sanatcumára the son of Brahma, as though it had been narrated by Siva to Parvati.

Various tales, in the usual style, to illustrate the glory of the place. As for example—Silámanta rishi did penance, and hence obtained two sons ; named Nandikésvara and Parvatam. Nandikésvara, performing penance, obtained the gift of becoming the vehicle of Siva : like legends.

The book is of medium size.

3. No. 166. Garudáchalam, mixed metre.

Narasinha murti, the lord of Vedáchala speaking deceitful words to Lacshmi dévi went out to hunt, and seeing a Chenji woman or savage, he infatuated her, and brought her over. He then returned to his town. The Chenji people, missing the woman, sought for her some time, in vain. At length they found her ; and, on learning what had happened, they brought her to Narasinha deva. By a device of Lacshmi devi the parties were confronted ; when he gave a man's weight in gold to the people, and sent them away ; complete on 28 leaves.

A legend like this is told of the Narasinha avatara ; but the above seems rather to refer to a yadava king, named Narasinha.

The book is of medium length, thin, recent.

Various narratives. Agastya then left Vyasa, to return to his wife. Vyasa himself, in various ways, praised Bhimésvara. These, and a few like matters, incomplete ; leaf 45—58.

The book is long, without boards.

5. 205. For Sect : 1, see X.

Sect. 2. Panduranga mahatmyam.

Susila cat'ha only complete : composite metre.

Account of Susila—her chastity her husband's bad conduct. Vishnu assuming the shape of a Brahmáchári, came to her, and promised food ; causing a few grains of rice in a vessel to increase, and satisfy her hunger.

He then told her that her husband's disposition would alter for the better ; and that she would have children. Her husband returned an altered man. She bore children ; and in the end, by Vishnu's favor, both husband and wife obtained beatification ; 19 leaves.

The entire book is somewhat long, and of medium thickness.

6. No. 262. Sarpa pura mahatmyam.

By Timma cavi, composite metre.

In three asvásas complete.

From Agastya to Savunaca rishi, and Vasishta to Ambariza maha raju.

Sarpa puri is east of the Godavery river. Description of it. There are three rivers near it. If any one bathe in them, even the sin of Brahmahatti will be removed. One Ananda a king of Nágas (or snakes) doing penance to Vishnu there, received the favor of Vishnu's reposing on it as a couch.

Náreda in Brahma's world boasted his having escaped the guile of Vishnu. Sometime afterwards he returned to his own town. Going to a pool of water to perform his early morning devotions, he was changed into a beautiful woman, by Vishnu's power (maya) ; in order to quell his haughty boasting. A king's son named Nigunda, who came out to hunt, saw her, and married her. She bore him a hundred children. But husband, and children were killed by enemies. She wandered about, in that wilderness, half distracted. Vishnu came, in the shape of an old Brahman ; and, stating that there was a reason for his command, bade him go and bathe in a certain pool. On doing so the proper form of Náreda returned. He now perceived the effecet of Vishnu's maya ; and, with contrition on his own part, he praised Vishnu who appeared personally, acknowledging Náreda. The gods and men being witness, an image of Vishnu was set up in that place : 23 leaves complete, and 1 leaf added slócas with three corresponding padyas in Telugu on the sports of Krishna.

The book is long, and thin, without boards, and recent in appearance.

7. No. 483. Vaisya puránum, a legend of Pennaconda ; composite metre,

By Bhascarácháryа cavi, as if told by Sálangaya muni to Vaisya muni. Only the 8th asvásam.

This is part of an account of a transaction at Pennaconda ; occasioned by king Vishnu Verddhana demanding the daughter of Kumu chetti. This portion relates to the fire-sacrifice prepared, into which the said virgin leaped ; first cursing the king. When he heard the news his head split asunder. Other persons perished with her ; and a great many families fled in different directions. The former were held in honor ; the latter degraded. Bhascara protected the children of the sufferers, and instructed them. A copious genealogy is given of those who perished, and are held in honor ; nothing of the others. They are stated to descend from an ancient rishi named Silunda muni raja. The genealogy is the larger half of this book. There are elsewhere fuller notices of the entire purána.

This book is long, thin, recent.

8. No. 524. Choka nat'ha charitra.

A Telugu version, dwipada metre of the Madura local puránam, on the 64 sports of Siva, as Sundara, or Choka nát'ha. In sanscrit styled Halasya mahatmyam, or the laughter-legend. This version is by Tiru Vencatendra, son of one Tippa rája.

The book is of medium length, thick.

XXVI. Roman Catholic.

Sect. 6. Sverga rohana parvam, by the same. The 4 sections are complete.

1. No. 37. Shadchacraverti charitram. Composite metre—in 8 asvásas, complete. By Mála reddi son of Kácha bhupala, but as if narrated by Sata rishi to Savunaca.

Harischandra—Nala—Purucucsha—Ságara—Kartavirya, and two others, universal sovereigns—their birth ; mode of ruling their kingdoms—their sufferings—these, and connected matters are narrated, in the eight sections : leaf 1—159.

The book is long, thick, old, damaged at the beginning.

2. No. 49. Nala charitram, dwipada metre, complete.

The episode from the 'Aranya parvam of the Bháratam, told by Brühadasva muni to Dherma rája, as affording consolatory hope, in trouble.

The book is of medium size, old, and much injured.

3. No. 52. Rangha ravu charitra, or Bopalli cat'ha: composite metre.

By Nárayana cavi—3 asvásas complete. Nareda told to Dévéndra.

An account of Rangha ravu a northern chieftain—his various transactions, with Nizam Ali, and others, poetically narrated. The foundation is historical. In the Mackenzie MSS. the English spelling is Runga-rao and Bobili : other, and fuller notices may be consulted. V. 2nd Family.

The book is of medium length, thick, recent in appearance; as taken from the said manuscripts.

4. No. 60. For sections 1 and 3 see XXIX.

Sect 2. Harischandra charitram ; dwipada metre.

Marcandeya to Dherma rája.

The legend of Harischandra deceived by Visvamitra, losing his kingdom, and anon re-gaining it, because he would not lie.

The book, as a whole, is long, thick recent.

5. No. 78. Nala charitra, dwipada metre.

The episode in the Bháratam, but there are only 60 leaves in irregular order.

On Nala's amour, and marriage with Damayanti—misfortune through the enmity of Sani, &c.

The book is of medium size, without boards, slightly damaged.

6. No. 86. Rághava Vāsudéviyam.

By Singharácharya, composite metre.

1—5 asvásas, but not finished.

This work has a relation to III and being read in one sense gives the life of the son of Raghu i. e. Rama; and, read in another sense of the same words, gives the adventures of the son of Vasu déva i. e. Krishna. It occurs elsewhere in the collection : leaf 1—52.

The book is long, of medium thickness, has no boards, is slightly injured.

7. No. 93. Nala raja charitram, dwipada metre, incomplete : leaf 66—91.

It comes down to Damayanti's vain search for her husband, and Nala's return to Viterba puram.

The book is of medium length, thin, injured.

8. No. 94. Vijaya vilasam.

By Vencata ráju, composite metre.

1st asvásam complete, the 2nd defective.

The cause of Arjuna's (apocryphal) pilgrimage to the south country —amour with a Nága canya, named Ulnchi ; birth of his son, named Iravanta – further adventures on pilgrimage—love affair at Madura with Chitrangi, the king's daughter—birth of a son named Papiravahana—fight with alligators, and thereby delivering imprisoned nymphs—not further : 32 leaves, and at the end 28 slócas, on 4 leaves, from the Amaram names of gods.

[The above romance originates with the Canarese classic work the Jaimuni Bháratam ; and it has thence worked its way into all the languages of the south. It is wholly fiction, up to the affair with Krishna's sister; not in the above].

The book is long, thin, without boards, a little damaged.

8. No. 101. Srıngára Naishadam.

By Sri nát'ha námadhéyu cavi, composite metre, 1st and 2nd asvásas complete, the 3rd has only 1 leaf. Brihadasva to Dherma rája —the episode of Nala from the 'Aranya parvam of the Bháratam : leaf 1—23, but 10, 12, 19 are wanting.

The book is long, thin, without boards, much damaged.

9. No. 102. Kṛishna sadánát'hiyam.

By Vencata nṛisinha cavi: composite metre—incomplete. Founded on the 10th book of the Bhágavatam: 1st and 2nd asvásas complete, the 3rd defective.

Nareda having come to Brahma's sabha, or court, told all the details of Kṛishna's proceedings with the gópalas and gopis; concluding by asking, who he was? Brahma in some suspense, came down with a view to make personal observation; and he imprisoned several of the gópalas and gopis in a cavern. Kṛishna on learning this circumstance, created others, just like them, and bid them go home, as had been usual with those imprisoned. Many other trials of his power made: issuing in Brahma, and all the gods acknowledging Kṛishna's divinity: leaf 1—41.

The book is long, and thin.

10. No. 106. Banōmati parinayam.

By Rangha raju namadheya cavi.

1st asvásam wants three leaves at the beginning, 2nd asvásam is defective: Vaisampayana, to Janamejaya.

Bána and Padmini had a daughter named Banómati—her youth—her sufferings inflicted by Cáma's arrow. Kṛishna being one day with Rucmini and Satyabhaumi, the young woman Banómati came thither—Nareda also; and, on ascertaining who she was, he asked to whom could she be given in marriage. Kṛishna said to Sahádéva one of the five Pándavas. The poem comes down to the preparations for marriage, and breaks off.

The book is long, thin, without boards, and slightly damaged.

11. No. 113. Vijaya vilásam—dwipada metre.

A description of Indraca prest'ha town. Kṛishna sent an ambassador to the 5 Pándavas. The origin of Arjuna's pilgrimage to various shrines, and the beginning of his journey—so far only. At the end a stanza, and a money table.

The book is long, thin, without boards, a little damaged.

12. No. 123. Two Sections of the Bháratam.

1.) Drona purvam, fragment, without beginning or end, composite stanzas.

The fight in which Drona led, after the death of Bhishma.

2.) Strî parvam—4 leaves only—from the midst: composite stanzas.

The grief of women for husbands, or children slain in battle.

The book is long, very thin, injured, leaves taken from some other book—precious mode of book making!

13. No. 125. Prasanna Rághava, satacam vrätta stanzas 157.

An epitome of the púrva bhágam, or first 6 books of the Rámáyanam from the birth of Ráma to his being crowned at Ayoddhya, after the conquest of Rávana : 34 leaves.

The book is of medium length, without boards, one leaf damaged.

14. No. 142. A commentary on the Rámáyanam. By Rávana dammiyam.

There is more than one version of the sanscrit poem in Telugu ; to which of them this comment relates is not stated. The book does not contain the original padyas ; but word by word is explained in prose, a verbal tîca without distinction as to sections ; and, beginning with the sacrifice made by Dasarat'ha to procure offspring, it proceeds as far as Hanuman's visit to Lanca where he discovered Sita.

The book is long, of medium thickness, without boards—wants beginning and ending.

15. No. 145. Abimanya parinayam, padyas.

By Lacshmi pati cavi.

The 1st asvásam complete, the 2nd wanting, the 3rd and 4th complete.

A lengthened, and extravagant romance : of which only incoherent portions are here. Subhadra thought to marry her son Abimanyu to Susi-rekha daughter of Bala Bhadra ; but many obstacles intervened ; owing to the young woman having been affianced to Duryodhana's son : the denouement is wanting. A fuller copy elsewhere.

The book is somewhat long, of medium thickness.

16. No. 151. Harischandrópakhyánam.

By Sancara cavi, composite stanzas.

Marcandeya to Dherma raja.

The 1st asvásam wanting 2nd to 5th complete.

This book has only one simple meaning. Harischandra going out to hunt was overseen by Visvamitra, who cheated him of his kingdom. He asked money for sacrifice, which was promised. In the hunt Harischandra gave directions to avoid the hermitage of Visvamitra ; but the latter caused the appearance of a deceptive deer to draw him on. The rishi then sent twenty deceptive para females to amuse him by their dancing, &c. He promised them gifts : they replied, not so, he must marry them. The mantris came, and maltreated the women. Visvamitra appeared and said, if you beat any woman 'I'll kick the crown off your head, unless you marry them'. The king would not marry low outcastes ; but offered his kingdom ; which Visvamitra took. Thence proceeds the distress of the tale. Harischandra, with his wife, went into the wilderness—their separation—and mutual recognition, on the death of their son. Their return, and renewed prosperity. Visvámitra's craft is otherwise stated, in other poems.

The book is of medium length, thick, without boards, recent in appearance.

17. No. 156. Nala charitra.

Bṛihadasva to Dharma rája, dwipada.

—purva bhágam, from the beginning down to Nala's visit in disguise to Damayanti, to deliver a message.

—uttara bhágam—after the marriage, the hunting match, and playing at dice ; returning to the wilderness—separation.

The narrative is not continuous, owing to leaves wanting in the midst : 67 leaves remain, or have been taken from some other book.

This one is long, of medium thickness, without boards, much injured.

18. No. 158. Mülli Rámáyanam.

Composite metre leaf 1—25, the hóma of Rávana, named pátála—this complete.

—Kishkinda cándam 1 asvásam on 5 leaves ; this section complete : the killing of Vali, and crowning of Sugriva.

—Sundara cándam 1 asvásam 31 leaves ; this section complete ; the search for Sita. Hanuman's success, and as far as to beginning to build a bridge over the sea.

—Yuddha cándam 2 asvásam, 31 leaves defective—the bridge built—Lanca beseiged—beginning of the fight. At the end are three leaves, on the beginning ceremony of Sita's marriage.

Another specimen of book making.

This one is of medium, length, thick, old, not injured.

19. No. 171. Two pieces.

1.) Vijaya vilásam, composite stanzas.

By Vencata raja.

The 1st asvásam wanting, the 2nd and 3rd complete, to the end of the work.

From the amour of Arjuna with Chitrangadá the daughter of Chitra báhana, king of Madura—birth of a son named Bapraváhana—adventures thenceforward to Arjuna's elopement with Subhadra sister of Krishna. The coming of Bala Bhadra with an army of Yadavas ; and the amicable arrangement made : leaf 14—56.

2.) Vadaiya nambi charitra.

By Nimma nát'ha : mixed metre.

A Brahman named Jadaiyári, living in Tiru návalúr, had a son born named Nambi; and at the same time a woman named Paramanánchári was born in the house of a pagoda prostitute. Both these births were incarnations of celestials sent down to earth, as a punishment for some fault. When Nambi was grown up, and at the time when he should assume the sacred thread Siva as Valmikéswara, the local god of the town, appeared, and claimed the young man, as his own son. He supported him in all abundance. At length the god granted the young man's desire of being married to the aforesaid Paramanánchari. After some time Nambi with his wife, her relatives, and the king of the country, all arrived safe at Cailasa, 17 leaves complete.

The book is long, of medium thickness, without boards.

20. No. 201. Sita vijayam; an extravaganza: composite metre. Romasa maha muni to Dherma rája.

After Ráma had conquered Rávana and was crowned at Ayoddhya, Agastya with others came to congratulate him ; and repeated certain connected matters overagain. An aerial voice then said it was a small thing to have overcome the ten-faced one, but that in Saca dwipa in the town, Mayapuri, there was a Satà muc'ha or one with a hundred faces if he were killed, it would relieve the dévas. Thereupon Ráma, with his brother Lacshmana, his wife Sita, and an army went in that direction. They severally mounted on Hanumán, and went over. After some skirmishing Satà muc'ha himself came. Sita taking rockets in hand, launched them, and so killed him.

This feat over the party mounted once more on Hanuman, and came to Cailaso, where Siva and Parvati sat enthroned. Ráma and Sita bowed to them in homage, and they returned the salutation. At the desire of Siva and Parvati, Ráma shewed them his visva rupa, or universal form. In the end, while flowers were showered down from heaven, they returned to Ayoddhya and prospered : 37 leaves complete—at the end Dasarat'ha satacam 96 to 104 vrüta stanzas, praise of Ráma as the son of Dasarat'ha, 21. No. 215. Jánaka rághavam.

By Benta pudi Krishnayya, padyas.

In 5 asrásas complete.

Description of Ayoddhya puri. Dasarat'ha, ruling there, had four sons, Ráma, Lacshmana, Bharata, and Sattrugná. Their mode of birth. Ráma and Lacshmana, by means of Visvamitra, visited Mit'hila—some circumstances by the way—Parvati came disguised as a Curatti (gipsy) and told Sita that Ráma would be her husband. The marriage of Ráma with Sita. Their return towards Ayoddhya. Affair with Parasu Ráma who was defeated. Ráma's reception at home ; and connected matters ; leaf 168 —230.

The book is long, of medium thickness, without boards.

22. No. 229. Prasanna Rághava satacam, vrütta stanzas 191.

An epitome of the story of the Rámáyanam, from the beginning, down to the end of the púrva portion ; the return of Ráma after his conquest ; 17 leaves ; wanting the 11th with stanza 111 to 119.

The book is long, without boards, injured.

23. No. 238. Kirartarjuniyam,

By Krishna, composite metre.

1st and 2nd asvásas complete ; the 3rd defective. Vyasa to Dherma raja, the latter directed Arjuna to go, and do penance at Indra kiladri (a hill) addressed to Siva, for the life destroying weapon. Siva, being aware, came with Parvati, and celestial attendants. One Mucásura was doing penance to obtain Cailasa. Siva turned him into a boar ; which he appeared to hunt. Arjuna killed the boar with an arrow—no further here : leaf 142, 199.

The book is long, of medium thickness, has one board, recent in appearance.

24. No. 273. Draupadi achayya valuvalu, the endless evolving of Draupadis' garments. By Vencata dasa ; verse and prose, mingled.

In a gaming match with Duryodhana, Dherma raja lost his kingdom. The former had envied the latter's prosperity. Draupadi was given up as a pledge : he ordered her clothes to be stripped off in public as a disgrace. Krishna miraculously caused her garments to multiply, as fast as others were stripped off. The work comes down to the sojourn of the Pándavas with Drâupadi, in a wilderness. At a later time Krishna told Satyabhauma that he helped Draupadi, on that occasion, because of her excellence, and chastity : 38 leaves complete.

The book is of medium size, without boards, much injured.

25. No. 281. Sugriva vijayam, mixed metre, incomplete.

The friendship of Ráma with Sugriva—the killing of Váli elder-brother of the latter, and crowning Sugriva in his stead : leaf 1—21, but 4, 5, 9, 12 wanting.

The book is of medium length, old, a little damaged.

26. No. 317. Godugula vachanam : prose.

An extract from the Rámáyanam ; when Ráma paraded his army around Lanca, Rávana ascended the north tower to look on. Ráma being incensed, discharged an arrow, which cut the umbrella of Rávana, the fans &c., into pieces ; nine narrow leaves, medium length, a little damaged.

27. No. 318. Rághu vamsam, the tica only of the 4th sargam complete, the 5th defective, 28 leaves.

The book is long, has no boards, looks recent.

28. No. 355. Sita kalyána, marriage of Sita—prose, incomplete.

The celestials made a complaint against Rávana, his brother Cumbhacarna, and others. Vishnu promised to become incarnate, and was born as a son of king Dasarath'a. Visvamitra took Ráma and Lacshmana to the svayamvaram of Sita. An account of their great beauty. Visvamitra made a speech—and there the account breaks off.

21 leaves, medium length, no boards, damaged—many such bits are wanting in the E. I. H. M.SS.

The Mâusala parvam 1 asvásam.

Sâuptica—the device of Asvadama—his killing the children of the Pandavas, missing the fathers—next day Bhîma and Arjuna went to Krishna : and by his advice Arjuna gave his crown-jewel to Parvati ; leaf 1—42.

Strî—Mourning of the women over relatives slain—burning the dead bodies ; leaf 43—79.

Máusala—birth of an iron pestle in place of a child, owing to the curse of certain Munis : account of the destruction of the Yadavas : by advice, the pestle, (or mace) was filed to dust, to prevent its doing harm, and the dust cast on the sea shore. It sprang up in the shape of reeds, each one deadly. On a quarrel arising, the Yadavas seized these reeds, and with them killed each other, fulfilling the curse. Account of Arjuna, his going to burn the remains, after the slaughter. He gathered together the wives of Krishna—some wild, savage, people followed, and attacked the escort, carrying off some of the wives—the others Arjuna took safe to Hastinápuri : leaf 80—102.

The book is of medium length, thin, without boards, a little damaged.

4. No. 59. Mritanjaya vilásam, sports of Siva: varied metre.

By Sri curmi nát'ha cavi 1—3 asvásas.

This is a tale from the puránas of Siva's marriage with Parvati, and Ganga.

The mountain king had a daughter and when she grew up Náreda spoke to her concerning Siva's excellency. She went to a wilderness where Siva was doing penance. The celestials being afflicted by Turacásura advised Manmata to attack Siva; seeing that if he married Parvati then Shan muc'ha would be born; and would destroy the asuras. Accordingly Manmata launched an arrow at Siva; but Siva burnt him up by opening his frontlet eye. On the deprecatory complaint of Rati, her husband was restored to life; but invisible to all but herself. Parvati disappointed returned home. She again went into a wilderness to do penance; the object being to obtain Siva as a husband. A Brahman adopted a device, in going near to Siva and calling him opprobrious names; by retreating, when persued, he led Siva on, near to Parvati—Siva enquired who she was, and the design of her penance. She told him her birth; and that she wanted him as a husband. Siva assented, and took her to Cailasa. The marriage was attended by so great a concourse, as to incline the mountain on one side; and Agastya set it right again—subsequently Siva became acquainted with Ganga; and a dispute arose between the two goddesses.

The book is long, of medium thickness, looks recent.

5. No. 60. Sect: 1. adoration by a devotee in 64 prose paragraphs, each one ending with Bhaváni sancara, a name of Parvati, and Siva.

Sect: 3. Dîcsha bodha, dwipada metre from the Siva puránam delivered to an assembly of people sitting; reading to them extracts, on Saiva instructions by Basava deva. In three asvásas complete.

The whole book is long, thick, recent.

6. No. 73. Sánanda charitra, legend of Sananda dwipada metre —2 asvásas complete; the 3rd wants one leaf.

Suta rishi to other rishis—a tale, and as such relative to XXX; but it has a special Saiva bearing.

Sánanda was the son of Vimala gupta. After some intermediate events he went to Yama puram (like Æneas ad infera) and saw there four gates with compartments ; and the different punishments awarded to different sins. He asked if their sins could not be pardoned, and Yama replied they could not now ; but that, during life-time, a little homage rendered to Siva would obviate such punishment. Yama himself repeated four tales with reference to four classes of sufferers, 1 a Brahman, 2 a washerman, 3 a man and woman, 4 a kirata hunter, or savage. As to 3 a serpent bit them both ; but as the sacred ashes were on the woman's person, she was saved from death. The punishment of women detailed. These were delivered through the merit of Sánanda, and they were taken with him, on one car, to, Cailasa ; he, in front, repeating the 5 lettered saiva spell. [Some copies have it that Sánanda at the stupendous sight involuntarily exclamined namasivayi, ; and that, by the potency of this spell, all the condemned souls took flight, and left the world of Yama] Yama went to Siva, and complained of the loss of his prey ; but Siva excused the matter on the ground of the great merit of Sánanda ; and civilly dismissed Yama to his place.

[There is a Roman Catholic legend so much resembling this one, in the outline, as to cause a conjecture whence it came].

The book is long, thin, has no boards, is recent in appearance.

7. No. 82. Sect : 1. Cálahasti linga satacam, 100 sisa stanzas, 23 leaves.

A devotee praises Vira Bhadra a warlike emanation from Siva, in general terms, and not as any local god.

The book is long, old, a little damaged.

12. No. 124. Balhana charitra, dwipada metre, by Gangadharya cavi, as if told by Suta to Savunaca rishi.

By a different author, but the same subject as 19 No. 150 infra.

The book is long, thin, without boards, recent.

13. No. 128. Ráma lingésa satacam, in 98 sîsa stanzas. Praise of Siva founded on the legend of Ráma having fixed a linga symbol at Rámiseram.

The book is long, thin, without boards.

14. No. 130. Two pieces.

1.) Balhana charitra, dwipada metre, defective—legend of Balhana rája.

This king had two wives Chellama and Mellama. Náreda reported his not refusing any request, to Siva; who came, as an ascetic, and asked for a chaste woman to serve him—not more; several leaves are left blank.

2.) Kora vánchi: Parvati as a curatti or gipsy fortune-teller, related in a serious, or moral manner the first formation of the fœtus in the womb; with its monthly growth—birth—and some matters after birth—mixed metre.

15. No. 138. Balhana charitra, dwipada metre, 18 leaves. Suta to Savunaca.

By Gangadharya cavi, see 12 No. 124.

The book is long, old, without boards, somewhat damaged.

16. No. 141. Pramata gana mála; dwipada metre.

A string of 1,000 names of the celestials of Siva's world, applicable to himself as their lord: for recital to obtain pardon, and all other benefits; and, in the end, beatification; leaf 10—18 defective—has a probable connexion with XXXIII.

The book is long, slightly injured.

17. No. 147. Three pieces.

1.) Balhana caviyam.

Náreda came to a very liberal king named Balhana, and discoursed with him on the sacred ashes. The five lettered spell, the legend of Benares, and origin of the Ganges, the sacred beads, and the benefit of homage to Siva; and, having set him right as to all these, went to Cailasa, and reported his liberality to Siva; who, to try him, took the form of an ascetic; came and asked him for a faultless woman. As no one such could be found in the town, the king gave up one of his own wives. Siva afterwards took both husband and wife to Cailasa.

2.) Siva yoga sárom—composite metre.

By Ganapati deva—4 asrásas complete.

Many matters on the Saiva ascetic system of mystic order.

3.) Bhimésvara pura puránam.

By Srî nat'ha—composite stanzas.

In 6 asrásas complete.

The site is on the Godavery river, in or near the Cuttack province.

Legendary tales of bathing pools, and the like. One is that Vyasa, and his disciple were cursed by Siva, and in consequence born at Cási. He met with Agastya who condoled with, and led him to Bhimésvara-puram ; where, in the end, the local form of Siva removed the effects of the curse. Like tales, to amuse the lowest order of intellect.

The whole book is long, very thick, looks recent.

18. No. 149. Guhása linga satacam, 106 sîsa stanzas.

A devotee ascribes to Siva many of the perfections of art and nature ; founding praise thereon ; and asking for benefits and protection : some moral matters intermingled.

The book is long, thin, without boards.

19. No. 150. Balhana charitra, legend of Balhana: composite metre.

By Timmana cavi, in 3 asrásas complete.

Said within to be from the Basava puránam; which is doubtful.

Balhana of the solar line ruled in sindhu catacam, and was very liberal. He had two wives Chellamámbà and Mellacámbà. He was performing a service to Siva; Náreda reported thereon to Siva; who, to try him, assumed the form of an ascetic ; and asked for a chaste woman of the most excellent kind. No one such being found, in the entire town, the king gave up Chellamámbà. When she came she embraced Siva's feet. He assumed the form of a child in her arms ; which the king knew to be Siva by the frontlet eye. Siva assumed his proper form, and gave to both beatification [strange taste which such a legend can please.]

The book is long, thin, has no boards.

20. No. 164. For Sect. 1 see XXIV.

For Sect. 2 see XVIII.

Sect. 3. Gâuri kalyánam—padyas.

By Nága bushana.

This one is long, thin, without boards.

23. No. 213. Sóma vára mahatmyam—dwipada metre. Discourse between Vasishta and Náreda.

To illustrate the great benefit of the sóma vrüta [a penance to Siva on Mondays] a tale is told of a trader named Dhánaphalam, and his wife Chandramaca, who were very avaricious, and had a child without proper developement of features: afterwards hearing concerning this vrüta and attending to it they had a handsome child, named Ayalu. A Brahmacásura (or ogre) in that country, sought for the child, in order to kill, and eat it. He seized it; and opening his mouth to devour the child, he could not close it, by reason of this potent vrüta. He then took the child under his arm to his den. The parents sought for a mantra siddha or sorcerer; by whom accompanied the father, the mother, and a police man, went to the place; but on seeing the ogre, they were afraid. Siva appeared, and took the child, with its parents, to Cailasa; very kindly adding the ogre, and the king of the town. [This piece has the appearance of a jangama legend].

The book is of medium size, recent.

24. No. 227. Cala hasti satacam 95 sisa stanzas on 23 leaves. In the midst 37 to 44th stanza wanting. A devotee in various ways, praises Siva. At the end 4 leaves, names of years and months.

The book is long, has no boards.

47. No. 357. Naya naragada.

By Ranghaya cavi, peculiar stanza.

Siva is the first cause, or author of all kinds of beings or creatures, or things ; and of all the verses of the Vedas. The rudracsha beads were also formed by him. They who use these beads in homage do an act of virtuous merit. They who do not use those beads are destitute of punyam (moral merit.)

The book is short, and thin, looks old, but is in tolerable order.

48. No. 456. Prabhu linga lila, dwipada metre by (Pedupati) somayya devacya, son of Basavésvara 1—5 asvásam.

The glory of Siva—his excellence, he is the Supreme—Vishnu and Brahma are his inferiors—the birth or incarnations of his followers on earth —the mode of their service—their praise : the whole in ornate description.

[Such is the brief abstract taken when examined. There is another work originally Canarese, by a different author, and having 25 sections relating to an incarnation of part of Siva's form as Allama Prabhu, and of Parvati as Mayi : Vira Saiva in kind, see 2nd Family].

The book is long, of medium thickness without boards, recent, as copied from the Mackenzie M.S.S. leaf 127—190.

49. No. 457. Balhana raja dandacam, leaf 153—203, long chant or measured prose ; subject as in 17 No. 147 and 19 No. 150, supra, but differing as to author, and metre. The book is of medium size, and recent.

49½. No. 463. Mangala stuti, dandacam metre, epithalamia addressed to Siva.

Two leaves appended on the tatva system of metaphysics, Telugu letter, Canarese language : 18 leaves.

The book is short, without boards, old, and a little damaged.

50. No. 480. Ecambara linga satacam.

By Lacshmanáchárya : 99 sîsa stanzas.

Various laudatory topics with reference to the Saiva symbol, in the great temple of Conjeveram. There are also a few loose lines on distinct subjects : seemingly as brief extracts from other books.

The book is of medium length, thin, and has no boards.

51. No. 516. Two pieces.

1.) Ragada, a kind of chant.

By Vaishnava chacra páni Rangha nat'ha.

After having been initiated into the Saiva creed, the author joyfully sings all that he had seen in Cailasa, the world of Siva. He appears to have been a proselyte from the Vaishnava creed; leaf 106—113=7 leaves, but complete in itself.

2.) Two dandaca chants—on the sacti of Siva known by various names.

A devotee renders his homage with praise to the feminine energy: leaf 144—151. The numbering on the leaves implies that both these pieces must have been taken out from some larger manuscript.

The book is of medium length, without boards.

52. No. 604. Satvîca brahma vidya vilásam, prose with slócas interspersed: not complete.

A disciple asks his teacher concerning Hari—hara. As no homage, is now paid to Brahma, which of the other two claims supreme homage? as the votaries of Vishna and Siva both urge it. The book not being complete, the bearing does not appear. It is allowed to stand here, merely for comparative reference. See a full abstract of the book, Vol. 1 p. 181. 12 No. 2006. See also XXX No. 613 and 58 No. 638 infra.

This fragment is long, of medium thickness, somewhat old, not damaged.

57. No. 633. Two sections.

1.) Manobhoda dwipada metre.

By Kandarpa.

Saiva ethics. If the mental intoxication, caused by various evil sins do not depart, or is not relinquished then its subject cannot see the feet of the god : when Yama's angels seize any one, on account of faults, or crimes, no one can release from their grasp, but Siva ; other like matter. At the end, it is stated that Brahma, with all other gods, must seek for bliss at the feet of Siva : leaf 1—24.

2.) Kirtana, a chant on the recondite system of the Saivas, the tatva knowledge ; at the end 7 blank leaves.

58. No. 638. Satvica Brahma vidhya vilasa, nirasanam.

By Perayya—slócas, padyas, prose.

A rejection, or condemnation of a book entitled Sátvica Brahma vilása. See Vol. 1 p. 181 and 52 No. 604 supra.

It is stated in that book that Vishnu has the sátvica quality (gentleness) Brahma the rájasa quality (choler, passion) and Siva the támasa quality (malignant); this book objects to that view, and vituperates it. That book states that Brahma Vishnu and Siva are a Trimurti (triple-form) this book finds fault with the statement, and condemns it. This book states that the united Brahma, Vishnu, Siva or Para-Brahm is Siva (that is Siva is the Para-Brahm of the upanishadas). Creation, preservation, destruction belong not to the triple-form, but to Siva. The mild disposition of Vishnu is herein given to Siva, and the evil quality of Siva is given to Vishnu. Such works as ascribe the quality of gentleness to Vishnu are all at fault; and that excellence properly belongs to Siva. The votaries of Siva ought to hold no intercourse with such persons as bear the marks of the shell, discus, and trident. Siva is without birth, or death. Vishnu and Brahma were formed by Siva—Vishnu many times worshipped Siva; Vishnu many times said "I am Siva." Siva in many places did Vishnu dishonor, or defeated him—with similar matters. By these means he confutes, or condemns extracts from Vedas, law books, and puranas, that state the excellence of Vishnu; and asserts that Siva is all, and everything—filling the entire universe—and he enlarges on the glory of Siva: leaf 1—225.

The book is long, very thick, looks recent.

[It is a good right-out polemic, the condemned work having made the author rabid; so that he does not perceive that several of his propositions neutralize each other. It would be interesting to see translations of the two books in juxta position].

59. No. 639. Siva gita, slócas with a Telugu tica said to be from the padma puránam 1st to 16th adhyayam: Siva to Srî Ráma, and as if told by Savunaca to other ṛishis.

The manner of the Saiva ascetic homage. The mode or order as to becoming a váiragi, or one renouncing secularities, or Sanniyási a strict ascetic. The sight (including homage) of Siva, by the other gods. Siva gave arrows to Ráma. The excellence of cow-dung ashes. Siva shewed his visva-rupa (universal form) to Ráma.

On the human nature, or being of man, from birth—growth—and to death.

Description of the human body. A definition of the nature and qualities of the jivatma or human soul—on a fixed devotedness to Deity its excellence—the manner of that steadfastness. Description of moksham

i. e. liberation, or beatification—and on the adhicáram, or authority in that state (which must imply something short of entire absorption into Deity). These are some points, and there are others as to the tatra or true isoteric system of the Saivas : leaf 1—124. [It would seem to merit translation].

The book is long, somewhat thick, bamboo boards slightly injured.

XXX. Tales.

1. No. 15. Vasu charitra ; composite metre 1—6 asvásas, complete.

By Ráma ráju.

An ornate love tale related to IX ; in difficult language, but popular.

Vasu raju, by invitation from some village people, went into a wilderness, accompanied by his mantri named Narna. The beauties of that paradise in the spring season. When the two were ascending a hill they heard musical strains proceeding from some deva females. The king sent the mantri forward, disguised as a Sanniyási.

A man formerly punished by Vasu became a mount, named Kálá kálam, and sacti mati was the name of a river : from these two Girica, a woman, was preternaturally born—by gift from Indra. The mantri learning who the women were, by desire of Girica called to king Vasu, who came, and he and Girica formed a gandharba marriage. After a time the king returned to his town, and government ; the remainder not examined: leaf 1—70.

The book is long, of medium thickness, recent.

2. No. 16. Vasu charitra vyakyánam, a comment on the 2nd asvásam only, and this defective : leaf 1—51, v. supra and also 6. No. 23. infra.

The book is long, of medium thickness, without boards, slightly injured.

3. No. 17. Dva trimsati cadha, prose, and some stanzas mingled.

Some prefatory matter on Vicramarca, and on the throne given by Indra. By Kálica dévi's appointment he was killed by Saliváhana—his throne was buried, but dug up in the days of Bhója raja. The throne had thirty-two images. On Bhója's attempting to ascend the throne, each image told him a tale of Vicramárca's great liberality ; abashed by each of which he retired. At the close, the throne ascended to Indra's world : leaf 88—210.

The book is short, and thick, in very small, and close writing.

4. No. 19. Vijaya vilásam— composite metre.

By Vencata raya cavi.

Founded on the Jaimuni bháratam. The adventures of Arjuna on a pilgrimage to the south. Amour with Ulichi. The like at Madura with Chitrangada and birth of a son. Liberation of some apsaras imprisoned in the bodies of alligators. Afterwards his going to Dwáraca in disguise, and elopement with Subhadra the sister of Krishna : leaf 1—20 does not finish. At the end are seven odd leaves, various stanzas on moral, and other subjects ; ½ leaf, an account.

The book is long, thin, in good order.

5. No. 20. Bilhanam, composite metre.

By Bilhana cavi, complete.

King Vasantacya and queen Maudara mála dévi had a daughter named Yamini purna tilaca. The king, on her coming of age wished her to be instructed in the art of poetry and a preceptor named Bilhana was found. But the mantri apprehending a love affair, though with a curtain between the parties, told the young woman the tutor was blind, and told the tutor the young woman was leprous. They found out the cheat, and came together. The poet poured forth verses in her praise. The king, becoming aware, ordered the tutor to be beheaded. He then sung the aram páttu, beseeching mercy ; and it either so pleased, or terrified the king that he reversed the sentence.

The book is somewhat long, of medium thickness, in good order.

6. No. 23. Vasu charitra padyas.

Only the 2nd asvásam, and that defective ; see 1 No. 15 supra.

The king and his minister ascending a hill, heard musical strains from a woman and her friends—exploring visit in disguise of a rishi ; not more : leaf 21—29.

The book is long, thin, without boards, recent as a copy.

7. No. 27. Kula sec'hara mahi pála charitram, composite metre.

By Raghunát'hácháryа, son of Vencatachárya. 1—4 adhyáyam.

1st Adhy. A certain king of Kukuta cuta puram went out one day with his people to hunt. When alone, and greatly fatigued, a female deer accosted him, stating the evil of killing deer. It seems this one was the daughter of a Brahman imprisoned by the effects of a curse. At her desire the king set her free ; that is he killed the deer, and the imprisoned spirit returned to its place.

2nd adhy. The king having no child advised with his minister, who counselled him to make an image of Vishnu, and do homage to it. He did so ; and a son named Kula sec'hara was born. The life of this son, partly as an ascetic, forms the main subject of the book—not requiring further abstract, as it appears to be fictitious romance.

It is long, of medium thickness, has no boards, and is somewhat injured.

[There was an álurar of this name in the Kérala-désam ; perhaps the romance may be founded on his life].

8. No. 29. Three pieces.

1.) Vijaya vilásam ; composite metre.

By Vencata rája, 1—3 asvásas.

The pilgrimage of Arjuna, grounded on the rule that Drâupadi should be the wife of the five Pándavas one year each in succession ; and that the others should not then look on her, see other notices, for Arjuna's adventures ; closing by his elopement with the sister of Krishna. The tale rests on the authority of the Jaimuni bháratam leaf 1—43, leaf 7 wanting.

2.) Súrà bhándésvara ; padyas.

By Gattu prabhu, no sections.

A Brahman at Benares formed an illicit connexion with the wife of a vintner ; and by mistake, was suffocated in a liquor jar—becoming a lingam ; broad farce : leaf 44—53.

For Sect. 3 see XXXIII.

8½. No. 34. Pati vrütti mahima, dwipada metre, value of chaste wives.

Siva's private instruction to Parvati, overheard by a Pramata gana who told the same to another : both came under a curse ; detailed, with its removal.

The mantri or minister of Chandra pratápa assumed the form of a bird, owing to a curse ; and was sold to a merchant named Dhana dhatta. His son Cuvéra dhatta was a profligate. The bird by moral lessons, turned him round. They went to a town called Pushpa mayuri where the king's son, saw the wife of Cuvéra dhatta when the husband was absent on trade. An illicit amour was about to begin ; when the bird interposed by tales of chaste wives ; and detained the loose wife at home till the morning. There are 32 tales ; one on Arundhati wife of Vasishta one on Savutri. One on Karágre concana, &c., some tales at the end are wanting—see notice under 2nd family : leaf 1—258.

The book is somewhat long, very thick, recent.

9. No. 46. Two pieces.

1.) Dilarám cad'ha.

A daughter of a Delhi padshah was named Dilirám. A son of the king of Amarávati formed a design to obtain her; and, with that end in view, he set out, accompanied by the son of the minister, and went to Delhi. The book contains details—from their setting out until the return of the young man with his bride—of adventures, and peirls. In the end, great riches came to the king of Amarávati, and his son: leaf 1—103 and 43 blank leaves.

[This book was examined in 1854, and the name Amarávati was then taken by me to be fictitious; as it is very well adapted to be. There is something on the subject of the marriage of a daughter of a Delhi Sultan, with a Hindu prince, in the Carnataca rajakal. The tale is probably mere romance; but the subject may be kept in mind].

2.) Tales of a parrot: 13 tales complete, the 14th not so.

Vicramárca for some cause assumed the form of a bird. It went to a town named éca dwipa chacram, and was kept in the house of Retna cara a merchant. Discipline of that town—the king—and his son named Nandi rája. The merchant had occasion to go to sea in a ship. After Nandi rája became king, in a public procession he saw the merchant's wife, and she saw him. Both became enamoured. She was preparing at night to go to the king; when the bird interposed, with a tale —occupying her attention, till morning—and the like for successive nights— as far as 13 here: leaf 1—105.

The book is of medium length, thick, recent.

10. No. 50. Sánanda charitra, dwipada metre; see notices under XXIX, and 14 No. 67. 1) infra.

The leaves are transposed without order, and so much damaged as not to be easily legible.

The book is of medium size, old, almost destroyed by insects.

11. No. 56. Vetála cadha, prose.

Thirteen tales complete of Vicramárca's familiar demon: the 14th defective.

The book is long, thin, without boards, injured.

12. No. 61. Vicramárca charitra.

Composite metre, incomplete.

A discourse between Náreda, and Nandikésvara.

The popular tales of a Vetála, or familiar demon to Vicramarca.

At the end kirtana in praise of Ráma, with matter from the Rámáyanam; and one stanza on Krishna's use of finger signs; one stanza in praise of Ganésa.

The book is long, and thin, bamboo-boards, the appended matter more recent.

12½. No. 62. Three pieces.

1.) Balhana rája charitram, dwipada metre.

Balhana ruled in Scinde, and gave to all comers what they asked for. Nareda came and taught him ; then went and reported his liberality to Siva. Who came as a mendicant, &c. see other notices, supra.

2.) The same tale, but in mixed metre ; complete.

3.) Vira chódava cadha, mixed metre.

By Gurám capótayya.

In Dacsha ráma puram there was a temple with a linga named Bhimésvara. The wife of Malli nayaka named Nanma chodu was barren, owing to the curses of some dásis ; and on that account she went near to the procession car, and held on by it. Siva (with Parvati) looking down on her smiled. Parvati asked why ; and Siva in evasion said because those dasis called him son-in-law. Parvati then said she would become incarnate, and would do him homage, as a dási. She accordingly became the daughter of Nanma chodu, by the name of Vira chódu ; and having been devoted to the service of the idol, she attended it with chastity. One day the manager of the temple troubled her : but, just then, Siva appeared ; taking her, with her train away to Cailasa.

[A little light thrown upon festival processions, and into the dark interior of a Saiva temple].

The book is of medium size, looks recent.

13. No. 63. Two pieces.

1.) Vasu charitra, composite stanzas.

By Ráma ráju 1—6 asvásas complete.

Vasu ráju and his mantri Narna discovered, on a hill, a female named Girica—the mantri first obtained an interview, and then introduced the king ; a gandharba marriage—and return to the kings town ; leaf 1—136.

2.) Manu charitram, composite stanzas.

By Pedanárya 1—6 asvásas.

A difficult poetical work, on the birth of Svarochisa manu, and lengthened details of amorous, or other adventures—fictitious romance : leaf 137—227.

The book is long, of double thickness, recent.

14. No. 67. Three pieces.

1.) Sánanda charitra.

Sánanda the son of Purna vitta and Bhadra dhatta heard from munis accounts of the pains of the wicked, and wishing to see for himself went to Yama puri. His coming had been announced by Nárada. Yáma shewed the stranger the different lots of mankind in a future state, in details. Sánaáda was touched with compassion for the miseries that he witnessed; and, by the use of the five, and six lettered spells, he delivered these imprisoned souls, and took them with him to Cailasa. Yama went to Siva and complained; but Siva civilly dismissed the appeal: leaf 1—63, complete.

For Sect. 2 see VIII.

3.) Lacshmana prána samracsha.

By Linga dhira; mixed metre.

Lacshmana was struck by a weapon from Rávana, aimed at Vibishna; in consequence he swooned. Hanumàn took up the Drona hill on which was the sanjivi (or immortal) medicine. By the way he set aside the opposition of savages sent by Rávana; and, by the medicine of immortality, revived Lacshmana; and then replaced the hill on its basis; as before; with included details—wanting a little at the end: leaf 1—17 and 19—21.

The book is of medium size, somewhat old, and slightly damaged.

15. No. 68. For Sect. 1, see IX.

Sect. 2 Vetala cadha: prose.

It differs from 12 No. 61, as not being in composite verse—subject, the same see 11. No. 56.

16. No. 90. Sárangadhara charitra, dwipada metre. By Samba.

Only 30 leaves, irregularly strung; and not numbered.

Raja Naréndra's son Sarangadhara was falsely accused, by his father's younger wife Chitrangi—the father ordered his legs, and arms to be cut off: See notices from fuller copies.

The book is long without boards, worm eaten and broken; most likely taken out from the E. I. H. M.SS.

17. No. 99. Capóta vacyam.

Two copies, leaf 1—13 and 1—16, in composite metre.

Founded on an episode in the Rámáyanam. On Sugriva's enquiry Ráma related the fable of a pigeon that burnt itself, on the loss of its female mate.

The book is of medium length, thin, has no boards—one piece seems a more recent copy of the other.

18. No. 100. Sanandópákyánam.

By Ráma linga bhattareca cavi: composite metre 1st and 2nd asvásam complete 3rd defective.

Púrna viddha and Bhadra dhatta did penance to Siva for a child, and a son was given, as a gift named Sánanda. At 16 years of age he had read all the sastras and visited Yama's world. See foregoing notices: 47 leaves; and 2 extra belong to the 2nd asvása of some other copy.

The book is long, of medium thickness, has no boards, is damaged.

19. No. 105. Sacala niti cadha nidánam.

A king asked a poet, concerning good kings; and, in reply, a detail is given, as to Vicramáditya. Next Nareda going to Bali (of the Vámanávatara) the latter enquired concerning later kings on earth, and Náreda told him of Chandragupta, and others; including a notice of the tales of the 32 statues of Vicramarca's throne. The inference would seem to imply a censure oblique on later kings: leaf 1—44 and 146—277.

The book is short, very thick, old, a little injured.

20. No. 114. Sóma vara mahátmyam: dwipada metre. Discourse of Nandikésvara and Vasishta.

Sóma vara vrüta—the merit of a fast and other observances on Mondays directed to Siva. It has a relation to XXIX, but is occupied with legendary tales; e, g. Dhanapála chetti, in Bhávamápuram, the great benefit he derived from this observance in the month kartikeya (November, December) then most effective: leaf 1—30.

The book is long, looks recent.

21. No. 136. Cavi karna rasayanam Mandhatra charitram—"the tale of Mandhatra nectar to the poets ear."

By Narasinha 1st and 2nd asvásas the remainder wanting.

Yuvanásva (young horse) a king of Ayoddhya, going out to hunt, frightened a rishi, who denounced on him, as a curse, that a child should be born within him. The malediction taking effect, the said young horse died. By some means the dead body was restored to life; and when his son Mandhatra came of age he was crowned; the father then gave him lessons on ethics of kings, and afterwards on pilgrimage, and penance.

King Mandhatra going out on a dic-vijayam, or conquest expedition to the octave points, encountered Rávana; and having overcome him, planted a jaya stambha, or pillar of victory.

The book is long, and thin, has no boards a few leaves are damaged.

[Whatever may be the poetical merits, its value otherwise must depend on the ethical matter insinuated ; as children are sometimes taught useful truths by tales of fairies, or of enchanters].

22. No. 140. Sóma vára mahatmyam, dwipada metre, see 20 No. 114.

In Cási (Benares) the observances of bathing in the month Mágha are detailed. Legends of Capila—Canva—Agastya—Gáutama—Vasishta, and other munis. Their devotedness to Siva. They sat down in a mantapa or open porch, and Nandikésvara told them tales of the past. One, of a Chetti's son taken away by a racshasa ; and others intended to illustrate the benefit of fasting, &c., on Mondays, and especially in the month kartikeya : leaf 1—59 and 61—65.

The book is short, of medium thickness, has no boards, is slightly damaged.

23. No. 144. Vijaya vilasa—composite metre, complete, by Vencata raya.

The pilgrimage of Arjuna to the south ; adventures with Ulichi daughter of a nága king—adventure at Madura—birth of Papiravâhana—visit in disguise to Dwaraca—Subhadra's eloping with him—wrath of Bala bhadra—mildness of Krishna—their going together to Indracapresth'ha—marriage of Arjuna with Subhadra. (Founded on the Jaimuni bháratam.)

The book is long, of medium thickness, has no boards, injured.

24. No. 152. Nandavara charitra.

By Pápamu, in 2 asvásas complete.

A king, named Nandana chacraverti ru'ed in a town, named Nandavaram. An ascetic of distinction having come, taught him a mantra or spell termed manóvéga sanjuramana yóga vêya ; and slippers corresponding were given. By their aid he could travel fast as thought. He went to Cási without his neighbours perceiving ; and, as it would seem, taking his wife with him. One day he held intercourse with her, when she was unclean. The rishis there removed that dósham. He promised them an agraharam in his town. He came back, and taught his minister royal ethics ; and told him sundry tales. By reason of a famine at Cási the rishis with their gods, as witnesses, came, and took possession of the said agraháram. After awhile Duc'ha Appayya disputed with them ; and, on their refusal to take his two sons and adopt them, he, in despite, burnt himself alive.

The book is long, of medium thickness, without boards, recent.

[A specimen of the mode in which a Hindu can falsify a series of facts; yet preserving the outline. It is apparent that the above Nandana was Pratápa rudra of Warankal. Vide report on the Elliot Marbles chap. 5].

24½. No. 155. Balhana charitram.

By Ganja dhariya cavi, dwipada metre.

Siva having heard from Náreda that Balhana rája gave to all whatever they asked, came in disguise as a religious mendicant; and asked for a chaste woman. As no one such could be found in the town, the king surrendered his younger wife. Siva changed himself into an infant in her lap; then took herself and her husband to Cailasa: 56 leaves, complete.

The book is of medium size, has no boards, is recent.

25. No. 159. Sárangadhara charitram.

By Samba: dwipada metre.

Naréndra king of Mahendra, in consequence of his second wife's false accusations, ordered his son to be mutilated. &c., see other notices, supra and passim: 68 leaves.

The book is of medium size, without boards, recent.

26. No. 168. Rája sec'hara vilasam,

By Kuchi manchi timmayya. In composite metre, 3 asvásas complete.

The tale of Balhana rája and his two wives. Composition more labored; but the subject as in the dwipada poem v: supra 24½ No. 155 et passim.

27. No. 176. Dhermangada charitra.

By Narasinha—dwipada metre.

Gâutama rishi reproved his wife Ahalya, by narrating this tale of a woman faithful to a low-caste husband.

Dherma rája had as offspring a snake (nága the name of a paria race) which was kept in a box. Retnangada, another king fallaciously affianced his daughter to this snake. On coming to age she asked for her husband; and was told the truth. She took the box, and carried it through various countries : feeding the snake with milk. At length she came to the Brahma-gunda river ; in which, when bathing the serpent, it assumed a human form, and she then returned, with her husband, to her mother's house. In the end he came with pomp to his fathers court, and the marriage was celebrated : 35 leaves, defective.

The book is of medium size, has no boards, is slightly injured.

28. No. 184. Surabhandêsvara.

By Gattu prabhu ; composite metre.

Prefaced by 1 leaf Amba kirtana.

On Savunaca enquiring how Brahmans are turned into gods at Benares. Suta replied by a tale, of an ascetic, who become enamoured of a publican's wife, and visited her during her husband's absence. One day the husband unexpectedly returned, when the woman put her lover into a toddy-jar, closing the top. He was suffocated ; and his body turned into a lingam : which, in process of time, the people began to worship ; 28 leaves complete. At the end 3 leaves containing praise of Vishnu, and Siva, mangalam chants to Siva.

The book is of medium length, thin, without boards, slightly damaged.

29. No. 186. Nirancushópákyána.

By Rudrayya : composite metre.

Pulaha muni to Dherma sila rája.

In Manica puram a Brahman, by favor of Vishnu, obtained a son, whom he named Nirancusha (uncontrolled). He taught his son all sciences : but the son, heedless of his wife and children's counsel, gave himself up to lewd women ; and, after wasting his wealth upon them, they drove him away. He, going to a forest, saw an old temple in ruins, and there played at dice with the image, and conquered. Siva appeared, and gave him Rhemba as the pledge, or stakes. While the two were living together, Náreda reported Rhemba to Indra her master. The god said let her become a stone : but Nirancusha skilfully obviated the evil, by a device.

Indra appeared, and approved his skill. He enabled him to drive away a Brahma-racshasa that troubled the king of the country; and the king bestowed on him wealth, with which he and Rhemba lived prosperously; 60 leaves.

The book is long, of medium thickness, has no boards, one leaf is broken.

32. No. 203. Two pieces.

1.) Yerugala cora vánchi—mixed metre.

By Jaggayya.

An allegory, on the principle of "Cupid and Psyche." The birth of Jîva (the soul) its nurture—its desire of mukti, or liberation. On that account its meditating on the guru (god). By his favor Jîva assumed the from of a Curatti (gipsy), and the Múla pracṛiti (original matter used for) Brahma came in the from of a Curava (male gipsy) and both going together to Kaivalyam (hand possession, or) a superior world, they were there united together: another mode of expressing the aikyam of Saivas or mócsham of other classes. On these outlines, various allegorical, and moral instructions are engrafted, leaf 1—57,

2.) Chodikan cadha, mixed metre.

By Jaganát'ham.

One Chodikan (being a curava) went to seek his wife (a curatti) ; and having found her, gave her various moral instructions. He afterwards brought her home to his house ; (in result similar to the above) : leaf 58—71.

These sexual allegories may please the people form whom intended ; but the vehicle is doubtful.

The book is of medium size, has no boards, looks recent.

33. No. 206. Dhermagada charitra.

By Narasinha : dwipada metre.

Gâutama rishi to his wife Ahalya.

Dhermangada a king ruled in Kanaka puram (gold town) he had a serpent for a son. By contrivance of his mantri this snake was given in marriage to the daughter of Retnangada. At the proper time she learned the true state of the case, and took a box, which contained her husband, to various fanes, and bathing pools. Coming to Brahma gunda she bathed the snake in the river ; on which it became a man. She returned with him to her father and mother's house, After some time she proceeded with an army to assert his rights. An aerial voice made known the truth, that this was the king's son. She gave her husband the name of Chitrangada, and caused him to be crowned ; 53 leaves complete.

At the beginning are two leaves, on the length of life in man, and various animals.

The book is long, of medium thickness, has one leaf broken.

48. No. 465. Máilrávana charitram, padyas and dwipada metre mingled.

After the defeat of Rávana, the latter called Mailrávana, a ruler in Pátála, and gave him counsels relative to the destruction of Ráma. Hanumán went as a spy to the lower world; came back; and reported the state of things. In the end, war was waged, and Mailravana was overcome. A fuller abstract may appear in Vol. 3.

The book is long, thin, recent.

49. No. 481. Sect. 1, Sárangadhara charitra.

By Appana cavi: dwipada metre.

Chitrangada a younger wife of Náréndra fell in love with his son Sárangadhara. On his declining her advances, she tore her ornaments, and then told the king, his son had done it. By his father's order the young man's arms and legs were cut off, and he was exposed in a forest. An aerial voice told him all this was the result of a curse in a former birth; but that he was not to grieve at it, as a muni would come, and give him relief. A magician came, and restored to him his limbs; and in the end the individual so restored, became one of the nava siddha, or nine magicians; the horrible tales concerning them are found elsewhere. For Sect. 2, see XXVII.

The book is somewhat long, and thick, recent.

50. No. 493. Purúruva charitra.

By Appayya; composite metre.

1, 2 asvásas complete, the 3rd not so.

When Purúruvas was reigning Náreda came to him, and gave him various instructions. Afterwards going to Indra, the latter asked him, concerning Purúruvas; when Náreda told his history to the following purport.

Budha was the son of Chandra by Tára wife of Vṛhaspati. By Budha and Lílavati, daughter of Vaivasvata-menu, was born Purúruvas. He conquered in all directions. While describing his prowess, all who heard Náreda were surprized; but Urvasi became enamoured of the hero, in consequence of the narrative; and is represented as greatly oppressed by her passion—here the thread is snapt.

The book is long, of medium thickness, has no boards.

51. No. 529. Hanumat vijayam.

By Tirupati namadheya, padyas and dwipadas.

This is otherwise called Mailrávana charitram. 48. No. 465 supra. The story is one, and the same.

The book is of medium size.

52. No. 536. Two pieces.

1.) Sárangadhara charitram, composite stanzas complete, except one leaf in the middle, vide 49, No. 481, supra et aliter.

56. No. 545. Parijátápahárauam.

Composite metre 1—5 asvásams, complete.

While Krishna was amusing himself with his many concubines, and his eight wives, Náreda one day brought the parijata flower from Indra's world, and gave it to Krishna who bestowed it on Rucmini. Náreda then went to Satyabhauma, and stirred up her jealousy; so that, she would not speak with, nor look at Krishna. He promised her the tree itself; went, and fought with Indra, brought away the tree; and planted it in Satyabhauma's garden. [This tale wonderfully pleases grown up children.]

The book is long, thin, old, injured.

57. No. 657, Cavi karna rasayanam mándhátri charitra: composite metre.

By Narasinha: asvásas 1—3, 5, 6. The 5th defective at the beginning.

See 21. No. 136 supra for the two first sections.

After planting the pillar of victory Mándhátri married a daughter of the ruler of Kuntala désam. Anon, he was taught by his guru Vasishta many ethical lessons, and the glory of Vishnu. He made a severe penance to Vishnu, at the Sariya nadi tirt'ha. The celestials sent apsara women, from Indra's world, to break the penance; but they did not succeed. Vishnu came; and granted the desired boon. The king returned to his town, and continued his reign: leaf 1—94 but 45—62 are wanting.

The book is long, of medium thickness.

[By this latter part it is seem to have a reference to the next heading.]

XXXI. VAISHNAVA.

1. No. 11. Amukta mályadu.

By Allasâna peddana, but inscribed to his patron Krishna raya; composite metre, 1—6 asvasas.

On the proceedings of Vishnu chit. The original is not readable, without the aid of a comment.

The book is long, of medium thickness, recent copying.

3. No. 22. Sect. 1. Vishnu chitiyam, or Amukta mála: composite metre.

By Allasána peddana—6 asvásas.

Sri villiputtur was the town of Vishnu chit the áluvar—the book treats of his disputes with the Pandiyan. The subject is briefly, and contemptuously noticed in the Madura st'hala purânam.

The book is long, thick, recent copy.

4. No. 24. Ananta vrütopákhyánam.

By Tirumala raya: composite stanzas ; 1—5 asvásas. It refers to an observance in honor of Vishnu, on the 14th day, bright half of the lunation in Bhadra pada month.

It proceeds on the narrative of the Bháratam. The Pándavas being resident in a wilderness, Krishna came, and condoled with them. He then told to Dherma rája the great value of the ananta vrüta with the mode of its performance. The greatness of Vishnu the lord of that penance. Examples of its benefits in tales e. g. a Brahman had two successive wives, and a daughter by the first one. This daughter observed the penance, and was disturbed by her husband, who in consequence became reduced to poverty. On repenting, and seeking forgiveness, from Vishnu, the god complied with her requests, and restored her former wealth : leaf 1—99.

The book is long, of medium thickness, has no boards, is a little damaged.

5. No. 74. Amukta mála; composite metre, 1—7 asvásas; so far complete, but only 1 to 3 asvásas were examined.

Concerning Vishnu chit or nam áluvàr—account of a Pandiyan king—some disciples were instructed by nam áluvàr—the mode of their becoming Vaishnava proselytes—their fame, and excellence—Vishnu is the only supreme—his praise.

1st asv : Vishnu chit removed secular concerns, and began to give food to followers of Vishnu.

2nd asv: On the southern Madura, and its adjuncts—Pandiya kings from Malaya dwaja downwards. Vishnu sent nam áluvàr thither.

3rd asv: By favor of Vishnu he came to Madura, and instructed the king, how to obtain beatification : so far examined.

[A great uproar was occasioned by the innovation on the Saivas. The Vaishnava cause there has always been in a state of depreciation].

The book is long, of medium thickness, old, slightly injured.

6. No. 104. Three poems.

1.) Prasannava rághava satacam, vrütta stanzas—incomplete, leaf 147—238.

The book is long, thin, recent.

7. No. 120. Dasavatara charitram.

By Ráma mantri, composite metre.

1—10 asvásas, a great poem, not of the most difficult class, but intermediate. It contains a poetical account of the ten avatáras appearances, or manifestations of Vishnu: "incarnation" though very commonly used is not strictly correct, as for instances in a fish, tortoise, boar.

[The historical reference of these manifestations seems likely to be solved; though this is not the place. See Vaishnava in the introduction].

The book is long, of double the usual thickness, very slightly injured.

8. No. 126. Dharójagatnayaca satacam.
110 vrütta stanzas: 18 leaves.

By Ancadra cavi—complete.

Devotees praise Jaganát'ha as the true god, and protector of the world; as the god of the Cali yuga, &c.

The book is small, without boards, a little injured.

9. No. 127. Vaijayanti vilásam, composite metre: 5 asvásas.
By Tanmaiyabhi dána cavi.

It relates to Vipra Náráyana, or the Tondi reddi podi 'Aluvàr—the trick played on him by a pagoda prostitute, leading him to steal a gold utensil—and the god appearing to set all right, as to the honesty of his votary. See other, and fuller notices; as 12 No. 165 infra.

The book is of medium size, has no boards, is very slightly injured.

9½. Duplicate No. 132. Jánaki pati satacam.

117 stanzas, complete. On the ten avatáras of Vishnu: whom he protected, and whom he slew; applied in praise of Ráma.

11. No. 162. 'Amukta mála; tica.

Only the 7th asvásam.

Vishnu chit visited various temples; bathed in pools, came to the chóla désa; bathed in the Cáveri river; used the aska marushana spell—rendered homage to Vishnu at Srì-rangham: leaf 243—273; taken out, damaging some other book.

This one is long, thin, without boards, looks recent.

12. No. 165. Vipra Nárayana charitra, mixed metre—leaf 1—25 complete.

On the islet of Srì-rangham near Trichinopoly, and in an alms-house lived a Brahman's son named Vipra Nárayana. As a devotee he attended to a garden, so as to supply flowers for the image; and while he was so occupied, Alliveni and Déva dévi two dásis returning with presents, after having visited the chóla king, saw him. The two sisters spoke about him; one saying he could not be conquered. Déva dévi, the younger of the two, laid a wager that she would accomplish the feat. By assuming a disguise, and by a variety of skilful devices, she attracted the notice of the young Brahman, and brought him round to her object; gaining her wager, she took him to her dwelling; and he repeated his visits; but, after some time, the mother of the girls, seeing he brought nothing in hand, drove him away. The god Vishnu compassionating his distress, assumed the shape of a young celibate Brahman; brought and gave him a golden vessel, one out of five; which he bestowed on his tempter. Next day the vessel was missed; and on being found with the dási, the blame of theft was laid on Vipra Nàráyana. When he was just about to be punished, the god of Srì-rangham visibly appeared; stated the whole truth, and delivered his votary. This is a prose tale; 9 No. 127., supra is poetical, styling the woman victrix, and eulogizing her skill.

The book is long, thin, has no boards, looks recent.

[A tale akin to this is told of two belles of the French revolution; who laid a wager; and one of them seduced an officer to leave his company, and duty, when on a march. Being degraded, he went mad, and his seductress had to take charge of him as his keeper].

13. No. 174. Bushana vicása satacam: 101 sisa stanzas, on 50 leaves.

Praise, by a devotee of Krishna.

Defective, and leaves in irregular order, no boards, damaged.

31. 354. Bhascara satacam.

22 stanzas on 7 leaves defective.

Praise of Vishnu as the sun—a sort of school book—long, without boards.

32. No. 356. Chitra chitra prabhava satacam, 98 sisa stanzas, on 28 leaves.

On the 10 ávatáras or manifestation of Vishnu and praying for protection; even as votaries were protected; in those appearances.

[The three first were protective; in the fourth the protection is veiled; lest it should discover the origin of the Brahmans]

The book is long, without boards, recent.

33. No. 383. Five sections.

1.) Ráma dandacam:—9 leaves.

Praise of Ráma founded on the Rámáyanam.

2.) See X.

3.) Garudáchalam, mixed metre, fragment of four leaves.

The amour of Narasimha with a gipsy (or Curatti) on the hill termed Garuda; the people of that tribe followed him home, in tumult. Lacshmi apeased them; and, money being given, they went away.

It is not certain if this incident pertain to the man-lion avatara, or to a chief named Narasinha: the latter seems probable.

4.) Vishnu stóttram, one mangala chant, on two leaves; one or two ethical.

5.) Ráma kirtana, 104 charanas or feet, on two leaves; complete. Panegyric on a very brief summary of the Rámáyanam.

The book is of medium length, thin, old, without boards, partially damaged.

34. No. 449. Two pieces.

1.) Rucmini parinayam, from the end of 1st part, 10th book of the Bhagavatam; fragment of 8 leaves. The marriage is herein stated (as in other copies) to have been brought about by a Brahman; a point on which different copies vary.

2.) Praise of Vishnu, Siva, Brahma, Parvati, Lacshmi, Sarasvati Manmata, and other gods or goddesses: all on one leaf, prose.

This book is long, without boards.

35. No. 479. Two pieces.

1.) Rámanúja satacam; vrütta stanzas: stanza 40—84 and 94—113 on 11 leaves.

Praise of Yempramanar the áluvár of Sri Permatúr.

2.) Fragment: leaf 42—44, 7 stanzas.

Vishnu devotees are culpable, if they do not praise Ráma.

Another book without boards.

36. No. 515. Sangîrtana; prose.

By Krishnamáchárya.

A gold-smith dying, his widow wished to burn with the body. She paid her respects to Krishnamáchárya and he gave his blessing; by the virtue of which the body was re-animated; and he superadded all enjoyments to both of them; with the possession of Vaicont'ha after death.

The way of a pilgrim on the road to Vaicont'ha is described—soil—trees—the soul—a mantapa; and description of the place after getting there; a sort of pilgrim's progress allegory.

The book is of medium length, thin, old, no boards,

36½. No. 602. Mu-mucsha jana calpam, sîsa stanzas, 12 prakaranas complete.

The book is long, of medium thickness, no boards.

37. No. 603. Two pieces.

1.) Mu-mucsha jana calpam, sîsa stanzas 70 leaves 1—4 wanting—

12 chapters, the 1st and 12th defective.

On the formation of the universe; its state afterwards—to remove various evils in its after state Vishnu assumed various manifestations of himself. In the end, that the people of the world might not forget him, he gave various instructions—and also caused the Bháshacara (linguist i. e. Rámanuja) to be born. From his birth and forwards, many wonderful things were accomplished. Account of polemical controversies. The reasons why Rámanuja taught some other áluvârs. His beatification. For the rest, the topics are the modes of worship, or homage proper or peculiar to the Vaishnavas: [The numbers on the leaves are not regular; some are left out, or were placed elsewhere heretofore].

2.) Chàttu slócas: 9 leaves.

Praise of the áluvár of Vishnu, by a devotee. One leaf contains the month, and lunar day on which each of the áluvár was born.

The book is somewhat long, of medium thickness 1) old and much damaged.

38. No. 613. Sátvica Brahma vilásam, prose; defective.

A disciple asks a teacher, concerning Brahma, Vishnu, and Siva—and on the clashing dogmas of the respective votaries of Vishnu and Siva—asks for guidance, which the teacher professes to give—and discourses on the sátvica, rajasa and támasa dispositions as ascribed to the Trimurti. As the book is not complete, the full bearing does not appear. See a full outline Vol. 1, page 181. It is likely that XXIX. 52 No. 604, and this fragment, are parts of the same book.

The book is long, thin, has no boards, looks recent.

39. No. 621. Two pieces.

1.) Tatva treya sáram; prose with some slócas mingled.

Nam áluvár (Vishnu chit) taught a devotee who approached his feet—concerning the five senses—and on other matters, by the operation of which Vishnu is superior—such topics variously amplified.

2.) Pancha samascára p'halam; prose, and some slócas.

Such persons as wear on their bodies the marks of Vishnu, do what is very meritorious. But it is wrong to converse with such as do not use such marks. It is needful to praise, and worship Vishnu. If this be not done, and if people walk in the fashion of this world, Naraca is their portion. If Siva, Brahma, Indra, &c., are worshipped they are not able to give beatification: various proofs of the respective positions are professedly given, from Vedas and puránas.

The same is ostensibly stated as being a discourse of the áluvàr among themselves.

To such persons as obtain beatitude játi bhédam (difference of caste) is as nothing; 84 leaves, yet not complete.

The book is of medium size, and looks recent.

40. No. 635. Mu-mucsha jana calpam, sîsa stanzas—11 prakaranas, not complete.

After the creation of the world, many evils, sorrows, and sufferings occurred. To remove these Srî Náráyana assumed various avataras or manifestations of deity. But as these still left much behind Rámanúja was born to remedy them. He proselytedm any. His actions, miracles, and conduct, from birth to death are stated. Some notice of other áluvàr: and an account of the manner of Rámanúja's death—and details as to Vaishnava homage: leaf 1—92 regular. Compare 37 No. 603 supra.

The book is long, of medium thickness, somewhat old, and slightly damaged.

XXXII. Vedanta.

1. No. 481. For Sect. 1 see XXX. For Sect. 2 see XXVII.

Sect. 3. Uttara gîta; dwipada metre, 3 adhyáyas: from the latter part of the Bhagavat gîta. The whole gîta is classed under ethical; but as that looks like a later interpolation of the Bháratam, so the latter part from the 12th section looks like a still later addition; to teach the main principles of the Vidanta system. The first 11 sections are highly poetical, and imaginative; the remainder is abstract, and metaphysical; as if from a different mind: there is also another excerpt sometimes termed uttara gîta, the ethical lessons of Bhishma to the Pándavas.

2. No. 605. Two pieces.

1.) Vedanta varticam: prose with slócas, quoted in proof.

A Brahman in return for very devout homage to the guru (here meaning deity) asked a gift, and the nature of the gift, being demanded, the other replied giving instruction in the meaning of the Vedanta. Sri Náráyana complied with the request by copious details on the subject, herein stated ; and, subsequently gave to his pupil beatification : 88 leaves.

2.) Sat guru bódha ; dwipada metre.

Discourse between a teacher and disciple. The latter asks the teacher to remove his ignorance ; and to teach him the tatva or internal faculties on the soul also ; and whence they proceed. The teacher gives instruction on the five elements, five senses, and like matter, in detail. This is not exclusively Vedantic ; but seems linked on to the former piece.

The book is of medium length, thick, recent.

3. No. 606. Four pieces.

1.) Niza art'ha tatva mananam.

By Ellapa mantri : some extracts from vedas and puránas in proof.

The principle, or essence of all the sacred books plainly stated in prose : not finished, 29 leaves only.

2.) Sútana chatushtyam ; prose with slócas in exemplification.

The quadripartile knowledge is mystic, and they who possess the knowledge of it will obtain beatification. It seems to be —nitya, anitya vastu vivécam, a discrimination of finite, and eternal things.

—rejection and hatred of all worldly things.
—knowledge of six interior properties.
—mu mucshatvam, a desire of obtaining beatification.

He who possesses the above is tatva viveca adhicára, lord of the true wisdom.

This wisdom is amplified, and described ; 7 leaves 4th and 5th wanting. [Such a piece is as remote from the vulgar idolatry, as can well be imagined].

3.) Fragment of 6 leaves, from the uttara gîta, metaphysical.

4.) Comment on the uttara gîta : 13 leaves.

The book is long, of medium thickness, old, without boards, damaged.

4. No. 608. Four pieces.

1.) 'Atma bódha prakaranam, múlam and tîca : 68 slócas with meaning in Telugu.

Sancaráchárya having examined the Vedas reduced their essence down to the comprehension of the unlearned, and obtuse in intellect. He gave the subject of the Veda, as the vedanta in 68 slocas. There are three ways tending to beatification ; that is tapas penance, mantram prayer, yogam ascetic renunciation of the world ; yet gnánam knowledge is better than they, and especially conduces to beatitude ; without this wisdom, the others are comparatively unavailing. Illustration ; as various common articles of food would be almost useless without the aid of fire, so are those three without gnánam, or wisdom.

There are other illustrations; considered to be proofs: complete.

2.) Uttara gita, slócas with a tica in Telugu.

Three adhyáyas, these complete.

—metaphysical part of the Bhagavat gita.

3.) Paramánanda bódha prakarana.

By Dása gosaya ; prose complete.

The nature of the soul—the nature of maya or matter. Though soul and body are joined, yet there is no affinity, or agreement between them ; and various like matters of the vedanta philosophy.

4.) Maha vácya art'ham prose.

Meaning of the véda. A disciple asks how a family man may escape, entanglements, and get safe to heaven. The teacher, by an explanation of the vedas, shews that the union of the human soul, with the divine Being is mocsham ; and proves the dogma by various authorities. The disciple askes further explanation on this abstruse point ; which is given with further amplification.

The book is long, of medium thickness, somewhat old, has no boards.

5. No. 615. For Sect. 1. see XI.

Sect 2. Vignána pradipica, lamp of special wisdom, by Virayya cavi, composite metre in four asvásas, complete.

Addressed to all learned men. The knowledge of the soul is difficult to be acquired. It will be known to those who are acquainted with the vedanta. As also to those who use the ashtanga yógam, or discipline of eight members ; and to those that know the meaning of mantras and tantras, and to devotees of Siva and Vishnu. All these aforesaid will understand the excellency of this wisdom.

Details of tatva gnánam, literally true knowledge ; but applied to metaphysics of bodily faculties. Mode of formation of the fœtus in utero, and subsequent details. The rights proper to the four castes. On the duties, or charities of life. Mode of using the above octo-form devotion.

Nature or properties of beatitude. These, and like matters amplified: 21 leaves. [It is remote from vulgar idolatry, and might deserve translation: these isoteric systems are little known].

For Sect. 3. see XXIX.

The whole book is long, thin, and has no boards.

6. No. 625. Atmaikya-bodha; dwipada metre.

A woman came to a guru and asked for instruction, in metaphysical subjects. The teacher replies by details on the vedanta knowledge—on the illusive nature of worldly things—on the difference between body and soul; and with veda extracts here and there, 7 leaves. [Seemingly an attempt to insinuate, and gain influence for the system, among a class in creation not usually over fond of metaphysics].

The book is long, without boards.

7. No. 626. Vasu deva manamam, prose with some slócas—2 prakaranas or chapters—others wanting—dialogue form.

Chap 1, Sarira treya p: chap 2. ádiya rópába p.

The unreality of all visible things, otherwise than as an illusive perception of the senses; nominalism.

He who believes there is no reality in the visible world, beyond his own self, will obtain beatification: some veda extracts quasi in proof: 117 leaves.

The book is somewhat long, and thick, old, partially damaged.

[The abbé Raynal somewhere remarks that the Indians held abstruse metaphysical dogmas before Malebranche and Descartes were born. The above may be proof. The first principle of the Cartesian system was to doubt of every thing, save one's own existence; Cogito ergo sum].

XXXIII. Veterinary.

1. No. 29. For Sect. 1, 2, see XXX.

Sect 3. Haya lacshana vilása.

By Manu manchidhatta, padyas.

The 4th asvásas right, the 5th defective.

—asva prasamsa, excellency of the horse.
—dinu vârrta lacshanam, marks or curls.
—dasa eshetra vibhágam, curls on ten special places.
—vâiyo gnânam, knowledge of age.
—sucshetra pramânam, rules as to good places for curls.
—varna lacshanam, colors, result from them.
—punra lacshanam, spots, or marks.
—gati svara lacshanam, sounds from five kinds of paces.
—prognosis of disease, the curable and incurable, distinguished.
—uttama asva lacshanam, properties of an excellent horse.

Also various notices of diseases of horses; with the suitable remedies: leaf 54—78.

The entire book is long, of medium thickness, partially damaged.

2. No. 494. For Sect. 1, 2, see XXI.

Sect. 3. Asva sastram, composite metre, defective—the fragment describes the qualities of horses. This piece is old, and quite different in appearance from the other two sections.

3. No. 809. Gövu sastra composite metre, incomplete.

The book treats of diseases of oxen, or cows;—feet—swellings on neck, rejection of food—and a variety of other maladies, incident to horned cattle; with the proper treatment, or remedies.

The book is long, thin, without boards.

XXXIV. Vira Saiva.

1. No. 4. Vira Mahésvara áchára sangraham.

By Lingam: dwipada metre.

In 10 asvásas, but defective in the midst—glory of cow-dung ashes—and eleocarpus beads—excellency of the five lettered spell—of the name Hara—of the Siva rátri or night commemorating Siva's illness, through wine. Legend of Siva's having formed the chank and chacra—Legend of Marcandeya—Bhrïgu's curse on Vishnu—glory of its removal, by Siva, When Vishnu as a manlion was lying drunk with the blood of Hiranyacasipu. Siva assumed the form of a Sarabha and striking Vishnu's skull with beak, or horn, took out from it the cause of intoxication. Glory of this act.

Vyasa praising Vishnu, as supreme, raised his hands over his head, in adoration. Siva fixed them so, to teach him better; so that he could not let them down: hence called Vyása bhuji stambhanam.

There are illustrations, by extracts, from other books, as itihasas &c.

Leaf 1—210 but 32—40 wanting, from the end of the 1st asvása, and beginning of the 2nd: 24 blank leaves at the end.

The book is long, thick, has narrow leaves, and small writing, slightly injured.

[It is violently Saiva; but that it is of the Jangama class is not perfectly clear].

2. No. 8. Prabhu linga lila, dwipada metre,

By Somayya cavi. In 5 asvasas, complete.

The adventures of Allama prabhu on earth; from quitting Cailasa, down to the exhibition of supernatural powers, when seated on a sunya pit'ha or magic throne.

In consequence of Siva pointing out Allama prabhu to Parvati, with eulogy of his continence, the támasa guna, or bad quality of Parvati, took a human female form, to test the matter. When grown up, Maya tried all allurements to win over Allama prabhu, in vain—though constantly pursued, he always evaded—implying, by native mode of allegory, that he was possessed of great self control.

The book is long, somewhat thick, old, very much injured.

3. No. 9. Basava puránam, dwipada.

By Bhatsu siddha cavi 5 asvásas.

By permission of Siva his vehicle Nandi became incarnate under the name of Basava (an ax). His marriage : he turned many people to the Vira Saiva way—legendary stories of devotees ; details of his actions : leaf 1—171.

[Occasion will occur under 2nd Family for a full abstract from a copy in seven chapters dwipada, by Pála curiki somana].

The above book is long, thick, old, leaves broken, damaged or deficient.

4. No. 33. Sect. 1. Basava puránam.

By Pála curiki sóma náth'a, dwipada complete in seven asvásas.

Siva sent Nandi to earth in order to promote the spread of the Vira Saiva way. He came to the world by the name of Basava of the Brahman caste—born as the son of Mádámba—cast off the sacred thread—married Gangámba—ruled the kingdom, as mantri with great celebrity—did miraculous things herein detailed. Chenna Basava his nephew—account of him, and of Bhavuri Brahmayya—Siddha Ramayya—and other devotees ; these and many other matters detailed, chiefly by legendary tales : leaf 1—211.

[It is difficult, with brevity, to convey an idea of this singular and audacious book. The animus is pointed against Jainas, Vaishnavas Saivas and Brahmans in general, and, caste altogether].

For Sect : 2, see XIX.

5. No. 35. Sect 1. Prabhu linga lila.

By Ráma son of Kotsala kota lingayya ; composite metre.

In 5 asvásas—dwipada ; copy of 2 No. 8.

In Cailasa, Parvati said that no one in the world could withstand her maya. Siva said Allama prabhu would do so. Parvati caused Maya to become incarnate, as the daughter of Mamacara. Allama prabhu was a partial incarnation of Siva. A variety of adventures are detailed ; from the continuous efforts of Maya uniformly evaded by Allama prabhu. See other notices.

For Sect 2 see IV.

The whole book is long, thick, recent.

6. No. 39. 1.) Prabhu linga lila dwipada; fragment of 11th varga, and part of 12th with 35 blank leaves.

2.) Cálahasti satacam, 120 vrütta stanzas, on 14 leaves.

3.) Vṛishabha satacam, 104 sardula stanzas.

Praise of Basava—concerning the Jangamas and their worship —benefit of homage to Basava.

The whole book is long, of medium thickness, a little old.

7. No. 40. Diesha bódha; dwipada.

By Pedda parti Basavésvara.

In 3 asvásas, complete.

Each section is termed diesha—a lesson 1 agnye d: 2 upama d: 3 nirvana d: 4 svastinárúhina d: 5 casalabishéca d: 6 lingana d: 7 satya siddha d: 8 anugriha d: 9 ni sámsara d: 10 écacara d: 11 samaiya d: 12 pancha rudra arpana d: 13 tatva d: 14 linga nija d: 15 manolaya d: This sacrifice of family, solitary asceticism, sacrifice of the five senses &c. ends very reasonably in manólaya loss of mind, insanity. The guru's isoteric instruction to a disciple is detailed. leaf 1—73.

Compare XXIX. 5 No. 60. 3).

The book is of medium size, old, and much injured.

8. No. 45. Four pieces.

1.) Prabhu linga lila, dwipada metre.

In 5 asvásas complete.

By Pedda parti sóma nat'ha.

Siva paid great attention to Allama prabhu, exciting Parvati's curiosity; and leading on to a series of temptations, in which Allama's continence always came off victorious: 5 gadas to each asvásam.

2.) Vṛishaba satacam, complete.

Praise of Basava, leader of the Jangamas or "moving deities."

3.) Girija satacam 25 stanzas only.

Praise of Parvati, mountain-born.

4.) Saiva matántara vishayam; 15 leaves.

On the entire Saiva way, including panegyrics of Siva's amusements.

The book is long, of medium thickness, old, injured.

9. No. 66. Two poems.

1.) Basava purana, dwipada metre.

Complete in 5 asvasas v: supra et alibi.

2.) Sánanda charitra, dwipada metre.

Complete in 3 asvásas. See XXIX, XXX.

The book is long, thick, old, injured; in some places the leaves are broken.

10. No. 80. Three pieces.

1.) a fragment of 3 leaves on the lingadharis: slocas with meaning in Telugu. The law, or rule of the Jangamas: 66 families left Sri Sailam.

The Dottiya tribe were once votaries of Vishnu—some cut off their hair-lock—a few others came to the south, and associated with Niyógi brahmans. A synod held at Madras rejected the customs, as to ceremonial uncleanness. The Pandárams are Jangamas. The linga and the use of the gayatri do not consist—one of the two must be rejected, he who rejects all old observances of the Hindus, the gayatri included, is termed a Vira Saiva.

2.) Maya dévi charitra: on the trial by Parvati of Allama prabhu's continence. Maya when mature was asked for in marriage, by a king, but he was rejected, because a Vaishnava. In the end Allama prabhu, notwithstanding advances, and solicitations, rejected Maya.

3.) Two leaves genealogy, and tribes of Vaisyas or cometies; and Nambana charitra. Concerning a child lost in the Cavéri river, and restored by invoking Siva. It seems to be some legend of the Jangamas.

The book is long, of medium thickness recent, 1) is curious, and should be translated.

11. No. 88. Prabhu linga lila.

By Kocharla kota Ramayya.

In 5 asvásas and 25 gadas.

Allama's visit to Siva. Parvati's curiosity, and becoming incarnate, as Maya, the daughter of Mamakara. She saw Allama prabhu; sent him messages, &c. A variety of legends. Allama's narrative to Basava. The result is to magnify Allama as a divinity; though he was the probable inciter of Basava's conspiracy as a regicide 1—211 leaves.

A fuller abstract will probably occur under the 2nd Family infra.

The book is long, very thick, and recent.

12. No. 122. Six pieces.

1. Chenna malla stottra. 32 sisa stanzas.

The book is long, of medium thickness, recent.

18. No. 189. For Sect. 1 see XII.

Sect. 2. Basava mahimámṛita vilásam—mixed metre.

A Brahman named Mátamba had a son called Basava—he rejected the caste thread—Bala déva gave his daughter Gangámbà to him, in marriage. Afterwards he took his own sister Nágámbà, and his wife, and went to a town known as Kapadi. He was upheld by Siva and Parvati; and he supported many disciples. In course of time he became head minister of state at Kalyána puram. He was leader of the Vira Saivas. King Bijjala gave his sister Nilamámbi to him, as a second wife. He, his sister, and his two wives, were united to the god (or beatified) at Kapadi-Sangamésvara: 55 leaves.

For Sect. 3, see XXIX.

19. No. 198. Basava purânam.

A fragment from the middle, such as is wanting in 17. No. 154 supra with which it corresponds in length.

The book is long, recent.

20. No. 217. Nija linga chickayya charitram mixed metre, complete.

Vide 25 No. 291. infra et alibi.

A thief, turned devotee, was falsely accused, beheaded, resuscitated, beatified.

The book is long, thin, without boards.

21. No. 219. Five pieces.

1.) Basava satacam 109 vrütta stanzas.

By Pála curiki sóma nát'ha.

Various praise of Basavésvara, complete, 15 leaves.

2.) Cálahasti linga satacam, 49 sîsa stanzas.

Praise and details as to the symbol at Cálahasti : leaf 16—26.

3.) Chitta sóra satacam, 11 sîsa stanzas.

Siva is represented as discoursing in a jocular manner with the "little adultress"—Ganga dévi : leaf 26—29 defective.

4.) Siva stuti; praise of Siva.

Seemingly intended as a preface ; one leaf, and 7 blank leaves.

5.) Sundries—a woman's pains—one ethical stanza—a few stanzas on the mahanavami festival—one, on symbolic ritual.

The book is long, of medium thickness, without boards, recent.

22. No. 226. Two poems.

1.) Cálahasti satacam 34 vrütta stanzas, 5 leaves, various praise of Siva.

2.) Basava satacam, 109 vrütta stanzas.

By Páli curiki sóma nát'ha, 9 leaves.

Basavésa is variously praised, and the devotee asks his protection.

The book is somewhat, long, has no boards.

23. No. 251. Four pieces.

1.) Anubhava súram ; composite metre.

By Pála curiki sóma ; 28 leaves, blank 6.

Wholly on recondite, and quasi "experimental" topics. It professes to proceed on vedas and purânas. The Jangamas found some arguments on the internal happiness caused by their enthusiasm.

2.) Another copy of the same 11 leaves, defective.

3.) Jangama páta puja mahátmyam, slócas.

On homage at the feet of Jangama devotees : considered to be moving representatives of deity ; with the benefit of such homage : a few ethical slócas mingled.

4.) Kirtanas—songs or chants.

Praise of Siva, or Saiva in kind.

The book is long, of medium thickness, old, or of various age, some leaves are broken.

24. No. 278. Chatur véda sáram, essence of the four Védas: otherwise known as Basava linga cháritram.

In various ways Siva is stated to be supreme ; he is to be worshipped because he is chief. Praise of Basava.

The book is short, and thin, without boards, slightly injured.

25. No. 291. Chickayya charitra.

By Nimmayya ; mixed metre.

In Kalyána puram one named (Nija) chickayya made away with his father and mother's property ; and ran in debt, giving the whole as merces meritricium. He was obliged to abscond, and turn robber. One night, penetrating within a Jangama temple, he saw the mode of their worship ; and asked to become a lingadhari. He was received, and one Gangadhari took him to his house. Being a watchman he left home at night. His wife made advances ; which being rejected, she took a linga from her neck, and hid it in the man's bag. On her husband's return she accused the man. The husband complained to the sabha, or assembly. One Vira Mushtalu was sent to enquire ; who hastily took the matter for granted, and cut off Chickayya's head ; carrying it to the assembly. This head then told the truth of the story ; and an aerial voice confirmed the same. The people fell down as dead. But Siva appeared ; and took the whole, including Gangadhara and his impostor-wife, to Cailasa. Such wholesale deportations to paradise are common in Vira Saiva legends.

The book is of medium length, thin, has no boards, a recent copy to fill up space.

See 20 No. 217 and also under XXX.

26. No. 350. For Sect. 1. see XXXI.

Sect. 2. Basava puránam ; only the prefix, or mangala stuti by Timma cavi : dwipada, 8 leaves padyas 4 leaves.

The book is long, without boards, recent.

27. No. 351. Two pieces.

1.) Vṛishabhādipa satacam, 52 vrütta stanzas, defective: a devotee praises the lord of bulls, or bull-chief; that is Basava.

2.) Bhaváni vachanam, prose.

Praise assumed to be offered to Siva by his consort, in her milder form.

The book is short, 9 leaves, no boards.

28. No. 411. Basavésa linga satacam.

113 vrütta stanzas, on 5 leaves complete.

A devotee praises Siva and also Basava. Some matters on the materio-metaphysical system, called tatva-gnánam.

The book is long, without boards, injured.

29. No. 509. Basava puránam.

—a fragment leaf 183--195 padyas.

v. 13. No. 132. 2) supra.

The book is long, without boards.

30. No. 617. Six pieces.

1.) Panchicara námsala, slócaṣ, with a tîca, in Telugu.

The origin of the five elements—description of them—the three gunas or mild, hasty, malignant dispositions. The dhermas or moral duties—the deities presiding over them named. Five ganas are reckoned to each element, in all twenty-five varieties. They who understand these matters are tatva gnánis. The ten pulses—their places, their dhermas—karuna—presiding gods. There are eight souls in the human body—these, and like matters, 9 leaves.

2.) The same subject—slócas with tica.

4 leaves not regular, but in subject, agreeing with the last four leaves of 1).

3.) Vivéca chintámani—prose.

A guru's instructions on the Vira Saiva way: 6 is a special number, as Cartikeya has six faces.

There are 6 places, 6 members, 6 hastas or mental faculties; such as thought, skill, sensation, perception, apprehension, imagination, 6 aikyas unions, 6 sactis mothers, 6 lingas, 6 cailas qualities of mind, 6 muc'has (faces) as eyes, tongue, flesh, &c., 6 padart'has or ganda, ruha, rúpa, sabda, smarisa, parinama, 6 bhaktis, fiducial attachments. He who understands all these, and has relinquished all wordly attachments, is maha gnáni, or a great sage.

Some slócas on the six places, 42 in all; others in praise of Siva 7 leaves.

4.) Cásika vachanam, prose.

Brahma páta, or mócsham, if desired to be understood, it may be learned by asking a guru ; there are three modes of acquiring the said knowledge ; 1 sangyam ritual with prayer ; 2 táracam meditation ; 3 amanasam mental absorption, vision, trance.

One stanza, a chant in praise of Siva.

5.) Siddha Ráma satacam, 14 sîsa stanzas, 2 leaves, mystic, defective.

6.) Chenna mala sisalu, 32 stanzas.

By Sóma nat'ha cavi.

On the above six places 3) to each one an unequal number of stanzas, 22 leaves in all.

The book is long, without boards, the sections are of different ages.

31. No. 618. Shad st'hala gnánam, prose ; knowledge of the six places.

1 Bhakti st'hala, 2 Mahésvara st'hala, 3 Prasada st'hala, 4 Prana linga st'hala, 5 sarana st'hala, 6 aikya st'hala.

These six places, if in right order, agree with the elements of Siva's body, and lead to aikyam, or union with him.

[These have their representations in the human body ; and they also denote stages of ascent through upper worlds to the quasi "seventh heaven"].

32. No. 631. Mizrarpanam, or shad st'hala nirnayam; being Jangama specialties ; prose.

On the five senses of the body, and then the six places—áchára l : guru l : Siva l : jangama l : prasáda l : and maha linga. Homage to these tends to beatification with Para Brahm ; 8 leaves, and 1 leaf at the end praise of Siva.

The book is somewhat long, has no boards, is damaged by insects.

33. No. 637. Sóma nát'ha bhasyam.

By Pála curiki sóma nát'ha, author of the Basava puránam, slócas with tíca.

In 26 prakaranas, or chapters. How the name of Basava was given ; rejection of the gods of other devotees—it is needful to avoid the company, conversation, or sight even of the votaries of any other god. The glory of cow dung ashes—of sacred beads—of wearing the linga. Mode of ritual homage to this symbol—excellence of that homage. Value of the water that has washed the feet of the god. Merit of eating the prasáda or food that has been offered to Siva. The curse on Vishnu denounced by Bhrigu rishi was removed by Siva—value of that removal—the glory of the Saiva mode of ritual; the duty of a guru, or preceptor—on the sacrifice of Daesha—rejection, or destruction of that sacrifice. It is not right to worship the sun as a symbol, or as the dwelling of Vishnu—the chank and chacra marks on the body should not be worn. It is a duty to reject all trust in Nárâyana as a god. The urdhva or námam mark on the forehead is to be rejected. It is needful to reject all discussions as to dri murti or tri murti, or duality or triplicity in the godhead; and also to reject the notion of eight murtis (Bhairavas?) as held by some Saivas. It is needful to reject all sacrifices, and all hetero-rituals. How the word Bhagavat was produced—Bharga (a name of Siva) its sound defined—the like as to Pasupati—Mahadeva—Para Brahm; implying the meaning of those terms. These, and like matters peculiar to Vira Saivas, leaf 1—273. The book is long, of medium thickness, with a brass pin.

C. Malayalam language, and letter.

I. Astrology.

No. 1968. Mádhaviyam, prose.

By Mádhava.

Influence of the several months—and of the zodiacal signs, the phala sruti as in almanacs.

The book is of medium size, thin, on talipat leaves, without boards.

II. Astronomy.

No. 1967. Ganita sástram, sutras with prose version, or tîca.

On the vâcya system of Southern India, which is solar; as distinguished from the siddhantam, or northern system, which uses lunar months.

Various tables, and astronomical calculations. Rules for calculation as to the heavenly bodies; it does not appear to contain astrology.

The book is of medium size, on talipat leaves neatly written.

III. Historical.

No. 1969. Vira Pándiya charitram.

On his birth—reign—especially on his great prowess. Also on his horses; and occasion is taken to introduce the asva sastram, or tokens by which to judge of horses as to colors, and especially hair-curls, and other marks.

The book is of medium length, thin, on talipat leaves, without boards.

SECOND FAMILY.

Manuscript Paper Books.

B. Canarese language and letter.

I. Grammar.

1. No. 341. For Sect. 1—3 see IX.

Sect. 4. Chandasu sastram; prose.

By Naga verma, or alias Appayya Cavi.

On grammatical matters, but especially concerning Prosody. On the vrüta metre, or rounded stanzas—the yeti, pause or cæsura—ganam class letters, of great consequence in Telugu and Canarese poetry; the special or suitable places—examples of use.

A 4to volume, on country paper.

II. Jaina.

1. No. 353. Tri shasti lacshana puránam.

By, Chamunda raya, prose.

Sixty-three tales, or legends.

Reference to a work entitled ádi puránam. An account of Ajita Tirt'hacara, of Sambhava Tirt'hacara, of Abinandana, of Sumati bhakaraca, of Padma prabhu Tirt'hacara, of Suparsva Tirt'hacara ; and so on, down to the last of twenty-four, named Vartamána svámi.

The Jainas have no moderation in their chronology ; but, from the paucity of Jaina books, this one becomes valuable. In transcribing this book from the McKenzie collection the title has been altered. It is therein termed chatur vimsati puránam or "legend of the twenty-four" that is Tirt'hacaras.

The former owner remarks.

"The Trishasti lacshana puránam also called Chamunda raya grant'ham. It is a Jaina chronicle. This was transcribed from a palm leaf volume in the McKenzie collection, a volume written on large palm leaves. This transcript is in a clear, plain hand ; but the orginal is, in some places, nearly illegible ; and this has caused errors ; but these have been rectified in a careful revisal."

The book is a folio of medium thickness, French paper, half bound in cloth and calf, lettered.

III. Historical.

1. No. 363. Mysúr rája púrvabhágam.

Details of kings of Mysore from A. D. 1327 to 1654.

A pencilled note inside the binding of the book.

"Nugger Pootta Pundit's book is the title by which Wilks cities this volume ; but he cites only the Persian translation of it."

"In the preface of Wilks Mysore p. XI, he mentions a Canarese M. S. telling the succession of the kings of Mysore. It was translated into Persian."

"The orginal Canarese book, in the two volumes there described, in course of time was sent to the East India House, with many hundred other volumes. There they lay for more than forty years unknown."

"At last I effected their transmission to the College at Madras in September 1844."

"Among them I discovered the above said record : it is in two volumes, No. 1781 and No. 1926.

"The present volume contains a transcript of them, made at my desire.

C. P. B. August 1847."

"Wilks shows that this record was composed in A. D. 1713."

"This volume begins at A. D. 1326 (SS. 1248) and ends at A. D. 1653 (SS. 1575.")

The book is a large folio, very thin, good wove paper, and with paper boards.

It may be as well to observe that the East India House M.SS. above adverted to as having been brought to Madras in 1844, are those catalogued in the first volume of the present work. The examination commenced with those M.SS. as it was understood that the Court of Directors were desirous of gaining some knowledge of their contents. In addition to the Leyden M.SS. as a nucleus, they also probably contain a large donation made to the Museum of the India House, by the family of the late Col. Reid ; who preceded Sir Thos. Munro, as Commissioner in the Ceded districts.

IV. Pauranical.

1. No. 359. Linga puránam prose, translated by Kallala nanji rája.

Púrva and uttara bhágam or 1st and 2nd part: 1st part 1—97 and 103—108 adhyáyam.

2nd 1—50 adhyáyam.

A puránam of the Saiva class.

Nature of Paramésvara; as alinganána, or without visible form.

Origin of the Linga, or visible Siva symbol of the masculine energy.

Yuga kāla nirnayam, description of the great, and lesser ages—form of the world, as to dwipas and seas.

Origin of various Rudras or forms of Siva, with destruction of the three towns, and other warlike acts.

Yoga siddhis modes of penance directed to Siva with various legendary tales, in exemplification.

The book is a thick folio, good wove paper, half bound in calf, and lettered.

V. Prophetic.

1. No. 344. Two pieces.

Sect. 1. Sarvagna kála gnánam.

By Sarvagna. "Time-wisdom" or foreknowledge of time. Some part would appear to be written at the time of events, and some affect to be predictive of the future: as in the close of some puránas. SS. 1461. A. D. 1539 is the date given for kashta mashta or a great famine. Some astrological causes for the same are stated. Kings and head men assembled, and devised means for the preservation of the people. On áchāram or local customs, and manners. A description of ishta lingam, or the preferred symbol. Some ethical matters, and others prophetic of great calamities in the distant future.

For Sect. 2 see VIII.

VI. Romance historical.

1. No. 358. Jaimini cavyam, padyas.

By Jaimini 1—26 sandhis complete.

A free version of the Asvamédha parvam of the bháratam: in which the pilgrimage of Arjuna to the south; adventures with Ulichi with Chitrangada at Madura; and other adventures, including a fight with his son Papìra váhana, and other apocryphal additions, are contained: and these have obtained currency in the South. The work, from the elegance of the language, is a Canarese classic.

The book is a quarto of medium thickness, French paper, half bound in strong paper and sheep skin.

VII. Saiva.

1. 345. Bhairava isvara caryam.

1—20 sandhi, prose.

Glory of Bhairavēsvara, a name, or form of Siva. Gifts by Chola rájas, as supposed to a temple of that god.

Jangama st'hala or place where Siva dwells in the living human body. Siva's conquest of various asuras; as Shumba, Nishumba and others.

The legend of seeking for the head and feet of Siva, without finding them—implying immensity; and similar matters.

Pencilled note:

"Copied from a volume in the McKenzie library numbered 50) 487; there is another volume 53) 703."

The book is a thin quarto, very good paper, half bound in cloth and calf.

2. No. 354. Zarana lila amritam; mixed metre 3—8 sandhis; does not end.

Praise of Siva, and further on glory of Basava; the general subject is homage to Siva.

The book is a royal quarto, thin, on good French paper, a little stained; boards; the back broken.

3. No. 357. Purátana ragale; long stanzas.

By Bhána or Mulhana.

1—16 and 1—4 st'halas, or 20 sections.

Legends of sixty-three special votaries of Siva. The Tamil version of this work is entitled Periya purána.

Note "This book is transcribed from one of the M.SS. in the McKenzie library, lodged in the Madras College."

"Those M.SS. are chiefly written on perishable native paper, which the worms are rapidly destroying. The binding also is wretched, and many volumes are falling to pieces."

The book is a thin folio, on good French paper, bound in cloth, and lettered.

4. No. 362. Three pieces.

1.) Sivadhikya puránam, slócas and padyas 1—11 sandhis.

By Visvácháryа.

Siva is creator and Supreme—his glory declared.

2.) Bich'hadana charitra, padyas.

Legend of Siva cutting off one of Brahma's heads: becoming in consequence a Brahmahatti (possessed, or insane) he roamed about as a beggar to expiate the crime. It is taken from the puránas; and as a single legend is complete.

3.) Paraváti gajáncusa kárávali.

An elephant book to opposers.

By Vali sancara: adapted to musical recitation.

Para Brahm is one; but he is manifested in different forms; as in creation, preservation, destruction. The piece does not seem to be peculiarly Saiva, as the two preceding are; and it seems to maintain the unity of God in a way not usual. 2.) Is headed by pencilled note.

"Copied from McKenzie M.S. No. 15) 505 Sivadikya puránam; to which volume this one is appended." Both 1) and 2) are so copied.

VIII. Tales.

1. No. 341. Four pieces.

1.) Nala charitra, padya cávyam.

By Chenna raya, 1—9 sandhi.

A version of the entire tale.

2.) Harischandra raya, cat'ha; padyas.

1—13 sandhis, complete.

The integrity of Harichandra—his losses, and restoration to kingly authority.

3.) Sārangadhara charitram, prose.

By Sambayya complete.

Supposed to be a version from the Telugu, to which language the tale properly belongs. For Sect. 4 see I.

The book is a quarto, of medium thickness, country paper, half bound and lettered.

2. No. 342. Harischandrópakyanam; padyas 1—13 sandhis, complete.

The tale of Harischandra, as above; see also former, and fuller notices.

The book is a thin folio, blue French paper, half bound in sheep, and lettered.

3. No. 343. Two pieces.

1.) Sārangadhara charitram.

By Sambayya prose, complete.

2.) Nala charitram, padya cavyam.

1—9 sandhi complete.

Pencil date "30th July 1852" which is probably that of being copied from McKenzie M.SS.

The book is in thin folio, on good paper, half bound in calf, and lettered.

4. No. 334. For Sect. 1. see V.

Sect. 2. Ch'hora cat'ha; padyas.

The romance of Sóma sec'hara, and Chitra sec'hara two brothers, who set out on an expedition; in part predatory, in part amatory. By the way they sung the Subhagini soni; seemingly an abstract from a poem of that title. In their plunder, and love avdentures, magic is introduced as a vehicle; hence, in improbabilities, it resembles nursery tales of enchanters.

The whole book is a thin folio, good paper, half bound in calf and lettered.

5. No. 356. Three pieces.

1.) Nala charitram, stanzas.

By Chenna raya 1—9 sandhis complete.

The story of Nala and Damayanti see 341. 1).

2.) Sarangadhara charitram.

By Sambayya complete, mixed metre.

3.) Bijjala charitram—stanzas.

1—12 sandhis complete.

An account of Bijjala a king of Kalayana (the Ga'lan of Greek writers), and of the elder Basava as his minister of state; strange proceedings; treachery; killing Bijjala by means of assassins; and the following overthrow of the Jainas, by the Vira Saivas.

The book is a thin folio, on good French paper, half bound in calf and embossed paper, lettered.

IX. Vira Saiva.

1. No. 346. Prabhulinga lila; padyas 1,000.

1—25 sandhis, complete.

Description of Cailasa mountain—details as to wearing the lingam—description of a Jangama—on Maya sacti. Some gods have sactis, some not—details as to ishta lingam. A difference between Siva and Parvati; which was composed by Parvati sending her támasa guna to earth, to ensnare Allama prabhu; whose continence had been lauded by Siva. Details of the various devices practised, and their failure: whence is educed the virtue of Allama prabhu, and excellence, of the Vira Saiva system.

"The former owner remarks.

"The Prabhu linga lila; being the principle work in support of the lingadhari creed, professed by the Jangamas, or followers of Basava.

Note 'various copies of this book differ widely from one another. And the different copies, prepared for me, are transcribed from different M.SS."

Many various readings are written between the lines of this copy.

The book is a thin folio, on French paper, cloth bound, and lettered.

2. No. 347. Prabhu linga lila 1,000 padyas.

1—25 sandhis.

"Note.—Various manuscripts of this book differ widely from one another, and I have taken a copy of each. The present volume is transcribed from a copy in the India House, No. 149 of M.SS. in the Cannadi language."

The book is a thin folio, good paper, cloth bound, and lettered.

3. No. 348. Prabhu linga lila, 1,000 padyas.

1—25 sandhis, complete.

"Prabhu linga lila, in the original Canarese, received from C. Soobarayya at Mysore, on the 24th February 1842, by bangy."

The book is a thin folio, on strong paper, half bound in cloth and calf, lettered.

4. No. 349. Two pieces.

1.) Prabhu linga lila, 1,000 padyas.

1—25 sandhis.

"This was transcribed for me by Nelluri Narain Rao, who also writes English. The original in 104 palm leaves, was sent to me from Bellary on 22 (1) 42 or 22nd January 1842."

2.) Shad linga vivaram.

The maha linga, or great symbol, was born in six different forms; as—

1 achara l: 2 guru l: 3 siva l: 4 jangama l: 5 prasada l: 6 mahat l:

"This is a treaties on a yoga sastram, written in prose. It is almost pure Sanscrit."

The entire book is a thin folio, on strong paper, half bound in cloth and lettered.

5. No. 350. Basava puránam.

By Bhima cavi, 3,618 padyas.

1—60 sandhis complete.

This work has been collated, and printed, in Mysore; but is not yet translated. Occasion will occur to give a full abstract from a Telugu version, by Palu curiki sóma nát'ha.

The book is a folio, of medium thickness, on superior French paper, bound in calf, and lettered.

6. No. 351. Basava puranam.

By Bima cavi 1—60 sandhis, 3,618 padyas, complete. Another copy; matter the same; the hand writing is larger, and the pages less full.

The book is a somewhat thick folio, good French paper, half bound in cloth and calf.

7. No. 352. Chenna Basava puránam.

By Viru Bhadra raya, 2,891 padyas.

1—63 sandhis complete.

This work appears to have been subsequent, and supplementary to the foregoing, and somewhat larger puránam; so styled, because it is customary for every sect, and every temple to have its puránam. It is composed much in the like spirit of hostility to Vaishnavas, Saivas, and Jainas, and to all Brahmans of whatever class. Arguments against the Vaishnavas, such as natives only could conceive, are given; treating them with little ceremony; and much contempt. A vein, of ridicule, and ludicrous sarcasm, runs through the different sections. The book was written after the Vira Saivas had come to power, and had slaughtered their victims.

The late owner writes:

"The Chenna basava purânam or Jangama legend—Chenna basava was one of the earliest followers of Basava the deified teacher of the Jangamas.

"This is a most amusing set of comic stories. There is an English summary of it in my Telugu collection Vol. 1, p. 304, and also in the Telugu version which has been well edited by Vira Bhadraya.

"This is copied from a palm leaf, volume, in the McKenzie library, No. 1823.

"The various readings in this book are copied from a bound volume in the McKenzie library, marked No. 9) 12 or 44. That copy contains only 12 chapters.

"A third M.S. was afterwards received from Bellary."

By "amusing" in the foregoing extract, may be meant a placing Brahmans in places and positions, as unsuited to their character, as Davus Fielding, the early novelist, placed his parsons Thwackem, Supple, Adams, and Trulliber. A tendency so to treat the Brahmans, runs through the lighter literature of the Hindus. Prof. Wilson, in his notes on the Mrich'hakati, either did not perceive this, because mild in the expression; or else he left it to his readers to form their own perception. The Surâbhandésvara, of frequent occurrence in this collection, is a gross instance of what is here indicated.

The book in question is a narrow, but thick folio, French paper, bound in cloth and lettered, the binding worn, and damaged.

8. No. 355. Two pieces.

1.) Prabhu linga lîla, 1,000 padyas.
1—25 sandhis, complete.

2.) Bijjala râja charitram; stanzas.
1—12 sandhis, complete.

S. W. of Meru was Kalyana puram 12 kadams (120 miles) in dimension (which is alancaram for a large town.)

Adi Bijjala ruled there, &c. See supra VIII 5, No. 356. 3.)

The former owner's note.

"This was copied from Mr. Elliot's M.S. and contains much that is evidently interpolated."

The book is a thin folio, good French paper, boards, back broken.

9. No. 360. Ashta varna tilacam.

1—13 sandhis ; padya cavyam.

Excellence of the guru or teacher (applied specially to Basava) excellence of the Saiva symbol, and of the Jangama, or living exemplification of deity; legendary tales as to the linga and as to its superiority over symbols of other sects A detailed account of the Vira Saiva system. Legendary tales of individuals ; such as Dhermaguni and Prabhádayga, and Sushila and others.

The book is a thin folio, good wove paper, bound in calf, and lettered, binding worn.

10. No. 361. Bhára chinta retnam.

By Mullanáchári; slócas, and padyas, with a tîca to both annexed.

About 11 prakaranas, or chapters. The author states that he gave the narration to Satyéndra chola rája, which is a fictitious name.

Jangama isvara mahima—glory of the Vira Saiva god—duty of constant meditation on him—he imparts spiritual knowledge, and bestows beatification.

Vira Saiva áchára nirupanam, a description of the rites and ceremonies, in use among this class of votaries.

Legendary tales, grossly distorted, of Chola and Pandiya kings are interspersed.

The former owner writes.

"This was transcribed for me from a copy in the McKenzie library at Madras. The original M.S. is on perishable native paper, and fills three bulky volumes, containing 213 leaves or 426 octavo pages."

[From an English translation of these three 3 volumes, Professor Wilson in his sketch of the Pandiya History transported Madura to Kalyana, near Goa ; because the native author took a legend from the Madura S'hala puránam, and made the site to be near Kalyana-puram.]

The book is a thin folio, good wove paper, bound in calf, and lettered.

11. No. 367. Chenna basava puranám.

1—63 sandhis ; 2891 padyas.

Vide supra 7 No. 352.

The late owner's note.

"The present copy was sent me from Bellary, in 1847."

The book is a thin folio, good wove paper, bound in country calf, a little worn.

C. SECOND FAMILY.

Manuscript paper books.

Telugu language and letter.

I. Art of Poetry.

1. No. 203. For Sections 1 2 see XII.

Sect. 3. Ragada lacshanam.

Rules, and proprieties as to a kind of chant in lengthened lines.

2. No. 206. Sect. 1. Kuvalayánanda pracásica, a comment on a Sanscrit work, which is a comment on the Chandra loca.

1—3 ghattam, padya cávyam.

Appayya dicshada's comment on the work of Cali dása has been much criticised, the present comment appears to be merely an elucidation in a spoken language.

For Sect. 2 see XXI.

3. No. 207. Sect. 1. Cávyalancara chúdámani.

The jewel of poetical rhetoric.

18 ulásams; padyas, complete.

Sect. 2. Appa caviyam; padya cavyam.

A comment on a work by Nannaya Bhatt. This comment is in part rhetorical, in part grammatical. Another copy will be ranged under the latter heading—and with a brief abstract given.

For Sect. 3 4 see VII.

The book is a broad, thin folio, China paper, sheep bound.

4. No. 252. Cávyalancára chúdámani.

1—8 ulásams complete: padyas.

"Copied at Guntoor July 18, 1831 by Chettu Rámáchárlu Mailavaru seshayya."

A work on the rhetoric of poetry.

The book is a medium sized quarto, half bound and lettered, used.

5. No. 314. For Sections 1, 2, 3 see VII.

Sect. 4 Lacshana dipica.

On faults in poems; praise of suitable letters in proper places, and censure of bad, or wrong letters. Properties of poems—order of varnas, or classes of letters, and the like.

The book is a medium sized folio.

II. Christian.

1. No. 327. Christian veda grant'ha cat'ha sanesheparn, an epitome of the story of the Christian Bible.

The former owner writes thus.

"Summary of the Old Testament history. This is the first volume; and beginning with the book of Genesis, it goes as far as 1 Samuel chapter 8."

"This is somewhat abridged; it is written in easy plain Telugu, though not very elegant style. It appears to have been translated by the Roman Catholic Missionaries, about the year A. D. 1720. All mention of circumcision is excluded."

Marginal notes by the same.

"An account of the supposed method of creation—creation of the world 2nd day, 3rd day, Gen 7, 2. Gen 3, 5. Gen 3, 12. Gen 3, 19. On Cain and Abel. Serm. 3 from the creation to the deluge. Serm. 4 on the Deluge."

"Tower of Babel—calling of Abraham."

[I doubt if Roman Catholic Missionaries were in the north so early as 1720; but the "Lettres Edifiantes" might settle the question. They certainly followed M. Bussy; and by reason of his temporary successes, and influence made many nominal proselytes. Still I hesitate to class this book as Roman Catholic; because it is not customary with such to reduce any part of scripture into a vulgar tongue. Moreover I see that the decalogue is given correctly, the 2nd commandment and the 10th commandment without omission, or alteration, which is not Roman Catholic usage. The missionary DesGranges at Vizagapatam had in employ a Brahman, named Ananda raya, who was born in the Tamil country, and may have composed this book, with the help of the Tranquebar Tamil translation. In that case 1807 would be a likelier date than 1727].

The book is a folio of medium thickness, French paper, cloth bound, lettered "Old Testament history."

2. No. 328. "A translation of the Acts of the Apostles, by C. P. Brown 1840," prose, complete.

[The translator made versions of various part of Scripture—St. Luke's gospel especially; for the use of the Madras Auxliary Bible Society. They went into the hands of Telugu Scholars; and though it does not appear, that the Society printed any one such version entire; yet the Reverend J. Reid of Bellary, acknowledged aid received, by hints and models; especially as to the use of sandhi; on which point, other scholars have since differed from Mr. Reid].

This book is a thin folio, foolscap, half bound in country calf.

III. Correspondence.

1. No. 301. A miscellaneous collection of letters in Telugu for the use of learners "collected by C. P. B., Madras 1832."

Some headings and notes, as to the subject, and quality of composition are written, here and there, in the book.

It is a folio, of medium thickness, foolscap, full bound in sheep.

2. No. 304. Various letters, and other papers.

"This book contains miscellaneous papers collected as specimens of the colloquial Telugu, used in business, and I propose to add a translation."

"C. P. B. Ag. Judge of Rajahmundry."

Various notes of official entries. A translation afterwards of some of the early papers.

The book is a broad thin folio, country paper, bound in red sheep.

3. No. 308. "Copies and translations of Telugu letters, petitions, &c., compiled by C. P. Brown, Esq., 1833, for the use of students, and to assist native Translators into English."

Translations are on opposite pages, to the extent of ten or twelve pages.

Beyond is an index to the contents of the Sinhásana dwatrimsati in 12 books, by Gópa raja; but only to the end of the 2nd tale. One page with meaning defective, is filled up with flourishings of the Telugu letters for srí and ye, ya, idle at the best. The natives sometimes transposed the initials into P. C. B.

The book is a broad folio, their country paper, bound in red sheep, lettered.

4. No. 340. Telugu letters.

The site to which they are referrible is Masulipatam. Some relate to the cutting a water course for irrigation, others to appeals to the Provincial Court; with a variety of other matters, selected, as supposed, for use in examination by the College Board.

The book is a thin folio foolscap, half bound, and lettered.

5. No. 391. A collection of letters.

"Prepared for use of students; or, students' miscellany; commenced in 1840."

At page 107 is a list of subjects, occupying 6 pages.

The book is a folio of medium thickness, foolscap, full bound in country calf, lettered.

IV. Erotic.

1. No. 2. Aniruddha charitram.

1—5 asvásas, padyas.

Tale of the grandson of Krìshna, considered to be Cáma redivivus. His amour with ' Usha daughter of Bánásura—the war, and subsequent marriage of Aniruddha and ' Usha.

The book is a small thin quarto, good paper, bound in calf, and lettered.

2. No. 3. Two pieces.

1.) Parijata pariharam.

1—5 asvàsams.

The legend of Krishna going to Indra's world, and bringing away the tree with flowers of paradize, to appease the jealous anger of Satyabháuma.

2.) Sacontala parinayam.

Avadharica 1 and 3 asvásas.

The tale of the drama, put into the form of a narrative poem.

3. No. 4. For Sect. 1 see V.

Sect. 2 Rádha Mádhava samvátam.

1—3 asvasams—padyas.

A dispute between Rádha and Kṛishna. It seems to be otherwise known as the ' Ila déviyam; and will come under further notice infra.

The book is a small, thin, quarto; good paper; bound in calf, and lettered.

4. No. 5. Three pieces.

1.) Rásábharanam, the jewel of the poetical rasas, sentiments or emotions, with reference to the passion of love.

1—4 asvasams, padyas.

2.) Rasa manjeri, the garland of passions.

1—3 guchamus or flower bunches, like in subject. It occurs among the palm leaf M.SS, supra.

3.) Sringara rasála pálam.

1—3 asvásas, padyas.

The place, or region of amorous emotions, or sentiments of variou kinds, experienced by lovers, painful and vengeful included.

The book is a small quarto, of medium thickness, good paper, bound in calf, and lettered.

5. No. 6. Ràdhica svàntanam.

1—4 asvásas complete, padyas.

This is the tale of 'Ila devi, and various copies occur among these books complete, or otherwise; but having varying titles with some object, not at once apparent. The subject will be noted further on.

The book is a small, thin quarto, good paper, bound in calf, and lettered

6. No. 8. Two pieces.

1.) Sunanda parinayam ; padyas.

1—5 asvásams.

A tale of betrothal, and marriage.

2.) Sita kalyana—mixed verse.

A poem founded, on the marriage of Ráma with Sita, the daughter of Janaca.

" Sheets misplaced C. P. B."

The book is a small quarto, on good paper, of medium thickness, half bound in calf, and lettered.

7. No. 9. Tárasa sánkhya vijayam.

By Vencata pati cavi.

Vol 1. 1—3 asvásas, padyas.

Vol. 2, 4, 5—asvásas.

This is a very free version of the pauranic legend, concerning the birth of Budha and the war that was a consequence, or connected with it.

The 1st Vol. is a small thin quarto, good paper, bound in calf and lettered, the 2nd Vol. similar, but thicker : both volumes are worn as to the binding.

8. No. 10. Five pieces.

1.) Lavanya satacam, a cento.

2.) Kaluvayi satacam, do,

3.) Kant'ha lama satacam do.

4.) Bhalira karivelpu satacam.

By Vaidarsa Appayya cavi.

" Four sets of amorous verses, and songs."

5.) Cavi chandappa satacam.

" Satirical, and humorous verses."

The former owner's note.—

" This copy contains the various readings found in several M. SS. collated at Trichinopoly, Madras and Masulipatam. From these compared texts, I have caused the new edition of these books to be prepared ; which was completed in 1832, and printed in 1839."

I have heard from various natives—and recently from a literary man at Vizagapatam—that Hindu literates considered themselves indebted to the said Editor, for his numerous reprints of Telugu works.

The book is a small thin quarto, good paper, bound in calf, and lettered.

9. No. 15. Chandra rekha vilasam,

1—3 asvásams complete, padyas.

A love tale, relative to a female named Chandra rekha or " moon-line ;" if both words are Sanscrit only. It denotes a curve line on the body of females, and is of frequent use, as a name in love-romances, see 42 No. 152 infra.

The book is a small quarto French paper, full bound in calf, lettered, the binding worn.

10 No. 16. Ahalya sancrandam.

By Vencata Krishna ; padyas.

1—3 asvasas complete.

Sancranda appears here to be a name of Indra. A tale founded on the pauranic account of Indra and the wife of Gáutama. There are various copies, and poems of two kinds ; one giving the pauranic tale, and another of a different, and libertine character.

The book is a small, and thin quarto, delicate paper, full bound and lettered.

11. No. 17. Bilhányam ; padysa,

1—3 acataras.

The Hindu Heloise and Abelard; a tale often before abstracted: the love tale of the daughter of a king, and her tutor. The latter praises her in person in this poem.

The book is a small, and thin quarto, good paper, bound in calf, and lettered, the binding worn.

12. No. 23. Two pieces.

1.) Karnamṛtálu—melodies.

1 st'hapacam—padyas.

2.) Kṛishna karnamṛtam.

3 st'hapacams.

The love adventures of Kṛishna, adapted to singing, and public recital.

The book is a small quarto, wove paper, half bound, and lettered.

13. No. 32. Two pieces.

1.) Ahalya cat'ha. from the padma purànam.

By Singana son of Ayyalu bhatt.

The crafty device of Indra to deceive Ahalya, the wife of Gáutama; and his consequent punishment: notlibertine.

2.) Nila parinayam.

By Cuchimanchi cavi timmana.

The betrothal and marriage of Nila.

The two pieces are written in Telugu, on the left hand page, and there is a begun translation in English, for some distance, on the right hand page: both unfinished.

The book is an octavo volume, good paper, old date 1825, &c. bound in sheep.

14. No. 37. Ahalya sancranda vilásam, from the Dasavatáram book 7.

The amour of Indra with Ahalya, wife of Gáutama: a medium account.

Partly translated on the right hand pages.

The book is an octavo, good paper, old, bound in sheep, worn.

15. No. 39. Tárasa sanc'hya vijayam.

By Kundala Vencatapati.

In 5 volumes 1—3 asvásas; but only a part of the 3rd.

On the pauranical tale of Chandra, the son of Atri and Tára the wife of Vrihaspati. Further on under No. 85, occasion may occur for some brief abstract. Whatever may be the case in the puránas, the tale is anything but " astronomical" here.

Royal octavo volume, good paper, old date, bound in sheep, and worn.

16. No. 41. Bhánumati parinayam.

By Renturi Rangha rája, in 2 volumes.

Vol. 1. 1, 2 asvásas sîsa padyas.

2. 1—3 „ „

A fictitious romance, on love affairs, and marriage.

The book is a royal 8vo., good paper, bound in sheep, and lettered.

17. No. 42. Sect. 1. Rádha madhava samvatam.

1—3 asvásams.

A fictitious love quarrel between Krishna and his aunt Radha, &c., vise infra 35, 36, 43, 44.

For Section 2 see XX.

The book is royal 8vo., bound in calf, good paper, the binding used.

18. No. 43. Three books.

1). Sárangadhara, padya cavyam.

1—3 adhyayams.

This tale is greatly multiplied. Abstracts have often been given.

2). Retnavali parinayam.

1—3 asvásams.

Fictitious marriage of a woman, named " jewel-wreath."

3.) Rati rahasyam, sexual mystery.

This piece is in Sanscrit; and it has often occurred.

The former owner remarks.

" All these are transcribed from old M.SS. that were very imperfect; and the copies were taken only for the sake of comparing the text. Of the Sarangadharam, I have a separate critical edition."

The book is royal 8vo., country paper, half bound in country calf and lettered: it is much injured by termites.

19. No. 44. Bilhana carya, otherwise Bilhaniyam.

1—3 asvásams.

Often abstracted from preceding copies.

The former owners note:

"This is the Telugu translation from a celebrated Sanscrit original. The poem is rare, and does not occur, even in the McKenzie collection, in either language.

"The Telugu version is celebrated for its beauty: it is rather diffuse. This is still more rare than the Sanscrit The present copy was originally made from a M.S. found at Cuddapah; and completed by a comparison with other copies discovered at Trichinopoly, and Conjeveram.

The introduction and the termination were only in a single copy. In each M.S. whole passages of 20 to 50 lines were missing; but the whole is, I trust, now complete." * * * * * * * *

After all the verses are in a very confused order; and a comparison with the original shews that, both in the Sanscrit and Telugu copies, many stanzas are spurious."

"There is a Persian poem named the Mihr-o-Mushtiri, which exactly parallels this story."

In addition to former abstracts it may be stated that on the king discovering the amour between the tutor and his own daughter, he ordered Bilhana to be killed; who delivered himself by narrating instances of kings, that had acted in like manner, to their own ultimate destruction.

The book is a royal 8vo., good paper, bound in sheep and lettered.

20. No. 48. Satyabhámasvantanam.

1—1 asvásams.

Satyabhamma was at the head of Krishna's inferior wives. On her private intercourse with him, fictitiously supposed, and made public.

The book is a quarto, Europe paper, bound in calf and lettered.

21. No. 89. Three pieces.

1.) Sringara dáman, love-cord, or wreath.

1—2 asvásams.

2.) Sringara suddha samudra púrna chandródayam, the rising of the full moon of the pure-sea of amourous poetry.

1—1 asvásams.

3.) Vaijayanti vilásam.

1—4 asvásams, complete.

The tale of Tonda podi reddi, conquered by a dancing girl at Sriranghum, and brought under suspicion of sacrilege. The tale has been more than once abstracted.

The book is a folio, of medium thickness, country paper, half bound in calf, and lettered, somewhat injured.

22. No. 102. Rasica jana manóbhiramam.

1—6 asvasáms.

Description of the Chenji savages—names of beasts—and of birds—beauty of women who attend in kings courts, or do them service—the splendor of a king, as to garments, as to jewels, as to equipage. His amours. His mode of hunting ; its pleasures, visits to pleasure grounds, or wilds. Manner of a king setting out to hunt. The hounds or dogs used—on the king's killing beasts—and like matters ; to please the tastes of native chiefs.

The book is a folio of medium thickness, good paper, half bound in country calf, used.

23. No. 103. Rásica jana manóbhiramam.

1—6 asvásams.

Another and older copy, with various readings interlined : the foregoing is possibly the corrected copy.

24. No. 104. Two pieces.

1.) Rásica jana manobhiramam.

1—6 asvásams.

This is an old copy without any variations.

2.) Chamatcara manjeri.

1—3 asvásams.

Varnam, or description of the eight wives of Krishna 1 Rucmini, 2 Kalindi, 3 Satyabhauma, 4 Bhadra, 5 Mitra dindra, 6 Jambuvati, 7 Sudanta, 8 caret.

Krishna vilásam : his amusements with his wives—tale by Rucmini, concerning Krishna. A discourse of Krishna to his younger sister, and hers to him.

On Lacshmi devi (apparently the 8th wife.)

Praise of Krishna, by Sanc'ha ; conduct of the amour by a bird messenger. Krishna's message to Lacshmi dévi. Other matters panegyrical of Krishna.

The former owner's note :

" This poem is useless ; it is composed in a bad pedantic style ; and is in many places nearly unintelligible. Yet it is much admired by some learned Telugus. The subject of the poem is the marriage of Krishna, which is the theme of at least twenty Telugu poems."

The book is a folio of medium thickness, country paper, bound in sheep.

25. No. 105 Padmávati parinayam, or Bhanumad vijayam.

By Valagapudi Krishnayya cavi.

1—5 asvásas " 1075 padyas or 4,000 lines."

A romance on the loves of Bhanuma, and Padmávati a female ; including, as it would appear, full details, in native taste, as to sexual intercourse.

Any one who would wish to have some knowledge of this atheistic system may gain it from the Káricas, as translated by Prof : Wilson.

The book is a folio of medium thickness, French paper, embossed paper covers, broken off.

26. No. 106. Bhanumad vijayam.

1—5 asvásams another copy, prepared for the press. A summary in English, at the end, discreetly cut out.

The book is a folio, of medium thickness, various, but good paper, boards, lettered.

27. No. 107. Bhanumad vijayam.

1—5 asvásams with a tica or vyakyanam ; that is comment.

The former owner remarks :

" This is a learned, and useful commentary, and sufficient as regards the more difficult passages : but the easier pages are omitted. The minute commentary on the transcendental philosophy (sanc'hya) contained in the 5th canto is placed in another volume." See XIV, 11 No. 143, 2) infra.

The book is a thin folio, thin French paper, half bound in cloth, and lettered.

28. No. 108. Sect. 1. Bhanumad vijayam.

1—5 asvásams.

A clear and correct copy, looking recent.

For Section 2, see XX.

The book is a folio, of medium thickness.

29. No. 109 Sect. 1, Bhanumad vijayam.

1—5 asvásams with a tica or comment, another copy.

For Sect. 2 see IX. For Sect. 3 see VIII.

Sect 4. Rádha Kṛishna vilásam.

1—3 asvásams.

Another copy of a piece, elsewhere entitled Rádha Mádhava samvátam.

An imitation, I believe, of the Gita Govinda by Jyaí Déva; translated by Sir W. Jones.

30. No. 112. Vásu déva mananam.

1—13 varnacams, padyas.

Another poem on the amours of Kṛishna.

The book is a thin folio, good French paper, half bound in cloth and lettered.

31. No. 119. Pártta Sáradi vijayam.

Subject from the Bhágvatam and Jaimini Bharatam. The "triumph of the car-driver of the Parthian;" that is to say of Kṛishna who drove the "rheda" of Arjuna, when Subhadra eloped with him.

By Kuppana cavi: mixed metre.

1—26 Sections.

The former owner's note:

This is a musical version of the popular tale of Kṛishna: relating his various amours, in the style of the Bhágavatam and framed as melodies. The work is complete.

The book is a folio, of medium thickness, good French paper, half bound and lettered.

32. No. 126. Three poems.

1.) Prabhávati Pradhyumna.

1—5 asvásams, or sections.

By Pingala suri.

On an amour of Kṛishna's son.

2.) Nágna chitti parinayam.

By Vallúri narasinha 1—3 asvásams.

Description of Nagna chitti—and of the sudra class of people—of vésyalu, or prostitutes—of women who sell buttermilk, and chant the praises of their tribe, as that of Kṛishna. Description of Vensala rája; birth of Nagna chitti—youth; a parrot messenger. Description of spring, and other seasons. Homage to Manmata (Eros) Kṛishna came to the svayam varam of Nágna chitti—putting on the marriage bracelets: complete to the end of marriage.

3.) Kṛishnábhyudayam.

1—5 asvásams, incomplete.

Parentage, brith, life, and adventures of Kṛishna.

The book is a folio, of medium thickness, good paper, bound in country calf, and lettered.

33. No. 127. Five poems.

1.) Chandra bánu charitram.

By Tari gópula mallana mantri Cavi.

1—5 asvásams.

Intercourse between Kṛishna and Satyabhanma: they had a son named Chandra bánu. Nàreda came to Kṛishna. Pradhyumna (son of Rucmini) and Chandra bánu learnt singing from Náreda. A Siddha (magician) visited Chandra bánu, and discovered to him the beauty of a daughter of Rucomabahu, called Kumudini. Her beauty described. The tale does not seem to finish.

2.) Cavi jana ranjanam.

By Suranna áditya surya cavi.

1—3 asvásams.

More than one subject. On the marriage of Vijaya lokiniki, and a daughter of Anuvindan. Praise of Harischandra maha rája, and Chandra mati—their pouring corn over each other's heads, at the marriage ceremony.

3.) Rája váhana vijayam.

By 'Aditya surya cavi.

There was an extensive forest, or wilderness called Kandilyám. The hero Rája váhana entered therein. Various details of his amusements, with women there. The daughter of a king named Mánasára was married to Rája vahan. He tied the bottu or marriage token on her neck (sicut, ring on finger.)

4.) Gadhéyópákyanam.

Visvamitra told a story concerning Satamanda son of Gáutama. Narrative of the passion of Menaca, a courtezan of Indra's world, for Visvamitra. He bathed in a pool named cási hámali. On the penance of Visvamitra.

5.) Tapati varnam.

1—5 asvásams, complete.

There was a town called Adanchi. One named Samvarnudu was enamoured of Tápati a female. Tápati paid homage to Manmata (Eros), Samvarnudu made professions of love towards her. Tápati accepted his proposals of marriage ; and they reciprocally poured corn over each others heads, in the marriage ceremony.

The book is a folio, of medium thickness, good paper, bound in calf, and lettered.

34. No. 131. Kalà púrnodayam.

1—7 asvásams, sub-divided into 35 smaller portions. The full rising of kalà ; which is either a personified goddess of 16 forms, on the sacti system, or else may mean sexual intercourse. There is much about Krishna as usual ; but it includes a tale, with some reference to human sacrifices to Cali. See a former notice under the 1st family M.SS. also infra 64, No. 333.

The book is a folio, of medium thickness, good paper, 31 copy books, unbound, and tied by a string.

35. No. 132. Rádha mádhava samvátam.

1—3 asvásams, padya cávyam with a tica.

The loves of Krishna with Rádha, 'Ila, Rucmini, and others.

An English title page is given ; thus :

" The Rádha Mádhava samvátam, or the loves of Rádha and Crishna, an original Telugu poem by Veludandi Tiruvengalaya, a critical dition illustrated with an ample commentary, prepared under the direction of Charles Philip Brown, by P. Vencatnarsu, 1829."

The book is a thin folio, full bound, and lettered.

36. No. 133. Sect. 1. Rádha mádhava samvátam.

1—3 asvásams padya cávyam.

This is a rough copy, taken for further use.

The former owner's note.

" This is copied from a Manuscript in the McMenzie library the poem is extremely rare ;" was rare might be written ; for so many copies have been taken from that one, as to make the poem somewhat common.

For other Sections, see VIII.

The book is a folio, of medium thickness.

37. No. 134. Two pieces.

1.) Satyabháumasvántam. Vide 20, No. 48, supra.

1—4 asvásams.

A tale of Kṛishna's amour with Satyabháuma. Kṛishna's going to Indra's world for the paradise flower. Afterwards the quarrel with Bánásura. The love pains of Kṛishna, on account of Satyabháuma ; falling at her feet, and the like. Praise of the Cavi rája or poet.

2.) Bahulasya charitram.

1—5 asvásams.

One portion relates to Kṛishna and his amour with Satyabháuma, and various sportings in water with others. Bahu-lásyudu (great dancer) was a king, who hearing that Kṛishna was coming to his house, went out to meet him. Mere fictitious scaffolding for love tales. Some matters concerning Lacshmana ; and Ráma's marriage with Sita. Tale of Kalánadi a man, and Manakaujiri a female. Kalánadi gave all his money to Manakaujiri. She then drove him away. He went very sorrowfully to a temple ; and the god returned to him the amount he had lost.

The book is a folio, thick, common paper, half bound and lettered. the binding damaged.

38. No. 135. Sect. 1. Chandrangaada charitram.

1—6 asvásam.

By Paidi marri Vencatapati.

It is also known as the Paidi marri prabandham.

Chandrangada was the son of Indrasena, and his wife Camala—his infancy—youth—love of a forest nymph—love-pains—difficulties—marriage—a war and conquest ; close.

Sect. 2. 'Usha parinayam.

1—5 asvásams.

The clandestine amour of Aniruddha, grandson of Kṛishna, with 'Usha, daughter of Bánásura ; imprisonment of Aniruddha—consequent war : other romantic adventures, ending in the public marriage of the pair.

Other sections come under various headings.

The book is a thick folio, bound in flowered paper. An English abstract of Sect. 1, is at the end of the book, see 40, No. 150, there inserted, as a fuller specimen of such love tales.

39. No. 136. Tárasa sanc'ha vijayam.

1—6 asvásams; padya cavyam, with chacora vyakyánam.

The legend of a furtive amour between Tára the wife of Vrihaspati, and Chandra the son of 'Atri, whence originated the Chandra vamsam, or lunar line; Budha being the offspring of the said amour. As Tára means the zodiac with its stars, Vrihsapati the planet Jupiter, as Chandra is the moon, and Budha the planet Mercury, so an astronomical enigma has been, by some supposed. This poet, however, makes his personages flesh and blood. It is an extremely censurable detail of a middle aged woman seducing a young man. A war ensued; and a double claim to the parentage of Budha occurring, the celestials adjudged him to be the son of Chandra.

This copy is ornamented with a title page by him—thus: "The adventures of Tara or Stella, and the Genius, a celebrated fairy tale, written in Telugu verse, and illustrated with a comentary, composed under the directions of C. P. Brown, by the learned Narsima Charu, in the year A. D. 1828." "In the present copy the voluminous dedications, prefaces, &c., are omitted 1843."

The book is a folio, of medium thickness, good paper, half bound in cloth and calf, lettered, used.

40. No. 150. Chandrangada charitram, otherwise known as Paidi marri cavyam. 1—6 asvásams.

By Paidi marri Vencatapati.

The book is a thin folio, good paper, bound in cloth, and lettered, used.

An English abstract, by the late owner, is here inserted:

CONTENTS OF THE PAIDI-MARRI CAVYAM.

OR,

CHANDRANGADA CHARITRA.

CANTO. I. PREFACE. The poet alludes to various stories in the Rámayan, which are briefly summed up 24—48, Shashti antalu, verse 56—57. Here the new rekoconing begins. Pura varnanam. The army 37.

The city of Nishadha (Nala's realm) was ruled by prince Indrasena, whose wife was Camala 62. He was childless, and holds a consultation with his wife. They resolve to apply to Vishnu for aid (* see note written below). At last Vishnu appears in visible form, and gives the prince a garland for his wife : which is to grant her offspring 118 she becomes pregnant. She bore a son named Chándrángada.

Canto. II. Account of his infancy—children's sports 28. Description of summer, winter and spring. A forester appears before the king Description of his savage appearance 56. His speech in the savage dialect. Description of the forest, and the wild beasts 78. The king goes to hunt 85. Description of the hunt. In the forest he hears the tinkling of women's jewels, and perceives their perfumes 146. Which they trace to a grove where they find a troop of wood nymphs dancing. Their charms. Among these the prince perceived a bright damsel whose loveliness filled him with admiration 164—180. Description of the prince's appearance—she falls in love with him—her feminine expressions 189.

Canto. III. The prince's amorous fever, and his eager expressions. He asks the girls who they were, and whose daughter this beauty was. They replied that her father was Chitrasenu : that he had many sons, but no daughter ; till, in answer to his prayers (as he wished to bestow a daughter on a bramin) this lovely girl was born. That it was foretold that she should live 10,000 years ; but her husband was to suffer a great affliction (gandam) in the fourteenth year of her age. The prince was shocked at hearing this. He consulted an astrologer, as to the best means of averting this curse, and was assured that it might be done away. Then, to obtain the fulfilment of what he had predicted—he addressed his prayers to Parvati, as usual. Indra was jealous of this, and sent Cupid to disturb his heart from prayer †. Then Menaca, the Hebe of Olympus, was sent to him, accompanied by Cupid, at the permission of Rati. On arriving at the hermitage, Cupid is accosted by Vertumnus, Description of the hermitage. Cupid beholds the saint. Then Menaca begins to stroll about in the saint's presence, and salutes him ; she grieves to find he will not regard her : Cupid weeps with her. The hermit now perceived them, and asked what they wanted. At last Venus (sic) and Cupid retire disappointed.

Indra was now much alarmed : and, as he was about to be turned out, he went and complained to Siva and Parvati. Hereupon Parvati pays a visit to the hermit, who offers her land : and states that what he wishes to obtain, is the gift of predicting, and obtaining the fulfilment of his prediction. Then Parvati took the shape of a red breast 176 and went to the prince, and told him. He was much pleased, The bird predicted the marriage. The prince then went home.

---

* This mention of childlessness and successful prayer, as preliminary to the birth of the hero, is a favorite mode of commencing a Hindu poem.

† This is the usual routine in Hindu romances. The gods envy and disturb the happiness of men : and strive to baffle them in every virtuous action.

Canto, IV. The prince's amorous grief. Description of the rains and clouds and spring. He talks about his love to his friend Narmasakha. The heroine's grief at being separated from the prince. One of the dames of honor asked her why she was crying. They tried to comfort her. With them she goes on a rural jaunt, 300. The ladies came to a lake : they bathe, and dress, They worship Cupid. The princess's mother Vimala tries to console her, and to find out with whom she is in love. Their grief at his absence.

Canto. V. Chitrarekha, an ambassadress, obtains a picture of the hero. Evening is described, and Night, and the rising of the moon. The grief of the heroine. Chandra dushana, Manmatha dushana—Morning.

Canto. VI. The marriage is determined on, The princess comes forth as bride. Chitrarekha introduces all the lords to her : the last of all being our hero ; over whose neck she casts her garland. He is bathed, and adorned, She is bathed, 21. Nuptials, and the usual ceremonies. Her father gives her good advice 58, and she goes home with her husband Chándrángada.

Then there happens a war—and all fight in the usual style. The prince sends his father a despatch, describing the victory, The prince and his wife return home.

Here the poem terminates.—Throughout this poem there is manifested great vigour, and originality of poetry. It has excited the applause of those scholars who have read it ; and, when published, will certainly become popular. There is a dwipada version of this story called Sóma vára mahatmyam

41. No. 151. Chandra rekha vilásam.

The púrva and uttara bhágams complete ; padya caryam : see the following ; which has a tica or comment.

The book is a thin folio, country paper, bound in sheep, and worn.

42. No. 152. Chandra rekha vilásam.

1—3 asvásams, padyas with tica.

Niladri rája (blue-mountain king) became enamoured with Chandra rekha (crescent curve) she being a dási or pagoda servant, aged 36 years ; their amours satirically described.

The book is a folio, of medium thickness, country paper, bound in sheep, and worn.

43. No. 153. Two volumes, 'Ila deviyam.

The 1st vol. has 1, 2 asvásams.
2nd ,, 3, 4 ,, } with tica.

By Velli dandi tura Vencatayya.

This is a rough copy as taken from a McKenzie M.S. Copies are multiplied, under this title; and as Rádha mádhava samvatam in 3 asvásams, and as Rádhasvántam or Radhica svantanamu, in 4 asvaásams, and as Rádha Krishna vilasam in 3 asvásams; to what good purpose, is not clearly apparent.

Although the name of a male author is given, yet the tale seems really to have been written by a female at Tanjore, named Mudda p'halani, and one of the mistresses kept by a king of Tanjore. He appears to be indirectly designated under the name of Krishna.

Rádha the mistress of Krishna had an adopted daughter named 'Ila. This child is described as being expressly prepared for Krishna, by Rádha; who afterwards is painted in the extremity of rage, and jealousy, at the success of her own work.

"This is the rough copy from which a fair copy has been taken." See 154, 155.

44. No. 154. 'Ila deviyam, or Rádhica svantanamu.

1—4 asvásams, padyas without tica: fair copy.

A thin folio, good French paper, bound in country calf and lettered; the binding much worn.

45. No. 155. 'Ila deviyam.

1—4 asvásams, padyas, with tica:

A fair copy, on good foolscap, neatly written. The book is a folio, of medium thickness, half bound in cloth and calf, lettered, used.

46. Atta bhágavatam, or Satyabhâuma vésha cat'ha.

A portion of the Bhágavatam adapted to the stage; the hero and heroine being Krishna and Satyabhauma: dvipada verse and a mixture of other measures—songs; áditálam and átta tálam technical terms for measure of verse; a few rounded stanzas.

On the amour of Krishna and Satyabháuma.

Among other matters the kóravánchi; that is, when Krishna hid himself in sport, Stayabhávma went about every where seeking him, and at last found him—their meeting represented; with like matters; adapted to the taste of an Indian audience.

The book is a thin folio, country paper, bound in rough calf-

47. No. 168. Sect. 3. Rádhicasvantanam.

1—4 asvásams—tale of Rádhica, or 'Ila.

"Rádhicasvantam, or the melting soul of Rádhica, adopted daughter of Rádha, the favorite mistress of Krishna.

"An amatory poem written by Palani a dancing girl, mistress to the rajah of Tanjore, named Vira Pratápa sinha.

"This poem is exceedingly rare. Three M.SS. were obtained, all imperfect; but, in different places, set right by Vencatanarsu. The lady herself did not compose the whole; parts display much learning. The names of relatives are Mahratta, not Telugu. Her tutor Rághavá-chari probably aided her. Parts show a female hand. These are in changing metres; the easiest and lowest rhymes."

See various notices supra of preceding copies.

The piece is the third out of five, in a folio book.

For the other sections see XIV.

48. No. 169. Purúruvas charitram.

By Cavi rája Manōranjánam 1—5 asvásas.

The tale is founded on pauranic legends, and the time is the earliest antiquity, at the beginning of the chandra vamsa, or lunar line; but it is made a vehicle of matters, which even the filthy Voltaire might have hesitated to write in his own name.

Náreda was a king for performance on the vina or lute. Kundini purom a town is described. Brahmans in it are described: the king, his courtiers, and his courtezans, and also vaisyas or merchants of the place, described. Account of Purúruvas chaeraverti. Náreda paid a visit to Purúcvas. Náreda taught ethics to Purúruvas, and Purúruvas discoursed with Náreda on vairāgyam, or renunciation of the world. Náreda then went to Sverga, Indra's world described. On the dancing of vezyas or courtezans. Indra discoursed with Náreda. Hence Náreda is represented as narrating to Indra, in the hearing of the courtezans, concerning the birth, lineage, and valor of Purúruvas.

Chandra loved Tára the wife of Vrihaspati, and took her to his town. Budha was born to them. Birth of 'Ila; but as Sudhyumna a male Sudhyumna went out to hunt—hunters described. He trespassed on the vana viváha or privacy of Siva and Parvati, and became a woman. A curse rested on the wilderness that, if any man entered it, he should change his sex. The female bore the name of 'Ilavati. She and Budha become mutually enamoured. As the result of their intercourse, Púrúruvas was born. Siva appeared to Náreda muni, Siva gave to 'Ilaváli the gift of being one month a man, and another month a woman, Sudhyumna thus ruled, both as a man and a woman, Vasishta taught Purúruvas: when he was of sufficient age, Sudhyumna caused him to be crowned, and himself retreated to a life of penitential austerity. The rule of Purúruvas. His wars with the people of saca dvipa (Scythians). The ruler of that country fled away: Purúruvas proceeding, conquered in the eight regions; that is, in all directions. These wars Náreda, as a minstrel, described to Indra. The courtezans Rhemba and Urvasi became enamoured of Purúruvas on hearing of his heroic actions. The person of Urvasi described. She loved Purúruvas; Náreda returned to his place. One named Marutu, a regent of wind, took away Urvasi—she was comforted by her nurse, or female companion. Her abuse of Manmata the god of love. She entered the aforesaid Vana viváha wilderness. Information was conveyed to Purúruvas, he rescued her; and thenceforward their amours are particularly detailed. In the sequel Urvasi returned to Indra's world. The latter portion is the subject of Cáli dása's drama which is more delicately managed; and with other variations. The earlier portion is pauranic. Ovid has a legend about Tiresias, whose sex had been changed. The legend seems to be a hieroglyphic for a revolution of religious opinion of the greatest following consequences; continuing to the present day. But poets lay hold of such figures; and, by hunting down the metaphor, spoil every thing they touch.

The book is a thin folio, of medium thickness, French paper, bound in country calf, and lettered; the binding worn.

49. No. 171. Cavi karnarasayanam, or Mándhata charitra, padya cavyam.

By Narasinha cavi. 1—6 asvásams.

Yuvanésva was a king of the Surya vamsa or solar line. He carried an egg to the hermitage of a rishi. It fell and broke, and the hermit cursed him. In some mystical way the egg entered the womb of the king's wife. At the dictate of Vasishta, the king made a sacrifice, with a view to obtain a son; on a son being born, the king died. His wife thought on Indra, who said the aforesaid curse was the cause and gave the king life again. The child was named Mándhata. He was crowned, and anointed; and he conquered all kings. He ruled over the conquered countries. All kings did him homage. Afterwards there was war between Mándhata and Rávana. Siva appeared to them both. Siva praising the courage of Mándhata, gave a gift to him. Mándhata conquered Ravana. Indra came to Mándhata and praised him for his prowess. There was a king of Kontala désam, named Kontaléndrudu, who had a daughter named Vimalangi. In order to get her married, he sent her portrait in various directions. Mándhata sent his protrait to Vimalangi. She seeing the portrait loved him. Their marriage took place, &c., &c. Mándhata came to Ayoddhya. He performed penance-

Vishnu appeared, Mándhata worshipped him. After many praises rendered, Vishnu said "There is no one greater than I am;" and gave to the king beatification, in consequence of his having ruled with great devotedness to Vishnu. There is one, or more than one notice of this tale, under the 1st Family, with which this one may be compared.

The late owner refers to the Vishnu puránam, Telugu V. 107 Bhágavatam IX, sect. 6, 7—wherein the tale of Mándhata is given. This copy contains variations from four M.SS.; lacunæ supplied by another M.S. from Guntoor. "Mándhata was son of Yuvanasva a descendant of the Surya race of kings."

The book is a folio, of medium thickness, various papers, various readings, bound in country calf, and lettered; worn, and the back damaged.

50. No. 172. Another copy.

This is a fair copy, written on one page only, the other one blank, no corrections.

The book is a folio, of medium thickness, good French paper bound in sheep, used.

51. No. 173. Sect. 1. Bahúlásva charitram. 1—5 asvásams vide supra 37, No. 134, Sect. 2.

A tale of a king Bahulásva or Bahulásyudu and Krishna, and various matters of connected bearing. For Sect. 2, see XIX.

The book is a folio, medium thickness, French paper, bound in paper, worn and injured.

52. No. 174. Vasu charitram savyakhyanam. The tale of Vasu with a commentary. By Bhatta murti, 1—6 asvásas.

This piece, though considered to be a first rate classical poem is so difficult that no one, however learned in these matters, could read it without a glossary, or comment. The paraphrase here given, is also, not easily intelligible. It is merely a fictitious love tale; with abundance of scenic descriptions interwoven. Brief notices have heretofore been given, from foregoing copies.

The comment is by Soma krita Vidvajana Ranjini; and this was carefully copied out for his own use, by Zalluri Appayya Pandit, in the employ of the late owner; who observes.—"This is the older commentary, composed about 1750 A. D."

The book is a thick folio, foolscap, looking old, done up in country pasteboard, and worn.

53. No. 175. Bala Ráma charitram, 1—6 asvásams. See the next following No.

The book is a folio, of medium thickness, old foolscap; half bound, calf and marble paper, lettered, used.

54. No. 176. Bala Ráma charitram. 1—6 asvásams.

Paricshit of Hastinápuri enquired concerning the lives of Bala Ráma and Révati; and how Révati came to be obtained in marriage. In reply, a description is given of a flower garland—a description of Maliyavati a female. Bala Ráma described. Nárada came and told him the news of the country; giving him a description of Révati; Indra came to her residence. A description of Rhemba, a courtezan of Indra's world, is introduced, with the usual connected indelicacies. Révati sent a talking bird (maina) to Bala Ráma. He talked with it, and the bird came back, and talked with Révati. It again went to Bala Ráma, and described Révati. A female messenger came to Révati; and told her the pains he was suffering on her account. The result was an interview. Révati was astonished. Again she sent her nurse with power of mantras to him. Bala Ráma visited Révati, who cried for joy. She put a garland on his neck, with praises. The consequent marriage described. Bala Ráma put konkanam on Révati's forehead, and tied marriage bracelets around her wrists. The marriage symbol was tied on the neck of the bride. Praises or epithalamium, by relatives Then Révati went with Bala Ráma, when he returned to Dwaraca puri. Révati lived in the same house, as his wife, &c. In this way the enquiries by the ruler at Hastinapuri were answered.

The book is a folio, of medium thickness, common French paper, edges uncut, country paste boards, covers.

55. No. 177. Aniruddha charitram.

1—5 asvásams.

"With a commentary written at the desire of C. P. Brown, (Esq.) by Paidipati Venkatnarsu 1834. Canupati Appaiyya, the author of this poem, also wrote the tale of Purúruvas."

The subject, in the general outline corresponds with the 'Usha parinayam; only the heroine therein takes precedence.

There is an English abstract at the end of the book; but it is too licentious to be here copied. The following may suffice.

Dwaraca described. Aniruddha was son of Pradhyumna (son of Krishna) by Rati; he was betrothed to Rucomalóchana, whose person is described. Bánásura pleased Siva by means of music. His daughter 'Usha was lovely. She went on a formal gypsy party. She fell asleep in the woods, and dreamt of a fine youth. On awaking, her grief was very great. Her portrait was sent out for inspection. Portraits of young men were called. At length a portrait of Aniruddha reached her, and she recognized in him the youth she had dreamt of. A variety of poetical common places follows. Chitra-rekha a handmaid, was sent in search. She found Aniruddha and took him by stealth to 'Usha. She hid him in a closet. Much indelicate matter. At length suspicions arising, Aniruddha was caught, and was imprisoned, by Bánásurà. Náreda came and told the news to Krishna, who set out for war. The town of Banásura was besieged. Krishna fought with Siva. At length Cotari the mother of Bánásura interposed; but in vain. The battle described. Krishna cut off Bánásura's thousand arms, two excepted. He ordered the pair of lovers to be produced. They were placed in a chariot, and he thus returned with them to Dwaraca. The town; the splendor of the pair described. 'Usha had a son named Vajrudu (diamond one). He grew up. Náreda came to a sacrifice made by Aniruddha and praised his son. Aniruddha's great felicity. Singularly enough, reflections on the vanity, and folly of human kind, close the piece.

The book is a thin folio, two kinds of paper, bound in calf, lettered, worn.

56. No. 178. Aniruddha charitram.

1—5 asvásams, padya cávyam.

This has the original only, without any other comment, than a few various readings, and marks of reference.

The book is a thin folio, extra foolscap, half bound, and lettered, worn.

57. No. 217. For Sect. 1, see XV.

Sect. 2. Bhadra parinayam.

By Peddana cavi. 1—3 asvásams, padya caryam, without glossary, or various readings. A fictitious poem on the ordinary commonplaces of love, and marriage.

Bhadra was one of Krishna's inferior wives. The entire book is a folio of medium thickness.

58. No. 248. Bhanumadvijayam.

1—5 asvásams v. 27, No. 107, supra.

"The Bhanumad Vijayam, or adventures of Bhanumad, written by Velagapúdi Krishnayya, is a modern poem, written about A. D. 1700."

The book is a royal 8vo. of medium thickness, country paper, bound with flowered paper, and lettered.

59. No. 265. Kanaca ranjita sic'hámani parinayam—padya cavyam
By Zakiletti Vencata ráma.

1—6 asvásams, the 6th defective.

A fictitious poem, similar in kind to 57.

The book is a thin folio, good paper, half bound in cloth and calf, and lettered.

60. No. 266. Abhimanya viváha, the marriage of the son of Arjuna.

By Chenna Bhattáchárya.

1—5 avsásams, dwipada—metre.

The late owner's note :

"This M.S. belonged to a Brahman named Tattacharya, who took away the original; in the end two other copies were met with. This is one of the most agreeable poems in the Telugu language. Its plan is Braminical; yet all the gods and gooddesses, and heroes and heroines, are described as ordinary folks; behaving in an easy, natural manner. The style of language is pure, free, and beautiful."

It has a few English notes, in half margin at the end.

The book is a folio, of medium thickness, good paper, half bound in calf, and lettered.

61. No. 268. Chátu dhara padyálu : various stanzas, 1st and 3rd asvásams, the 2nd wanting.

"Anthology, and other short compositions in verse."

"These verses I collected, either on account of their beauty, the celebrity of composers, or their utility in illustrating the language. Many are from oral tradition alone. Such short compositions often have more real poetical merit than those which, being larger, are turgid and lifeless."

The book is a thin quarto, old, paper of peculiar fabric, bound in rough calf, injured.

62. No. 283. Kokosastram, or Kalà sastram.

1—3 asvásams.

An ars amoris. Classification of women, in four divisions. Indications as to agreement, or disagreement of sexes; from form, features and the like. Temperaments of women. Fanciful classification of the female sex; from divine, human, &c., down to asinine, monkey-like and devilish. Modes of feminine endearments. Dispositions of women of various countries, as portions of India. Indications of love, indifference, or dislike; and grosser matters, needless to be specified.

Brief marginal notes by the late owner, here and there occur.

The book is a thin folio, good paper, half bound, damaged

63. No. 290. Krishna lila vilásam.

1—3 asvásams.

The sports of Krishna. Description of Mat'hura. Birth of Krishna, his boyish play in stealing butter, and the like. Description of Rádha his aunt. His going to her house—and details of their amour—Krishna a player on the pipe. Hot winds described. Description of Rucmini his future wife, &c.

The book is a narrow thin folio, country paper, bound in rough calf.

1—3 wanting, 4—8 asvásams the end.

The personal apparance of Rhemba described. Her interview with Náreda, who told her Krishna's sports, and actions. Certain conditions were stated as to his bringing about an interview, as a pander. These were connected with the worship of Cáli or the Sacti puja. They go to Krishna's quarters and instruct Satyabhauma.

The book is a folio, of medium thickness, country paper, one board remains, one gone.

65. No. 334. Gópala lila suddhála hari padyálu; or stanzas concerning a chief named "Hari, fully exemplifying the sports of Krishna."

1—3 asvásams padyas.

The name is a fiction; but whether it is a lampoon of some one who would be recognized, or straightforward, to please vicious tastes, does not appear. The said chief saw a female named Gáuri (fair one, a name of Parvati) and fell in love with her. Their amorous intercourse is fully, and particularly described. Besides, that chief had other women in keeping, who were accustomed to sport, and bathe in his Nandivanam or pleasure grounds. The people of the neighboring town were accustomed to steal into the gardens; and to bathe, and sport with those women. This was done by agreement, and set contrivance; especially on Fridays. Hence the idea of a possible lampoon.

The book is a thin quarto, country paper, without binding, the outer paper damaged.

66. No. 335. Abhimanyu viváham.

By Chinna Bhattaracudu; dwipada metre, vide 60, No. 266, supra. Compare XIV 30, No. 317, 6 infra.

Sashi rekha (moon-line) a female was married to Abhimanyu. The marriage was celebrated with pomp, and extraordinary rejoicing; with the attendance of many persons. The bridegroom was Arjuna's son, by Subadhra, sister of Kṛishna. He was very skilful. From the womb he was taught a mantra called chacata yugam, for killing enemies. He was born of full age. He was taught the use of Danur bánam (rocket?) with mantra, to give it effect. He was skilful in archery, brave clever, and the like.

The high estimate of the former owner is given above.

The book is a thin folio, foolscap, bound in flowered paper, and lettered.

67. No. 337. Two pieces.

1.) Ahalya sancranda vilásam.

By Sangamésvara cavi, 1—5 asvásams.

This piece is not by the same author as in either of two former poems—the one by Vencata Kṛishna, the other by Singana cavi. A danseuse and a king take the place of Gautama's wife, and Indra. Dancing performances described, &c.

2.) Abhimanyu parinayam.

1—4 asvásams; padya cavyam.

By Lacshmi pati.

The title, and the author, differ from the foregoing.

Abhimanyu was of the Pándu race of Hastinapuri. Details of his splendor—leading on to the marriage. The examination was only cursory.

The book is a quarto, of medium thickness, foolscap paper, flowered paper binding, lettered.

V. Ethical.

1. No. Sect. 1. Kuchiló vyakánam.

1—3 asvásams; padyas.

Kuchil was a fellow-scholar with Kṛishna, or an early companion. His lot was different, as he was in great poverty, and had many children. His wife urged him to go, and visit Kṛishna. A vehicle is thus formed for many remarks on riches, and poverty ; somewhat in the style of " the Twa dogs" of Burns ; only more refined.

For Sect. 2. see IV.

2. No. 11. Sumati satacam, 150 padyas, with vyakyánam, or a tica to each apothegm.

" Sumati" means " good sense," and it seems to have been given as an epithet to an author unknown. Ethical stanzas adapted to schools. Many of them are translated into English in the book.

It is a small thin quarto, good paper, bound in sheep, and lettered.

3. No. 24. Kuchalavópakyanam.

" The preface is mutilated; the book begins at page 4, and is complete."

" Regarding this fable, see Penny Cyclopædia in Sanscrit, page 398." C. P. B."

Vide supra 1. No. 4.

The book is a small quarto, good wove paper, half bound, and lettered.

4. No. 27. Vemana padyálu.

1—3 asvásas, known as Dherma pura, Narasinha satacam.

The former owner states:

" This is a new edition of Vémana 1842."

" A new edition enlarged and corrected by the aid of numerous M.SS. This edition seems to contain all that is worth printing. About 2,000 verses remain, which are unworthy of publication : they are chiefly on mystical subjects."

The book is a small quarto, good paper, bound in calf, and lettered.

5. No. 29. Vémana ; padyas.

3 asvásams and part of 4th.

" The verses of Vemana new edition 1842. In this edition the text has been carefully revised by a learned Telugu poet. The arrangement is also somewhat changed : those verses which appear spurious, being placed at the end of the volume. The volume contains 1,165 stanzas, selected out of———."

The book is a small quarto, good paper, bound in calf, and lettered.

6. No. 31. Vemana in four volumes, and a fifth as a supplement.

These volumes seem to be the early copies from which the first edition of Vema's ethics were printed at the College, Madras, in 1829; a thin 8vo. volume with ½ pages Telugu, and English translation at the foot of each page. In these M.S. volumes, the Telugu is on the left hand page, and the English version on the right hand. The 5th vol. or supplement, appears to contain obscene matter, which unhappily mingles with all native ethics; and, as such, was considered to be unfit to meet the public eye. There were also verses styled Ganapati of like kind, probably picked out from sacti books, which cover such things, under the name Ganapati.

Octavo volumes, old, but good paper, bound in sheep, with paper labels.

7. No. 34. Brihana rajiyyam.

By Kotta Lanca Mritanjayan.

In three volumes.

The Sanscrit original by Brihannagudi: translation by the above.

The subjects: on duties and observances which may be deemed religious; similar to the Dhermóttara parts of some puránas; si liceat, the practical after the legendary, or doctrinal portions. Abstract of course is needless.

Long octavos, thick China paper, bound in sheep, a little worn.

8. No. 35. Sulacshana sáram, or the essence of good qualities.

An invocation to Krishna is prefixed, which is no very good indication.

Native ethics.

The book is a long 8vo., thick China paper, bound in sheep.

9. No. 98. Six pieces.

For Sect. 1, see XX. For Sect. 2—4, see XIII.

Sect. 5. Vemana padyálu.

„ 6. Venkata rámana satacam.

Both on native morals.

The whole book is a thick folio, boards.

10. No. 141. Three pieces.

1,) Parama yógi vilásam.

1—5 asrásam, dwipada metre, incomplete; exercise, duties and discipline, of one who separates from the world.

2.) Samira Cumara vijayam.
1—7 asvásams, padya cávyam.

3.) Vemana padyálu 1—961 stanzas.

"This is transcribed from T. T. 361, being the M.S. referred to in letter C."

The book is a folio, of medium thickness, good paper, half bound, and lettered.

11. No. 179. For Sect. 1, see XX.
Sect. 2. Vemana padyálu.
Bendamuri Lanca prati, 116 padyas.
The book is a royal 4to., of medium thickness, half bound, and lettered.

12. No. 182. Bhagavat gita: padyas.
1—4 asvásams 1—218 adhyáyams.
It appears to be a complete copy of this intercalary chant of Krishna in the Bhárotam, requiring no further notice.

Some native, it is presumed, has put into the book a sort of genealogical tree, issuing from three roots, the sátvica, rájasa and támasa gunas, leading to a stem formed of the five elements represented by small circles, and these branching out to larger ovals, representing various sactis, or mothers. There are three pages of explanation of these symbols. Brahma, Vishnu and Siva are recognized; but are represented by very small circles; the sactis are larger ovals variously colored. It is intended possibly to give an illustration of the mystic portion of the chant; and is apparently of that class of sactis; who, without excluding the male energy, give to the female energy the predominance.

13. No. 263. Four pieces.
For Sect. 1, 2, see XX. Sect. 3, see XIX.
Sect. 4, Vemana padyálu.
1—4 asvásams, 1,154 stanzas.
At the end is an index of metres, and words exemplifying them.
The whole book is a folio of medium thickness.

14. No. 270. Four pieces.
For Sect. 1, 3, see VIII. Sect. 2, see XIX.
Sect. 4. Vémana padyálu, 1,116 stanzas, with a verbal index prefixed.
The book is a folio, of medium thickness.

15. No. 277. Vémana padyálu.

"A collation of M.SS. intended for a new edition of Vémana 2834."

"Various readings alphabetically arranged, new epigrams (sententious maxims) added.

"The 1st edition of Vémana, with English translation, Madras, 1829, was merely a selection. The 2nd edition, in 1839, only an extended selection; the text occasionally amended.

1st edition 623 verses, 2nd edition 1,164 verses.

"A final edition to be prepared in this volume 2,300 to 3,000, from more than 40 M.SS."

Compare 5, No. 29, supra.

The book is royal 4to. thick French paper, with many slips interleaved, half bound in sheep, and lettered "Vémana 1834."

16. No. 278. Vémana; Book 4th, "on mystic devotion."

"A supplement of extracts with an English interlined translation of each sentiment, or distich.

The book is a long, thin folio, French paper, bound in flowered paper, lettered.

17. No. 279. Sect. 1. Vémana padyas.

3 asvásams: no renderings.

For Sect. 2, see VIII.

The whole book is a thick folio, boards.

18. No. 289. Two pieces.

1.) Sumati satacam, 150 stanzas with tica; a school book.

2.) Bhascara satacam, 111 stanzas, with tica; like in subject and in use.

The book is a narrow folio, of medium thickness, bound in rough calf, used.

VI. Fables.

1. No. 79. Pancha tantra, five devices.

In two volumes:

Vol. 1., contains 1 Mitra bhédam, or the art of dividing friends, complete.

Vol. 2, contains 2 Sukṛta lábham, return for good done.

3. Zanti vigraha, treacherous simulation of friendship.

4. Labda násam, loss of property.

5. Asamprécsham, danger of hasty, or rash proceedings.

Folios, good paper, bound in country calf, lettered, recent.

2. No. 80. Pancha tantram, 2 vols.

Vol. 1. Mitra bhédam, and Sukṛta lábham.

Vol. 2. Zanti vigram, Labda násam, Asamprécsha kariyam.

This seems to be a rough copy, and earlier than the preceding one. It is in smaller handwriting.

The book is a thin folio, good paper, bound in calf and lettered, the binding worn.

3. No. 81. Pancha tantram.

The five devices, as above: a complete, and fair copy; corrected edition.

The book is a folio, of medium thickness, good paper, bound in calf, and lettered; binding worn.

4. No. 82. Pancha tantram.

The five devices, complete, with various readings.

The book is a thick folio, good paper, half bound and lettered, the binding injured.

VII. Grammar.

1. No. 38. Bhimaṇa chandasu.

"A treatise on Prosody, translated on opposite pages, with various remarks by C. P. B."

The book is a long octavo, old, but good paper, bound in sheep, worn.

2. No. 197. Three treatises.

1. Nannayya Bhatliyam.

The earliest Telugu grammar extant.

It has five divisions, following the order of Sanscrit grammar; and it has contributed, in a leading degree, to strain the Telugu language to a conformity with Sanscrit.

1. Sangnya parich'heda orthography.
2. Sandhi. ,, coalition.
3. Achanta. ,, vowels.
4. Halanta. ,, consonants.
5. Kriya. ,, verbs, and roots.

2.) Bála sarasvatiyam, a comment on the foregoing piece, also in five chapters; brief as to 1—4; but much fuller on the 5th or Verbs, and their derivation.

3.) Ahobala pándityam, or otherwise termed Cavi sirò bhúshanam, a voluminous commentary, in Sanscrit, on the Nannayya Bhattiyam.

The book is a royal folio, of medium thickness, best paper, half bound in sheep, and marbled paper.

A page of writing, dated September 1827, by the late owner, is copied and inserted.

"The Telugu Grammar written by Nannaya Bhatt, which stands first in this volume, is deservedly celebrated for its great learning and exactitude. It is, however, extremely difficult. The acknowledged intricacy of the language is here very much increased by the plan of the work, which is entirely unintelligible to such as are not already expert in the language. A very extensive command of Sanscrit grammar is likewise requisite. Even those who have these advantages will find the axioms given in an inverted order, that greatly tends to render the whole unintelligible.

Thus the changes formed by elision, &c., in the cases and tenses are described before either of these subjects is defined; and exceptions to rules are placed before the rules themselves. The fundamental principle is placed at the close of each subject rather than at the beginning; and the whole is, as far as possible, made to assume a resemblance to Sanscrit; a language, the grammar of which is utterly dissimilar, in almost every part, to Telugu.

It is much to be wished that a plain grammar were written in Telugu for the use of the Natives; among whom grammar is now fallen into a degree of undeserved neglect; for which the circumstances above stated will account.

The present volume is in the handwriting of a very sound scholar, who thoroughly understood his subject; and yet, in every page, we find irregularities in orthography, from which his learning ought to have secured him. He is a Bramin named Boddapáti Subbanna.

The Bála Saraswatiyam, or first comment, on these Grammatical canons is not exhibited uniformly in all the copies—some manuscripts adding considerable details under certain heads."

3. No. 199. Appa caviyam.

1—5 asvásams.

A chapter, or table of contents, is prefixed, and a translation of that table by the late owner is here given.

Appa Caviyam Suchica.

Translation of the above table of Contents.

The book is a folio, of medium thickness two kinds of paper, bound and lettered, but damaged.

4. No. 204. Sect. 1. Andhra caûmudi, padya caryam, incomplete. See other notices of this work.

For sections 2, 3, see XX.

Part of a comment on the 'Andhra caûmudi, by Buchayya, Mr. Brown's moonshee, is appended.

The book is royal 8vo., best paper, uncut edges, boards, worn.

5. No. 205. Vaikṛta chandrica.

This work, though mixed up with Telugu books, is more properly Sanscrit. It is on the subject of genders.

It is a thin folio, country paper, half bound and lettered, worn.

6. No. 314. Sect. 1. Cavi sirobhushanan.

By Ahóbaliya pandit.

A comment on the grammar by Nannayya bhatt, which appears to be also known as the Chintámani. On varna—gurittam, letters—sandhi, vowels, consonants, verbs.

For sect. 2, 3, see XII. for sect. 4 see I.

The book is a folio, of medium thickness, good paper, half bound, but damaged.

VIII. Historical.

1. No. 109. Four pieces.

For sect. 1, 4, see IV, for sect. 2, see IX.

Sect. 3. Kátama rája charitram.

Copied from a McKenzie M.S.

An account of a war between two local chiefs; one at Nallur (or Nellore) and another named Kátama, who would seem to have been a ruler at Amrávati. The Nellore chief is termed a Chola. Other notices will occur.

The entire book is a thin folio, half bound.

2. No. 133. For sect. 1, see IV.

Sect. 2. Bobbili cat'ha.

The local wars in which Monsr. Bussy was concerned, and Vijaya ráma, raja of Bobhalli on the other part. Preliminary details; with the final and general slaughter.

"Bobbili, a little N. W. of Chicacole, mentioned by Orme."

The account by Mr. Orme is somewhat full and circumstantial: native accounts vary in some particulars.

For section. 3, see XX.

Sect. 4, Kámamma cat'ha.

The husband of Kámamma, who was named Marayya, was head servant to the Marquis Cornwallis, for six years.

Details of incidents which then occurred. The Marquis was taken ill on the road; went home (?) and died.

Sections 2, 3, 4, were taken down from the mouth of a travelling minstrel; who sung popular ballads. He was employed for a month to recite what he knew; and the particulars were written down from his dictation.

Sect. 5. Account of the Véma reddiyalu, including notices of Chola rájas, and the Kakateyas, kings of Warankal, especially on their gifts to different temples; always the main point of history with Brahmans.

It is not known whence this piece came; but there are such notices in the Mackenzie papers. The entire book is a folio of medium thickness, good paper, half bound in cloth and calf, and lettered, worn.

3. No. 170. Yáyati charitram.

1—5 asvásams, padyas.

Account of Yayati's division of the earth, and great partiality in favor of his younger son. The fable is that, in old age he induced his youngest son (of four) to give him his capacity for sensual pleasure, in return for the largest share of the kingdom.

The former owner's note:

"This M.S. has been compared twice with other copies, and proves very correct.

"The nuptials of Yáyati and Devayana. Yayati was 5th king of the lunar race," i. e., if Budha be reckoned as the first.

[The time assigned to the division of the earth in the Mosaic chronology, agrees pretty well with the place and time given to Yáyati; but there is not much dependence to be placed on the list of the lunar race.]

The book is a folio, of medium thickness, country paper, injured; half bound and lettered, the binding damaged.

4. No. 233. Hyder charitram.

1—4 asvásams.

On the wars of Hyder and Tippoo, with various people, the English included.

[There is a Mahratti document of this kind in the McKenzie collection.]

The former owner's note:

"The Memoir of Hyder and Tippoo was written in Mahratta, from which the present Telugu translation was made at my desire. I prepared and printed an English translation, made from the Mahratta. The present Telugu version also should be printed." C. P. B. 1855, "This I present to the College."

The book is a folio, of medium thickness, half bound in sheep and lettered.

5. No. 270. Four pieces.

Sect. 1. Kátama rája cat'ha—dwipada. Yerugutí pátti potlata a scuffle, or blows of the people of a town called Yerugutti pátti.

It began about cows. The word Amravati puri occurs at the beginning, and the site of war was near that town.

"The principals are styled Nalla siddha chola maha rázu, and Kátama rázu gáru. Details of a war between them S.S. 1081, A.D. 1157."

"See local records, vol. 18, page 16—18, and McKenzie M.SS. No. 40, No. 316, and No. 7." These documents pertain to vol. 3 of the present work.

[This narative did not attract my attention when enquiring concerning Amarâvati, but it may be looked at, in that reference, some other time.]

For sect. 2, see XIX.

Sect. 3. Simhála dwipa kaifeyat.

Copied from the Mackenzie M.S. No. 910, old marks 124, C.M. 328, and the late owner refers to my notice of it in the Madras Literary Journal, Vol. 8, 51, July 1838. As such it appertains to vol. 3 of this work.

The war of Periya Krishnapa Nayaca, first against Tumbichi nayadu of Parama gudi; and then against the king of Ceylon, ending in the death of the latter; the abstract, so referred to, is somewhat full.

The book is a folio of medium thickness, on good paper, half bound in calf and lettered, the binding damaged.

6. No. 273. Three pieces.

1.) Bobbili vári cat'ha.

The war of Monsr. Bussy against the Zemindar of Bobhalli.

"This volume contains the Bobbili cat'ha or Rangha rao charitra; wherein Moosa Boose, i. e. Monsr. Bussy is described, as the murderer of the celebrated raja of Bobhali or Boobily, as the name is spelt by Orme."

2.) Cumára Rámuda cat'ha.

An account of two brothers, who were dreadfully treated by a guardian; and a war consequent thereon. See Vol. 3.

3.) Doti Kámmana cat'ha.

Account of a servant of Lord Cornwallis: on his death the widow of that servant burnt herself with his dead body.

[Sec. 2, No. 133, which is a copy on better paper than in this book].

The book is a very large quarto, of medium thickness, thin country paper, bound in rough calf.

7. No. 279. For Sect. 1, see V.

Sect. 2. Various papers copied from the McKenzie M.SS. described as being "written on country paper full of worms, and rapidly perishing."

—Tondaman palliyacara, as list of those local chieftains; the chief town being Virála malai, near Trichinopoly.

—Jambukésvara koil. Account of that temple on an island of the Cáveri, near Trichinopoly.

—Matsya kálalam—Retna giri isvara—Tiruvádu kotti váru—Toraiyūr pallaiyam—Ariyalūr pálliyacarer—Tiru Velláru—Chitambara—Chenji pālliyacārer—Manar gudi—Srî rangham—What are termed kaifeyats or accounts of those places, or persons.

—Kéraláchára Jamula madu kyfeat.

—Vellugotti vári vamsavali, a genealogy of the race of Reddis, who ruled near Tripety. Of this last there are two copies in the McKenzie M.SS. and one of them on good paper, and in good preservation. Reference to Vol. 3, of this work.

The book is a thick folio, on French paper, boards, used.

8. No. 294. Palnátti vira charitram.

Vol. 1, 3 scándas,—592 pages dwipada metre; not complete in this book, the remainder is found under the next number.

Reference to "Local records, Vol. 9, page 262, and Vol. 10, page 287," those records are copied from McKenzie M.SS. and appertain to Vol. 3, of this work.

Old historical ballads, border minstrelsy in simple style, sicut "Chevy chase." English notes are prefixed, or put in the margin.

The book is a folio of medium thickness, half bound in cloth and sheep, and lettered, French paper.

9. No. 295. Sect. 1. Palnáti charitra, the complement of the foregoing 1—170 pages.

This is termed "the Guntoor copy" or Gurzalu M.S.

The foregoing is styled Krishna Reddi's M.S.

For other sections of this folio, see XIV.

A combination of several landholders against the people of Gurzala, and Macharla, in the district of Palnád. It originated from a trifling cause; but women came to be mixed up with the fray, and it lasted from A. D. 1080 to 1087.

10. No. 297. Sect. 1. Palnátti charitram.

By Bála Ráma: dwipada, complete.

The original M.S. was supplied by Krishnama reddi, and this copy therefrom was written by Nellúri Vencata Subayya. The subject, disputes and battles of various (vîrain) braves; a great fire kindled by a spark.

For sect. 2, see XXIII.

11. No. 298. Palnátti vîra charitram; dwipada.

The latter part of the account, "but modern composition, different from the old original, the versification being much polished. The story is the same. The poet states that he copied it from a version by Śri nat'ha, in the McKenzie M.SS.; but he has lengthened it out tediously, and added separate episodes."

The Introduction is termed "mythological rubbish."

The book is a quarto of medium thickness, foolscap paper, half bound in cloth and calf, lettered.

12. No. 310. Palnátti charitram, the second part or cándam.

This is termed "the Gurzala M.S."

"This contains the second Part of the Palnátti charitram. The pages marked in the margin refer to the McKenzie M.SS."

Some sheets on blue French paper, belonging to another book, are bound up with this one.

The book is a very broad folio, thin, on country paper, without covers, a little injured, and liable to greater injury.

13. No. 315. Bobbili cat'ha or Rangha rávu charitram 1—3 asvásams.

By Pápa ráju cavi (vide Orme, Vol 2, p. 254.)

The narrative is as to the Zemindar; his birth, education, marriage, bravery; a war with the Nizam, by refusing to come when summoned. The affair with Monsr. Bussy, of disastrous consequences. In the sequel, the English interfered; and expelled the French from the Northern Circars; in which the English ascendancy was established.

The late owner refers to Memoir of India, by R. G. Wallace, author of Fifteen years in India, London 1824, with the addition, that the father of one of the Zemindar's wives was persuaded to kill them all: he thereupon cut his own throat. [It was a sad affair; and it may be noted that M. Bussy, successful up to that point, had an almost uninterrupted run of ill luck, down to his capture at Wandiwash, and the taking of Pondicherry.]

14. No. 318. Palnátti charitram, or otherwise Báruni cat'ha.

11 sections complete.

"The Palnad chronicle. This is a new edition."

The dispute originated at a cock fight; and was carried on by several landholders ("Barons; hence Báruni,") for seven years, against two towns of the Palnad: v. supra.

The book is a thin folio, foolscap, half bound, and lettered.

15. No. 332. Palnātti charitram.

"The 2nd part received from Palnad S.S. 938 (A.D. 1015-16) for seven years a war was carried on by Báddi nayadu."

Ancient details. Names of chief; as Venca deva rája, page 151—156, Anuga rája p. 245—248. Other chieftain's genealogy; his ill conduct p. 346, Koma rája's battle p. 473. See foregoing notices. The dispute was silly enough; but women, and pride, became mixed up with affair, and the war was a fierce one.

This book is copied in ink, and every page has alterations, or corrections; as if the result of collation with other copies. Among the preceding is a fair copy, from a general collation.

The book is a folio of medium thickness, half bound, and lettered.

IX. Hymnology.

1. No. 33. Prabandha rajiyyamu, or Sri Vencatésvara vilásam, various metres.

In two volumes, both numbered 33.

The general subject is the praises of Vishnu, as lord of Vencata giri or Tripety.

Long octavos, thick, China paper, bound in sheep, the binding worn.

2. No. 46. Ráma stava rájam.
By Cavi Malayya, "a Smarta niyogi."
1—3 asvásams.
Royal (or high) praise of Ráma.
A quarto copy book, half bound, good paper, the binding worn.

3. No. 109. For Sect. 1, see IV.
Sect. 2. Ráma stava rájyam, with a comment.
1—3 asvásams, as above.
"With various readings prepared for a printed edition; with a comment 1842."
For Sect. 3, see VIII. Sect. 4, see IV.

4. No. 110. Ráma stava rájyam, with a comment.
1—3 asvásams, complete.
This seems to be the clean, and corrected copy, prepared as above, No. 109.

"A treatise on mysticism."

"The old English poet Phineas Fletcher's "Purple island," is similar in device to this poem."

The book is a folio, of medium thickness, superior French paper, half bound in cloth, and lettered.

5. No. 111. Ráma stava rájyam, with a comment.

1—3 asvásams.

This is a copy, with interlineations, on very thin French paper.

The book is a thin folio, bound in cloth, and lettered.

6. No. 114. For Sect. 1, see XV.

Sect. 2. Vira Nárayana satacam, fragment only of a cento of verses, by a devotee of Vishnu.

For Sect. 3, see XIX.

The book is a thick quarto, country paper, boards, these are injured.

X. Indexes.

1. No. 30. Sumati sata chūcshicam, and Bhascara sataca chūcshicam, a glossary to both pieces, arranged ; 3 bhāgas or parts.

The former owner writes :

"In this volume are verbal indexes to the Sumati satacam and Bhascara satacam, followed by the same words arranged as a glossary, which I planned to facilitate a knowledge of these two initiatory school books."

The words are arranged for the glossary, and space is left for the meanings ; but this last is not given, except in the case of a very few words, and these few meanings are in English.

The book is a small quarto, French paper, bound in rough calf.

2. No. 137. Tárá súcshica, and index to the tale of Tárà.

A small folio, very thick, country paper, bound in sheep, a little injured.

3. No. 138. Táraza zánca súcshica ; an index to the same tale.

This appears to be a fair and corrected copy, from the above rough one, neatly written.

A thin folio, good paper, bound in country calf.

4. No. 183. An index to the Vasu charitram, or tale of Svaróchisa manu.

This verbal index to the Manu charitram, a celebrated Telugu poem, was compiled at Masulipatam in the year 1832, under the directions of C. P. Brown."

The book is a folio, of medium thickness, old, but superior paper, bound in country calf and lettered.

5. No. 184. Hamsa vimzati súcshica.

Two volumes, both numbered 184.

"Indexes to the Hamsa vimzati; a Telugu poem in 5 books. This edition was prepared, and the index compiled, under the directions of C. P. B. Anno 1832."

See 20 tales of the anser bird, under XX.

The book is a folio, of medium thickness, strong paper, with rough edges, bound in rough calf.

6. No. 286. An index to the Chandra rekha vilàsam an erotic poem, 1st volume.

A thick quarto, country paper, boards, these injured.

7. No. 291. Index to the Vemana verses.

"Shewing the place each verse occupies in each of nine collated M.S. copies. Compiled under the directions of C. P. Brown, Civil Service, Masulipatam, November 1824."

The book is a narrow folio, thin country paper, bound in sheep, used.

8. No. 336. "A minor Catalogue of books in the Telugu language only (contained) in the library of C. P. Brown, 1842."

"In the 1st part of this Catalogue the books are arranged alphabetically; in the second under classified heads, as Grammar, Poems, &c."

There is a larger Catalogue; and another like this for Sanscrit books, v. infra.

The book is royal 8vo. thin, wove paper, half bound and lettered.

9. No. 401. "Alphabetical Catalogue of Telugu manuscripts in C. P. Brown's library, up to September 1834."

It represents an incipient state of the collection; the manuscripts being but few in number; and the very great increase subsequently is explained under the next No. 402, in the book itself.

This book is a thin folio, country paper, the cover injured.

10. No. 402. "An alphabetical catalogue of M.SS. in the Telugu language in the library of C. P. Brown, formerly (1834) Assistant Judge at Masulipatam."

"The details of this Catalogue are given in a note at the end."

"The catalogue of the Sanscrit M.SS. is given in a separate volume."

Nearly two pages of matter, containing extracts from this manuscript Catalogue, with a few remarks added, having been directed to be expunged, I do not know that I can better fill up the lacune than by inserting the General Plan of this work; being somewhat amplified from the plan sent in to the College Board, before commencing, and nearly the same with a fuller copy supplied to the Board of Examiners, in March 1857.

General Index.

Note.—Generic headings are marked with Roman Capitals as numerals. Species, or books, by Arabic numerals, and a variety of books or parts, by Arabic numerals with a bracket. A difference of type is used to convey an idea to the eye of the relative importance of the matter. Native words are, with few exceptions, italicised.

11. No. 103. A rough continuation of the same Catalogue, with added works; only partially filled in; and with erasures by the pen.

The book is a thin folio, country paper, cloth back, and paper covers.

12. No. 404. "Two volumes." List of Telugu M.SS. in the library of C. P. Brown, 1835."

Vol. 1., No. 1 to 689, Vol. 2. No. 630, to 841, with some interior subdivisions; and then a repetition of some numbers, not in regular order. One line may explain: thus 175, 129, 160, 274. The 1st No. is 175,the last is 328. Repetitions of the included numbers, and much blank space.

The book is a small folio, thin country paper, cloth, with paper pasted over for covers; a little injured.

13. No. 405. An index to Sanscrit poems; only a little matter, very brief in one line; much intermediate space, and many blank leaves.

The book is a thin folio, country paper; paper pasted over cloth for covers.

Another volume No. 405, is a continuance of the brief index in one line, only partially filled in, and with many blank intervals.

This is a small thin folio, country paper, the cover damaged.

14. No. 406. An index of subjects among the Sanscrit books—as sacti books—mantra books, and other class divisions.

The pages are only partially filled.

A broad and thin folio; country paper cover, as in No. 404.

15. No. 407. "The mantra division of Charles Philip Brown's library of Sanscrit M.SS."

These are magical and sacti books. The first list is of palm leaf M.SS. No. 1—165 with many internal subdivisions, in some of the books, as made up of various pieces.

The second list is of M.S. paper books, "English form" No. 1, 140, with internal subdivisions.

The book is a folio, French paper, bound in rough calf.

16. No. 408. Abstract catalogue of Sanscrit M.SS.

There are several entries in English, as follows:—

(1.) "Abstract catalogue of Sanscrit M.SS. and Telugu books collected by C. P. Brown, C. S., MADRAS 1834."

" The present part contains alphabetical lists of each branch of learning arranged separately."

" Minuter particulars in the separate lists, out of which the present catalouge is merely abstracted."

" This catalogue is written in the Telugu character, wherein Sanscrit is as commonly written as in the Bengali character. But several of the M.SS. are in the Dêva nágari, others in the Bengali, Tamil (Grant'ha?) and Mahratti characters. All those prepared under my direction are written in the Telugu character."

The headings of Sanscrit M.SS. are Puránas, Vedanta, Law Veda, Poems, Dictionaries and Grammar, Hymns, Saiva, Jyotish, Pharmacy, &c.

2.) " Catalogue of M.SS. in the Telugu language collected by C. P. Brown, C. S., MADRAS, 1834."

" The present part contains alphabetical lists of each branch of learning arranged separately.

But being written in 1834, it does not include numerous books since obtained."

3.) " Catalogue of Sanscrit books on Mantra and Veda."

" The present division contains that portion of the Library, which was transcribed in the European form to be bound in volumes like the present one ;" (that is the catalogue book.)

4.) Continuation of the same.

5.) Catalogue of Sanscrit M.SS. collected by C. P. Brown, C. S., 1834.

" The present part contains the numerical arrangement of the books, written in the modern form."

The book is a broad folio, thin, on a kind of country paper, looking like the Serampore manufacture of that time, half bound in sheep, used."

There are some difficulties arising from a comparison of dates and places ; but not of material consequence ; and such as might possibly admit of easy solution, or explanation.

17. No. 410. " Catalogue of Sanscrit M.SS."

These are divided into two classes.

" Ancient form, and English form ;" and these are subdivided into eight generic divisions."

" Also a supplementary index to Sanscrit (Mantra) M.SS., 1838."

" The present supplement is arranged on the plan pursued in the general catalogue, the names being alphabetically placed, while the numbers denote the volumes. The numbers within the page are palm leaf volumes; those in the further column refer to M.SS. now prepared, and bound like English books."

" After the former mantra catalogue was finished, there remained numerous volumes of hymns, spells, charms and prayers (some in Sanscrit, and others in Telugu) devoid of all arrangement. To these the present Index will furnish a clue."

18. No. 411. Two pieces.

1.) " Catalogue of Sanscrit M.SS. in the library of C. P. Brown, C. S., Madras, 1834."

" This volume contains only those books that are in the ancient form, whether on palm leaves, or leaves of paper rolled up in cloth (Dafters.")

1— 161 Mantras magic, &c.
201— 395 Vedanta.
551— 582 Jyotisha.
601— 765 Natacam, Alancáram, &c.
801— 878 Vyakarana, Nighantu, Chandasu.
901—1014 Micellaneous in deva nágari.

More than nine hundred of these are in the Telugu character.

" Add to this, the catalogues, both ancient and modern.

2.) Catalogue of Sanscrit M.SS. collected by C. P. Brown, C. S., Madras, 1834.

This part contains the numerical arrangement of those works that are in the ancient form. This list commences from No. 201—the preceding numbers being occupied with mantra books.

The book is a broad folio, thin, half bound, country calf, good paper.

It is possible that considerable use was made of these Catalogues, in preparing the general list Catalogue in Telugu; occasionally adverted to, in this work, as the Library Catalogue; but they were not used in drawing up this work: the plan, and mode of filling it up, being original.

19. No. 412. "Alphabetical Catalogue of Sanscrit M.SS. in the Sanscrit language, in the library of C. P. Brown, Madras, 1834."

"The strength of this library is on Tantras, Puranas and Jangama books, Poems and plays—a sufficient No. of vocabularies, but no grammar, or law. Only one Jaina book. There are very few Vaishnava books in this library."

Free version from a Jaina book.

Disciple.—Sage preceptor of my youth,
Thou can'st tell me words of truth;
What is *bliss? which the way
Unerring, leading not astray.

Teacher.—Son of Knowledge! heed me well,
Many paths may lead to hell;
But the one strait, narrow path,
No side-turn, or double hath.
Revere thyself, and seek thy God,
Mark the way the wise have trod;
Follow this, the path to heaven;
Wisdom this, with nought of leaven.

Disciple.—Say what ornaments the lips,
Is it grammar, rhetoric, rage?
Is it skill that logic clips,
Or to chant poetic page?

Teacher.—Son! not so; and mark me, youth!
The simple ornament is truth.

The book No. 412, is a thin folio, French paper, cloth pasteboard, covers injured.

20. No. 413. Like subject; this book has the appearance of being merely a draft or rough copy, from which other copies have been transcribed. It is fairly written only on the left hand page; and on the right hand pages, mostly blank here and there, a little annotation is given.

* Mukti or mocsham; liberation from the trammels of body, and identification with the Supreme.

21. No. 414. "Catalogue of Sanscrit M.SS. in the library of C. P. Brown, Mádras, 1834."

This Catalogue is in eight volumes. It is written only on the left hand pages, and one half at the end is left blank.

The 8 volumes are intended for all the Catalogues; and there are now more than 8 vols. vide supra.

22. No. 418. Index to the 'Andhra bhásh'árnavam.

"The 'Andhra bh, is written in verse; being and imitation of the Amera Cosha; every verse containing the various synonymes."

Some details as to mode of using the book in preparation of a Dictionary; and minute details as to wrong, or vulgar orthography.

The book is a thin quarto, stout demy paper, doubled down to quarto, bound in country calf and lettered.

XI. Law.

1. No. 303. Law trials.

The records of trials are in the Telugu language. There are many of them; and, of course, of varying character, two decrees in appeal cases are recorded in the English language.

The book is a broad folio, thin country paper, half-bound, marble paper and calf lettered, the binding injured.

2. No. 305. Decrees, &c., in the Masulipatam Court, recorded in two languages.

At the end of the book, reversed are exercises in Telugu, and English idiom, bearing the date 1833.

The sentences which are translated, as examples, seemed designed to explain and illustrate a variety of details, and subterfuges, connected with Court transactions.

Perhaps there are few axioms more valuable than one by Lord Bacon; which is, "I would have every man know enough of law, to be able to keep out of it."

The book is a broad folio, thin country paper, bound in red leather.

3. No. 306. "Kirlampadi, Masulipatam, and other Court's trials of cases."

"C. P. Brown—The Kirlampadi trials."

These are in Telugu only, with questions and the answers of witnesses.

4. No. 309. Telugu trials, with legendary instances, 196 urzees or petitions on 372 pages.

At the end, letters of the alphabet are made use of to designate the quality, or character of each complaint; as A. easy, P. private, P. P. doubly private, X. difficult, and the like. "A. E. easy, and intelligible. A woman by a dream discovered a buried idol."

The legends are all instances brought to illustrate, or confirm a plaint; somewhat as if a plaintiff were to cite Ven. Bede, or Mathew Paris, or Froissart.

The book is a broad folio, of medium thickness, demy paper, half bound, in green cloth and leather back.

5. No. 311. An appeal case.

Lettered on the back "Inuganti trial 1832."

The somewhat extensive record of a suit, from the decision of which there was an appeal to the then Provincial Court; by which the first decision was annulled, and the fine that had been imposed was remitted.

Though a case of small consequence per se it would seem to have been magnified in importance, by the appeal and connected circumstances.

The book is a small quarto, of medium thickness, demy paper, bound in sheep, and lettered.

6. No. 319. Record of three trials in the Criminal Court at Rajahmundry.

Petition—depositions—annotations—decisions.

"C. P. Brown, Acting Judge."

Neatly written, but on very common country paper, towards the end injured by book-worms.

The book is a thin folio, half bound, in sheep, worn.

7. No. 320. The three Kirlampadi trials, conducted by C. P. Brown, as Judge, 1834.

"I preserve these copies of the trials; because being of an interesting nature, they will be useful to those who are learning Telugu

The English translation has the appearance of having been done, in the rough, by some native: it is: however, sufficiently plain to be intelligible.

"Case No. 1. Murder of Chinni Pelligadu, and a gang robbery to the extent of plus Rupees 5,000."

Vide supra as to the Telugu of those cases; this book is entirely filled with the English translation.

It is a folio of medium thickness, common country paper, half bound in sheep, and much worn.

8. No. 368. Guntoor trials 1842.

Before Mr. Stokes, Collector and Magistrate, and Mr. Newill, Head Assistant Acting Magistrate. Dates, September 1842, January 1843.

2nd. Trial 1847—The intention of this book seems to have been to initiate young Civil Servants at College to usage of the language of Mofussil Courts and practice; and, as such, made use of by the College Board.

The value of these official documents is doubtful: such details must, however, occur in the practice of suits of law; and there are many useful purposes to which a student in common law could apply such documents.

It is a folio, of medium thickness, foolscap, bound in sheep.

9. No. 382. Vada gittadi mokaddamálu.

Records of trials in Courts.

Arzees (complaints) and depositions solemnly affirmed before H. Stokes, Esquire, and like documents, relative to Mofussil practice of common law.

The book is a thin quarto, demy paper, bound in country calf.

XII. Lexicography.

1. No. 50. Vencatésándhram, or Andhra nighantu, incomplete.

"The Vencatésándhram, a vocabulary, of pure Telugu in verse."

The book is a long 8vo. thick, China paper, boards, injured.

1½. No. 57. Andhra dipica.

By Mammadi Vencayya 1805.

Some notice of this lexicon is contained in Ben. Asiatic Journal, April 1817, p. 364, as having been given to the College Board.

The book is a folio, half bound in cloth and country calf, good paper, lettered.

2. No. 198. Andhra bhāshārnavam, or sea of the Telugu language. 1—3 cándams.

It follows the plan and order of the Amera cosha. It has no tica. Andhranáma sésham is a supplement of Telugu words, not in the primary portion.

The book is a thin folio, French paper, bound in country calf; worn, and damaged.

3. No. 200. Amera cosha—The second cándam only. The original slócas are explained by a Telugu tica.

4. No. 201. Andhra dhátu pat'ha, otherwise Dhátu mála.

By Pattabhi Ráma Sástri, formerly Head Master of the College of Fort St. George.

A continuous list of roots, with increments, and terminations to form words.

The former owner observes:—

"The original of this very valuable work is in the College, and I am informed that no copy, except the present one, was ever taken. See page 4, of Mr. Ellis's note on Campbell's grammar."

The book is a royal quarto, thin, on thick paper, half bound in country calf with marble paper.

5. No. 202. Ameranucu Andhra vyakhyánam a Telugu glossary to the Amera cosham.

In 3 cándams.

1. Svcrga to vári verga.
2. Bhâmi to Indra.
3. Vizeshanigna to lingadi.

It contains a tica to each word, not in the form of slocas, but each word untied.

The book is a small folio, of medium thickness, country paper, bound in sheep and worn.

6. No. 203. Section, 1. Ameranucu guru bála bodhica a tica to the Ameram.

Only the 1st cándam, svcrga to vári verga.

Sect. 2. Andhra náma sangraham, padyas ; and Andhra náma sesha lik'hitam.

A collection of Telugu words, and a supplement of words deficient in the primary.

For section 3. see I.

Sect. 4. Deshyamu Telugu, a lexicon of native words, without admixture of Sanscrit; that is Telugu proper; the Sanscrit having greatly disguised the language; v. 9. infra.

For section 5, see XVIII.

The book is a narrow folio, thick, country paper boards; a little injured.

7. No. 207. For section 1, 2, see I.

Sect. 3. 'Andhrabhasyárnavam, or sea of the Telugu language. It follows the 1st cándam of the Ameram, not more v. 2, No. 198 supra;

Sect. 4. Vencatésándhram, or Andra bhásha sirobhushanam, by Vencatésa, in complete. See 1, No. 50 supra.

The book is a broad folio, thin, on good China paper, bound in sheep, used.

8. No. 208. Sect. 5. 'Andhra bhásha bhushanam or 'Andhra náma sangraham, otherwise Mahésándhram 1—5 ulásams.

A supplement of Telugu words added v. supra 6, No. 203, sect. 2.

For other sections, see XIV.

9. No. 228. Désya Telugu.

The 1st and 2nd M.SS. termed Orangolu glossary. "The 1st manuscript is in volume 203" (supra 6, No. 203, sect. 4) "and copy is in volume 445. I obtained the 1st M.S. at Masulipatam in 1833."

" The glossary is anonymous, and forms an appendix to the dipica noticing only such words, as that dictionary omits. It seems to be composed either by the author of the dipica, or some of his assistants. It is very learned, and correct."

" The 2nd M.S. was copied from Chinnayya's M.S. discovered in 1849. This varies in several places from the older copy. The Nos. in the margin refer to that older copy, which is placed in volume 445."

(This No. 445 appears to be wanting.)

The book is a thin folio, good paper, bound in sheep and lettered, worn.

10. No. 229. Deshyapatamalu nighantu or Orangola nighantu.

"This is an anonymous work: it seems intended as a supplement to the 'Andhra dîpica.

"There are three copies of the glossary in this volume; these three vary from each other in some places. These three are copied from three old volumes: one was found at Masulipatam, one at Madras, and one at Conjeveram."

The book is a thin folio 1, 2, French paper, 3, English paper, bound in sheep, lettered, worn.

11. No. 292. 'Andhra dîpica, a lexicon of Telugu, from a to csha, the end, complete.

"By Mamadi Vencayya."

The book is a small but thick folio, country paper, bound in country calf, lettered.

12. No. 293. Three volumes Pada nidhi.

"Word jewels," a Sanscrit and Telugu dictionary.

The plan seems to have been to take out words, from a Telugu and English Dictionary, and to give the meaning in Telugu only, for the use of natives unacquainted with the English language.

Vol. 1. From a to ka brevis; some words beginning with ga are intermingled; 30 parts or sections.

Vol. 2. From ka to ba page 356—523 regular; afterwards 524—547 defective, 31—60 parts, or sections.

Vol. 3. From ba to csha 61—90 parts, or sections.

This has the appearance of being a good and useful work; but to make it of effect it would need to be printed. As natives only would require, or use it, the sale would probably not repay the cost of printing; Natives being slow to pay a remunerating price for other works than those of the imagination; poetry or tales, like the Rámáyanam or Bháratam; or like such as are noted, in abundance, in the present volume.

13. No. 314. For Section 1, see VII.

Sect. 2. 'Andhra bhûshanam, from 1 to 33 sections, incomplete.

Sect. 3. 'Andhra nama sangraham, vide 6, No. 203, Sect. 2. This piece is not complete.

14. No. 419. Karkambati nighantu samuchayam.

According to a prefixed note in Telugu this lexicon was compiled by the orders of C. P. Brown, Esq., from four authorities.

1. Andhra nama sangraham. 3. Vencatesa nighantu.
2. Andhra nama zeshamu. 4. Samba nighantu.

It is accordingly a lexicon, or glossary of words.

It would seem from a Memorandum, at the beginning, that the object of this work was to make a rough copy for more careful selection and use, in preparing a Telugu and English Dictionary. The rough labor would seem to have been to a considerable extent injudicious; e. g. writing Sanscrit mythological names in the ordinary Telugu mode as Ramanandu, Hanumanta, for Rama, Hanuman: purely fictitious, and obsolete Canarese, or Hindustani words are also stated to be found in this lexicon.

As regards obsolete words a remark may not be superfluous. There are many old inscriptions known to exist, as yet imperfectly, or not at all translated. But if ever successfully, that is fully, decyphered, it is probable that they may be found to contain now obsolete words; and, in this point of view, though the lexicon would not deserve to be printed, yet it might be useful as a book of reference; and therefore it is desirable that the existence of an explanation of such words should be generally known.

XIII. Medical.

1. No. 98. For Section 1, see XX.

Sect. 2. Chicatsa sára sangraha; condensed essence of spells against diseases, incomplete.

Sect. 3. Vaidya sástram, on medicine, including the drishtadh yáyam, or section, on the quality of a messenger sent for a doctor.

Sect. 4. Vaidya madana káma retnam.

More of Sanscrit than Telugu—"the medical jewel of cupidinous lust"—on aphrodisiacs, or medical stimulants to venery.

For Section 5—6, see V. Ethical!

The book is a thick folio, French paper, boards which are injured.

2. No. 209. Sect. 1. Nidâna yóga retnavali no tica.

A treatise on medical diagnosis, in Sanscrit verse, out of place in Telugu books, but bound up with four pieces.

2.) Chintámani; padyas, and tica.

On medicine. An abstract of this book was given under first family M.SS.

For Section 3—4, see XV.

The book is royal quarto, superior paper, bound in flowered paper, lettered, worn.

XIV. Miscellaneous.

1. No. 1. Four pieces.

1.) Legend of Garudáchalam, a hill so called; mixed metre. An abstract was before given.

2.) Ráma chandra satacam, a cento of verses on Râma, mingled with ethics.

3.) Manavûr Krṣhna satacam, a cento by one named Krṣhna, and concerning the greater Krṣhna.

4.) Kirtanalu chants, or songs.

The book is a small, and thin quarto, two kinds of paper, bound in calf, lettered.

2. No. 18. Twelve pieces, chiefly centos; and, as such treating of ornate, or ethical, or miscellaneous matter; not needing special abstract.

1.) Jangamésvara satacam.

2.) Yadu vamsa bhushana satacam, panegyrical of the cowherd line of Krṣhna, and later kings.

3.) Ráma panchasati khanda, a section from some book, or names of Ráma.

4.) Srînivasa tārāvali, a chain of stars by Srînivasa, and concerning Vishnu.

5.) Calahasti satacam.

Written by Naranasinha svámi and his clerk Basava, and copied by Muc'havala, August 1831, a Vira saiva piece; and, according to a note, "printed at Madras."

6.) Sveta dhru nirukésvara satacam.

7.) Lávanya satacam.

8.) Cavi shavudappa satacam.

9.) B'halira cavi velpasatacam.

The foregoing three "printed at Madras."

10.) Kaluvayi satacam.

11.) Kotanda Ráma satacam; this also "printed at Madras."

12.) Lacshanárayana samvatam, one asvásam.

The book is a small, but thick quarto, French paper, full bound and lettered "new edition," binding much damaged.

3. No. 65. Three pieces.

1.) Rághuva Vasudéviyam.

1—5 asvásams.

A poem capable of being read in two senses; one giving the adventures of Ráma, the other those of Kṛshna.

2.) Balhana charitram.

By Balésvara cavi 1—5 asvásas. Recte "Ballaha charitram."

3.) Parama Yogésvara vilásam.

On the practices, and duties of ascetics.

See also V. 10, No. 141. 1) supra.

The whole book is a thin folio, French paper, bound in paper and lettered, the back broken.

4. No. 93. Four pieces.

1.) Harischandra upakhyánam.

By Cavi Sancara 1—5 asvásams.

On the tale of Harischandra, before abstracted.

2.) Padmini puránam mixed metre.

Legends, and praise of the most excellent class of women; somewhat pompously styled a puráṇam.

3.) Nija linga chichayya cat'ha.

A Jangama legend more than once abstracted supra. A thief turned Jangama; was falsely accused by the wife of a watchman; had his head cut off; was publicly justified, and taken to Cailasa. An English abstract is given at the end of the book; the tale is stupid and absurd; and sufficient abstracts of it have been given.

4.) Uttara Rámáyanam, dvipada, transcribed from an E. I. H. M.SS. see vol. 1, p. 670, and other abstracts in the foregoing portion of the present volume.

The book is a thick folio, good paper, bound in cloth and lettered, the binding used.

5. No. 95. Five pieces.

1.) Harishandra upákhyanam.

By Nalluri Sancara cavi 1—5 asvásams and 11 sections—complete.

2.) Kuchalópákhyanam.

1—3 asvásams.

See V. 1. No. 4, supra.

3.) Sánanda upákhyanam.

1—5 asvásams, or 10 sections.

By Siva Ráma cavi.

The legend of Sánanda visiting the world of Yama; and releasing imprisoned spirits; often before abstracted.

4.) Vemana padyas, ethical epigrams.

5.) Sampagi mana satacam, an ethical cento of verses.

The book is a thick folio, French paper, half bound, cloth and calf, lettered, used.

6. No. 125. Two books.

1.) Bartṛ hari satacam; 3 satacams, or centos complete; sub-divided into padadhis or decades. See vol. 1, page 141, for an outline of the varied contents.

2.) Lacshmi vilásam, padyas.

1—5 asvásams.

An ornamental piece, on the birth and marriage of Lacshmi, the sacti of Vishnu; of comparatively modern invention as produced in the Cúrmáva tára: compare vol. 1 p. 647—8, No. 1652.

The book is a thin folio, various paper, bound in calf and lettered; but the binding much damaged.

7. No. 128. Six poems.

1.) Jánaki rághavam, 1—5 asvasams.

On the marriage, and other adventures of Sita and Rama.

2.) Adi Lacshmi vilásam.
By Ackanapalli Narasinha cavi.
1—4 vilásams v. supra 2.

3.) Ananda sundari chaturya véla vilasam.
1—3 asvásams, incomplete.

"The amusement of the joyful goddess with four lances." A piece of the sacti kind; Sundari the feminine of Sundara, or Siva.

4.) Satánanda yogi satacam.

A canto on ethical, or ascetic topics.

5.) Cálahasti satacam, a cento on Jangama legends, elsewhere abstracted.

6.) Sambu Siva maha prabhu-ani satacam, an ascetical piece, by one termed "a great lord."

7.) Siva muncada satacam, a cento, by a Saiva devotee on Saiva matters.

The book is a thin folio, good paper, bound in calf and lettered, worn.

8. No. 179. Fourteen centos.

1.) Bála gópála, satacam.
2.) Lacshmi Nárâyana ,, 3.) Chamadaba ,, or
Niranjana ,, "illiterate."
4.) Dattatreya ,,
5.) *Sidhi ráma (*or raya) ,,
"I printed this set of hymns in 1840. C. P. Brown."
6.) Anya vara kolahalam.
7.) Soda lingana satacam.
8.) Bhairava ,,
9.) Allama prabhu ,,
10.) Jaganaya ,, 11.) Calahasti linga ,, 12.) Umana ,, 13.) Matri satacam
14.) Gubala chenna ,,

The book is a thin folio, good paper, full bound, worn.

9. No. 135. Five larger, or smaller pieces.
For Sect. 1, 2, see IV.

Sect. 3. Vedanta varuticam, no section: on the Vedanta system.

Sect. 4. Panchicaranam: no sections; on the five elements.

Sect. 5. Prasu devara cavyam, ascetical.

Sect. 6. Shadbuta linga vivaram, detail of the sixfold elemental Saiva symbol.

Sect. 7. Bhascara satacam, an ethical piece for schools.

The book is a thick folio, good paper, bound in flowered paper, lettered.

10. No. 142. Vani vilasam, or Sarasvati's amusements.

1—4 asvasams, padyas.

Of the large-palm leaf Manuscript among the McKenzie Manuscripts—bearing the same title I made a brief summary; which was printed in the Madras Journal of Literature and Science, as a part of my general Analysis. I had occasion to find, some considerable time afterwards, that it had been criticised, as too brief and imperfect. In consequence a much larger abstract in English, appended to this book, is here inserted, for the reader's better and fuller information. The proper place for my own shorter notice will be in the 3rd volume; which may be consulted: so diffuse a piece, as the following one, would not have been in place in the Analysis, above referred to; which was intended to give a succinct, though sufficient notice of books, for public information, and with a more special view to possible translation.

In a note Mr. Brown states—"This is transcribed from the one in the McKenzie library, written on palm leaves."

It will be seen the work is a sort of Encyclopædia of Native Science; beyond which the Native mind rarely travelled, until instructed through the medium of the English language. Hence it may be useful, for time to come, as a medium of comparison e. g, such once was the Native mind; what is it now?

VÁNI VILASAM.

This is a Telugu poem in padya metre, in four Cantos; written by Runga Sai: who in the preface, asserts that he wrote the Bhagavat in the dwipada metre.

The present work is a general miscellany upon all branches of Hindoo learning. The Introduction as usual describes the Naimisha forest, where Suta and other hermits abide; and Suta is requested to read lectures on a series of miscellaneous subjects. The Introduction extends from page 1—16. Then comes the Sasht-yantalu, or Dedication. Then the work commences.

Chapter I. is all copied from the Third Part of the Bhagavat.

On Divinity, Nature, &c., discussed in a conversation between Varuna and Bhrigu. Creation is described in the usual style; Vishnu is named as the all-pervading deity. On his heaven Vaicontha: its walls, gates, &c. The usual statements regarding the Virat Purusha or world considered as the form of the deity. The commencement of the Krishna avataram. The usual story of the four castes being created from Brahma's mouth, arm, thigh, and foot (page 26.) Description of Ananta the great serpent, who supports the world. The eight elephants, and eight mountains, that supports the heavens. The 25 tatmams or essences, (page 30). Then the birth of 100 sons to Siva, who began to devastate the world. Brahma advised them to reform, and to employ themselves in prayer to Vishnu. They obeyed, and departed to the solitudes of the forests. Then from his toe, breast, thigh, navel, &c., Brahma created Bhrigu, Narada, and other sages, seven in all. Then justice, injustice, &c., &c., were created from various limbs, wrath from the eyebrows, ocean from the penis, (page 33.) Then Brahma having created Saraswati, became enamoured of her, and the seven sages dissuaded him from this impropriety. Hereupon Brahma cast away his body (an expression for suicide) which became night, and assumed day as another body. Next he created the Vedas (p. 34) language, metre, &c., &c. Then he created the raxasas who all attacked him. Some wanted to devour him, others to ravish him, some being giants, and others being sylphs.

Thereupon Brahma again cast away his body (p. 35) and assuming another form carried on the work of creation. [The story differs a little from that told in the Vishnu Puran, see Wilson's translation, pages 53, 54]. Then are repeated the statements regarding the length of an hour, a day, &c., see Vish. Pur. (p. 22.) The four ages (p. 37, see Vish. Pur. p. 43) of which the first equals four days of Brahma, the second three, the third two, and the last one, 38. The reveries, and theories about generation 40. [All this is extracted, as already noticed, from the 3rd book of the Bhagavat, see the Telugu version, verse 400—450]. Then are named Marichi, Bhrigu, and other rishis, who were the patriarchs (see Vish. Pur. p. 49). Vasistha had by his seven wives seven sons (Vish. 83). Other details of creation, p. 47.

The poet still continues to narrate the story as given in the third and fifth books of the Bhagavat. Description of Mount Meru and of Jambú dwipam 49, and of Bharata varsham 50, and of Ilavruta 50, regarding which, there is a curse, dooming every man who goes there to become a woman.

Description of the seven seas 54, and of the glorious island of shanda dwipam in the centre of it. Then a description of (Hades) Pátála and of Swarga, and the fourteen worlds. Description of the Hindu paradise 61, with the usual attendants of Indra. Then the arrangement of regions and worlds one above another, with all their measurements ; copied from the fifth book of the Bhagavat. Description of Jambu dwipam, or India which closes the chapter. Here the extracts from Bhagavat stop.

Chapter II. Names of holy places and rivers, particularly Badraca near Curuxetra. Here dwelt Vishnu under the name of Ráma and of Krishna. p. 68. Description of Manicarnica and of Jagannath 73, this place is so holy, that a crow one day bathing in a pond there was transformed into a swan. Then comes the legend regarding the carpenter who made the image at Jagannaut. Then the description of Cānchi—then of Sri Rangam. Story of a gang of robbers who attempted to rob the shrine, p. 83, and as in crossing the holy river Caveri on their way to the shrine, they actually all went to Vaicontham !! those who worship Sri Ranga Naik, never can fall into hell. The shrine, at Combaconum, and other holy places, are next described. Story regarding a bramin named Caundinya 87. His wife decked in all her ornaments adored the god. But her husband threw her wedding jewel into the fire : she recovered it, but this crime ruined him. To recover his wealth, he set out to worship Vishnu, and on the road there, he was met and blessed by the god himself.

These stories regarding celebrated Vishnu pagodas being finished, the following are told regarding Siva pagodas 87. One of these is Pancha Crosham. The legend of Canchi 22, and of the Cavery. Legend of a sacrilegeous thief who obtained heaven, merely by bathing in this river. Various other Siva temples are spoken of 96. Then the question is put, why Siva is adored under the form of the lingam. Siva once annoyed the wives of he rishīs, who cursed him ; and he therefore was deprived of the linga which fell on the ground. The other gods then interposed and appeased the hermits, who thereupon restored the linga, which from that time has been worshipped 97. Names of the five hills sacred to Siva. The Prabhasa-têrtham a celebrated Siva temple near Ramésw ram. Borrowing largely from the (Sánti and Anusasanica) laws and rules given in the Mahabharut. The author now commences a description of the Vedas, p. 102, and the divisions appertaining to various tribes of bramins. Description of a bramin as the most admirable of beings 103 and are (Chara daivamul) moving divinities. The immense advantages derived from liberality shewn to bramins 109. The four states of the bramin viz, childhood, boyhood, youth, and manhood. Description of the Valakilya, &c., being four classes of months p. 109.

He now describes the origin, being, marriage, and commences by describing all those beauties which shew a woman to be of happy destiny, p. 112.

Description of a grihast'ha brahmin, or respectable householder dunging: a Particular description in the usual beastly style 113, with all the details of his washing himself. Women are also taught all these elegancies.

He who washes or oils his head on Tuesdays, new moons, &c., &c. shall be cursed and born in a future birth as a pariar. Other rules equally sagacious about bathing 116. Rules regarding nyasam, or certain gesticulations with the fingers during prayer 117. These rites form a perfect protection against the power of fairies, and demons 119. The gods now acknowledge to Brahma that by his aid, and the aid of the god of the sun, they had vanquised the raxasas. Brahma himself offerd his prayers to the sun, using the formulary or mantra called gayatri 121. On the Pranava mantra and Yoni mudra. The various balis or offerings made to hawks, dogs, &c. at morning and evening 128. Rules for worshipping the gods 129. Rules for eating. Certain viands are permitted, and others forbidden 135. Rules for using the rosary 138. These close the rules regarding Brahmins.

Rules regarding the royal race, p. 138. The Prince is bound by the six rules, excepting dánam the command to receive alms. Rules for the other castes. The Sudras are servants of all.

Rules for the guidance of an honorable life 143. Rules for widows 146. Rules regarding accidental breach of rules.

On the merits of bathing at holy places 148. To bathe in ponds is very sinful 149. Regarding the Sráddha or obsequies 154. The three great (carma) virtues, are agnicaranam the holy fire, the pinda pradanam oblations to ghosts of ancestors, and bestowing a dinner on bramins 156. Rules regarding the rites to be performed when the moon is at the full 156, and at the new moon 157. Curses on him who neglects to perform the Sráddha 158.

On the Sálagrama pebble. He who worships this blackstone shall be blessed here, and hereafter 158. Blessings on him who presents holy instruments, vessels, or furniture to a temple. The Sálagrama legend: a pious woman named Gandaki prayed that Brahma, Vishnu, and Siva might be born as her sons. Gandaki was changed into a river in the bed of which there are found Salagrama stones, each of which is a representative of the Trimurti. Defects in some of these stones 146, which renders them useless. Minute classification of these pebbles, various species being declared to picture various avataram 174. Further absurd and foolish details, regarding the sálagramam; as far as page 192.

On the holiness of the place where these pebbles are found; even to think of it will remove all sin from the mind.

The order of worshipping Vishnu with the Tulasi or sacred blossom will form the next topic. Summary of contents of this chapter.

Book III. On the excellence and virtue of worshipping Vishnu. All the virtues and performance of duties cannot be compared to such worship. And the following legend shews the holiness of the tulasi p. 198.

Once upon a time Indra (Jupiter) came to visit Siva (Saturn). The doorkeepers wished to prevent his entering, but he disregarded them, and entered by force. Siva arose to slay him : but his wife Parvati interfered. Then Siva said to her, there is one Jalandhara born, who was educated by Neptune, and is wedded to Brinda, he has vanquished the gods : so Indra and the other gods, turned out of house and home, roamed among the hills ; but one day Narada questioned Indra on the subject, and on learning the details he went up to heaven and spoke to Jalandhara 200. By force of flattery, Narada tempted him to try his strength against Siva and to get his wife Parvati. Jalandhara was easily persuaded ; and now Narada went to Siva and told him that Jalandhara was about to attack him. Siva prepared for the combat, but was beaten : then all the gods ran away to Vishnu and intreated him to interfere 202. At that moment Vishnu was using many blandishments with Brinda, who being the wife of Jalandhara was scandalized at this : for Vishnu had secretly come to seduce her. Brinda then, by the force of her outrageous virtue, absolutely consumed herself to ashes. Then Laxmi blessed her and said, from these ashes shalt thou rise as a plant named Tulasi, and all who use the Tulasi leaves in adoration, shall obtain all they desire. This blessing was confirmed by Vishnu 203, who declared the blessings attending worship, with one, two, three, four and five, leaves of this tree : with usual list of crimes which shall be pardoned to all who use this rite. Then as her virtue had been the source of all her husband's superhuman might, her death made him powerless, and he was slain by Siva 204.

Now to prove the miraculous powers of the Tulasi, listen to the following story. There was a forester who continually committed the sin of slaying animals. He one day was disappointed, and got no game for his wife and children ; so to get bread for them, he collected some faggots of wood for market. He took up the faggot, and was carrying it along, when a heavy shower of rain fell 205. He put the faggot under his head, as a pillow, and fell asleep : there was a snake in the faggot : and as he slept, it stung him, and he died : the messengers of Yama (Pluto) came to seize him, but were opposed by the officers sent by Vishnu, who claimed him as a servant of his ; admitting that he was a great offender, there was by chance a bit of Tulasi wood in the faggot and as he touched this, he is freed from all sin. But the messengers of Yama doubted if this was wise and equitable. To convince them, the servants of Vishnu told them the following story.

There was a man named Ajamy Ulu, who so detested the name of Vishnu, that he always tinkled a bell in his hand, lest the name Narayana should perchance enter his ears. When he died, he, notwithstanding was favored by Vishnu merely on this ground, that he constantly bore the name of Vishnu in memory; even though he remembered it merely to hate it.

In like manner every one who uses the sacred Tulasi shall, without doubt, go to heaven 209.

The next story is regarding a king named Kasésa, and his wife Lalita was a perfect angel. His other wives asked her what was the particular blessing she enjoyed. She replied, there is a certain pagoda at Avanti near the river Churumanti where the worship of Vishnu is continually celebrated. And a very pious shopkeeper there, kept a number of lamps lighted in honor of the god. At that time I was a mouse * * * * and sometimes I stole the wicks out of his lamps. A cat one day saw me and rushed at me. In my fright I accidentally, instead of drawing back the wick, pushed it forward, so that the lamp was actually trimmed by me, and became brighter. This was the good deed which gained me, in a future birth, this virtue and happiness, 211. This shews the prodigious holiness derived from lighting a lamp in honor of the god.

Again, there was Mándhatu a king, whose son was named Muchiconda: and whose son-in-law was Saubhari: these two boys waited on him: and one day the hermit Vasistha came there, and saw another monk, of whom the king and his wife asked, saying—Tell me what were my adventures in the former birth. He replied, in a former age you two were a Sudra couple, and the king was a cruel ruler, and drove thee, O! king out of the town. You then took refuge at a pagoda where the priest fed you, and you collected flowers daily for him to use in worship 214. One day, you and your wife happened to trim a lamp there: and this trifling good deed was rewarded by your being now king and queen.

The various blessings that attend trimming the lamps with oil. To trim them with butter will do away your sins, but will not, like oil, acquire blessings for you 215.

On the blessings that reward bounty to Brahmins. A legend that represents Brahma declaring that bestowing charity on bramins, and investing them with the thread, is the most meritorious of actions.

On the merit acquired by bestowing land on bramins 220. In old times there was a brahmin who, with his wife, was in great poverty. His termagant wife expressed her surprise that they were in such trouble, while those inferior to them were so well off. The bramin then began to offer his (tapass) devotions to Vishnu, and as usual Indra sent a fairy to tempt him to sin. He rejected her blandishments, and in consequence Indra was forced to grant him wealth. He remained at his devotions, and directed his wife to attend to the wants of strangers. She, however was of a hateful disposition, and considering that when in poverty she had received no kindness, she now refused to grant so much as a cup of water to the thirsty. After a while, thieves broke into the house, and plundered it. Her husband declared that her niggardliness had brought this misfortune upon them, and expelled her from the house. He now resumed his former bountiful conduct, and went on until he had reduced himself to poverty. He now resolved on bestowing his house and land on bramins, and retiring as a monk to the forest. Thus, his piety was complete.

Besides the royal Daxu (Dacsha) bestowed lands and livings on bramins, and thus attained to (vaicontha) heaven.

But the equity exercised by a king is rewarded by (moxam) future happiness : whereas (danam) bountifulness is rewarded with (bhogam) comfort in this life : being inferior in merit to the virtue of equity.

On the excellence and comparative merit of bestowing (canya) a virgin, and a cow. [The author speaks of gifts in the usual mode : viz. the gift of land, learning, a wife, a cow, gold and others]. Once upon a time the celestial cow happened to tread on Siva's matted hair, he opened his fiery eye and reduced her to ashes. The distress of the gods at this : for they were now deprived of milk and curds, and butter, and cow dung ; so Siva pleased to sprinkle her ashes with water, and she was restored to life : and as she had touched his locks which were of (capila) a dun color, she was now named (Capila) the dun cow. Then all the cows subscribed for a bull, whom in their gratitude they presented to Siva, who named it Nandi, and uses it as a nag 227.

The hermit Bhyanana was in his retreat at the river Hrádini, and as he was bathing, a fisherman caught him in his net, and carried him to a baron who lived in the neighbourhood, who said he did not want this odd creature. The fisherman however demanded to be paid the weight of the fish. This they attempted to ascertain ; but, when put in the scales, he outweighed all they put in the opposite scale 228. At last they tried the cow of a bramin who lived there; and she was heavier then the hermit, so they paid the cow for the hermit. All which proves that the gift of a cow outweighs any other gift.

And still further to prove this fact, we must know, that if he who at the hour of death bestows a cow should actually sink into hell, he shall return to heaven. Indeed if any man presents a cow to a bramin all his relations shall attain heaven. For a bramin and a cow are precisely equal to each other 230. The man who digs a well sufficient for ten cows in hot weather, shall assuredly go to heaven.

As to the gift of food : life is the greatest of blessings : and as food sustains life, he who bestows food is verily a god 236.

There was a bramin who was very bountiful in bestowing food. To try his liberality Indra came to him in disguise, with some hundred gods as a travelling party, during a heavy shower of rain. The bramin was at a loss what to do ; and as he had exhausted all his firewood, he put his legs into the fire by way of fuel, and burnt off his legs. Then his wife served up dinner, but wishing to try him further they desired him to wait on them in person. This led Indra to bestow his blessings on them ; and this story proves the virtue of bestowing food.

On this subject there was a conversation between Vishnu and Yama. For a Dharmaraz was bestowing alms. Yama came there, disguised as a chandála (or forester.) The doorkeepers refused him admission. Dharmaraz was at a loss to decide on giving food to Sudras before bramins were satisfied 241. Yama then declared who he was, and vanished.

Here the story ends and the author declares that this shews the wondrous virtue of bestowing food. The analogy is not clear.

On fast days and feast days 242. If a man ventures to eat on a fasting day he shall in a future birth be a woman, and a woman shall be born as man.

On the marriage of bramins. There are four kinds called Brahyam ; the 2nd Daivyam ; the 3rd Arsham ; and 4th Mutul ; the first bestows eternal happiness on him who gives his daughter in wedding to a bramin. The others are described. There are other sorts of marriage, called Gandharva &c. 242.

To illustrate the principles of such a wedding, the author relates the story of Caundilia, a monk, who with his disciples went to the forest. A heavy rain fell ; and he heard from a pit the words "Deliver me ! Help, help !" He approached the pit and seeing no one, he asked who was in trouble. It was replied "we are the spirits of your fathers, who are sorrowing for you : and we are in this hard plight, because of your ill conduct— because you have not offered the due rites by bathing in the Ganges, whereby we might attain heaven. Because the great rites that gain happiness for our forefathers are the bestowing of a virgin, or if you have no daughter then the bestowing of ample gifts on bramins. The greatest of good deeds is the performing a marriage for a bramin who is in poverty."

Thus warned, he obeyed the injunction, and accordingly went to heaven 242. Further remarks on the virtue of bestowing charity, so great is the holiness of Badarica that the bestowing of mere water there is as meritorious as elsewhere bestowing food.

There was a bramin at Badaraca who dug a well, the land being dry. From this he supplied water to all. Indra envied him, and dried up the water. He however managed to get a little for wayfarers. Then Indra called on Agni for aid, but Vishnu protected the bramin and at last Vishnu sent heavy rain which filled the pits 246. Then the bramin as usual went to heaven.

This shrine Bhadraca, was named after a man who was a great sinner, who wasted all his health on prostitutes, and became a thief. Losing his character he left his country, and went east to a country, where he lodged, and employed himself in cultivation : having a bullock and a she buffalo. He then ran away, and returned home with these two animals. His neighbours questioned him about them and he asserted that they had been given to him. They appointed him a stony field to plough ; these animals were exhausted with fatigue in ploughing : and at last the ox spoke to him, and remonstrated with him on his conduct. In the course of conversation the ox said : " [illegible] former birth we were in debt to you three pagodas. Sell us and recover money."—A sudra made him an offer, and bought both animals : who [illegible] died in consequence of his cruelty. Then a royal vehicle descended [illegible] heaven, and carried off these two excellent creatures, who were so kind [illegible] take the Sudra along with them.

All which shews that debt is the greatest of sins 248.

Further to illustrate the criminality of running in debt we have the story of a bramin named Causica ; ultimately he and his brother Susila fell into hell : the younger having borrowed money from the other.

There was a baron who was a great villain, and always took the part of the wicked against the good : he at last attempted plundering the temples. A hermit was in the temple sitting in silent prayer—and his zeal was so great that the robber on entering was consumed to ashes.

Blessings on him who digs a tank of water 252. On him who plants a grove. On those who are dutiful and chaste.

On the blessings that reward the performance of fasting on the eleventh day of the moon 254. This shall attain heaven. This being the hari vasam. Rules for the tenth, and twelfth days of each fortnight.

The greatest of beings is God, the best of rivers is the Ganges, of places is Cánchi, the noblest of gods is Vishnu, and the holiest of days is the 'Ecadasi 255.

There was a baron named Xatra Baudhu, who being an undutiful reprobate, was expelled his father's house, and took refuge in the woods. There he was found by a hermit exhausted, whom he served for a while. And this slight virtue caused him, in the next birth, to be born as a bramin, and to go to Olympus. That hermit gave him a blessing saying " Thou shalt be happy, if thou observest the (Ecadasi vratam) fast on the eleventh day of every fortnight 257."

A baron named Rucmangada was taught by his priest the holiness of this eleventh fast 258. And on the duty of fasting on the anniversaries of the ten avatarams. The merit of sanctifying some other anniversaries: especially the month of Kartica. Then the legend of baron Dilipa. The virtue of vows performed in the month of Magha 267. Legend of Saint Bhrigu who in the forest met a man with a tiger's face, and this he was relieved from by bathing at the advice of Bhrigu 268. Story of a hermit's daughter named Suratta who with her play fellows used to bathe in the Caveri, praying for husbands: one day a wild elephant came there, and all the poor girls fell into a pit and perished. Her father mourned over her; but she was restored to life by the Saint Mriga Sringa. Literally, deer's horn. He also caused the elephant to resume human shape; for this elephant was originally a man turned into an elephant, by reason of a curse 272. As the good deed of bathing in the month of Magha had acquired the hermit (Mriga Sringa) deer's horn, a stock of superfluous merit, he bestowed part of it on this Dharmagupta, who had been changed into an elephant 273; thereby he resumed the human form, and went to Swargam. The girls being now restored to life, their father begged Deershorn to marry all of them.

Other stories intended to prove that it is by no means unusual to be restored to life; or, literally, to return from the realm of Yama 276.

The legend of Jáládhara who was a victorious prince: he vanquished the gods, and at last was slain. Mricanda's son, Marcandeya was very devout in adoring Siva: at last Yama's messengers seized him, and Siva interfered and saved him. This virtue was acquired solely by his bathing in the month Magha. List of the various crimes, such as incest &c. which are done away by bathing in the month of Magha. Stories of persons who by reason of bathing in this month have, repeatedly, revived from death; their souls returning after visiting the realms of Yama 284.

On the Sivaratri feast, and the blessings attending it 285. If a man is too poor to celebrate the rite completely, let him merely offer two leaves to an image of the lingam.

The daughter of Bhrigu was left a widow in childhood, and performed this rite so nobly, that she was afterwards born as the divine Tilóttama.

He now proceeds to describe the merit of bathing in the month of Macara. A pious girl named Canchanu malini, returning from bathing, a few drops from her clothes fell on a raxasa who bore that shape as a punishment, and these holy drops changed him into an angel (apsara) 288, and he went to heaven. Description of the loveliness of this pious maiden.

Story of a monk who saw five lovely girls (apsarastri) angels, and as they tempted him, he cursed them to become (pisachis) goblins. They were restored to their original shape by the saint Romaharshi.

Story of a king who was metamorphosed into an ape: his guru and the guru's wife were changed into sparrows 290; they begged a Bramin to give them some water to drink—this restored them to human shape. In like manner were the abovementioned five goblins restored to human shape, by the virtue of bathing in the blessed month.

On the merit of celebrating the Sivaratri festival. Story of a forester, or savage, who accidentally dropped some leaves on an image of the lingam on this day: and this chance act of homage gained him admission into heaven 295. Also of a thief who broke into a temple, and for a similar unintentional act gained heaven.

Now, truth and veracity being acknowledged to be the highest of virtues 296; there is narrated a story of a bramin named Sumati who was seized by a tiger with whom the man remonstrated, saying, I am too lean to suffice you for a dinner; besides remember my wife andchildren: the tiger said, "I am willing to let you go, if you will come and let me dine off you next year: but how am I to know whether you will keep your promise." The man replied, "that he would scorn a lie even to save his life." The story ends in Vishnu releasing the man, and carrying both him and the tiger to Swargam.

Then follows the story of Sibbi, who rescued a hawk from the power of Indra (who was disguised as a forester) and Sibbi redeemed him with a slice of his own flesh. As usual, this is rewarded by his being transported to Swargam 299.

The question arises whether falsehood is excusable under certain circumstances: and the opinion is given, that sometimes falsehood is decidedly the right course: particularly to save a cow or a bramin from harm. Examples drawn from the stories of the gods.

Then follows the laud of purity, morality, and all virtues 302, and to illustrate the subject, the story of Sananda Ganesa is related 305. There is a description of the various divisons of hell, with the crimes punished in each. [In all this the author merely transcribes the statements made in the popular book called the life of Sananda Ganeswara]. Certain crimes are in a future birth punished with certain diseases which are specified 310—312. Then the usual list of various crimes, and the punishment appointed in hell for each. He now proceeds to specify the rules regarding the six (angas) divisions on science 317. On orthography 318, on pronunciation and prosody, then on (jyotisham) astrological rules, particularly regarding pregnancy 329, ceremonial rites performed before, and after birth. The good and evil destiny attending those who are born on certain planetary days. The various animals typifying the various planets. Rules regarding purification of women 344. On the days of the month, and week which are fortunate, or unfortunate 349, for setting out on a journey, &c. list of good and evil omens.

On sound 354, and the nerves, which according to their notions produce notes. The system of nerves called Pingala, sushamna, ida, &c., being the pineal gland and its dependencies. The spirit dwells for a time in one nostril, and then in the other 356. Rules for finding out the good, or evil result of an intended act.

On the calpams or rituals 359. On the various sacrifice of the bull, the cow, the goat, &c., 360. Then follow questions regarding the uparédas or supplementary treatises.

Close of the chapter ; and table of contents.

Book IV. On the Védas and upavédas : after completing creation, Brahma created disease and death. On various diseases 364. Then at the entreaty of the gods, Vishnu created Dhanvantari, the father of physicians and gave him the Ayur Vedam or book of anatomy and physic. Death is caused by apoplexy, produced by the excess of (sleshma) phlegm. On the various winds that assist digestion, and life. Names of the various nerves 367. There are 72,000 nerves, certain diseases are punishments for certain crimes committed in a former birth. On certain medicines, and their effects 372, particularly quick-silver. On dreams : which are to be interpreted according to certain rules 374.

From the breath was produced sound, and from sound musical notes 377. On various times 382. On the art of playing the lute. On archery 384. On alidha and pratyalidha 385—6 being the modes of placing the legs when using the bow. The names of the six sciences 386, logic, Mimamsa &c. The six names are Tarcam or Logic, in two parts : viz. I, the logic taught by Gâutama ; and II, that taught by Canada ; then III Danda niti, or politics; IV, Sankhya, or transcendentals ; V, purva Mimamsa, or the ceremonial law of religion ; and VI, uttara Mimamsa or the religious system grounded on devotion—description of the logic founded (1) by Gautama 386, distinctions between life and spirit, between soul, and the divine spirit. The fourteen gunás: the játés.

III. Danda niti, Rules for government 389, and regarding theft, fraud, gambling, &c., &c. On perjury. Rules for testing evidence. On the form of solemn adjuration. The ordeal with arrows. On inheritance and the principles, which should guide decisions regarding heirship. On various wrongs and crimes 405. Rules regarding pawns. On interest, and the modes of exacting it 412. The author then proceeds to translate the various principles laid down in the Daya bhaga andother law books. Finally are given, the laws regarding marriage.

Next he proceeds to the Sankhya sastram 420, or transcendentals, with the usual Yoga rules, and predictions and omens, particularly evil omens. On the Yoga sastram. The Yogi is decidedly the holiest of men 436.

Regarding the Mimamsa 438, and its two divisions. He seems to omit the purva, but regarding the uttara he gives a conversation that took place between Ráma and Vasishta 438. The Yoga sastram shines as a lamp in the chamber of the heart.

On the Upa sastrams or supplementary sciences, such as music. On long and short musical measures of time 444. On quick, slow and common tune, &c., &c., 449. On the attitudes used in dancing 451, and the different shakes of the head, the body, and the limbs. The modes of expressing various passions: rules regarding the eyes. Personifications of various notes: and superstitious rules 456. On Bharata sastram or Acting, which name is fancifully stated to be compounded by the initial syllables of the three words, Bhávam, Rágam, and Tálam, or Passion, Tune, and Time 457.

Next, he proceeds to the Calá sastram or venera 458, wherein as usual are the definitions of various descriptions of members, and sexual minutiæ. On the symptoms or demeanour betraying love 467. On the behaviour of virtuous women, and that of the immodest. On temperament, as governed by lunar days. On the peculiar beauties of each description of mistress and lover (i. e. Nayika Nayiki laxanam) 470. On the learning, and temperament which constitute a poet.

On hyperbole, and other figures of rhetoric. On the component parts of a poem being descriptions of the sea, a city, seasons, hills, war, the lover, and the wedding: gambling, hunting, drinking, and rural rambles, women, love, the griefs and enjoyments of lovers, the passions; and government, or justice, with descriptions of the sun and moon. To begin with the eight descriptions of gallants, and mistresses. The Vasa Sajjica, &c., &c.

473. On rhetoric the alancara luxanam; on upama, upamánam and upameyam, &c., with other figures, with various rules for rhyme, for (478) hyperbole, for puns, &c.

On beauty 481, rules regarding female beauty and ugliness. On beauty in men 483, and those characteristics which denote length of life. On the scrotum and testes.

On the peculiarities of elephants and rules to know whether an elephant is lucky 487, diseases to which elephants are subject 490. Regarding camels and horses, with the fortunate and unfortunate marks on them. The diseases and remedies. Prayers to be offered to horses on certain days 498.

On precious stones, and their fortunate, and unfortunate qualities.

On Arithmetic 504, which is divided into ten portions or chapters. On measures of length, capacity, time.

The next subject is farriery, or the treatment of animals 508, with a list of the drugs used.

Regarding dreams p. 517. Regarding the silpi sastram or architecture and statuary p. 521—524 with various superstitious rules.

Conclusion of the Fourth book. Here the volume ends: but whether the work concludes here or not, is not stated.

The book is folio, of medium thickness, good paper, half bound, lettered, worn.

11. No. 143. Three books.

1.) Rája sec'hara vilásam.

1—3 asvásams.

The king seated in his court, discoursed on public affairs Nareda came to him, and praised Siva. He went and told Siva the king's great liberality, as giving whatever any one asked. Siva paid him a visit, in disguise; and asked for a chaste woman. As no other one could be found in the entire town, the king surrendered his youngest wife. Siva assumed the form of a Jangama. A matronly woman saw him, and became enamoured. It is a Vira Saiva legend: yet it is referred to, in the Madura and Trinomalai st'hala puránas.

2.) Sankhya vicharam.

A detail of the Sanc'hya system; termed by Mr. Brown " the transcendental, or atheistical philosophy." See IV 27, No. 107 supra. The present is the piece there referred to, as placed in another volume. Originally it stands as the 5th canto of the Bhanumad vijayam.

3.) Chandra hasya vilásam, padyas.

The púrva and uttara bhágas.

An altered title for another copy of the Taraza sanc'ha.

The book is a folio, thin, good paper, full binding, marble paper within; lettered.

12. No. 149. Four pieces.

1.) Cháru chandrodayam, or Chenna raju cavitvam, 1—5 asvásams, padyas.

2.) Ambarisha charitram, padyas.

1—5. This is taken from the McKenzie M.SS.; and will be noted in its proper place.

3.) Pápa chennópakhyánam, mixed metre, 1—4 asvásams.

4.) Anubhava sáram, sîsa stanzas.

By Godagi Tripurada cavi.

On suddha bhakti, mishara bhakti, and saugirna bhakti, technicalities of Vira Saivas. The piece has been many times noticed.

The book is a thin folio, French paper, half bound in cloth and lettered.

13. No. 158. Eight pieces.

1.) Harischandra cat'ha; dwipada metre. By Vencata Narasayya. The purva bhagam.

The first part of a version of the popular tale.

2.) Valla Bhamba parinayam; padyas. By Ackanapalli Narasinha cavi.

Vallabhamba fell in love with Ganapati; much erotic matter on female passions; the passion was reciprocated by Ganapati. The lady went to Cailasa, birth of a child there. The marriage of Lacshmi; and the like.

3.) Yamunácháryadu charitram; one section.

He was a son of Siva. A dispute between him and a purohitan of a Chola king. The Chola king gave up half his kingdom to his wife, and she gave the same to Yamunacharya, according to the terms of the dispute.

4.) Nauka charitram, padyas.

A licentious piece on the intercourse between Krishna and the gopis, or cowherdesses of the Jumna.

5.) Rádha Mádhava vilasam; padyas, incomplete; no divisions.

A fragment of the often-repeated copy, from the McKenzie M.SS. see IV.

6.) Sri calahasti satacam, complete.

This Jangama piece has often occurred.

7.) Cánchi pura manjeri, padyas, no sections.

An ornate description of the town of Conjeveram.

8.) Arunáchala manjeri, padyas, complete.

The like as to Trinomalai, nearer to Madras. Both are places of great resort at public festivals.

9.) Dasarat'ha satacam, complete.

A cento in praise of Ráma, the son of Dasarat'ha.

The book is a small quarto, of medium thickness, two kinds of paper, bound in cloth, worn.

14. No. 168. Five pieces.

1.) Nṛisinha puránam; padyas.

By Iráma, 1—5 asvásams.

A translation of the Narasinha upa puránam.

2.) Krishna raya vijayam.

1—4 asvásams, complete.

This is a copy from a palm-leaf M.SS. in the McKenzie collection, of which an abstract was given in my "Analysis." It will be reprinted in its proper place.

3.) See under IV.

4.) Velpa satacam, 40 sisa stanzas.

By Ballira cavi.

5.) Raghava yadava pandaviyam.

1—4 asvásams, padyas.

A piece capable of two readings, as the adventures of Ráma, or else of Kṛishna.

The book is a thick folio, French paper, half bound in cloth and calf; lettered.

15. No. 192. Eight books, or pieces.

1.) Udyoga parvam of the Bháratam.

1—4 asvásams, padyas.

2.) Nirosht'hanalópakhyanam.

1st asvásam wanting; 2nd and 3rd right, padyas.

Another re-duplication of the episode of Nala, under a modified title.

3.) Amarūcam; slócas and padyas.

The original, and translation of an erotic work of frequent occurrence.

4.) Bhascara satacam; padyas.

An ethical book for schools. Copies of it are multiplied.

5.) Yadu vamsa bhushanam, 100 stanzas.

The jewel of the cowherd race, in which Kṛishna was born.

6.) Ráma panchazat kandamulu, or 50 stanzas, in praise of Ráma.

7.) Srînivasa târávali, 54 stanzas, "star chain"—praise of Râma.

8.) Chandappa satacam.

This piece is prepared to be printed in distinct lines on the European method.

The book is a narrow folio, thick country paper, uncut edges, boards; these are injured.

16. No. 208. Eight books.

1.) 'Ananda rangha ratch'handam.

1—3 asvásams, slocas and padyas incomplete. A translation with the original of a piece heretofore noticed.

"The theatre, or dancing stage of the god of love"—of course erotic in kind.

2.) Rep'hara kara prakaranam.

3rd asvásam, padyas ;—a chapter on people who do low, or vile things; ethical and satirical.

3.) Caviyalancára chudámani.

1—8 ulasas, complete.

The jewel of figurative, or rhetorical poetry.

4.) Uttara grant'ham—or supplement attached to 3.

1—8 ulásas, incomplete.

5.) See under XII.

6.) Al'hinaya derpanam, composite metre.

A fictitious tale of extraordinary birth, and conquering adventures. See Vol. 1, page 627. 18, No. 1,353.

This would seem to be a Telugu version of that book.

7.) Vastu sastram, on architecture.

1—3 sections—measures and proportion of temples, and statues; and rules as to foundations.

8.) Visva brammana puránam—prose.

The 1st, part wanting,

2nd ,, 1—3 sections.

This appears to be a translation of part of a Canarese work, Visva guna darisam. See vol. 1, p. 443—3, No. 1,526.

The book is royal quarto, thick superior paper, half bound and lettered.

17. No. 215. Four pieces.

1.) Dícsha bhoda—dwipada verse.

1—3 asvásams.

Initiatory instruction.

2.) Mritanjaya vilásam—dwipada.

1—3 asvásams.

Sports of Siva; probably translated from the Halasya mahatmyam.

3.) Mitra Ginda parinayam, mixed metre.

1—6 asvasams vide IV supra.

4.) Sri madana kamésvara vilásam.

"Sports of Lacshmi and the bewildered lust lord"—dwipada verse.

The book is a narrow folio, thick, various paper, flowered paper-boards; lettered, the back loose.

18. No. 221. Four subjects.

1.) Bhimésvara purânam, pádyas.

1—6 asvásams, complete.

Local legend of a Saiva shrine in the Cuttack province.

2.) Nirankusópakhyanam, padyas.

1—4 asvásams.

Nir without, ankusa an elephant hook, upakhyanam minor paraphrase, or tale.

Romance of one named "uncontrolled."

It has occurred in a previous part of the present volume.

3.) Rudracsha mahatmyam, dwipada.

1—5 sections complete.

On the excellence of the eleocarpus beads worn by Saivas; it has very often occurred.

[Many years ago a man in high employ visited the large temple at Madura. He halted his palanquin at some distance, and thence walked barefoot, with a rosary of these beads as a coronet on his head; and the doing so was from policy: thus exemplifying a phrase found in the Tamil version of the Pancha tantram; to wit rudracsha páni, cat with a rosary.]

4.) Bétala pancha vimsati, a tica or glossary only; without the original. Copied from No. 289. 1—5 sections.

Twenty-five tales by a familiar to Vicramáditya: of frequent occurrence in the collection.

The book is a thick quarto, demy paper, half bound in calf and marble paper, lettered, used.

19. No. 247. Four books.

1.) Vivéca sindhu; in two parts.
Purvart'ham 1—7 uttarart'ham 1—3.

2.) Vira Saiva kirtanalu; various chants of Jangamas, not capable of abstract.

3.) Sarvésvara satacam, 123 padyas.

A cento of ethical, and other matter.

4.) Satvíca Brahma vidya vilásam.

This is a metaphysical work of considerable merit: an abstract of its contents will appear, in its place, in volume 3 of this Catalogue.

See vol. 1, p. 181 for a somewhat full abstract. It is work of high and peculiar merit; and, as such, elicited an indignant, and virulent reply, from a religionist of another way of thinking. The polemics of Natives are as verbose, and as zealous as those of other people. They turn chiefly an abstract and metaphysical points, respecting which certainty is difficult, if not impossible: on the plainer portions they remind us of a dictum ascribed to Socrates—that a divinely inspired teacher from above, was needed in order to explain what is the chief good, and the true foundation of morals.

The book is a folio, of medium thickness, good paper, half bound, and lettered, worn.

20. No. 256. Three pieces.

1). Harischandropakhyanam; padyas.
By Sancara cavi, 1—5 asvásams.

A translation from the Sanscrit original; which the translator certifies to be "an excellent poem."

2.) Mṛtanjaya vilásam.

By Gokula patti Curmana 1—3 asvásams.
On the sports of Siva: another copy.

3.) Sugriva vijayam, mixed metre.

A poetical version in Telugu of the episode concerning Sugriva in the Rámáyanam.

By Kandacuri Rudrapa, aided by his daughter; who completed what he left unfinished at his death.

The book is a thick octavo, country paper, bound in sheep, old, worn.

21. No. 267. Six subjects.

1.) Sánandopakhyanam, very long stanzas.

1—4 asvasams.

Another copy of the legend concerning Sánanda's visit to the world of Yama; his sympathy with the sufferers there; and delivering them by the power of the Saiva five lettered spell. There is an original among the McKenzie M.SS.

2.) Surábhandésvara with a tica, only one section.

3.) Chatúrvédácháram, ritual of the four védas, or Basava linga satacam, a Vira Saiva poem.

4.) Basava Panditárádhya charitram.

The 1st chapter with 6 sections.

See No. 244 under XXIII.

5.) Vastu sastram ságaram, the sea of foundation laying; architectural: deva nágari letter.

6.) Siva puránamunacu súcshica.

1—4 "sections."

Index to the Siva púránam; being short paras, in small hand writing, giving a brief notice apparently only of parts, not a regular epitome of the whole.

The book is a narrow folio, thick; country paper, boards, back injured.

22. No. 271. Miscellaneous extracts, in three volumes.

Vol. 1, from page 1 to 104 and "No. 49 of the Telugu list of those books."

At the end of the 1st vol. is an index of the contents, which are various.

Vol. 2nd chiefly copied from the McKenzie M.SS—at the end the tales of a parrot.

Vol. 3rd, contains the following :—

—Chacraverti charitra tale of Nala.

—Sārangadhara natacam.

—Nala natacam.

—Yera calpa samana vivaram, details as to ploughing and sowing, obtained at Yanam.

—'Attabhagavatam Krishna cat'ha, the story of Krishna, from a dramatized form of the Bhágavatam.

—Calinga mardanam,—legend of Krishna trampling on a serpent.

—Gola cat'ha ; from the áttabhagavatam, tale of a cowherd, bringing milk &c.

—Gola vesha cat'ha ; tale of one disguised as a cowherd, from the Bhágavatam.

—Dádhi vesham cat'ha, tale of a female disguised as a milk maid ; or a female of the snake catchers.

—Yagantivari vachanalu, words of a particular class, or family.

Folios, broad and short, thick ; half bound and lettered, much worn and damaged.

23. No. 274. Nine subjects.

1.) Dasavatara charitram ; padyas.

1st and 2nd asvásams, containing an account of the matsya avatáram.

2.) Rámáyanam—2 asvásams.

1st asvásam—The bálacandam.

2nd ,, { Ayoddhya. / Aranya.

3.) Bála Bhágavatam—padyas.

The whole book is a royal quarto, of medium thickness, good paper, bound in figured paper, and lettered.

19. No. 210. Scânda purânam.

Sancara samhita, that is ascribed to Siva.

The Siva rahasya khandam, containing five books.

1.)	Sambhava	candam 1, 2	asvasas.
2.)	Asura	„ 1, 2	„
3.)	Vira Mahendra	„ 1,	„
4.)	Yuddha	„ 1, 4	„
5.)	Dévi	„ 1, 2	„

The 1st narrates the birth of Kartikeya; the 2nd the birth, and nature of asuras; the 3rd describes the capital of the Assurs; the 4th is the war of Dévas, headed by Subrahmanya, against the asuras; the 5th is the share taken by Dévi, or the battles of the Amazons. An abstract was published in my analysis of Mc'Kenzie M.S.S., and it may be reprinted in vol. 3 of this work.

The book is a folio of medium thickness, French paper, and flowered paper boards, lettered.

20. No. 211. Scanda puránam.

The Cási khandam, and uttara bhágam, or 2nd part 1—7 asvásams.

The special subject of the entire khandam is the glory of Benares, the primal seat of the Saiva system in India. An analysis was given by me, in connexion with the foregoing; and it may be re-printed in vol. 3.

The former owner states:—

"The Kasi khandam (the first part has not been found in Telugu). This part of the Skanda purânam is stated in the preface to be the translation made by Srî nat'ha who also translated the Náishadham into Telugu. The Telugu version is, as usual, an abridgment of the Sanscrit.

"The present is a corrected edition, having been prepared at my request by Narasimma Charry a pundit in my employ, who consulted four M.S.S. of the Telugu, and one of the Sanscrit text. The result however is not satisfactory, as the Telugu copies varied from each other, so greatly, that it is often hard to determine, in prose passages, what were the words used by Sri nat'ha."

The composition is stated to be called angitala spatti, a kind of chant for common utterance.

The book is a folio of medium thickness, good paper, bound in country calf, and lettered.

21. No. 212. Scanda puránam the Cási khandam and uttara bhágam, 1—7 asvásams.

This copy is full of large variations interlined, and on the opposite blank pages, as above indicated: they are very numerous. The foregoing is the "corrected edition."

The book is a thick folio, French paper, with rough edges, half bound, calf and marble paper, lettered, used.

22. No. 213. Scanda puránam.

Sancara samhita, or Siva rahasya khandam. The 1st cándam is here not the usual name.

1.) the upadésa cándam 1—10 asvásams.
2.) „ asura „ 1, 2, „ 114 padyas.
3.) „ vira mahendra „ 3rd „ 114 padyas.
4.) „ yuddha „ 1st asvasam only.

No. 210 and 213 seem both incomplete copies.

The book is a folio, of medium thickness, French paper, bound in black roan, 1841, and lettered.

23. No. 214. Scanda púranam.

The portion termed Súta samhita, as being ascribed to Suta, the author of most of the puránas.

1—7 asvásams.

There is an abstract of the Suta samhita in the foregoing part of this vol. 1st family.

The book is a folio of medium thickness, French paper, half bound in calf and marble paper, lettered, used.

24. No. 220. Marcandeya puránam.

1—8 asvásams; padya cavyam.

Jaimini to a king, but instrumentally by some birds. Visvamitra asked a gift from Harischandra—with sequel. Harishchandra's son being bitten by a snake, died;—and was raised to life. Legends as to virtue and vice, and the fruit or consequences of both. Garuni asked favor of Kartaviryarjuna. On the wars between the dévas and asuras. Birth of Lacshmi with the production of the amrita, by means of which, instrumentally, the racshasas were destroyed. Various other legends; especially the birth of the Asvini cumara from Surya and Sangnya, mother of Yama and Yamuna. She fled away, leaving behind her Ch'hayayi, who bore two sons. Surya found out the cheat, by the aid of his son Yama, and discovered his real wife, disguised as a mare. The two Asvinis were born through her nostrils.

[All this hieroglyphical matter it may not be easy to solve]. There is of course much other matter. The work is said to be very good Telugu, as to style and translation; but defective as to incidents; some, it may be presumed, being left out.

The book is a thin folio, on China paper, bound in sheep injured.

25. No. 287. Dasavatára charitram, padyas. In five volumes.

Volume 1, the 1st asvásam complete.

Reference to the avatara of Kṛshna.

Description of Hastinapuri, and of the four great divisions, usually termed colors, or castes. Janamajeya rája is described, with his throne, and court. Narrative of Vaisampayana, given to that monarch. Account of the Matsya avatáram. Prefixed is an account of the Drávida desam; [because puránas and itihasas agree that the residence of Satya vrüta, before the flood, was in Dravida desa; most likely loosely taken for the southern hemisphere. The modern sense of Drávida is the Dacshin or countries south of the Vindhya range].

Volume 2, the 2nd and 3rd asvásams.

The 2nd asvasam narrates the Curmavatára. From Atri muni and Anusya devi was born the severe Durvasa. His quarrel with Indra; the celestials went to Brahma, who appeared to Vishnu, and requested his interposition. The birth of Chandra (the moon,) Siva placed chandra on his head. The appearance of Vishnu as Mohini—the churning of the milk sea and subsequent war of the devas (sons of gods) with the danavas (sons of men). [The Greeks termed themselves danaoi, which is the same word as danavas: according to Bryant many among them called themselves "sons of men;" and the early traditions, gathered up by that author, tend to shew that the progenitors of the Greek colonists were among those worsted in the said war: that is, their forefathers were danavas, or asuras].

The 3rd asvásam contains the Varáhavatára.

Conquests of Sri Hari (or Vishnu.) Reference back to Diti's pregnancy, and birth of daityas, the same as danavas or asuras. Sanaca interposed between hostile races, and made peace. Varáha murti, on birth, grew to full size in a muhurtam (one-third of an hour). He went down to Pátála. Hiranyacsha went to Pátála, and saw Varáha svámi, who slew him and his hosts. Varáha múrti praised Indra and other gods; with other matter. [Volume 3rd, the 4th, 5th, and 6th, asvásams].

The 4th contains the Nrisinhávatáram.

The 5th has the Vámana, and the 6th Párasu Rámávatáram.

Volume 4th, the 7th and 8th asvásams.

Prefixed is the tale of Ahalya and Sancranda: but the main topic is the Rama chandrávatára.

Volume 5th, the 9th and 10th asvásams.

On the avatára of Krishna. Rádha is introduced; though not noticed in the Bhágavatam. The details about Krishna are full, as a main point with the author. The composition of this work is usually regarded as moderately easy.

The former owner wrote a note in the 4th volume as follows: "Mulinga Pápaya being in Vasi Reddi's employ at Amaravati, wrote a poem called the Ahalya samcrandana vilásam: this is a modern work, distinct from the tale under that name in the 7th book of the Dasávatáram." It follows, that the Reddis ruled at Amarávati; but posterior to the time of Pratápa Rudra.

[Compare the report on the Elliot marbles].

The five volumes are uniform, small and thin folios, French paper, half bound in country calf, worn.

26. No. 338. Scanda puránam, the Brahmóttara khandam 1—6 asvásams.

By Pullayya a Saiva who rendered the Sanscrit into Telugu padyas.

On the six lettered mantra of Kartikeya and a variety of Saiva matterrs. On the Siva rátri, and fasting thereon. Legend of a rácshása

36. No. 114. Sect. 1. Vencatáchala mahátmyam.

1—3 asvasams stated to be from the Varáha pâranam, and a 4th asvásam from the Bhavishottara purânam, which last purânam no one ever saw; but more than one purânam closes with prophecy.

37. No. 209. For section 1, 2, see XIII.

Section 3. Sarpa puri mahatmyam.

By Cachi manchi Timmana ; padyas.

1—3 asvásams.

Legend of serpent town.

This singular name of an obscure town arises from a fable of a Serpent and a ṛ̂shi : the document is found in more than one language.

Section 4, supra 18.

38. No. 217. Section 1, Cálahasti mahatmym.

By Cavi dhurjati ; padya cavyam.

1—4 asvásam

Legend of Calastri.

The situation of this town is near the range commonly known as " the Pulicat hills ; " which may possibly have conveyed to the native mind the idea of a " black elephant." The ordinary corruption, has quite another meaning. The town is held by a Zemindar ; who affects the style of a feudal chief.

For section 2, see IV.

The book is a folio, half bound and lettered.

39. No. 218. Cálahasti mahatmyam : " less properly entitled Yádava raya charitra."

A new edition 1840, on a comparison of four M.SS. The foregoing is a rough copy, with numerous various readings. An English summary is contained in the book ; and it may be not uninteresting to insert the same here ; as follows :—

CONTENTS OF THE CALAHASTI MAHATMYAM

PURANAS local, or mahatmyams.

35. No. 113. Vencatáchala mahatmyam.

By Vencata vîra rághava]—6 asvasams, dwipada metre ; copied from a McKenzie M. S.

The legend of Vishnu with Lacshmi, coming to dwell on Tirupati hill. An account how the hill came from Vaicont'ha, with legend of Váyu and 'Adi sesha. The various bathing pools, and their great virtues, described.

The book is a folio, of medium thickness, French paper, half bound in cloth and calf lettered.

Next follow a hymn to Párvati, under the name of Jnána Pushp Ambica: to Bhairava. Then to Dúrga and to Ganésa. The poet proceeds to select a patron (carta) or auditor to approve the tale. And he selects the very deity, Siva, whom he proposes to celebrate.

He now, as usual, describes the town Cálahasti, where the event happened, which he proposes to celebrate. The usual description of the four castes who lived there under the patronage of Siva 15. This town was ruled by a baron named Yádava Rázu. And to try his faith, Siva came in the guise of a minda jangam. Description of his garb. He wore the lingam on his arm (observe that this town is also called Nárávana vanam)

A maidservant at the chief's abode saw this jangam and made a salutation to this jangam; and he returned the compliment, as usual, by giving her some blessed ashes. So she desired him to come to her house to dinner; for she was under a vow to give food daily to a jangam. After dinner he began to feel very amorous 26, and she therefore took him into her room, and were going to bed.

But at that moment it was the baron's dinner time, and this girl, who was the lady of the table, was not at hand to take away the baron's plate. So he sent a dozen peons to bring her before him 33. So she got out of bed, and trimmed her hair, and ran to the hall, where the baron was in such a fury, that he ordered her head to be shaved. This was done and, poor wretch, she went away weeping, and threw herself at the feet of the jangam—who laid his blessed hand upon her, and her tresses returned. Next day she went again to the baron, who was again in fury, and ordered that the barber should be punished who had failed to shave her. She said, that the barber had done as he was ordered, but a jangam at her house had caused this miracle. So the baron came to her house to see who this conjurer might be—he made a bow to the saint (Siva) who, on being asked, said he had merely come to see the town 50, and that he had stopped at the house of this woman on account of her reputed vigorous faith. The baron replied by observing, that he was ready to build a pagoda to the miraculous lingam, which Siva now pointed out, if the (the jangam) would tell him, what were the miraculous legends of the place.

Siva replies 54, by telling him as many fibs as might suffice. He adds the story of Vosishta, his 100 sons died, and in grief he performed penance; whereupon, Siva appeared to him as the Lingam, the Saint offered him applause, and requested two boons—one, (bramha vidya) knowledge of the deity—the other, that in every succeeding age, the god would appear to him at the same place.

Hereupon the god left the form he wore (that of the lingam) and appeared as Daxina múrti. Then gave his devotee spiritual instruction, and disappeared 82. Thereupon Vasishtha placed the lingam with due honor in its place.

Now Parvati being, as usual pining in solitude in the absence of Siva descended from heaven in her car, bearing the name of Jnána Prasúna (the flower of wisdom) and both the god and goddess stood before the hermit, accompanied by all their host seated on mount Cailas. But as mount Cailas chose to come there (and hence Cálahasti is called the Daxina Cailas) mount Méru likewise came there.

Now Siva was rambling about with his wife on this Daxina Cailas in any guise that pleased their fancy at the moment. Description of this mountain 102.

The poet now proceeds to relate the legend of Suvarna mukhi. All the gods assembled on the day when Siva was married. Then follows the usual fable that their thus gathering, weighed down the hill, and Agastya and his wife were desired by Siva to go and sit on the other side to trim the boat—then the old story of the contention between mount Méru and mount Vindhya—to know which was noblest—then Agastya as usual made mount Vindhya bow 109.

Then is described Agastya's severe penance performed at a mountain, which is not named 137, description of the six seasons that fill the year. As usual the gods were in terrible alarm at this tapass, and flew for aid to Bramha who cheered them up, and Siva recommended them to go to him and present him the acasa ganga 136, which was the one object he was praying for. Therefore Bramha appeared to Agastya 140, and b stowed on him the Ganges, which thenceforth flows through the earth. Then Agastya placed the Lingam on the banks of the Ganges and adored it 151, being accompained by his wife Lopamudra. Then Agastya sung the following (dandaca) chant in praise of Siva. Then Parvati appeared to him in form of Jnan ambâ 165. The other hermits offer praise to Agastya; who replied by paying them compliments—and declared, that all who would worship the river should go to heaven. He then set out to travel through the Peninsula.

Such was the story which the jangam related to the king, who asked him, if he could mention any one else, who by force of worshipping the lingam had gone to heaven.

Canto II.—The jangam replied as follows.

Once on a time, Bramha was sitting in heaven holding Cutcherry. Sarasvati came in to pay her respects. She was waited upon by a numerous train, and entered the inner court and sat down by Bramha. She sent away her attendants—and her lord whispered in her ear that, much as he loved her, he wished she could become a hundred women, that he might love her a hundredfold. She complied, and the room was filled with women, and from his delighting in them, Bramha acquired the name Shatananda 16.

The poet now describes bramha's lustful pranks among this new seraglio. After a while, these hundred ladies bore 30,000 sons; 23 who were Rácshasas, and utter scamps, scoundrels and villains. They proposed to their papa to commit any sort of rascality, to which he would be pleased to appoint them.

Bramha repented that he had been so foolish as to cause the birth of these rascals. He desired them to go and inhabit mount Vindhya. They obeyed. There they slew the (rishis) saints, and ravished the women.

The goddess Earth (Ceres) was so much afflicted at their goings on, that she complained to Bramha. To abate the nuisance, he created a son named Ugra (Sævus) to whom he presented a chariot, and arms, and sent him to slay the fiends 40.

Ugra descended on mount Vindhya, and the giants came forth to fight him. Description of their horses, and chariots 45. The battle is described: The giants were smashed, whereupon the world became calm. Description 68-74 of the battle field, the corpses, the jackals, &c. Then Ugra returned to his father Bramha, and described the slaughter. Bramha, was greatly afflicted—and in his anguish he cast such a look at Ugra as reduced him to ashes. So he incurred the sin of slaying his son 75. To free himself from this sin, Bramha resolved on going to worship Siva. So he went to Cílahasti; and after bathing, he sat down to say his prayers, with fasting. After he had been at this work ever so many years—after which Siva appeared to him 88—Bramha offered him adoration—and let him know that this was the holiest of places.

Therefore he declared, that even the murder of a son shall be forgiven to any one who worships Siva at the shrine of Cílahasti—which is the Daxana Cailasa.

Blessings 93, on all who worship at Cílahasti in the month of Mágha.

Then granting Bramha's prayer for offspring, Siva blessed Sarasvati, and in two months she became pregnant. She bore a son named Rubhu, the gentlest and most virtuous of men 104.

The king now asked the Jangam, to explain how it happened, that Cílahasti became so holy—he begged to know how the shrine originated.

The Jangam replied 109, it is named Sri Cíla Hasti, or, the spider, the snake and the elephant—for in three succeeding ages of gold, silver, and brass, these three nice creatures went to heaven in consequence of worshipping at this place —as you shall now hear.

In the Crita yuga a (chelidi) spider 110, undertook to worship Siva and built chambers, cells and kitchens for the god—an odd description of the web woven. To try her faith, Siva let the lamp set her webs on fire—her anger, and grief at this —she resolved to extinguish the mischief-making lamp, by casting herself into its flame. But as usual Siva appeared, granted her prayers and carried her to Cailasa.

There was a very pious snake who daily adored the lingam with offerings of gems. But an elephant jealous of him, came, and daily offered flowers to the god. What one worshipper put one day on the image, was next day thrown away as rubbish by the other. Neither knew, who was doer of the mischief, and each determined to slay his adversary.

Description of evening 148, and then of sun rise 161, when the snake came to matins, he put on a diminutive form, and lay hid to see who the rogue was. The elephant now came, and finding that the flowers he had placed were undisturbed, he was much pleased. At last the snake got into the elephant's trunk—the distress of the elephant—who determined on suicide—which was effected by a blow which knocked out his own life, and that of the snake; whereupon Siva appeared, and carried both to Cailasa together.

Which accounts for this place being called Sri—Cala—Hasti.
[Note—The lexicons do not verify the assertion, that Sri signifies a spider.

Canto III.—In the land called Pottapu-nádu, is a village named Udumur. Description of the town—the Boya-baron, who ruled there, was named Nadha-nadha, whose wife was named Tande; she was pregnant. Description of the pregnancy—she bore a son, the usual ceremonies are detailed—he was named Tinnadu—alias Cannappa—the boy's youth, and boyish sports are described 40. The art of archery is depicted. Then follows certain ceremonies in the worship of Citredu (the forest dæmon.) The foresters assemble: the rites are performed. They all got drunk 56.

Next day the young squire went to the woods to hunt. Description of the chase. How they distributed the game they killed. The young gentleman describes the day's sport to his father 69. One day, the young Cannappa while hunting was weary, and lay down to sleep under a tree.

Siva appeared to him in a dream in the guise of a (tapaswi) hermit, and desired the boy to go to a certain spot and adore Siva 76. On awaking, he resumed the chase. In pursuing a hog, he was separated from his companions—and after running a certain distance, the hog disappeared, and in lieu of it he found an image (lingam) 82. Then Siva appeared to the lad, who recognized him as the person who appeared in the dream; and he worshipped him. He requested the god to go home with him. The Swami was silent.

Meantime his companions sought for and found the young Cannappa sitting in prayer—he would not speak to them awhile; and at last said, my soul is gone into this Image; and without it, I cannot live.

So saying, he dismissed his companions and remained at prayer in the wilderness. Presently he began to reflect, that surely the deva must be hungry. So to get something for the god's dinner, he went to hunt in the forest 106—he killed some pigs, and roasted the pork for the deva, and came back to him with his arrows on his shoulder and his bow under his arm 107. He laid the game before the god and desired him to eat: the god would neither eat nor answer 110. At last driven to desperation by the god's sullen silence, he said "if you continue silent, I will dash my brains out."

So the deva was delighted at his faith, and ate up the pork 113.

Thus Cannappa continued daily to feed the god on pork.

But there was a Siva Bramin who was the god's chaplain—he came one day and found the god as dirty as a pig, with the pork fat he had eaten 122. And said he—"Only tell me who has been greasing and insulting you so. If you won't tell me, I will dash my brains out."

So Siva appeared to the bramin and told him he was mistaken—adding, that he was well pleased with the devotion paid him by the forester: and said he, "If you wish to see him, hide behind me."

The bramin obeyed. Presently Tinnadu (Cannappa) came there with his offerings of flesh in his hand 126.

The god declined to eat the flesh and remained silent. On looking at him—Cannappa saw that the god was shedding tears from one eye 128. (The story says, that Cannappa brought the water-pot between his teeth, and wiped the god's face with his shoe.) So Cannapa spit on his handkerchief and wiped the eye—and collected all the medicines he had heard of; and at last reflected that an eye was the only physic for an eye. So he pulled out his eye, and gave it to the god—yet he only saw all the better. Then he pulled out the other eye 140, and at that minute Siva appeared and stopped his hand; and, approving his devotion, called the bramin and asked him if this was not the summit of devotion. Then as usual, he carried both of them to Cailas.

So the king asked the jangam to tell him another story.

At Válavâi which is commonly called Madhura, is a god, whom they call Cocanátha or the god of beauty. His wife's name is Minaxaya. Description of this town and its king, named king Pandion 156. At that place Parvati appears in 10 names and shapes.

Agastya lived in that town—and he was the father of the Tamil language. He gave the prince a magic bench, which lengthened to receive all who were sound scholars, and refused a seat to all others.

Now there happened a famine for twelve years 173, names of the wretched sorts of grain which the people ate. The general mortality 177, men began to feed on human flesh 180.

There was a bramin a priest of Siva, who was about to flee—but the god appeared to him and gave him a verse to recite to the king, which was to this effect. "There is a certain queen whose tresses are fragrant by nature—Explain this."

On his reciting this, a court poet named Nat'hiru laughed, and on being desired to explain it, the reciter referred his hearers to Siva—to whom he now returned. Siva was much annoyed. So he went to the king's court and challenged Nat'hiru to prove what defect there was in the description. Nat'hiru denied that any but goddesses had rosy hair.

In the midst of the discussion, Siva was so angry, that he betrayed himself by displaying the eye in his forehead.

Then he was again ridiculed; and cursed Nat'hiru to have the leprosy.

Siva told him he should be freed from the leprosy, whenever he could get a sight of Cailas.

Then Siva disappeared. So the luckless leper set out for Cailas.

Here follows a catalogue of all the Siva temples he went to, ending with Gaya and Benares. But still 218, his leprosy increased upon him, till he resolved on drowning himself—so he came to a fine pond 222, which is well described. Here he found the biggest tree in the world—when its leaves fell on the ground, they turned into birds; when in the water, they became fish.

226. But one luckless leaf fell half in the water and half on the bank, and turned into a bird-fish.

But while the wind and water were struggling for this creature, a huge bhûtam came there, and caught hold of Nat'hiru and carried him to a den, where he had imprisoned many others. He closed the door with a rock; and went away to bathe 229. Then his companions in misery bewailed with him as he too was come to be eaten. In his grief, he prayed to Subramhanyam 233, who appeared to him and slew the giant, and opened the cave, and released the victims, who thanked him, and went home. The god now asked Nat'hir why he had come there—he told all the story 237. Being directed to Cailas, he now was told that the southern Cailas (i. e. Calahasti) was the hill that Siva meant. So he came to it, and on bathing there, was cured. So he framed a chant in a hundred Tamil verses. Whereupon Siva and his spouse appeared to him; and, at his request, carried him home to Cailas 284.

Such was the story told to the king by the jangam.

Book IV. The poet again describes Madhura. In this town lived an actress 7, named Manikyavalli, who being pregnant (the symptoms are as usual depicted 8) she bore two daughters—description of lying-in-woman and treatment of the infants. The girls were educated as dancing girls, but provedso pious and austere, that they bent their whole hearts on holiness, and devotion to Siva. They learnt the hymns composed by Natkiru. The mother reproached them for this virtuous conduct. She tried to educate them as prostitutes, 31—34. They remonstrated on the wickedness of prostitution 49, and expressed their resolution to devote themselves to the god. The mother's arguments and lamentations 56, more arguments and quarrellings—which ended in their resolving to run away, and turn nuns, if only they could find a guide.

Meanwhile some thieves came to the house-side, and overheard these lamentations and plotted to put on a jangam garb, and seduce these girls to Cálahasti and then murder them.

Description of the jangam garb, which the thieves and these girls assumed, 61—62.

They ran away with these thieves, and also brought with them two little girls, who were in the house.

They were led by wrong roads till they reached Combaconum and Chitambaram, and wandered till they came to the sea shore 70. And three days after they arrived at a place which the rogues thought was fitting for robbing and murdering them ; but whenever a fitting opportunity appeared, at that moment some one or other came in the way. So completely did Siva rescue them. At last they arrived within sight of Calahasti 78. They asked the people what place this was. Story of Váli who brought a lingam with him, and it here took root 81—83. At last he rooted up a mountain, and hurled it at the lingam—whereupon a fountain of water burst forth. Miracles performed on this hill 92.

Next day they went to visit the hill of Agastya.

It now fell night 98, the night 100, the moon rose 101. They supped, and read the Siva Puran, and went to sleep.

Next morning the whole set out for Calahasti and while the sisters were saying their prayers in the morning 112, the murderers were about to fall on them. The sisters comforted each other.

At this moment a host of jangams approached. Their garb is described 114.

Whereupon the murderers took to their heels ; while under this noble escort, the maidens reached Cálahasti.

Therefore said the hermit to the king all this proves what a holy place Calahasti is.

But when the maidens reached Cálahasti, all this noble train melted into thin air and they entered the town hand in hand 127.

Next morning they bathed, and sung the hymn they had learned.

They being now arrived at the husband they adored were full of love.

So they arrived at the temple, and on entering, they saw a bright flame of divine origin, whereupon they vanished.

But at the door they left the two little girls, who after waiting long, were astonished at their not returning 160.

The sacristans searched the temple and found no one in it.

Then a supernatural voice declared that they had disappeared and gone to heaven 166, adding that these two maidens also should by faith attain to heaven.

168. This story being ended, the king now asked, how it was possible that a Spider and an Elephant and Snake could, with Cannappa the savage, attain heaven.

The jangam answered, that spider was Vulcan, who was by a curse of Brahma's, thus metamorphosed, as a punishment for being too ingenious. A string of stupid, childish legends follows this.

As for the snake 185, here is another nasty story in the braminical style. Siva told him that he and the elephant should make martyrs of each other.

Now regarding the elephant 202. Once upon a time Parvati and her husband being in their chamber, one of the pages named Hasti came into the room—and as a punishment she cursed him to be an elephant (hasti.) which curse should last till he, and a snake should kill each other.

212, Now as to the story of Cannappa, (this originates in a story found in the Mahabharat).

Once upon a time Arjuna was performing tapass 213, when Siva appeared to him in the shape of a savage, chasing before him a raxasa under the shape of a wild hog. All the rishis ran in fright to Arjuna, who discharged an arrow at the hog. At the same moment Siva despatched an arrow at the hog, and each claimed the merit of killing him, 219—220. This dispute ended in a fight.

But Siva, to try his faith, Siva (wishing to subdue him by gentle means) annihilated his arrows.

But now they set to work wrestling. And delighted at his valour, Siva appeared to him, and offered to grant him whatever he might request. Arjuna requested as a boon, the divine weapon called Pasupatastram and further requested immortality. Siva replied that the divine weapon should be granted : but to grant immortality to a manslayer was impossible. Therefore in the next birth Arjuna was born as a huntsman, whose name was Cannappa. And he, as already declared, attained the highest favour of the deity.

And as he offered his prayers here, at Cilahasti, said the jangam, I direct you to build a temple here. Hereupon the jangam vanished.

End of the legend.

The book is a thin folio, French paper, half bound in cloth and calf, lettered.

40. No. 219. Madura purânam, or Choca nat'ha lila ; dwipada metre 1—9 asvâsams.

"Sixty four tales, or legends intended to describe the miracles, or pranks of the god Siva." Said to be translated from the Halasya mahatmyam. "The Telugu style is low, and easy enough."

When the Halasya mahâtmyam was written the Brahmans had conquered the Bandd'has ; and could afford to be jocularly triumphant. It is strange, nevertheless, that such suicidal tales should be narrated of a god ; the object of religious worship.

The book is a thick folio, French paper, flowered paper boards, the back loose.

XVI. Roman Catholic.

1. No. 321. Vedanta rasayanam, the essence of the Vedanta ; padya cavyam.

By Anandâpi deyulu.

1st asvâsam—creation,—flood, and down to the general spread of idolatry, and selection of a particular family, 481 padyas.

2nd asvâsam—down to the birth of Christ, as the Messiah ; disputing with doctors in the temple, and other details of the life of Christ, 228 padyas.

3rd asvâsam—on the Trinity, with connected discussions and details, down to the resurrection, 266 padyas.

4th asvâsam.—Divine Attributes ; and other doctrinal matter, 248 padyas.

This book attracted much notice ; consequent to a brief mention of it by me, in the Madras Journal of Literature and Science. Some further statements concerning it will be found in vol. 3 of this Catalogue.

It is a thin quarto, superior wove paper, bound in wavy green cloth, and lettered.

The former owner writes :—"At the end of this volume is a summary in English : this I printed in the Madras Journal."

2. No. 322. Two books.

1.) Vedanta rasayanam ; padyas.

In 4 asvasams as above, with a brief summary of contents in English, at the end of the book.

2.) Tobiya charitram, 84 padyas.

By Pingala yellayya cavi.

In 4 asvasams, or brief chapters.

On the birth and rearing of Tobiya,—mode of reigning,—apparently a versified account of Tobias, as contained in the apocryphal book of Tobit.

The volume is a small quarto, of medium thickness, French paper, bound in sheep, and lettered.

3. No. 323. Vedanta rasayanam.

Another copy, 4 asvásams ; padyas.

This has also a brief English summary.

A small, and thin quarto, foolscap paper, bound in sheep, and lettered.

4. No. 324. Vedanta rasayanam—with a tica in part.

"In the Madras Journal Lit. No. 26, 1840, in my Essay on the Jangamas, is a short account of this poem ;" a more detailed account is given in the same (Journal, No. 28, July 1840,) page 54, in notices of some Roman Catholic books, existing in the Telugu language.

"The commentator was desired by me to explain only those verses which are grounded upon scripture. The descriptions which rest on mere tradition are therefore left unexplained, as being superfluous—see book 4, 169, 180, &c., which are apocryphal."

The said notices are highly panegyrical; but restricted to the language, and versification.

The book is a folio, of medium thickness, French paper, bound in country calf, and lettered.

5. No. 325. Amṛtam anubhavam, feast of ambrosia. A special epitome of the gospels was the report given to me by an assistant; but the account of the former owner is better.

"Am: anub: on obtaining immortality.

"A paraphrase on the gospels, Matthew to John, with occasional remarks by a Roman Catholic Missionary." Again:

"This is a selection of portions from the gospels.

"This book, in some pages, seems written by a foreigner; probably a Roman Catholic Priest. The style evidently shews that portions at least, are the work of one who was not thoroughly acquainted with Telugu.

"The various Romish superstitious legends are mingled with the text of the gospels: as for instance, see page 11, 12.

"The various speeches of our Lord are cut down very short, or wholly omitted. Even the sermon on the mount is much mutilated.

This version retains many words untranslated (from the vulgate) as sancta spirîtu, synagoga."

The book is a broad folio, of medium thickness, French paper, half bound in sheep, lettered.

6. No. 326. Jnâna bodhacam, prose "wise teaching" or "spiritual instruction."

"It is a Roman Catholic treatise, or series of sermons, apparently translated from the Tamil into very indifferent Telugu. The style is poor and dry. There is no instruction regarding the Bible. "C. P. B."

A Telugu opinion nearly the same, beneath six lines.

Prayer to the heart of Jesus was noticed. Michelet's explanation of that symbol is one of the best.

The book is a thin folio, French paper, bound in wavy cloth, lettered.

7. No. 420. Vedanta rasayanam, or essence of the entire Véda (scripture). A poem by a Roman Catholic, named Ananda, son of Timmayya, at the desire of a patron named Dásu.

In the introduction there is mixed matter; much of heathen reference; and a genealogy of the poet's patron, and of his various employs; one, his having been sent as an envoy to Pondicherry. The 1st book is on creation, with a variety of concomitant matters: with the 2nd book commences an account of the fall, and its sequels. If we ask why God permitted sin, it was that his (niti kripa) righteous mercy, might be manifested. Perhaps the author wrote (nítiyunnu kṛipayunnu) equity, and mercy. "He determined to be born as man on earth, and to bear the sins of men."

The immediate subject commences with a prophecy by Abraham; and Annámbá (or Anna) is made to be the mother of Mariambicà or Mary. The 2nd book includes the slaughter of the innocents, and the disputation in the Temple. Book 3 opens with remarks on the Trinity. It has a florid description of the river Jordan, and baptism by John the snápacadu or baptist, down to the crucifixion. Book 4 contains the resurrection, the descent of the Holy Ghost, with universal authority over all the earth given to Peter. Prayers are enjoined to be offered before a crucifix, and to the image of Mary. On the Eucharist. The disciple thanks his teacher, receiving baptism.

The usual benedictory salutation to the reader.

An edition of this poem, much abridged, heathenism excided, and otherwise expurgated, might be a useful present to Telugu young men, in some degree educated. They read if in verse, what they will not deign to look at, if in plain prose.

XVII. Romance historical.

1. No. 14. Molli Rámáyanam.

The Bala, Ayoddhya, Aranya, Kishkinda, Sundara, and Yuddha cándams.

An inferior version of the Rámáyanam and ascribed by some to a woman's hand.

The former owner remarks:

"The Yuddha candam in two M.SS. is written in two different ways. One probably is borrowed from another translation; not that by Bhascara, however."

The book is a small quarto, of medium thickness, good paper, half bound in calf and lettered.

2. No. 19. Vijaya vilásam; padyas.

1—3 asvásams.

The apocryphal adventures of Arjuna on a pilgrimage to the south: visit to Madura; and especially his amour with Subadhra, sister of Kṛishna and her elopement: from the Jaimuni Bháratam. There are many copies in the collection. Some English notes in the margin of this copy.

The book is a small quarto, of medium thickness, French paper, half bound in calf and lettered, worn.

3. No. 22. Sata muc'ha Rámáyanam.

1—4 asvásams—padyas.

Otherwise known as Sita Vijayam, an extra hyperbolical piece; in which Sita is made to cross the Indus, and conquer a country beyond it. There is an abstract in a foregoing part of this volume.

The book is a small quarto, of medium thickness, French paper, bound in embossed paper, and lettered.

4. No. 45. Nala chacraverti cat'ha.

By Rághava 1—5 asvásams, dwipada metre "written A. D. 1620."

See other notices: the copies are numerous. It seems that an edition was printed; and, at the end of the book, are errata in the said printed edition.

This book is 8vo., French paper, and flowered paper binding the same, broken.

5. No. 54. Rámáyanam; dwipada, ascribed to Rangha nát'ha.

In six volumes.

Vol. 1. The Bala and Ayoddhya cándams, with various readings.

An abstract of the opening part is given in English; and was intended, it seems, to be carried through; but it is not carried far, and extends only to the mention of the tapas of Visvamitra with a view to become a Brahmarshi.

Vol. 2. The áranya, kishkindà, sundara cándams.

Both volumes are very thick folios, French paper, half bound, and lettered.

Vol. 3. The Yuddha cándam part 1st.

Vol. 4. The same part 2nd samharam.

Vol. 5. The same part 3rd avántaram.

The three volumes are folios of medium thickness, French paper, half bound 3, 4 injured.

Vol. 6. Yuddha cándam part 4th, the end of the purva bhágam.

This book is a thick folio, French paper, flowered paper binding, the back injured.

The former owner's note:

"This M.S. of the Telugu dwipada Rámáyanam was completed under my direction in 1840. It contains the various readings found in fifteen different copies; some of which were very ancient."

6. No. 55. Uttara Rámáyanam, or seventh cándam, in two volumes.

Vol. 1, the 1st part. Vol. 2, the 2nd part.

A variorum edition on collation of four copies, one of them from the India House, (received by whom?) 12th March 1841.

The former owner notes, that the first six books are common, but the 7th book rare. Three copies were with difficulty obtained. The dwipada Rámáyanam affords a classical standard of the Telugu; and is not superseded by a modern version in padya cávyam, full of apocryphal details. In collating, one entire line was sometimes found to be omitted, except in one copy; and in such lines there were no means of getting at various readings. (Substance of his notes.)

Both volumes are folios, medium thickness, French paper, half bound in flowered paper.

7. No. 56. Rámáyanam, dwipada.

The three first cándams.

The book is a folio, French paper, half bound, and lettered.

8. No. 58. Rámáyanam dwipada.

Vol. 1. Bála to Sundara the first 5 cándams.

"A new edition from collated copies 1840.

After finishing the 8 volumes as above (5 and 6), this new edition was formed on the evidence of those copies.

"The work is usually ascribed to Rungaha nat'ha; but not so in this book."

Vol. 2. The 6th candam, Yuddha, new edition, from collation as in Vol. 1.

Vol. 1, a folio of medium thickness, good paper, cloth bound and lettered, the back injured.

Vol. 2, a thick folio, French paper—bound and lettered.

9. No. 59. Uttara Rámáyanam.

In two volumes.

Vol. 1. 1—4 asvásam, Vol. 2. 5—8 asvásams.

The translator's name is given as—Kámá kánt'ha pápi rázu.

Only one page is written; on the other side in the 1st vol. there are a few notes of contents—the outline very defective.

The book is a folio of medium thickness, good paper, half bound and lettered.

10. No. 60. Uttara Rámáyanam.

By Ticcana sómayájin (a very distinguished poet) 1—10 asvásams.

The former owner's note:

M.SS. of this poem are very rare; but deviate greatly in the readings, as will be seen in every page of the poem.

The book is a folio, of medium thickness, good paper, bound in calf and lettered.

11. No. 61. Rámayanam, dwipada.

1—110 sargams.

"Translation in dwipada metre of the Uttara Rámáyanam. A new and correct edition, prepared under the superintendence of C. P. Brown."

The book is a folio of medium thickness, good paper, half bound, cloth and calf, and lettered.

12. No. 62. Bhascara Rámáyanam.

In four volumes.

Vol. 1. Bálá and Ayoddhya cándams; a folio of medium thickness, good paper, half bound in calf and lettered.

Vol. 2. The áranya, kishkinda and sundara cándams.

A thick folio, good paper, half bound calf, and lettered.

Vol. 3. } the yuddha cándam.
Vol. 4. }

Both are folios of medium thickness, good paper, half bound and lettered.

There is a note in the 1st volume, that the work was translated in the Cuddapah district; considered to be an easy version. This copy was acquired at Rajahmundry in the Northern Circars.

13. No. 63. Ráma abhyudayam.

By Ráma bhadrayya, 8 asvásams.

The following are notes at various times by the former owner.

"This poem is much celebrated; but extremely rare; for many years I never met with but one M.S. Subsequently I procured one from the McKenzie collection, but that is deficient: the 1st book is wanting" (in a later handwriting) as far as the end of the Introduction."

"That manuscript was in confusion; for the leaves were not numbered, and had been jumbled. [Describes how he rectfied the arrangement;] done 4th April 1840.

"I afterwards obtained four more M.SS. and they enabled my pundit to edit the work satisfactorily.

"It is very ancient. Judging from the style of writing, I should imagine it to be more than 200 years old. Natives say, fully 400."

The book is a folio, of medium thickness, good paper, half bound, but the binding is much injured.

14. No. 64. Rághava Pándiyam, with a tica or glossary.

1—4 asvásams.

The former owner states:—

"This verbal commentary was composed at my request by the very learned Narasinhachari. This volume is in his own handwriting. The poem is one of extraordinary refinement, and singularly difficult—every stanza bearing two separate meanings; one giving the story of the Pandavas, according to the Mahabharat, and the other the adventures of Ráma. Thus the comment on each stanza is bipartite."

The book is a folio, of medium thickness, good paper, half bound in cloth and calf, lettered.

15. No. 66. Hari vamsam race of Krṣhna.

The purva bhágam, 1—9 asvásams.

„ uttara „ 1–10 „

From so voluminous a book, here and there a piece; and the whole not very coherent, can be taken out. Praise of Vishnu. Race of Krüti nayaca. Indra gave gifts to the race of Krṣhna. Notice of Chacravertis. On king Prit'hu,—mode of his reign. Birth of the Asvini devas; and of Raivata rája. Story of Dundudu a racshasa,—tale of Trisamsa. Legend of Harischandra. Dasarat'ha's son Ráma. Legend of the Bhagirati, and Ganges, rivers. Bhishma's command to Marcandeya. Tale of Parvati. Death of Bhishma. Origin of Chandra,—he took the town of the guru (Vrihaspati). Hastinapuri, and its line of kings. A variety of details as to Krṣhna, Bala Ráma and Duryodhana, with back references to the Párasu Ráma and Ráma chandra, avataras. The sports of Krṣhna, while keeping cows are narrated; and his war with some asuras. A discourse of Bala Ráma. Such, and very much more, belongs to the 1st part only.

A translation exists in French.

The late owner writes: "A Telugu version of version of the Hari vamsa. In his preface to the Vishnu puránam, page lviii. Wilson says:—

"The Hari vamsam professes to be part of the Mahabharat: it may more accurately be ranked with the pauranic compilations of least authenticity, and latest origin. It is chiefly occupied with the adventures of Krṣhna; but, as introductory to his era, it records particulars of the creation of the world, and of the patriarchal, and royal dynasties."

16. No. 90. Rághava pándiyam.

1—4 asvásams. See 14, No. 64, supra.

The book is a thin folio, French paper, bound in calf, and lettered.

17. No. 91. Rámáyanam dwipada.

By Conabuddha bhúpati, son of Vittala bhúpati, and by the latter's command.

Volume 1.	bála cándam	1—10 sections.
	ayoddhya ,,	1—17 ,,
,, 2.	aranya, kishkinda, and sundara cándams.	1—18 ,,
Volume 3.	wanting	1—20 ,,
,, 4.	yuddha candam	21—40 ,,

This was the basis of a new edition.

The book is a folio, of medium thickness, good paper, half bound, worn.

18. No. 92. Adhyátma Rámáyanam.

1	Bala cándam	1	asvásams.
2	Ayoddhya ,,	1—2	,,
3	Aranya ,,	1—3	,,
4	Kishkinda ,,	1—4	,,
5	Sundara ,,	1—5	,,
6	Yuddha ,,	1—6	,,
7	Uttara ,, complete.

The outline of the Rámáyanam, as if narrated by Siva to Parvati; and with a Saiva turn, or twist, given to the work.

The former owner observes "The M.S. from which this was copied was sent me by Sri bhupati bahadur Zemindar of Gadwal, under the Hydrabad government.

" This poem was translated into Telugu by Vihacarana peddana sómayágin. There is another translation by Cótanda rázu nágaya of Repalli."

The book is a thick folio, good paper, half bound and lettered, worn.

19. No. 94. Two pieces.

1.) Harischandra upakhyanam, padyas.

By Cánchi vira sarabhayya.

1—5 asvásams complete.

" It appears to be copied from the dwipada."

The often-recurring legend; in this instance by an inhabitant of Conjeveram.

2.) See XXIII.

The book is a folio, half bound, and lettered.

20. No. 96. Nellúri cávyam, or Harischandra upakhyanam, 1—5 asvásams.

By Cavi Sancara.

The tale of Harischandra, various corrections as to reading.

The book is a thin folio, French paper, bound in cloth and lettered, the back injured.

21. No. 99. Harischandra Nalópakhyánam.

1—6 asvásams, complete.

It is capable of double rendering, both as to Harischandra and Nala, the general outlines of whose adventures possess a similarity.

"H N. a poem written by Bhatta murti, but ostensibly composed by his patron Ramraz."

The book is a thin folio, French paper, half bound, and lettered.

22. No. 100. Harischandra Nalopakhyánam.

By Bhatta murti 1—6 asvásams, with a tica.

The former owner states ; "there are two commentaries on this poem ; of these, the oldest is given in this volume ; it is brief, and far from sufficient. The larger commentary is modern, and was composed at Masulipatam.

The book is a thin folio, French paper, bound in calf, and lettered, the binding injured.

23. No. 144. Vijaya vilásam, with notes, or a comment by Chámacúra Vencata raja cavi.

1—3 asvásams. The tica or comment by Zuluri Appayya sastri—see foregoing notices. The general subject is the apocryphal adventures of Arjuna in Tellingana, in the Pandiya kingdom, and at Dwaraca, [the exact site of which last is unknown : said to have been engulphed by the sea].

The book is a thin folio, French paper, bound in country calf and lettered, the back loose.

24. No. 145. A comment on the Vijaya vilásam.

By Zuluri Appayya. A rough copy on country paper.

The former owner states : "This commentary on the Vijáyá vilásam, a very celebrated Telugu poem, was written by the learned Zuluri Appáyyá, on a comparison of six M.SS. under the direction of C. P. Brown, in 1831."—" N.B. The preface is wanting in this copy, and must be supplied from my best M.S. when the book is copied fair."

It is a folio, of medium thickness, country paper, bound in sheep, damaged.

25. No. 185. *Máha Bhárata*m in Telugu so entitled ; but there is only the ádi parvam, or 1st book in 2 volumes.

Volume 1, ádiparvam canto 1—5.

„ 2, „ „ 5—8.

and this does not complete that book.

The book is a narrow folio of medium thickness, country paper, bound in country calf and lettered ; injured.

26. No. 186. 'Adi parvam of the Bháratam.

1—8 ásvasams or sections.

This seems to be a fair copy from the above one, on country paper.

The book is a broad folio, thick, on good paper, half bound in sheep, and lettered.

27. No. 187. Sabha parvam of the same.

1—3 asvásams, complete.

The book is a broad folio, thin, various paper, rough edges boards, with cloth back, much injured.

28. No. 189. 'Aranya parvam of the same.

The book is a thick folio, French paper, rough edged boards; these damaged.

33. No. 195. Bháratam.

1.) Drona parvam 1—5 asvasams, padyas.

2.) Kerna „ 1—3 „

Fair copy, both complete.

The book is a folio, of medium thickness, superior paper, bound in calf and lettered, used.

34. No. 196. Jaimini Bháratam.

1—8 asvásams.

The Jaimini Bháratam, is properly a Canarese classic poem. This must be a translation. The subject is an apocryphal pilgrimage of Arjuna to the south, often abstracted heretofore. It dwells on the asvamédha yágam of Dherma rája, and on the combat of Arjuna with his son—foreign to the Sanscrit Bháratam.

The book is a super-royal quarto, thick, good paper, bound in calf and lettered, worn.

35. No. 253. Rághu vamsam.

1—10 asrásums padya cavyam.

A translation of the Sanscrit work ascribed to Cáli dása.

The book is a royal folio, very thick, on stout royal paper, half bound, and lettered, used.

36. No. 254. Naishada cávayam, padyas.

1—8 asvásams.

Tale of Nala and Damayanti, translated from the Sanscrit.

The book is a thick quarto, superior demy paper, written on one side only, with red lines ruled ; half bound and lettered, worn.

37. No. 276. The ádi parvam of the Bháratam.

The book is a large octavo, of medium thickness, thick China paper, bound in sheep, worn.

38. No. 285. Abstracts of books.

1.) Uttara Ramayanam ; dwipada, an epitome.

2.) Adi parvam, of the Bháratam, an epitome.

3.) Sabha párvam, of the same, an epitome in two sections.

4.) Araya parvam, of the same, an epitome in nine sections.

5.) Drona parvam, of the same, an epitome in five sections.

The book is a folio, of medium thickness, various paper, rough edged boards, these are injured.

39. No. 316. Rámáyanam, dwipada ; a translation of 794 Sanscrit slócas.

1.) The bála cándam, 78 sargos complete.

2.) The Ayoddhya cándam 24 sargas incomplete.

From the birth of Ráma—residence with Visvamitra—marriage—down to his going with Sita to a wilderness.

The book is a thin folio, French paper, half bound, calf and marble paper, lettered.

40. No. 387. Rámáyanam.

The áranya candam, 56 sargas.

The feet are marked prosodially, and there is a verbal English rendering interlined, or on the opposite page.

The book is a thick folio, China paper, half bound, but loose and damaged ; looks old.

41. No. 393. Sabhá parvam of the Bháratam.

Building a hall of audience ; sacrifice by Dherma raja ; killing of Sisupála, &c.

The book is a thin folio, bound in sheep, lettered.

"Sabha of Telugu Mahabharat. Brown's (sese) edition 1830."

Vol. 2. Ibid. 4—6 „

By Tikkana Somayájin.

Bhishma to Dherma rája ; matters hortatory, ethical, consolatory at the close of the great war.

Folios, thick French paper, bound in sheep, and lettered Vol. "XX, book 12, canto 1—3 and 4—6."

43. No. 396. Bháratam.

The Sáuptica parvam.

The book is a thin folio, French paper, bound in sheep, lettered "Vol. 17. canto 1, 2."

44. No. 398. Bháratam.

The Zanti parvam ; fair copy.

The book is a thin folio, good wove paper, half bound, calf and flowered paper, lettered.

45. No. 422 to 432. Telugu Bháratam, in eleven octavo volumes.

No. 422. The ádi parvam from the 2nd asvásam.

The former owner's head-notes.

"The Telugu Mahabharat, vol. 2, beginning at book 1, canto 2, verse 173.—This copy is extremely incorrect, but contains some valuable readings."

No. 423. The ádi parvam continued.

No. 424. 'Aranya parvam.

No. 425. The same continued.

No. 426. Vírata parvam.

No. 427. Udyóga parvam, about one and half of the book written, on half blank.

No. 428. Zanti parvam.

No. 430. The same, 3rd part.

No. 431. The same, 4th part.

No. 432. 'Azrama vása parvam ⅔ blank.

"Telugu Mahabharat, book 15th."

There are other volumes, as 37 and 43 supra.

The whole of the preceding are octavo, stout China paper bound in sheep, and somewhat worn.

XVIII. Ritual.

1. No. 203. For sections 1, 2, 4, see XII.

For section 3, see I.

Section 5. Vaisya shodasa carma vidhi.

The mode of sixteen auspicious ceremonies among the Vaisyas, or mercantile, manufacturing, and trading class.

The sixteen are—pumsa vānam on 5th month of pregnancy simantem, 8th month játa birth, náma caranam naming; and so on, to upanáinam, for those who wear a thread, and vivaham marriage. In most cases the 16 ceremonies, of very frequent occurrence, relate to Brahmans. A spirit of imitation has led the lower classes to follow their example.

The book is a narrow, but thick folio; country paper, boards, and these injured.

XIX. Saiva.

1. No. 7. Two pieces.

1.) Sri Parvata puránam padyas.

1—6 asvasams.

Legend of the sacred hill; meaning Sri Sailam in Telingana

2.) Sánanda ganésvara muni charitram.

1—3 asvásam; padyas.

Merely an altered title, for another copy of the legend of Sánanda's visit to Yama-puram.

The former owner writes:—

"The Parvata puránam and the Sánanda ganesvaram, two sections of the Scanda puránam, translated into Telugu.

"This volume contains two tales translated from the Scanda puranam (?) probably that part called Sri saila khandam; though this is not named. It is a silly, stupid book, utterly worthless: yet written by a man of learning, and in a good style of poetry. The name of it is Sri parvata puránam. The second poem is the legend of Sánanda who was one of the ganas or angels." [Gana is properly a class; and the Saivas divide the celestials into ganas or hosts, of which they enumerate the names and the numbers, with an astonishing similarity to the classification by schoolmen of hosts, and orders of angels. The word gana is not unfrequently applied in legends to any one of these celestials].

2. No. 28. Sánanda charitram.

1—3 asvásams.

On the visit of Sánanda to Yáma's world. See various foregoing notices.

The late owner remarks:

"In the chronicle of Roger de Wendover (alias Matthew Paris) republished by Bohn 1849, page 217, are similar visions regarding Purgatory and Inferno."

The book is a small quarto, good paper, half bound in calf, and lettered.

3. No. 114. For sections 1, see XV, local 36; for section 2, see IX; section 3, Siva yoga sáram.

By Cavi Subana, or Cobartti Rámanayya. 1—3 sections.

On the essence of asceticism on the Saiva model; which is a strict one on this particular topic.

The entire book is a thick quarto, country paper, boards, these are injured.

4. No. 173. For section 1, see IV.

Section 2, Sánanda gánésvaram.

1—3 asvásams, padyas.

Here stated to be written by Purushóttama which name is Vaishnava; but a note in English infers the author to be a Saivite; since after the usual dedication the author states, that the god Virabhadra appeared to him in a dream, and bid him write.

See Supra 1, No. 17, 2)

The whole book is a folio, of medium thickness, bound in flowered paper, lettered, worn.

5. No. 263. For section 1, 2, see XX.

Section 3. Sámbu Siva vilásam, padyas.

On the sports, or amusements of Siva.

For section 4, see V.

The whole book is a folio, of medium thickness.

6. No. 270. For section 1, see VIII.

Section 2. Siváchára sangraham; padyas.

1—3 asvásams.

A compendium of ritual homage, according to the Saiva system.

XX. Tales.

1 No. 20. Two pieces.

1.) Surábhándésvaram; padyas with a tica or comment.

Its animus is a lampoon on Brahmans. One of that order at Benares fell in love with a spirit-seller's wife; and visited her, in the absence of her husband. One day, the latter returned unexpectedly; and the woman hid her gallant in an empty jar, putting a cover on the top. The Brahamn was forgotten awhile, and was suffocated. In imitation of local legends, he is stated to have been turned into a lingam, and to be worshipped under the above title, which signifies "lord of the liquor jar."

2.) Tárása sank'ha vijayam.

Conquest of the shell-Tárá or Tárá cat'ha.

1—5 asrásams; padyas.

The simple pauranical tale has been told by Col. Wilford, Col. Moor, and others; and it is found in more than one manuscript in the library. The present work is verbose, and ornate; with much matter that might be deemed objectionable, in a moral point of view. The Telugu poets are sometimes redundant in such sexualities; and this work is an instance the seducer being a middle aged female, and the seduced a youth in his teens. I saw it specified in a list of native works, printed at Madras.

The book is a small quarto, of medium thickness, French paper damaged, half bound in calf, and lettered.

2. No. 21. Vasu charitram; padyas cávyam.
By Bhatta murti, 1—6 asvásams.

The device of a king, and his minister going into a wilderness and overhearing female voices on a hill, leading to an amour between the king and the principal female, is a more scaffolding to profuse descriptions of scenery, and sentimental passions. The work is of extremely difficult composition.

It is here accompanied by an explanatory commentary.

The book is a small quarto, thick superior paper, bound in embossed paper, and lettered.

3. No. 25. Hamsa vimsati; various metre.

1—5 asvásams.

Twenty tales of a bird of the anser genus, vide infra 12, No. 38.

The book is a small, but thick quarto, common paper, bound in country calf, the binding much damaged.

4. No. 26. Sárangadhára charitram; dwipada.

See volume 1, p. 489, and page 634, and many copies in the present volume, supra.

It is a popular tale of a king's younger wife falling in love with his son; very similar to the Grecian Theseus, Phædra and Hippolytus. The young man being exposed in a forest, with arms and legs cut off; had them restored by a mystical personage; and afterwards became one of nine magic lords; their doings are narrated in another book—a detail of villanies, and atrocities, exceeding belief.

The book is a small thin quarto, bound and lettered.

5. No. 40. Suca saptati seventy tales of a parrot. In 3 volumes, each one numbered 40.

1st volume, I asvásam; 2nd volume, 2nd asvásam; 3rd volume, 3rd asvásam. Arranged by Zulurappayya sastri in 1834, stated to be very rare ; and to be an imitation, not a translation, of a Sanscrit work of the same title ; but not complete, as having only 30 tales

This appears to be a collated, and corrected copy. Usually considerable discrepancy exists in various copies of popular tales. There is a similar book of tales in the Hindustani language ; and the Hamsa vimsati, or twenty-tales by a swan, has in it similar passages probably borrowed ; because that is a recent production and the present one is older, said to have been written before Telugu literature became an object of attention ; and of patronage. In a moral aspect the production is objectionable.

The books are royal 8vo., good paper, bound in sheep ; the binding injured.

6. No. 42. For section 1, see IV.

Section 2. Surabhándèsvaram—see 1. 20 1) et alibi.

The whole book is a royal 8vo., bound in calf, good paper ; the binding used.

7. No. 74. Vasu charitram ; 2 volumes.

Volume 1, from 1 to 3rd asvásam.

„ 1, from 4 to 6th „

This elegant poem appears to have been printed at Madras. It is by a celebrated author : see other notices. The tale is a mere vehicle for descriptions of scenery and of amatory passions.

Volume 2, No. 21, supra et alibi.

Folios, the 1st volume of medium thickness, the 2nd volume thin; superior paper, elegantly bound in green calf, embossed and lettered, "with a new comment.

8. No 75. Mándha charitram or Cavi kernara rasayanam: two volumes.

Vol, 1, from 1 to 3rd asvásam.

Vol. 2 from 4 to 6th „

An entry, with brief notice, occurs among the 1st Family MSS., see also IV, No 171, where there is a fuller notice of this erotic tale.

Folios of medium thickness, various paper, elegant binding in green calf and lettered, "with commentary."

9. No. 76. Manu charitram ; padya cavyam.

1—6 asvásams.

On interleaved pages are notes in Telugu, but only philological.

The book is a thin folio, good paper, bound in calf, and lettered.

10. No. 77. Manu charitram, with tica.

In two volumes, vol. 1, from 1 to 3rd asvásam.

By Peddana ,, 2, from 4 to 6th ,,

As to contents, see a foregoing notice under the 1st Family M.SS. 13, No. 63. 1) and 36, No. 36.

1.) Stated herein to have been written at the request of Krishnaraya of Vijayanagara, who was the son of a dási ; and the tale relates to an amour on the Himalyas of a king, with a gandharbu woman.

The works of this celebrated poet are recondite and obscure. A Commentary accompanies these two volumes ; written as would appear by Zuluri Appayya Sastri, who is indicated in a foregoing page.

The book is a folio, of medium thickness, good paper, bound in paper, and lettered.

11. No. 78, Vicramarca charitram.

By Zaccayya cavi 1—8 asvasams.

The adventures of Vicramáditya with a Sanniyasi ; shewing that human sacrifices to Cali were customary at Ougein. The captious tales told by a Betala, or familiar demon, in order to regain his liberty. Many copies, and notices have preceded.

The late owner remarks that the work is late date, when Telugu literature had fallen into neglect. The tale said to be rarely met with, and all M.SS. defective, probably left so by the author ; but complete as far as it goes

The book is a folio, of medium thickness, good paper, bound in paper, and lettered.

12. No, 83. Hamsa vimsati. Twenty anser tales.

1—5 asvásams.

Sáttanar cat'ha, tale of a flower gatherer.

Nac'ha cat'ha, tale of a jackal.

Nayacam vani cat'ha, tale of a watchman.

Janra danni cat'ha, tale of a female weaver.

Buda vaidicam cat'ha, tale of a doctor.

Brahmani danni cat'ha, tale of a female Brahmani.

Jangama danni cat'ha, tale of a female Jangama.

Comti dánni cat'ha, tale of a female of the trader class.

Reddi bárya cat'ha, tale of a Reddi's wife.

Telugu váni cat'ha, tale of one of câura caste.

Cumarivári cat'ha, tale of a potter.

Gandla dánni cat'ha, tale of an oilmonger's wife ; and others similar in kind.

The book is a folio, thin, good paper, bound in calf, and lettered, a corrected edition with variations.

13. No. 84 Hamsa vimsati ; two volumes.

Vol. 1, I—3 asvásams, }
„ 2, 4—5 „ } or books.

The book is a thin folio, good paper, bound in sheep, lettered ; the binding injured.

14. No. 85 Tara cat'ha, or Tárása sanc'ha vijayam, conquest of the stellar-shell.

By Venkata pati namadheya—3 volumes.

Vol. 1, 1—2 asvasams containing 113 padyas

„ 2, 2—3 „ from 114 padya to 3, 48 padyas

„ 3, 3—5 „ from 3, 49 padya to the end.

"The tale of Tárà complete, with the commentary complete 1830.

The book is a folio, of medium size, French paper, bound in country calf, and lettered ; used.

15. No. 86. Tárása sanc'ha vijayam.

By Vencatapati cavi, 1—5 asvasams.

"This copy contains the fair transcript of the corrected text, accompanied by the various readings."

The book is a folio, of medium thickness, good paper, bound in country calf ; worn.

16. No. 87. Tárà cat'ha or Tárà sasanc'ha vijayam.

By Vencatapati, 1—5 asvásams complete.

The book is a folio, good paper, half bound, and lettered, with various readings ; the binding injured.

17. No. 88. Tárà cat'ha or Tárâsa sanc'ha chacoriyam.

1—3 Asvásams, the 4th and 5th are wanting.

This is an early copy, used in collation.

The book is a folio, of medium thickness, country paper, boards.

18. No. 97. Two books.

1.) Harischandra cat'ha—dwipada metre, natsa malli uttara bhágam ;

2.) Dhermángada charitram—dwipada : no sections.

Ahalya is represented asking her husband Gâutama ; who was the most faithful of wives, seeing that Sita, Dráupadi Tárà, Ahalya, and Mandodhari had not escaped blame. Gâutama in reply, told her the tale of the daughter of king Dhermangada, who was wedded to a snake, which she carried about in a box ; till by passing a river, the snake resumed a human form ; and this as a pattern to Ahalya of conjugal faithfulness. Many notices of the tale have preceded.

The book is a folio, of medium thickness, French paper, half bound in country calf, and lettered ; worn.

19. No. 98. Section 1. Harischandra cat'ha, dwipada.

The purva, and uttara bhágas v. supra 18, No. 97.

For section 2—4, see XIII.

For section 5—6, see V.

20. No. 101. Nala rája cat'ha, dwipada.

The purva and uttara bhágas, divided into 5 asvásams or "cantos, C. P. B."

"This is the original of the edition printed by me at Madras in 1841. The various readings of several M.SS. are preserved in the present volume ; prepared in 1828."

The book is a thin folio, good paper, half bound and lettered ; used.

21. No. 108. For section 1, see V.

Section 2. Toti náma cat'halù—tales of a parrot.

Jayadu, a merchant, had a son named Mayamàn who went to a distance by sea, on a commercial enterprise. His wife Chandra muc'hi had seen, and was seen by a young prince, going out in procession. An intrigue was in progress, but stayed by a bird; which told her tales to occupy her attention till morning. In the end it is stated, she killed the bird.

The book is a folio of medium thickness, good paper, half bound in cloth and calf, and lettered.

22. No. 121. Simhásana dwatrimsati cat'halu.

By Gopa rázu, son of Kesava rázu.

1—12 asvásams, padya cavyam.

Thirty-two tales by the statues of Vicramarca's throne.

Bhatti (or Bhatri) the brother of Vicramarca was injured by means of craft. Vicramarca came to the throne. Birth of Sáliváhana, and war with Vicramarca, ending in the death of the latter. The throne was buried, but dug up, many years afterwards, in the time of Bhoja raja. It had sixteen steps, and two rows of statues, one at each end, in all 32; who were imprisoned females, sent down to earth as a punishment. On Bhoja attempting to amount the throne, each of the statues, in turn, narrated a tale of Vicramarca and made Bhója retire abashed. Compare with former notices.

Various readings gathered from three or four M.SS. according to an English note, on the inner cover.

23. No. 122. The same; a fair copy.

1—12 asvásams.

At the end is a brief abstract in Telugu, prose, of the whole book.

The foregoing No. 121, has various readings; the present book seems to be a fair copy, from a collated, and rectified text.

The book is a folio, of medium thickness, French paper, half bound, in cloth and calf, lettered.

24. No. 123. Tales of the throne, with a summary.

1—12 asvásams. The following remarks are by the late owner.

"This is the new edition of the Vicramarca Tales, or tales of the throne, in stanzas, in 12 books. This edition was duly corrected by the editor Narasinháchári, under my directions, in the year 1842.

"The style of this poem is much admired; but most of the stories are deplorably silly, and all turn upon the prodigious sanctity of Brahmans. Many are nasty enough; though not nearly so filthy as the stories in the Mahabarat, and Bhágavatam."

"In this edition, the dedication, and preface are omitted, they occupy 132 stanzas.

"There are some blemishes in the style of this poem."

25. No. 124. Bhoja rajiyam, tale of Bhója rája's kingdom. He built an ornamented town, and ruled there. He had a son named Sutandra. The king lived in all sorts of pleasures; but in the midst of them, was smitten with leprosy. He went to a forest, and worshipped Dattatreya svámi, and was cured. Besides there is a tale of the Ganges termed a mahatmyam; legend of Comala Bhascara, and other like matters; prose and verse mixed together.

The book is a folio, of medium thickness, country paper bound in sheep, worn.

26. No. 130. Six books, or pieces.

1.) Kira bahattari cat'ha (new name.)

"This book is the tales of a parrot, being a series of novels, or love stories in the usual style. The introduction (which fills the first six pages) is new and more stupid, and unartful than in the Persian version."

2.) Dilla ráma cat'ha, a story of a son-in-law of a king of Delhi.

3.) Kucheyolópákhyanam.

1—3 asrásams. See under V.

4.) Sarangadhara cat'ha, dwipada.

Often before abstracted: v. 4, No. 26, supra.

5.) Sat guna bodha.

6.) Varticam.

Two ethical pieces.

The book is a folio, of medium thickness, good paper, bound in flowered paper, and lettered.

27. No. 133. For section 1, see IV; section 2, see VIII.

Section 3. Cumáruni Ramudu cat'ha.

This is a version from the Canarese of a popular tale in that language ; frequently noticed in volume 1, see pages 623, 627, 629, &c.

For section 4, 5, see VIII.

The entire book is a folio, of medium thickness, good paper, half bound in cloth and calf, and lettered.

28. No. 139. Two books.

1.) Nava nát'ha charitram, 1—5 asvásams.

Tale of nine lords. The book is a copy from a palm-leaf M.S. β A. c.

The first is the tale of Sirangadhara who was injured before he became a villain ; the atrocities of the other eight siddhas are unparalleled.

It appears that the entire work was once very rare ; but that a part of it was printed at Madras in 1842. The details are very shocking ; calculated to harden bad men, and to initiate others into mysteries worse than those of London, or Paris. How far the Native press should, as now, be left to itself, in uncontrolled action, may merit serious consideration.

2.) Nala chacraverti cat'ha, 1—3 asvásams.

By Timmana cavi ; a version from the Naishadham ; on Nala and Damayanti ; their marriage, distress, separation, re-union : of frequent occurrence.

The book is a somewhat thick folio, good paper, bound in cloth and lettered.

29. No. 146. Three books.

1.) Vaijayanti vilásam "a lady's wager."

Otherwise, Vipra Náráyana charitram.

By Tomayya, 1—4 asvásams.

This book was also edited by a Native, who likewise wrote a Commentary in 1833 ; but whether it was printed on Native responsibility, or by other aid is not certainly known.

The poem partakes of the character of "a squib." The lampoon is directed against one of the Vaishnava 'Alvar ; usually highly venerated. It may therefore be the work of some sectarial rival, in the proximate Saiva fane of Jambukéscara.

Frequent notices with abstracts occur supra.

In brief, a dancing girl at Trichinopoly undertook to conquer a famous Brahman. She succeeded ; and induced him to steal a golden vessel from the temple, which brought him into trouble, obviated by an express intervention of the god.

2.) Sómavára mahatmyam—another name of the Paidi marri cavyam v. supra 135. 1).

A tale to exemplify the importance of observing Monday, when new moon day ; but its character may be best seen in the abstract given above.

3.) Sárangadhara, charitram.

By Sámbu.

"This is merely a portion of the nava nat'ha charitra, dwipada, Gaurana, wherein the story is better told in a superior style. In the present volume much amplified, and less pleasing; whole lines borrowed from the nava nát'ha charitram."

The book is a thin folio, French paper, bound in cloth, lettered ; used.

30. No. 147. Vaijayanti vilásam ; múlam and tica, the latter by Vira Bhadra of Arnee matam ; v. supra 146, 1.) 1—4 asvásams.

It appears to be a satirical version from a more simple Tamil tale, entitled Tondi reddi podi Aluvar charitram.

The book is royal quarto, thin, royal paper, half bound in cloth and calf, lettered.

31. No. 148. Three pieces.

1.) Sucumari parinayam, padyas.

1—1 asvásams.

Marriage tale of one named "good daughter."

2.) Sunanda parinayam—padyas, 1—5 asvásams.

Marriage tale of Sunanda, vide 1st family.

3.) Lanca vijayam—padyas, 1—2 asvásams.

A fragment from the Rámáyanam.

The three books have disguised titles.

A thick folio, country paper, bound in sheep, worn·

32. No. 157. Three pieces.

1.) Harischandra upakhyanam.

By Cánchi vira sarabha; and hence termed Cánchi cavyam, 1—5 asvásams.

2.) The uttara Harischandra cat'ha.

1—4 asvásams padyas, without any ticá or glossary.

"The tale of Harischandra by Vira sarabhayya is exceedingly popular. It is composed in a beautiful classical easy style: it is an original Telugu poem, and is full of amusing incidents." 2,) seems to be matter superadded to the ordinary tale.

3.) Sri parvata puránam; padyas without any glossary. Legend of the hill at Sri sailam. There is a foregoing copy in a book under Saiva: supra XIX, 1, No. 7.

The book is a folio of medium thickness, paper good, but various, half bound in calf, and marble-paper, lettered.

33. No. 179. Section 1, Sacala cat'ha sára sangraham, a compendious epitome of all tales: padya cavyam.

1—5 asvásams.

For section 2, see V.

The book is a royal quarto, of medium thickness, French paper, half bound in calf and marble-paper, lettered.

34. No. 480. Two books.

1.) Rucmangada charitram.

By Cavi Mallayya. 1—5 asvásams.

Properly a Canarese work. See volume 1, p. 623, and following pages. This may be a translation: it is in composite metre.

The main object is to enforce the importance of a strict fast on the 14th lunar day.

Rucmangada a king observed this fast. Yama grieved at getting so few subjects from the king's dominions, complained to Brahma; and ethical matter is introduced. Brahma promised to send Mohini, who descended on mount Mandara. Rucmangada went out to hunt, rejecting his queen's objections. He met with Mohini. In their subsequent converse all her endeavours were, from time to time directed against the above fast, in vain: in revenge, she tried to entrap the king's son Dhermangada, and the catastrophe is similar to the often recurring tale of Sârangadhara.

2.) Bhallana charitram, padyas, 1—3 asvásams.

The name is variously spelt Ballana, Balhana, and as above. It has very often occurred. It is Vira Saiva in kind.

Nârada reported to Siva the liberality of a king. Siva went to test it, and asked for a chaste wife. As no other one could be found, the king gave up his youngest wife. At the moment of being introduced, the god vanished, and the woman found a child in her arms. The late owner states this poem to be "very popular among Telugus."

The book is a narrow folio of medium thickness, country paper half bonnd in calf and marble-paper, lettered.

35. No. 181. Pativrütya charitram; tales of chaste wives: as Pushpa dantini cat'ha—Chandra pratapurni cat'ha—Arundhati devi cat'ha—Sâlitri cat'ha—Carágre kankanam cat'ha—Vannita cat'ha— and many others.

These tales are assumed to have been secretly told by Siva to Parvati. An attendant named Pushpadanta, (flower tooth) after having been repulsed by the door-keeper, took the form of a zephyr; and being perched on the couch, heard the tales, and afterwards told them to his wife. She went to Parvati's court, and narrated the same stories. Parvati incensed, levelled a curse at Pushpadanta; and on this foundation the various tales are unfolded.

The book is a folio, somewhat thick, superior paper, half bound in cloth and calf, lettered; worn.

36. No. 204. For section 1, see VII.

Section 2. Sârangadhara charitram. Only the 1st asvásams.

Section 3. Surabhandésvaram, see former notices—both these, very often occur.

The book is a royal octavo, thick, rough edged paper, boards; worn.

37. No. 216. Four pieces.

1.) Vira Bhadra vijayam,

1—4 asvásams,

The legend of the sacrifice by Dacsha; Sati's self-immolation—Vira Bhadra produced—the sacrifice upset—Dacsha killed and restored to life, &c. There are some English marginal notes, by the former owner.

2.) Surya tanaya parinayam; also called kalinda parinayam, 1—5 asvásams.

By Rakahla patlu linga ráju, incomplete.

Book 1—The usual introduction—the town of Dwáraca described—Krishna reigned there. The Pándavas sent him a present. Náreda presented him with a miniature; and told him, the beauty represented the daughter of Surya by his subordinate wife Ch'hayya, named Kálinda. Description of Kálinda's person. The 2nd book not entered here. One too many of such legends, as regards Krishna.

The book is a thick folio, country paper, half bound in country calf and lettered; the binding damaged.

In Ujjayini there was a Jaina merchant, who had a son named Mayamàn and he married Chandra-muc'hi. The husband went to a distance, to trade. His wife, and a king's son became enamoured. The wife consulted a female maina (a bird), which dissuaded her, and she wrung off the bird's neck. A parrot then told her tales for fifty-two nights, to occupy her attention; at the end of which time, the husband returned. On hearing what had occurred, he cut off his wife's head, and became a Sanniyási.

Section 2. Sárangadhara charitram.

1—7 asvásams, dwipada.

For section 3, see XIX. For section 4, see V.

XXI. VAISHNAVA

1. No. 67. Vishnu chitiyam, or Amucta malyadu ascribed to Krishnaraya; but by Allasana peddana. 1—6 asvásams, complete.

The poem is considered to be one of great elegance as to language, but exceedingly abstruse. It is generally accompanied by a comment, said to have been supplied by the author of the poem. Abstracts have been heretofore given: the following by the late owner is superadded.

"A Bramin finds an infant girl in his garden—he rears her, and sends 'her to present daily garlands to Vishnu. She first uses them, and then, having 'worn them, presents them. Ultimately she prays to be wedded to him, and the 'god assents, she being amucta maly-da the sender of worn garlands. For in truth, 'she was the goddes Lacshmi in human form."

In Tamil books she is termed Chudu kodutta náchiyar, the lady that gave the chaplet: various poems are ascribed to her. The Brahman Vishnu chit was one of the 'Aluvár. He strove against the Saiva system, previously established; with only partial success.

The book is a thin folio, good paper, half bound in calf and lettered; used.

2. No. 68. Vishnu chitiyam or amucta malyadu.

By Allansáni peddana.

1, 2, 4—6, asvásams 3rd wanting.

A comment on the foregoing poem.

"This M.S. has been corrected throughout, by the very learned critic Guluri Appayya in 1831. The 3rd book of the poem is wanting in this copy."

The book is a folio of medium thickness, French paper, half bound in calf and lettered, as "old comment."

3. No. 71. Vishnu maya vilásam, or, as more commonly called Cavi grant'ham

By Veneatacya cavi.

1—5 asvásams complete.

For the general subject, vide infra.

The book is a thin folio, half bound in cloth and calf, and lettered, good paper.

4. No. 72. Vishnu maya nátacam.

1—5 asvásams (not ancas) complete,

It contains a variety of matters relative to which Vishnu assumed deceptive forms, with an intention to deceive; and often deceiving. Pundarica rishi, after being taken in, said "this is Vishnu's trick, is it not?" But the chief incident is on the deceptive form of Mohini intended to bewilder, and entrap Siva; and then to take the amrita from the possession of the asuras in favor of the dévas. The details however are various, and calculated to please such tastes as relish Voltaire's obscenities, or Molière's Scapin. As for the idea of Vishnu, regarded as a god, being engaged in such proceedings, it is as degrading to the object of worship as Ovid's treatment of Jupiter or Apollo. The tendency of such popular works is too obvious to need any enlargement.

The book is a thin folio, good paper, bound in calf and lettered.

5. No. 73. Vishnu maya nátacam.

1—5 asvásams, complete.

Another copy on country paper.

The book is a folio of medium thickness, half bound in calf and lettered.

6. No. 140. Parama yóga vilásam.

1—8 asvásams, dwipada.

The former owner states :—

"There is a M.S. of this in the Bodleian library at Oxford.

"Transcribed from a volume in the East India House Library and sent to me by Prof. Wilson. The various readings found in a M S. procured at Madras, are inserted.

"This book is intended to teach the principles of the Vishnu creed. It is the life and adventures of Namu Alwar, who is also called Shalta gopala. He appeared in an age preceding that of the celebrated Rámanujachari. The doctrine herein taught is not according to the creed of Sancar Achar ;"

See volume 1, p. 486, No. 1037, and three following numbers to 1090.

The book is a folio of medium thickness, superior paper, bound in cloth and lettered.

7. No. 141. Section 1. Parama yogi villásam.

1—5 asvásams, incomplete.

Section 2. Samira cumara vijayam.

1—7 asvásams, padya cavyam.

For section 3, see V.

The book is a folio of medium thickness, very good paper ; half bound in calf and grained-paper ; lettered.

8. No. 160. Dasavátara charitram.

1—10 asvásams.

This is a fair copy ; the padyas without any tica. This work, on the manifestations of Vishnu has before occurred. It includes the tale of Tárá, but not the licentious form of that tale, the Tárása sank'ha vijayam.

The book is a folio of medium thickness, French paper, bound in calf and lettered.

9. No. 161. Dasavatara charitáram.

In four volumes :—

Volume 1, contains the 1st and 2nd asvásams, with a full tica or lengthened explanation : on the matsya and curma avatárams. Written on one page, and the other page blank.

A very thick folio, country paper, bound in sheep ; the binding much injured.

Volume 2, contains the 3rd and 4th asvásams on the Varáha avatára and 5th asvásam on the Vámanávatára—the original padyas, and a full tica as above.

A very thick folio, country and French paper, bound in sheep, the binding damaged.

Volume 3, contains the 6th to 8th asvásams, as above. On the Párasuramávatára and Cólanda Rámávatára.

A very thick folio, one-third country and two-thirds French paper, bound in sheep ; injured.

Volume 4. Contains the 9th and 10th asvásams.

On the parentage, birth, life, and actions of Krishna.

A thick quarto, royal wove paper, edges uncut, boards and cloth back; used.

10. No. 162. Dasávatára charitra.

In two two volumes:

Volume 1, contains the 1st asavāsam, the matsya avatāram complete; the 2nd asvāsam, the Carma avatāram, incomplete.

The book is a thick folio, country paper, with rough edges; worn and injured.

Volume 2, contains the remainder of the 2nd asvásam ; the 3rd asvāsam the Varāha avatáram, complete; the 4th asvāsam, incomplete.

A thick folio, country paper, uncut edges; boards injured.

11. No. 206. For section, see I.

Section 2. Narasimha vilásam, padyas.

1—3 asvásams.

A legend of Vishnu in the man-lion avatāra, forming an illicit connexion, set right by Lacshmi; but it is doubtful whether the name is not that of some native prince.

The whole book is a medium sized folio, French paper, bound in country calf and lettered; worn.

12. No. 255. Two pieces.

1.) Vishnu maya vilásam, padyas.

1—3 asvsáams v. supra 3, No. 71.

2.) Narasa rajyam—padyas.

The book is a royal octavo, thick, superior paper, half bound and lettered.

XXII. Vedanta.

1. No. 135. For sections 1, 2, see IV.

Section 3. Vedanta varrticam.

No divisions—on the Vedanta system.

For sections 4—7, see XIV.

2. No. 228. Vásu deva manamu.

A bhashantaram, or full comment on a work, entitled Viveca sáram, or essence of wisdom, 1—13 varnacam

On the pantheistic system, as held by Vishnavas, which differs from the advaitam.

A few stanzas at the end, quoted from Vemana, as applicable to such books as this.

The book is a narrow folio of medium thickness, country paper, bound in sheep and lettered.

XXIII. VIRA SAIVA.

1. No. 94. For section 1, see XVII.

Section 2. Prabhu linga lîla—padyas.

1—5 asvásams.

By Tondu parti Basavayya.

See various other notices, as volume I, p. 613 and 654, and in the present volume.

The book is a folio of medium thickness, good paper, half bound in cloth and calf; lettered.

2. No. 222. Vira Mahésvarácháryá sangrahám.

1—10 asvásams.

By Parvata mantri lingayya.

The former owner states:

"This is one of the aradhya, or semi Janzama books, laboring to reconcile the creed of Basava, with the various superstitions in vogue among bramins. Such treatises seem to aim at reconciling the Smartas and Aradhyas. No wonder that the Jangamas reject such books, as heretical. Basava endeavoured to abolish the very customs inculcated. Particularly spells (magic,) such as occur in p. 424."

The book is a folio of medium thickness, French paper, half bound in cloth and calf, lettered; worn.

3. No. 224. Prabhu linga lila—padyas.

By Kocharla kota Ramayya.

1—5 asvásams.

An extract is given from the Bhagavat gita as a motto.

The book is a folio of medium thickness, good paper, cloth bound and lettered.

4. No. 225. Prabhu linga lîla; dwipada.

1—5 asvásams.

By Peduparti Somayya.

A rough copy with various readings.

The late owner states:

"A new edition of this poem was grounded upon the present volume, and was prepared under my orders in 1839.

"The present copy collated from five M.SS. in my possession. A heretical book of the Vira Saiva matam.

"The author Peduparti Somaya is believed to have lived about three centuries ago; but there are reasons to believe him more ancient.

"The padya cavyam Prabhu linga lîla was by Cocherla Coti Lingayya's son."

Vide 3, No. 224, supra.

The book is a narrow folio of medium thickness, country paper, pasteboard covers; the back damaged.

5. No. 226. Prabhu linga lila: dwipada.

1—5 asvísams subdivided into 25 adhyayas. "With various readings found in several M.SS. and recorded under the directions of C.P.B."

"The text is here given according to the edition prepared in 1839, by Narasimmácharya."

The book is a narrow folio of medium thickness, superior wove paper, cloth bound and lettered.

6. No. 227. Prabhu linga lila.

By Peduparti Somayya 1—5 asvásams, 1—25 ádhyayas.

There are marginal notes in English, and at the end a table of contents in Telugu; which is translated into English, as an abstract of the whole. This abstract was copied, and is here inserted.

"PRABHU LINGA LILA."

The following abstract was drawn up under my directions in Telugu (C. P. B.)

I. Salutation to Allama verse 6, and to Baswaya Siddha Ramaya; to Maya and other personages. Piduparti Somanna undertakes to compose a work on the Siva creed, 18.

The god Siva assumed the garb of a mendicant, came to Nellúri Ramaya Lingum, and demanded his son 22: who was accordingly presented to him. Then Nellúri Ramaya Lingum called on Somaya to translate the poem "Prabhu Linga Lila" out of Cannada into Telugu 30: Somaya undertakes the work 41, he prays for success 59: promising to devote his talents to his god alone. Paravata Gatendra encourages him. Description of Siva in the semblance of Daxina Murti 73—91. Siddha Véréswara adores him in this image. Series or order of creation 102.

II. Description of Bramha, as creator of the world: description of Cailas. Siva dwelling therein, in bliss with Parvati. Bringi (or Nandekesvara) describes his adventures 44: Parvati proposes a question to Siva as to the true means of obtaining bliss: Siva replies that self-denial is the one mode: that those who believe in him shall attain to him.

Siva perceives that Parvati prides herself in the idea that the world is subject to her: and to humble her, he summons Allama (Justus) 52 and Parvati inquires who he is, Siva replies that he is an excellent man, Parvati declares her belief that he will not prove able to withstand her (Maya) wiles 69. She therefore directs Maya [who I suppose is Maia, mother of Mercury] to descend to earth and delude Allama 77.

III. Description of (ಬಣಜನ) Banavani a flourishing city 20, and of Mamacára (see X 56 error) who weds Mohini (Voluptas) and they offer vows for offspring 28. Maia (Fraus) is born as their daughter [as the visible form of the Tamasa gunam, see VIII, 24, see Gita XVII]. The hermits hold a colloquy with Dúrvása 38, who describes how this supernatural birth happened 43; he also describes the properties of Maya. Her conduct as a child 53—62. Her father Mamacara seeks a husband for her 67, (Ahancara Egotistes) inquiries where a husband had been sought 73, and declares that Siva alone will be a fit spouse for her. Mamacara (Arrogans) asks how he can obtain Siva as a son-in-law 77, Maya's heart runs upon Siva.

IV. Allama assumes the garb of a gallant, (vitaca) with a drum 12 and has an interview with Maia and her maids 20; she falls in love with him 35, 40; she pines for him 44; her handmaid Madhumáni [i. e. Inclinatio] 50; cautions her against cursing her fate: and goes as her messenger to Allama: who declines coming to visit Maia 74; but she persuades him and he comes to her 84. An interview: wherein Allama (Justus) withstands the blandishments of Maya (Fraus).

V. The grief of Fraus at failing to subdue Justus—her mother Voluptas comforts her 14.

Sacala or Concreta being one of the handmaids, is desired by Mohini to effect an interview between the lovers 24. Sacala complains to Allama that Mohini was displeased with her 29. He declares that he will not abandon the pursuit of Fraus 34; Justus speaks to Concreta on divine wisdom: she does not comprehend his statements; but assures him that he will be united to Fraus.

PART II.

VI. Vimala visits Mamacaras capital, named Banavani 5, and comes to the house of Fraus who converses with her 10-25. This city is governed by a king named Nirahanacara (i. e. Modestus) and his wife is Sujnāni (Pia) who are childless 25; they offer prayers for offsprings; and obtain the favor of Isvara (the Lord). Siva appears to them in the form of an infant, glorious with rays 39, and the husband expresses his belief that this was a vision of Isvara 45, for the child proved intangible, though visible. The parents give this child the name Allama or Oolic he that is not—for in Cannada alla signifies, He is not, 50. They rejoice over him, and pray him to instruct them in (tatvam) Truth 60. He teaches them the truth and then goes his way 62.

VII. Fraus enquires of Vimala (i. e. Pura) whether it is likely that Allama will grant any request they may offer 5; Vimala replied, prayer ought to be offered to Siva alone, as he alone grants requests 10; for he will not bless prayers offered to erroneous objects: in like manner as each sense (of smell, hearing &c.,) has its peculiar province: which is rendered useless if misapplied. That in like manner, no worship is acceptable to the deity, unless offered in the prescribed manner. That bloody sacrifice (tamasa prya) ought to be laid aside: not being prescribed by the god, 20. That worship cannot be acceptable unless offered with a pure heart 24. On inquiry, Fraus informs her that she is enamoured of Allama, 29; Pura replies that Allama, though clothed in another form, is in truth Siva. Maya observes, that this cannot be true, as the difference between them is prodigious 35. She offers to convert Allama into Baswa (Apis, the sacred bull) by a wink of her eye 40. Vimala offers to obtain Maya an opportunity of seeing him.

They meet him, bearing the drum, coming out of the forest 49, (see IV, 12, regarding the drum); Vimala attacks him with reproaches for behaving thus to the maid who loves him 59. Allama declares that it is not [illegible] 64. Maya says, I will have acknowledged my authority 74. He gives an insulting reply which humbles her 80; she sues him 84, she boasts her universal sway: he defies her: she again sues for hisfavor, 84. He becomes enamoured of her 93, Vimala prays him to be kind to Fraus 99-102, he refuses to listen 108. Allama makes up matters with Vimala and wishes to send Maya home 113, she refuses to go unless he accompanies her.

VIII. He vanishes 122 VIII; her grief. Her father (Arrogans Mamacara) comes to her 5, and prays her to return home 10. But accompanied by Vimala, she went to Cailas (Olympus) and left her father grieving at her disappearance. He is comforted by (Egotistes) Ahancāra 15, who takes him home with him.

Now Maya and Vimala seek the abode of Parvati: who inquired whether Maya had succeeded in gaining possession of Allama [i. e. the Just man is not subject to the sway of Fraus]. Meantime Siva enters the circle 20, and warns Parvati that Justus will never be subdued to obey her: she replied Then your assertion (vide II 52) proves correct, 25 Parvati humbly implores Siva's aid: he replies—This time let him be tempted by (Satwica-cala)* try a gentler method 21, 30. Parvati took his advice and sent the (Satwica cala) "Gentle spirit" down to earth.

Hereupon Bhringi (Nandikesvara) inquires of Siva the cause of Parvati's anger, and also of its ceasing. Siva replied, all beings are subject to the influence of passion 37.

Now Siva despatched all his attendants to Earth, for the purpose of aiding (Satwica) the "Gentle spirit" in vanquishing the virtue of Allama.

IX. The Pramathas or ministering servants of Siva were accordingly born on earth as human beings.

And at the same time the (Satwica cala) "Gentle spirit" was born as the daughter of one Vimala (Insons) and his wife Sumati (Prudens) in the city of Udutalu ( ) her parents bestowing upon her the name of Maha Davi (i. e. the Bona Dea, or our Lady) 12. Nandikeswara was born at Hinguleswaram, as the son of Mandenga Mada Mantri 16 his father named him Baswanna, or Vrishabh Eswara, each name denoting the sacred bull Apis. Meantime one Madi vālu maçayya became celebrated at the town of Paravaliga. Siva assumed the form of Sangameswara, and instructed him in the (Panchaxari), sacred names of syllables [i. e. the name Namasivaya, as sacred as the holy name among the Jews); and then his parents desired him to undertake the vow of (upanayanam.) Initiation; but he had no fit Initiator 23.

Now, at this time the king of the country, Bijjalu by name, wished to find out the meaning of a certain mysterious inscription which was on the the government of a district. Baswanna was bountiful to the poor; particularly to religious men 42. Friars of the "Dhuli pavada" sect flocked to him, and shared his liberality 51.

X. Now, "Gentle spirit" (Satwica cala) grew up to her prime, and attracted the notice of the king of Udutadu 9, who sent women to consult the girl's father about her 15, he refused to give her, but agreed to act as she herself should desire, 21. The maiden desired them to summon the prince, and she agreed to marry him, if he would grant her a boon 35, he promised compliance 40, he now commanded her presence and desired to embrace her: she assented, on the condition that her boon was granted. This he promised; she named the boon, that he should offer worship to Siva; but he refused it 50; she therefore leaves him: his grief 55. She withdrew to the wilderness; and on her parents entreating her to return; she replied, I am no daughter of yours, lay aside this (mamacára, see 3—21) error. "Gentle spirit" now roams hill and dale in quest of Allama 68.

XI. Allama set out for the city of Calyana to instruct those who looked to him for instruction: and on the way he came to a lake 8, near it, was a wood, in which he held a conference with Goggayya, who dwelt there 13—19. Allama warns him, that living by labor as a farmer would not lead him to a happier world 25. For, said he, no man can attain salvation (mucti) without faith in the Lord (Isvara) which therefore ought to be the great object of your efforts 30. Allama now rendered visible to him (miraculously) a samadhi or tomb in the bowels of the earth; on the spot wherein Goggayya was digging with a spade. It was a tomb with a gilt dome; he gradually dug away the earth round it; both of them entered it, and in it they found a hermit in solemn meditation,* his soul being wrapt in meditation of the Principle (Lingam) and he sat passive as a figure carved of wood. Allama pointed out to his companion that this was the sort of devotion acceptable to Siva, 37—66.

XII. Allama now proceeds to visit his disciple Muctai, who was the elder sister of Ajaganna; she describes her brother's state 11. Adding that she was sorrowing for his death, as an omen had shewn he was dead 16. She added that the death of her brother had deprived her of her only adviser in truth 21. Allama in reply assures her that, she ought not to sorrow for her brother; as in the Lord there is neither birth nor death 26. She then asks him what resource she has now that her brother is dead. He states that a knowledge of the truth will make her free 30. She asks, how are we to be freed from sins that beset the body: he said, 'By setting the mind on the divine commands'—she asks whether those who attain knowledge can attain heaven. She now receives full instruction from Allama, and dies 49.

* Thus, in the lay of the Last Minstrel "Before their eyes the wizard lay. As if he had been dead a day" &c.

XIII. Allama now proceeds to Sónnalápuri and observes from the conduct of Siddha Ramaya's disciples that they are far from the truth 8. A dispute takes place with mutual reviling. Allama desires an interview with this preacher. They desire him to depart from them; they rush upon him to seize him, but fail of touching him. They are furious, but he is calm. Allama is now attacked by Siddha Ramaya himself with mockery: Allama speaks peaceably to him. Siddha Ramaya (who here is evidently intended to represent the popular idea of Siva the destroyer) now attempts to consume Allama by casting forth flames from his supernatural eye. The fire fails of touching Allama, but threatens to consume the town: this brings down the curses of the people upon Siddha Ramaya. Allama extinguishes the flames: Siddha Ramaya lauds him, and receives his blessing: 63 he now asks how is it possible to know Allama as a supernatural being, if disguised in the form of a Jangam devotee 68. Allama now counsels him to lay aside partiality, and look upon all men as equal 73. Siddha Ramaya hereupon prays his instructions 78. Allama teaches him that a thorough command of the passions is the only means of attaining the favor of Siva: and Siddha Ramaya objecting that this is hard to attain 88. Allama replies, that perfection cannot be attained until we can view the supreme deity as one with ourselves. The other inquires whether gifts, and virtuous deeds will not gain us heaven. They will attain us happiness (sukham) but not (Kaivalyam) beatitude 92. Besides those who are freed from sin have nothing to do with alms and gifts 96, nor can a man attain to bliss, unless he lay aside the doctrine of works, and renounce his five senses 101. No works are blessed that are not ordained by the deity 106, the yogi can attain bliss only by the acts of respiration, inspiration, &c. he is bound to lay aside his passions, and thus is forbidden bodily enjoyments 111. The sage is not to be enslaved to works. Let him ever present an oblation to the Lingam before commencing a meal 116. Let him be firm in relinquishing the ties of blood 120.

After listening to such instructions, Siddha Ramaya embraced the doctrines of Allama, and honored him as his guide 125, being assured that all blessings originate in the grace of a Teacher 130.

XIV. Allama accompanied by Siddha Ramaya, sets out to visit Baswanna (see IX. 13,) at Sonnálica puri 5. They arrive at Calyana puram 10, which is described 15. They arrive at Baswanna's dwelling 25, he sends out Dappanna to bring Allama in—Allama declines accompanying him 30. Baswanna is grieved and consults Máchayya 35—Baswanna worships Allama 40, and Chenna Baswanna on behalf of Baswanna, lauds Allama 45. The hosts attendant on Siva adore Allama 50. Allama bestows on them his blessing 62.

XV. Allama enters the house and sees the image of Maralu Sancaru 8, and declares that this god is Siva himself 13. They reply that they are unable to make their hearts sufficiently pure for his service 18. An inquiry by Siddha Ramaya regarding the potency of this god is answered by Allama, that simple worship of the Lingam will lead to bliss independent of all other acts of virtue 24. Baswanna replies that he has witnessed the miraculous powers of this image 29. Allama and Siddha Ramaya unite to laud Baswanna 35. Allama declares the powers of the said Image 40. All reply by lauding Allama 46.

XVI. Allama is seated on a throne made of Philosophers stone. Baswanna begs to be instructed in the proper method of worshipping Siva. Allama replied, 'Thou, already art well versed therein' 10. There is but one path to holiness: which consists in our becoming one with the (Lingam) Principle 15, lay aside all personal distinctions, and gain a perfect sway over our passions 20. Lay aside the external adoration, performed with garlands and perfumes; look upon the material body as a mere garb 26. Acceptable homage is performed with a pure heart alone, not with flowers and so forth 32. He alone is pure and holy, which is solemnized with the Triple body. [Here follow various Yáugica reveries which it is difficult to explain. The triple body is 1, the tangible body 2. The suffering body framed to undergo the torments of hell, and 3rd the spiritual body.] Perfection in this art will alone raise a mortal to the beatified grade 43. Faith in Siva will lead to freedom (mucti or salvation) 49. Freedom is gained only by resolving the soul into the divine essence 55. Salvation is to be gained only by laying aside ostentatious worship, and adoring the Great spirit alone 6. The disciple inquires how long a time it will occupy to attain perfection in this method. Allama replies, that no period, however long, will effect the purpose, unless we pursue the appointed (sadhanam) method 66. The disciple says, 'I have given all I possessed to my superiors.' Allama replies, all belongs to Siva: how canst thou say thou hast given up any thing 72. The disciple says, 'You formerly declared the worship of Siva necessary, why do you now condemn it?' Allama replies (an obscure argument), let a man draw holiness imperceptibly from worship: as the bee imperceptibly draws honey from the flower 78. The disciple prays for further instruction 87.

XVII. Mahadevi (see IX, 12) seeks for and discovers Allama 7, she worships him: he states that her faith alone has enabled her to discover him 12. Allama asks Acca-maha-dévi why she, being a woman, has come to him naked—she replies, that the spouse of Siva never can be considered to be naked, 13—43.

XVIII. Allama instructs her in the path of salvation 5. Baswanna asks for instruction in the mode of attaining entire salvation: and is informed that salvation cannot be attained by external homage devoid of holiness of heart 10. Baswanna asks, whether one like Siddha Ramaya will thus attain heaven. Siddha Ramaya declares himself wholly unworthy 15. Allama tells Siddha Ramaya that Baswanna is full of faith and has attained perfection 20—adding that external worship must be observed, until internal worship is attained. (In like manner we are told that in his latter years, the poet Milton laid aside all prayer in his family), 25. He states also that váyu bandhanam (see Dubois on the Hindus, book chapter or Ward) is requisite to perfect holiness as a yógi 30, and points out that a knowledge of the "six members" and "six parts" will also be necessary 35, as also a knowledge of the elements 40. Instruction in the ultimate mysteries 45, and then leaves him, as he is proceeding on a pastoral tour.

XIX. Allama despatches Siddha Ramaya to Sónala puram—and sets out on a journey northwards, leaving Baswanna and the other disciples at their abode 9. Allama passes near Sri-giri [perhaps Sri Sailam] 15, and visits a devotee named Goraxa; who, ignorant of his being Siva, inquires who he is 30. Allama states that the mortal body is contemptible, and must be renounced by those who desire salvation 35. Goraxa replies. I have attained (cāya siddhi) a supernatural body, try to wound it with a sword if thou canst. Allama replied that this would be a (raxasa crityam) bloody act, and he would not attempt it 40. Goraxa presses him to make the experiment; Allama agreed, but on striking the blow, the body remained unwounded: it however, uttered sound, and Allama declared this proved that the pretended perfection was not attained 45—Goraxa then demanded what this "corporeal perfection" (caya siddhi) might be—and Allama replied you may try your sword upon me; the other offered thus to strike him 50—on inflicting the blow it did not take effect, and even made no sound 55. Allama explains that this is the result of possessing a spiritual body 60. Goraxa prays to be endowed with such corporeal perfection 65—Allama said, I, and those who adore me, are one 70. Under whatever denomination I be adored, under that name and form, I will bestow salvation upon my worshippers 75. If you doubt me, put me to the proof. So saying, Allama became invisible, together with the (lingam) emblem he bore in his hand; and Goraxa reflected how vain it was for him to put the Teacher to a trial 80. Goraxa henceforth acted on the principle taught by Allama 86.

XX. Allama departs thence, and passes on to a hermitage where were several recluses; who pray him to adopt them as he had adopted Goraxa, to be his disciples 9. He replied that the instruction he bestowed was the only path to salvation 15. He meets with a huntsman 20, and urges him to desist from the slaughter of animals, 25. He instructs this man and some others 35. Description of the forest 55. He urges the monks to desist from fruitless austerities 60, offering them a preferable and easier way 65.

They lay aside the idea of attaining heaven by austerities, 70. They learn of him and praise him.

XXI. Meantime, Baswanna seats himself in meditation according to the yóga rules; aspiring to attain first the "qualified" (sagunatwam) and then the "unqualified" (nirgunatwam) grade of perfection: and thus he awaited the return of Allama 10. By force of thought or mental vision, he now erects a magnificent palace 15. The throne therein the image of Sada Siva (Semper Faustus) thereupon seated 29. Various Jangams come to him, but soon leave him, as he is now beyond their comprehension 40. The mystic throne baffles their understandings 44.

XXII. Baswanna informs Chenna Baswanna, that he had beheld Allama in a dream 10, and hereby knowing that Allama was about to return, he causes the state chamber to be prepared for his reception 15, and proceeds with his attendants to greet Allama's approach 20. Description of the train 25. King Bijjalu (see IX. 24) was displeased at this 30. Allama makes his entry so disguised that no one recognized him 35: his remarkable conduct in regard to various persons 40. Baswanna detects him and worships him 45. Allama takes his seat on the throne 50, and gradually begins to ascend with that seat 55. He receives the blessings of the faithful 66. He approves of Baswanna's devotion and ascends invisible into the sky 72.

XXIII. Allama approves and accepts the worship offered by Baswanna. The other devotees meet to honor Baswanna; but he is so bent on adoring Allama, that he does not perceive them. They retire displeased, and Baswanna now begins to consider what has become of them 15. Allama offers to clear up the doubt, on condition that Baswanna offers him a satisfactory feast 20. Baswanna begins to prepare a feast for his god 25, description of the dishes—and Allama partakes of them all 35. The other inhabitants likewise present dishes to Allama, but none of these satiate him 40. All descriptions of grain proved equally unsatisfactory 45. Machaya and others entreat Baswanna to try to satisfy Allama 50. Baswanna offers him praises 60, and offers himself and Chenna Baswanna to be eaten; but Allama replies that he is not hungry, and merely came to visit them 65, adding that this offer had manifested such devotion as to be entirely satisfactory 70. Allama now washed his hands, and at his desire Baswanna called all the Jangams to the feast 75. They were entirely satisfied, thanks they said, to him; and to Allama as he indeed learnt from the fragrance of their belches 80, he now informed Allama that the Jangams were satiated 85. Allama replied: There is no difference henceforth between thee and me. Thus Baswanna continued to dwell in the service of Siva.

XXIV. Baswanna requests Allama to preach true wisdom to these hermits, 5. Allama replied let them meditate upon the Principle (lingam), this shall grant them salvation. Baswanna replied, I am now passed beyond all external observances. To grant me salvation must be thine act 10. Hereupon Allama instructs Baswanna and his disciples in a knowledge of the truth. Allama said, let him who aspires to perfection cut off all external ties, and subdue his mind: he shall be holy in the end. For he is the basest of men who cannot govern his inclinations 25.

Baswanna said.—If the mind is the great means of victory, how can he be victorious who crushes the mind—is the mind to be crushed by its own power 30. Allama replies He alone can subdue the heart, who knoweth its guile.

Chenna Baswanna now asked Allama to state or describe the form and semblance of the deity. Allama replied, that it is quite impracticable to define the deity, as possessing any definite shape 35.

Machaya now desired Allama to explain, or shew the form of eternal blessedness. Allama answered: This consists in subduing the three states (Avastha Trayam: i. e. waking, dreaming, and sleep) 40.

Machaya Devayya now asked, how are we to comprehend the Supreme Essence—who is incomprehensible, ineffable, and untangible. Allama replied By getting rid of the Three Principles (Linga Trayam—i. e. Carana deham, sthula deham, and linga deham) man shall behold the Great Spirit and become immortal 44.

Baswanna and the others now said: If our passions were not one with our bodies, we might indeed be told to lay them aside, as easily as we do a garment—surely then the saint who is freed from the body needs not to be taught to get rid of these passions If these passions are a mere fiction, how is it posible that the Great Spirit (paramātma) can be subject to them. Allama replied.—The devout receive virtue from me as the breezes receive fragrance from (Mount Malaya) Hymettus. Thus, growing in wisdom, they seek to be united to me 46. Baswanna replied: They aspired to attain Thee Thyself. They only aspired to attain thy (Linga Sariram) visible form. Allama said: Those hypocrites who are pious only in their words are enslaved to Maya. Let all men in the first place, lay aside partiality and aversion: and guard against all mental fluctuation. The truly humble is freed from name, form, and act. I have roamed all lands O! Baswanna, without meeting any one holy as thyself 55. I will ever answer thy prayers 60. Further instruction 69.

XXV. Conversation between Siva and Parvati on the results of thus sending the "Gentle Spirit" on earth in human form 5. Siva said: Thy "Gentle Spirit" was born under the name of Acca-maha-devi, and she received instruction from me, I bearing the name of Allama. And she has departed to Sri giri 10, Siva now relates, as follows:—

Baswanna governed the city of Dandanath, and at his wish, Allama likewise came there 15. Parvati replied: why should Allama lay aside all the six Creeds and embrace the Vira Saiva doctrine [which resembles that of the Quietists]. Because, he replies, this leads to Beatitude. She asks, do then the Vira Saivas offer thee worship? They worship me alone, said he 25. And they who thus embrace the [lingadhári sect] worship of the Great Principle, lay aside all the rules of defilement and of mourning—What said she: Does embracing this creed free men from all human feelings? 30. They, he replies, are free from the [angatrayam] triple-member and attain to oneness with the Principle 34.

The tale concludes, by Allama continuing to dwell on earth as a blessing to all men.

BASAVA PURAN; DWIPADA,

by Pala Curiki Somanna.

Chapter I.

Laud of certain Saints verse 1—8, Description of Siva and of two preachers 19. The devout worshippers intreat the poet Somanna to undertake this work 25. The two Teachers declare that they have given him talents to compose the Basava puran 30. He therefore addresses the assembled devout 36—42. He reflects that the divine Basava dwells in all his servants, as the thread of a necklace dwells in each bead. That therefore he is not superior to his hearers: but that it will be advantageous to describe the god as though he were a separate Being, he therefore undertakes the task 48. He declares that the three syllables Ba-sa-va will consecrate the mouth of the devout 54. Though Siva attains Supreme deity, still Basava remains a separate being. That Siva himself effects the deliverance of the faithful, he himself being one of their number. That accordingly, the god and the adorer are one 60. That we can offer nothing to God beyond what he hath himself created; as flowers, &c. And in like manner the very praises we offer are created by him. Therefore, however unworthy, I will commence the Tale 66.

(End of the Preface.)

He therefore commences as follows:—

As Parvati and the other attendants were in the presence of Siva on Cailas, Narada came there; Siva perceived what his intent was, but desired him to communicate his story to Parvati. Narada replies, those who adore thee are few on earth, and are not clear in their belief 72. Many know the way of faith, but more remain ignorant.

Siva replied, Basava and I are the same person; and to promote holiness I will send him down to earth 78.

Parvati replied, what means this expression that thou and Basava are one? Is this the fact, or is this merely an expression of kindness.

Siva thereupon narrated the following legend to her and to Narada 84.

There was a certain pious man named Siladu, who lived on the S. W. of Sri Parvatam, who had long performed penance to obtain my blessing. At last I appeared to him, and he requested me to bestow on him a son that should resemble me. But he added, that should this son fail of attaining perfect faith, I will behead him. And said he, either grant me such a son, or none 90. Hereupon I granted his prayer, and ordered my favorite Bull (Nandi) to descend on earth, and be born as this man's son, under the name of Basava. For thou art the very image of excellence and uprightness 96.

Thus added Siva, was he born in a supernatural (ayonija) mode ; and has undertaken most severe penance 102.

And then as his penance gave him tremendous power, the gods and sages met to appease him, and first requested my aid 108. I smiled, and accompanied them to the presence of Nandikéswar ; who did not fail to recognize me 114, whereupon I desired him to name the boon he most desired ; he replied, All I beg is faith in thee. I was pleased, and made him head over all my celestial servants 120.

Thus they were released from the terror they felt.

Siva added ; there is a sacred temple at Nandi Mandalam, south-west of Sri Sailam, and I have blessed with eternal life all who there adore me. Be assured that this Nandikeswara and I are one and the same 126.

She replied, surely he and thou must be one ; for he is thy steed, and non. but thyself could bear a deity so tremendous.

Hereupon Siva said to Narada, I will describe to thee the divine powers of Nandi.

These words were heard by Nandi, who burst out in the praises of Siva 132

Siva then desires him to descend on earth, and live there for the delight of the faithful, as a second Siva, full of bliss 138.

Nandi replied—Surely thou art the great lord of earth ; but Siva replied, Thou and I are one and the same 144.

Legend II.—At the city of Hinguleswaram lived Mandenga Madi Raz, and his wife Mádámbu ; who was barren and grieved much at this misfortune. Her relations told her of the potency of prayers addressed to Nandikeswara. She accordingly addressed her vows to him. He thereupon obtained the permission of Siva, and descended to earth 150.

Mádámba received him with all homage and washed his feet ; she begged of him a son resembling himself. He granted her prayer, bestowing on her (maha prasádam) holy bread, 157.

He was pleased that her prayer harmonized with the object he had in descending on earth, he therefore became an infant. Description of her pregnancy 163, and of the celestial glory he displayed while in the womb 169. He indeed possessed the same passions as all men, but was not in their power. For he already was in possession of mature faculties 175. However, he, remained in the womb three years, and his mother filled with apprehension approached the stone-image of the sacred bull, that was as usual in front of a temple in that village: she prayed him to relieve her; even though her prayer for a son should not be granted 181.

She then fell asleep; and in a vision beheld the same divine (bull) Nandi in the form of a Jangam (or pilgrim) who said, Nandikeswara shall be born of thee, and thou must name him Baswanna.

She awoke, and rejoiced that he who had appeared in this vision, was Nandikeswara 187.

At this period, Siva visited Nandikeswara in the womb, saying, hast thou forgotten the business for which I sent thee on earth. Hereupon Nandikeswara suffered half his body to be born; whereupon Samba Murti (Siva) came in the form of a Jangam (pilgrim) and adorned him with the (lingam) image. Description of the infant 193.

Siva now informed Mádamba that he himself was the god Sangameswar, whom she adored: that he would now return to the town which is named after him, Sangameswar. Adding, that the boy now born was destined to be the (guru) prophet, teacher (or confessor) of this generation. For this boy is (Siva's) son and born for the good of all men. That accordingly, the child must be fed with nothing that is not lawful to the worshippers of Siva.

He then departed Glorious appearance of the infant 199.

His parents assembled the faithful, and named the child Basavanna. Description of his infancy, boyhood, sports, and miracles, 205—211.

In his eighth year, Mandenga Madi proposed to invest the boy with the sacred Brahminical thread: but the boy replied—The great Siva is my teacher, I will have no other * 217.

The boy thus declining the rite of Initiation, his father tried to persuade him that it was incumbent on all bramins 223, urging that the Brahmachari state, into which this rite introduces children, is itself emblematic of Siva 229. These words greatly offended Basava; who replied, thou speakest of ordinary Braminism and Faith, as if they were one and the same; whereas the yajna rites declare Braminism to be one thing, and faith another.

235. There is no specific god in visible form: he who is dead in his works is the teacher (guru) of those who imagine the deity to dwell in any specific form. Then he alone will gain eternal happiness, who meditates on the (lingam) monad using the six syllabled name (Namasivaya Namáh) with adoration and the rosary, and ashes 241. Further (linga-pada-saukham) divine bliss, has not been expounded even in the Vedas. Some assert that a religious profession (Bramhanyam) and faith and spiritual view (darsana) are

* This refers to the custom of appointing a guru or confessor, to each boy, among Bramins, and also among the Jangamas.

all one; but (Braminism) profession exists in homage paid to gods, &c. And he who thus is bound to works, has not faith. There is a wide distinction between Profession and Faith, 247. Faith in Siva is the honorable wife: whereas Profession is the adulteress (yāra strî). Consider that Bramins in installation (upanynam) are obliged to commence the rite with adoration of Nandi, why then should they depart from faith in Siva. Surely faith in Siva is the great point 253.

Again, the ties between our parents and ourselves are mere delusion. I will therefore depart from you.

After thus speaking, he left the house with his sister Nagamamba and lodged in the house of a messenger (padihari or phanihari). But Basava's maternal uncle Danda Naik was so pleased with the boy, that he wished to give his daughter to wife 260. He obtained Basava's consent, and began to prepare for the marriage: to celebrate which, his friends assembled 267.

Basava then wiped the dust off the feet of the assembled pilgrims (maheswaras, i. e. jangama) and putting it in water, bathed therein: Danda Naik rejoices over him, exulting to have in him a son-in-law.

274. Dandesa adorned his daughter in the bridal jewels (her name was Gangāmba) and she was wedded to Basava. Then Basava took leave, proposing to return to Sangameswar the abode of his tutelar god. He departed with his bride, and his sister Nāgamámbá, 281. His arrival and honorable reception 288.

While offering his prayers at the temple of Sangameswara, that god appeared to him, embraced him, and stood before him with joined hands 295, encouraged him to continue in the same faith, and directing that even an enemy who adores the Image, is to be regarded as a friend, and desiring him to shun all intercourse with such as adore not the image 301. He said, look upon every Jangam as being verily myself. Further rules. The god now returned into the temple and the people expressed their admiration 307. He continues to dwell at Sangameswara.

Book II.

King Bijjala had a minister as abovementioned, Baladeva Dandesa, who died, and the king desired his relations to point out one who should be worthy to succeed him. They recommended Basawanna 5. The king approved of this and sent for him: they went to him 11, and he accompanied them to the king at Calyana Patnam, being accompanied by the faithful worshippers 17. He is received honorably by the king and installed as minister. Description of the rejoicings 29-35-41. Conversation among the female spectators who confess Basava to be an (avatar) in human shape of (samba murti) the god Siva. The king introduces Basava into the palace and seats him on the throne 47.

Basava offers to enter on the government, on the condition that the king will embrace the Siva creed (having hitherto been a Jain) adding, if thou wilt do this, I will through thy hands govern the kingdom. The king consented 53.

Basava accordingly conducted the kingdom, but clearly shewed that he was not actuated by any human passions, of love or hatred; being perfectly equitable 60. The applause he received from the people 65—71. He was resorted to by numberless disciples, who abstained from strange meats and held the faith loyally 77. He proceeds in pomp to meet a procession of these saints and adores their feet 83. He now instructed all who desired it in the knowledge of (tatwam) Truth 89: he bestowed on them all that they solicited and continued to manage the kingdom 95.

Description of Chenna Basvanna, who was the son of Basava's sister Nagamba, who was now growing up 101, he was at once introduced into the creed by Basava. Each of these is incomprehensible, save to the other 125.

Allama Prabhu now approaches Basava: he is described as filled with celestial joy and bearing the image in his hand. Basava bowed down to him and seated him on the throne: the usual signs of a god's appearing are described, such as the trees bursting into blossom &c. 132. Basava prepares a feast for the deity, Allama; who, however, is not satiated, and therefore his host offers him the viands prepared for the Jangamas; finally Basava offers himself as food 138. Allama then showers applause on Basava, declaring him to be a son of Siva 145, "as miraculous as the budding of fruit on a sugar cane." Basava replied, am I thus blessed with the epithet (bhacta) "faithful" merely because I have presented food to thee? 156.

Basava said to Allama, at one time Siva and his attendants (pramathas) were on Cailasa, and as all bore one and the same image, Parvati was unable to discern which was her husband; the angels then resumed their proper garb and she perceived her husband.

162. Parvati invited these demigods to dinner; they came, and presently sent a strippling cherub (pramatha) to see whether dinner was ready. She desired the youth to go and call them to her 168. The youth said he would call them, if she would first give him something to stay his hunger, she gave him, one after another, every dish that she had prepared for the entire party: he swallowed all, and still was not satisfied, and ran and told her husband. Siva laughed and said, this angel is omnipotent; his might is utterly ineffable 174. Adding that this angel was one and the same with his (Siva's) body 180. And he added, this angel shall at a single wish accomplish all creation. Her astonishment. Then said Basava, if Parvati was unable to satiate thee, how can it be possible for me to fill thy appetite 186.

After listening to this tale, Allama blessed Basava, conveying to him all miraculous powers, and freeing him from the power of sin. He also instructs him in the knowledge of truth.

Then Allama was resolved into the (aikya lingam) primeval Principle 192.

Thereupon Basava's faith was greatly increased and he continually remained in meditation on the Principle: as fire and camphor unite in one 198.

Somana relates the following tale:—

One day, as Basava was as usual tending the Jangamas, one of certain robbers attempted to seize him: they disguised themselves as Jangamas; because none else had access to him; and instead of images which they did not possess, each of them tied a bean in a cloth, which they suspended from their necks. But by the miraculous powers of Basavana these beans when examined, were found to have vanished; and in lieu of each there was an image 404.

There was a devout man named Mallaya, a carrier by trade, who, wished to erect a temple to Siva in his village: his fellow carriers assembled and built a temple, with their packs of hay, and therein placed a (cunsam) cup. But Mallaya offered his prayers to Siva; and then attempting to remove the cup, found it was metamorphosed into the shape of Siva 210.

There was a cowherd named Cata Cotaya who worshipped a bit of goat's dung, under the impression that it was an image; and offered to it a sacrifice, by milking a cow over it; his father scolded him for this waste, and struck him with an axe; but the boy did not move, whereupon the bit of dung was converted into an image 216.

Basava related these stories to the robbers to shew the power of faith; which is the main spring of happiness, and he thus instructed them 216.

One day, while Basava was adoring the image, one of the devout came to him, and begged him to give him some pearls. At these words a heap of grain was converted into pearls, and Basava desired him to take as many as he pleased 222.

Then a devout man, named Maratada Vancaya was requested by another (bhact) devout person, to give him some milk and (máré dípati) some wood-apple leaves 222. It was then mid-night, but Vancaya desired a log to furnish the leaves, and commanded a bullock to furnish the milk. Hence he was named (morata) from the log he used in this miracle.

Such were the stories which the bystanders recollected, while hailing Basava.

Presently the god Sangameswara approached, and requested Basava o present him a third eye to wear in his forehead. Basava desired him to look in the mirror and he then perceived that he was already ornamented with this eye. He was abashed and expressed his willingness to bestow on Basava whatever he choose to request. He replied, he would request nothing; for I subsist by feeding the Siva bhactas 234. He added, Cannappa and the other attendants at your temple are people of mine 253. Indeed I have adored thee from all ages; and it is out of thy power to quit me.

As Basava was one day seated in king Bijjala's presence, he raised his arms as if raising a jug, and exclaimed, Oh! The king laughed and said, what new act of faith is this? 259.

Basavanna replied, at the village of Capileswarem there is a bhacta, who at this moment is about to perform rites to the honor of Siva, at a temple on the east of the town; he is raising a vessel full of milk to pour over the god, and the milk is spilt at his feet. A herdman's wife in passing along, found her foot slipping in the milk; and exclaimed, Basavanna. I heard this exclamation, and when I raised my arm, I raised her from the ground. If you doubt me, send for her and you will find it true.

Accordingly she was sent for, and the story proved true. She also told the king the following story. There was in old times a bhact, named Jitta Baludu who was coming along with some flowers in his hand. It was raining and he fell down —while falling he exclaimed, Jitta Bal Adāsā! (a name of Siva) whereupon Siva pulled him up again, in like manner has Basava now saved me 271.

She further said, when I was at Sónnalica, I heard the holy men talking to Siddha Ramaya regarding Basavana, and declaring that Basava is at all hours present, both in heaven and with us on earth 277.

To know whether this was true, Siddha Ramaya (added she) departed to (cailas) heaven, and there, as she had stated, he found and worshipped Siva 295. Siva desired him to declare that he is himself ever present, where Basava is present. To prove this, he opened his breast and shewed that Basava actually was in his heart 301. Further added the woman, Siva repeated the same statements to his wife Parvati 307. Likewise Siva added, Basava is superior to me in faith and all virtues. Therefore, meditating on the name of Basava, shall at once gain me myself 313. Then Siva addressing Basava (who was seated in his heart) said, are there now any faithful men on earth? is the world dear to thee! Basava replied, I am the chief of thy adorers, and as all thy worshippers are forms of thee, I give myself to honoring thee in them.

The god then addressed himself to Siddhi Ramaya and desired him to descend to earth with this intelligence: he obeyed, and I heard him.

This far are the words of the shepherdess to king Bijjala—who, thereupon gave her honorable gifts 225.

Bijjala then lauded Basava, saying, How can I sing his praise who in the palm of his hand holdeth all animated nature 331.

Book III.

One day the king and his ministers had as usual commenced with Basava, to distribute wages to the establishment, a by-stander who was a jangam expressed (a wish) to be paid likewise. Basava immediately gave him the money: the other servants went and told the king that Basava had wasted his money 4. The king Bijjala called Basava and said, you shall no longer be minister, settle with me about the money. Basava replied, shall I who am lord of the Tree of desire plunder the goods of others 9, come and examine the chests. The king came and found the chests even more full than before 15.

The king was delighted and the by-stander's said, this is like the story of the king Madhura Pándya, who gave money to his minister Chocca nainru to buy horses with; he was a faithful man, and forthwith distributed all the money among the faithful: then, as he had no funds to buy horses with; he procured some foxes and turned them into horses, which he brought to the king.

Bijjala bestows presents on Basava 20, and threatened to cut to pieces any one who should hereafter say a word against him.

Then one of the devout men who lived in the house of a courtezan and who daily received an allowance of food from Basava, sent a servant girl to ask for it; the girl went, but on her return she described a fine silk dress which was worn by Basava's wife: her mistress thereupon asked the devotee to give her this dress, saying, that surely Basava would not refuse it 26—33. The man obeyed, he went to Basava and begged the dress in question. Basava called his wife and ordered her to strip, and give up her clothes; she obeyed; but, as fast as she stript herself, more and more costly vestments appeared 38, whereupon the asker got all he wanted, and still she remained elegantly dressed. The asker took up as many of these dresses as he could lift; and carried them home, saying this is no great matter 43.

Here begins the legend of the Silly Saints (múdha-bhact) who were Saivas, but not Vira Saivas.

Description of the evening worship 49, and of the (minda-Jangamas) libertines, who after being duly honored by Basava, proceeded to the houses of the (vesya) Hetairas 55.

One of these Bhactas named Mugdha Sangaya was such a (mudha) simpleton as to haunt the Hetairas, as a religious act: indeed he plainly told Basava I am now going to a prostitute. Basava smiled and sent him to the house of a hetaira, who was of the true faith. He went and considering her as a (Rudra canyaca) angel, she washed his feet and adored him

62. She then led him into her chamber, he viewed the splendid silken bed, and supposed it, in his folly, to be a chapel built, to worship the image in ; he therefore knelt down to it, and desired her to bring the sacred vibhuti : she gave a cunning answer, taking his word in a wrong sense 74. At her expressions he held her to be a very superior woman, and asked her to tell her adventures ; she replied, my original instructress was saint Parvati : we live in perpetual abstinence as recluses : for our teacher dwelleth at Sri Giri and at every holy shrine 86. The man imagined the bed to be the throne of Siva, and desired the girl to bring him the proper materials for worship : she brought them 92. The moon now rising she called the other girls, prepared the other scenes, and prepared to act a play 98, while dancing and acting they did not fail to attend to the man thus kneeling to that which he supposed to be an image 104. He carried on this worship until morning, hen he returned to Basava, to whom he told what had passed, adding, you should have accompanied me 110. I have enjoyed extreme delight with women in consequence of my intimacy with you, and I have been charmed by witnessing among these women at Sri Giri, and other holy shrines, the sublime power of their faith. At these words the attendant Jangamas laughed 116. But Basava addressed Chenna Basava saying,* This Mudha Sangaya is a saint beyond compare in the present, and in past ages 122. For said he, in former days a certain Jangama was reading in the Adi puran (a Jaina book) the story of churning the sea, and of Siva drinking the poison ; which so greatly shocked him that he fainted : afterwards he expressed his horror that neither Parvati, nor the Pramathas had interposed to prevent so horrid an act. This anecdote shews that simple belief is very acceptable 128. On another time this (Mudha bhacta) simple believer was roaming along with his whole mind fixed on his god ; and was on the point of falling into a well, when Siva and his companions interposed to save him ; then Siva asked him what boon he desired ; and he replied, disgorge that poison and let me drink it 134 Siva replied, where I to discorge that poison it would destroy all nature, whereas it does not inconvenience me. The simpleton replied, surely it must disagree with you, and rather than this I would willingly die. Parvati &c. were alarmed at the idea of this poison flowing forth to destroy the world, but Siva desired the simpleton to mount and stand on his lap, and look into his throat where he would see that he had not swallowed the venom, thus rendered innocuous. There is a statue of Siva and this saintlet on his lap at Ayatur, and is there at this day 140.

In the Chola country was a certain bhackta named Nila nacea nainaru and his wife, who were constantly engaged in the worship of Siva ; one day he saw a spider mounting on the lingam : his wife was shocked at this, and attempted to blow the insec taway, lest it should raise pustules on the image. Her husband was angry at her daring to defile the god with her breath. As a punishment he expelled her. But when he looked at the image he found it all covered with sores, excepting in the one spot his wife blew on 146. He now went in repentance, and made it up with his wife, and desired her to breathe on the image again to cure its sores : she tried this remedy but it failed ; whereupon she was about to dash her brains out, but Parvati and Siva appeared to her 152, and offered as usual any divine gift. She replied, the only boon I ask is, eternal dwelling in thy presence, this they granted, and bore her, and her husband to Cailas 158.

* Here begins the Eight Legends of the Silly Saints.

There was a pious woman named Bezza Maha Devi who wondered to know how it happened that Siva should have every relation except a mother. She reflected on the grief she suffered at the loss of her own mother, and imagining that it might comfort him, she longed to be his mother. As a means of doing this, she adopted a boy whom she named after the god 164, she tended the infant affectionately 171, 177, but to try her faith he abstained from the breast : she imagined the infant to be ill, and was much distressed 182. People supposed the infant had got an inflamed palate (Angita malu) one woman said "the boy yesterday went to such and such a house and ate something that has disagreed with him" 188. His mother reproached the boy for eating too much, and for eating whatever was given to him 194, adding that, if only he would have eaten the dinner she had given him he would not have got into this trouble. In despair she was as usual going to knock her head against the wall, when the boy broke forth in divine form, and offered to bestow on her all she should ask. She demanded nothing and he bestowed on her (sayujyam) eternal happiness. And as she had been a mother to Siva, she is now a saint under the name of Ammavva 200.

There was one Siva Deva, who with his wife quitted his home where he left his daughter. He used hitherto to offer boiled milk to Siva, and desired the girl to attend to this daily : she attended to this duty : one day she placed the sauce pan before the god and bowed to him 207, but at that time he was to drink the milk, she retired ; on returning, however, she found he had not touched the milk. She begged to know what had given him offence, whether the cup was not full; or whether she had brought it later than usual 218 : the god made no reply ; she thereupon was about to knock her head against the wall as usual, but the god took pity on her, reached to the cup and drank the milk 224, as she was returning from the idol with the cup in her hand, she met her parents coming home. They asked if she had any milk in the cup, she replied that Siva had drunk it. They replied, what! when Siva will not even eat the noblest offerings, can we believe that he has drunk this milk? no, you have drunk it yourself or have spilt it 230. Next day they put the bowl of milk as usual before the god ; and as they saw he did not drink it they were inclined to punish the girl: she bowed to the god, who at that moment opened his breast ; the girl entered, and was absorbed, or made one with the god 236. But her father caught her by the hair, but the tresses came off in his hand: and that her hair continues to grow, so that they are obliged to cut it every six months. Could you desire more perfect proof of any miracle 242.

There was one Dépada Calayar who was setting out from Conjeveram on a journey, on the road he found a ruinous temple to Siva, he was grieved at its lowly condition ; so he brought and sold all his goods to defray the cost of repairing the temple 248. He built the temple, and a fort and palace to boot 254. As he was thus honoring the god, he found that his property was now exhausted. All the men he hired now, walked off: but he planted a line of torches all round, and carried on the work more nobly than ever 260. As the guards had disappeared, he himself guarded the place at night; and, for want of oil he used wood and grass, the blaze of which illumed the neighbourhood 266: when this failed, he set his hair on fire to serve as a torch; the fire now touched his head: at which moment as usual Siva appeared 272, and offered him any boon. He declined any reward, whereupon Siva took him to heaven in a string, with the chapel tied to his tail 278.

At Conjeveram there was another pious man named Natya Nimittandi who went to the temple, where he saw the image of Siva thrown in human shape (observe this worshipper is a Purva Saiva : for no Vira Saiva would set his foot in a Siva temple), seeing the god in a dancing attitude, he asked the chaplain why the god's hands and feet were in such strange positions 284. The chaplain thought the man a fool, and said, the god has got the rheumatism, and is getting worse and worse for want of medicines. The madman thereupon gave all he possessed to the priest to buy physic : the priest gave him some castor oil, and said to rub it over his limbs, and they will come straight again 290. He tried ; but as the medicine did the god no good he procured other applications : but finding they did little good, he told the god that he wished him to break his (surgeon's) head for incapacity. Thereupon as usual the god appeared, and promised to grant him any boon 296. He replied, if I can only make your limbs straight, I shall be satisfied. The god answered, these are my dancing attitudes 202, whereupon he took the man into his coach, and carried him to Cailas 314.

The Story of Cannappa.

Cannappa was a forester who lived near Sri Calahasti, he was full of devotion to Siva, he went a hunting with other foresters, and one night in a dream he beheld Siva in the form of a hermit, who said, go on a little further and I will appear to thee ; he did so and met the god ; when in his simplicity he wished to invite the god to his house 320, he asked the god why he came there 326. The god was silent, and Cannappa supposed he was speechless through hunger ; he went to bring the god flesh for food 332 : should any one ask how it is possible for Siva to eat flesh, let them recollect the legends of the giants and the Emperor Sibi and others who offered their own flesh in sacrifice, and obtained the favor of Siva. When the god offered Cailasa to them, they said, This is no great boon, it is our birth-right, for our fathers vanquished it. All we request is, that you will eat up our bodies. Siva replied, if all of you will undertake to be born near Calahasti in the form of animals, my faithful servant Cannappa shall slay and offer you to me 342. The giants consented ; and at last Cannappa came and slew them, and on tasting the flesh he placed the best portions in dishes 347, which he presented to Siva, as above-mentioned.

But there was a hermit (yogi) who was offended at this rite. He said thou art a pariar, I am a bramin and offer fruits and milk to Siva. Siva may indeed be one only god : but surely he will not accept the sacrifices of the pure and impure alike 352. This reminds me of the story of the elephant and the spider ; this brawny forester is the elephant, I am like the spider. Let me, however, see if I cannot plot his destruction 357.

Story —For in old days a spider so built his web as to shield the god from the sun ; when a proud elephant tore down this screen, and brought water which he poured over the god as a much more acceptable homage. The spider was enraged, took his opportunity, got into the elephant's trunk, and killed him 362.

Now thought he, I will in like manner contrive the death of this Cannappa 367. But the god wishing to exemplify the devotion of Cannappa assumed a weeping guise, with tears flowing from his three eyes. On seeing the image wet with tears, Cannappa wiped them away with his shoe, and filled his mouth with water, which he spirted over the image ; from which the god now poured forth a river of water. Cannappa asked what made the god shed tears 377. Art thou weeping said he, because thou canst not obtain food for thy wife and children, or are these tears on my account ? so saying he embraced the image, saying, surely I am thy son, do not weep 382 ; so saying he wiped away the tears of the image 387, and blew with his breath, to dry up the moisture from the poor god's eye* wondering how it happened that he wept with one eye only. He said, I cannot tell why thou weepest, but thy enemies will say it is from regret at having slain Cupid 397. Surely you, in old days presented an extra eye to Vishnu, and yet you are now in distress about your eye. Now don't cry. If you want an eye I'll give you one—so saying he pulled out one of his eyes, and handed it to the god—this stopped his crying with that eye; but the other one continued to weep 402. So the devotee now pulled out his other eye, and put it in.

* We sometimes see a single eye painted on a lingam.

Whereupon, as usual, Siva appeared and restored his left eye 407, with which he now shed tears of joy 412. The holy man who was plotting his death, saw these miracles, which drove him to confess his wicked design, and to beg pardon of Cannappa.

Thus the god and his worshipper had now recovered the proper number of eyes, at which all nature rejoiced 426.

This blessed eye quite overpowered the death-doing eye in Siva's forehead. And had he only obtained it sooner, he might have precluded the power of death altogether 431.

The touch of Cannappa's shoes conferred holiness on the heavenly stream that flows from the tresses of Siva. Had only Brahma been blest with the form of that shoe, he would surely have been blest with the sight of Siva.

Had only Vishnu been so blest with a lick of this shoe, which became an ornament to Siva himself, who can declare the miraculous powers of this blessed slipper? 426.

Siva was only too highly blessed in being permitted to taste the leavings of Cannappa's food!

Such were the exclamations of men—at that moment Siva appeared visibly to Cannappa and as usual offered him a boon; while he replied, I seek no boon save perfect knowledge of thee! 441. All I pray is this, let my eye be ever fixed on thee!

This boon was granted, and accordingly at Calahasti you may see the statue of Cannappa facing the statue of the god: where they first adore the saint, and then give the residue to the god. They rinse the mouth of the saint, and then offer that as holy water to the god 445.

Thus terminates the Calahasti legend.

END of the eight legends regarding the (Mudha bhact) eight simpleton saints—as they were narrated by Basavanna to Chenna Basava 450.

The above eight silly saints were Saivas, but not Vira Saivas.

Just as Caliamba Nainar, in old days, bound himself by a vow to make every man laugh; and hereby he gained the favor of Siva—so your smiling at the eight stories of the silly saints is all my object 455.

Tale of Sri Sailam.

There was one Sacal Esa Madiraz who ruled the town of Nambe 460. He was a great musician and devoted his talent to the praise of Siva 465,—as follows 471, description of the musical modes 476. He one day went to visit Mallarusu a saint who lived at Sri Sailam 481. Description of this sacred hill 486, and of certain quaking or dancing mountains 491,496,502, continued description of that sacred hill, 506, 516, 523,—and its groves 531, and of the Munis who dwelt there 541.

Madiraz was delighted at the sight; and to try his faith, Mallarusu (who is in fact Mallic Arjuna, or Isvara) disguised himself in a strange shape: so that neither his head or feet were visible: the pious Madiraz adored him, as incomprehensible; the god was well pleased, and brought him to his temple 550, where he endowed him with the image and said, as long as thou dwellest on earth thou must be subject to the law of works. But Madiraz refused to return: and the god thereupon caused a jumba tree to spring out of the earth; under which he desired him to dwell 555; while he lodged there, the god again approached him in the guise of a herdsman 560, and began to hew down the bough that gave him shade, while he sat at his devotions. He was angry and forbade him, saying it is a sin. The swain replied, thy being angry is a sin, and he who gives way to anger is a sinner 564. If this annoys you, cannot you go, and sit down elsewhere—I'll tell you a story.

Once on a time a flood took place and a bear came swimming down the stream, a man who was wading, thought it was a sheep, and was seized by it.

Thus you sit here to conquer (Maia) the earthly temper, and are yourself conquered by it 569.

But Madiraz persisted in reviling him; while he replied by preaching patience. At last he blazed forth undisguised 573, and being asked by Madiraz how eternal happiness was to be attained, replied, you must return down to earth—and hereafter thou shalt attain heaven. All I have done is to increase thy faith 578.

Further, the god (Siva) said to Madiraz, there is now on earth the great saint Basava. Go and listen to his preaching, and I will shortly summon thee to this place 582. What further dost thou ask? Madiraz replied, I ask no more. To which the god replied, depart to the city of Calyana where thou shalt find Basava. At these words the saint saluted the god, and the next moment found himself at Calyana patnam.

Basava had been warned in a dream of his approach, and received him with honor 587,—592.

Book Fourth.

Legends of Madirala Macayya.

This saint was the son of a washerman at Hipparigé and the celebrity of Basava's devotion induced him to visit Calyana patnam, with a view to be adopted by him; and he employed himself in washing the clothes of the devout 8, as he brought the clothes home he carried a bell, which he tinkled to warn people from touching him 13. One day he imagined some one had touched him, and forthwith slew him. This was reported to king Ballalu 18, adding that on a former day he was touched by a man whom he caught and flung up into the skies and never came down again. At these words the king turned to Basava, and said your saints give me more trouble than all the rest of the people 23. He added bitter reproaches of Macayya and gave orders to the police to slay him. Basava, however, assured the king that Masaya was actually Siva himself 28, 36, 40. The king answered: if he be so strong, I will order out an elephant to slay him 44. But Masaya gave the elephant a mere gentle toss which destroyed him 48. Basava saw this with much pleasure 53, and as the king was much mortified, he narrated the following:—

Legand of Iravatta 57.

This prince was very religious in his youth, and studied hard; one morning an elephant of the king of Chola was passing down the street: and at that hour a friar was gathering flowers for worship in a garden, whom the elephant slew, the poor friar cried out Siva! Siva! King Iravatt overheard this, and ran to see what Saivite was in trouble 66. The elephant rushed madly on him, and he slew it on the spot 71. But at hearing this the king killed himself for sorrow, the story was told to the king of Chola: and he came to king Iravatt—full of sorrow and offered to give up his life as a forfeit for that of the friar 75. But at this moment Jupiter (siva) appeared, and brought the friar to life again, and also the dead king, and carried them to heaven along with the king of Chola 80.

Further—he told the king the legend of Bāvúri Bramhaya.

This friar planted several gardens, which he visited in the morning to gather flowers for Siva 84. By the force of faith he converted grains of corn into images. Now a certain chief, returning from war, halted at this village; and one of his elephants broke loose and rushed down the street. The friar was passing that way, and caught hold of the elephant, which he tossed into the air like a penny—the elephant went flying through the air and fell down dead at the banks of a river. The king was much displeased, and came to Bramhaya saying.—Tell what for you kill he 93. The saint on receiving the prince's homage restored the elephant to life.

This story shews that no friar ought to be opposed by violent methods—Let us go to the presence of Masaya 102.

So at Basavas advice the king went to visit Masaya: he saluted him standing afar, while Basava assured Masaya that the king was ashamed of himself. Whereupon Masaya condescended to restore both the man he first slew, and the elephant whom he afterwards astonished. When he sat to work to slay the elephant, he laid aside his clothes fresh from washing:

which he had tossed into the sky, and told to remain there, while he settled the meddler: he now beckoned to these bundles, and they came back into his hands 106.

A certain friar was reciting in the presence of Masaya, the hymns to Siva (linga kirtana) composed by Basava. Masaya was displeased at hearing hymns to Basava, degraded by being composed in the vulgar tongue. His expressing his annoyance pleased Basava, who came to visit him 111. In his presence he used (atma ninda) self-debasing expressions, adding, I have hitherto composed many books in the vulgar tongue in praise of Siva; but if they displease thee I will destroy them all, Macayyá replied, art thou in any respect superior to other faithful men? 116. You imagine that you are very bountiful to Jangamas; but what is all thy riches? I will shew you how to accumulate riches for the use of the faithful.

So saying, he flung a handful of water into the air, and as the drops fell they changed into diamonds and rubies, to the great delight of the Jangamas 105.

This miracle evidently shewed that Macayya was Siva; and accordingly Basava offered him homage 125. Macayya was so delighted that he embraced him fondly. He then urged on him the necessity of having a humble spirit, as pride ruins every good work 133.

Basava asked, can he obtain faith who hath (ahancaram) pride in his heart.

It is impossible, replied Masaya. Listen to the following story 133.

There was a certain pious man named Sancara Doss who used to make rugs and quilts for sale, devoting the profits to the use of the pious, whom he daily fed 141. Another saint named Devanga Dasaya visited him, and seeing him in much poverty, expressed some pity in talking to one Duggalavva—who seems to have been his wife: she sent him a basket full of grain; but at his touch all the grain vanished. At the same moment all the wealth of the sender in like manner vanished 145. The poor woman reflected my act of charity was mingled with pride; and this has given him offence 149. Then Siva appeared to Sancara Doss and offered to bestow on him whatever he might demand: he declined making any request: but said, as you insist on my making a request I beg to have such an eye that I shall be able to thread my needle in the dark 154. Siva accordingly bestowed his third eye on him. But this was the destroying eye of flame, in dread of which the other deities were so terrified that they absconded, and lived as servants in the houses of certain Jangamas 158.

At this time a saint named Jogod Eca Mallu entertained a doubt whether the above story of the eye was true: and therefore proposed to Sancara Doss to remove his doubts, by coming into a Vishnu temple, and asserting the truth of the tale in the presence of the idol 153. For if the story be true then a glance of that destructive eye would fuse the molten image. This did so happen and the image was melted. This terrified the worshippers of Vishnu, who made him then a bow, and fled 167. This story was intended to humble the private pride of Devanga Doss.

Then he and his wife came to Sancaraya, and saluted him 172, who jeered at them, and said go and bring me a spade : they did so and on digging on the spot came to a great hoard of ingots of gold. Whereupon they fell at his feet and worshpped him 176. He said I am a poor man ; do not pray to me—pray to Siva alone—take this wealth and depart home 181. They were now equally humble, and bounteous to Jangams.

Such was the legend narrated to Basava by Macayya 185.

He likewise added the following story—There was a pious woman named Nimmavva who used to devote all her earnings to feeding the poor. There was also a pious Bériman named Sri aludu, alias Chiri Tonda nambi ; and to try his faith, Siva visited him disguised as a hermit 189, whom he asked to dine with him ; he replied, I will not, unless he would feast him on human flesh. He said, my son is an excellent boy, you shall have him for dinner—so he went and desired his wife to get him ready 193, she had some scruples ; but she cut the boy up and grilled him for dinner, then she seated the hermit, and presented him this nice dish 193. He thanked her, but on looking over the mess, missed the head—and declined trying the dish unless the head was produced. They replied, we scrupled to put it on table, because of the hair 201, but said they, if you like it you shall have it—so they cooked it, and served up. He now said, all is now right, come and dine with me 205. There were very properly desirous to do every thing in their power to gratify a Jangama ; so they sat down and said grace (linga aradhana). But he now observed that it would not be proper for them to dine without calling their son to dinner 209. The father said, the boy is not at home, pray sit down to table, he will be here soon: the guest said to the mother go and call for your son, I am sure you will find him 212. She obeyed him 216, whereupon the boy appeared in very fine clothes, and ran up to her 224.

Such was the story told to Basava, by Macayya—adding that all three now acknowledged their guest to be Siva 228, who took them all to Cailas in his coach.*

But observed Macayya, he was infatuated with pride at having so gloriously sacrificed his son to Siva 232. To humble his pride, Siva descended

* This Chiri Tondam Ambi was in this manner carried to Cailas from the city of Canchi, seven times; and is hereafter to be once again thus transported from Canchi to Çailas on earth bringing him along with him ; and set him at the side of Nimmava above mentioned (at verse 184-8) who received him hospitably, and offered him a good dinuer—he went to sleep and she then went to get the things ready for evening worship. At this time her son came back hungry from herding cows : he called to his mother : as she was away, he ate one of the cakes which he found ready dressed 236, whereupon his mother, at returning killed him for daring to touch what was prepared for the sacred use of good men. Then, that the guest might not eat the boy's leavings, she threw away this dinner, and prepared another.

Siva desired Chiri Tondan Ambi's to observe how far her devotion was beyond his 241. The mother now came to call them for dinner, they declined dining unless the boy sat down to dine with them 245; she replied, I suppose you think me a mere woman. You want Chiri Tondan Ambi to cure you of your tricks 250. I don't want your Cailas. At these words Chiri Tondam Ambi was ashamed, and Siva perceiving that she had the gift of faith, independent of all hope of reward, shone forth in his true form ; but she replied, you have a thousand varying shapes 254. I am not so easily wearied of my love of thee. Surely your assuming these mortal shapes, merely makes you ridiculous. I will never hold thee in despite, I beg thee to assume the shape wherein thou didst visit Cumara Gundayya 259.

After hearing these words, Siva and Chiri Tondam Ambi sat down to dinner. Siva mentioned to him the legend of Cáta Cátaya, who slew his father because deficient in devotion—on which occasion said he, I appeared, and restored him to life 263.

Macayya now began a fresh story, which was narrated by Siva.

Narsinga Nainar was king of Chola ; his wife went one day to the pagoda to worship : and she happened to smell at one of the flowers. The priest immediately chopped her nose off—her husband was told of this. He applauded the priest's act, and at once cut off his wife's hands 268. Now said Siva, I forthwith appeared, and rewarded the king for his blazing faith 272. Restoring him his wife again.

Now said Siva to C. T A., you called your son, and he returned from the dead ; but this woman (Nimmavva) is vastly superior to you, for you see she did not even ask to have her son back again 277.

Siva now restored her son to life and carried him to heaven—but his mother still remained on earth in the exercise of faith.

Macayya desired Basava to observe that the moral of these stories is, that any pride leads to the ruin of faith 281.

Then Siva carried C. T. A. with him to the city of king Halayudha who received them with due honors, and asked who they were. Siva replied

I am he whom all adore 285, and I am now born at the wish of my worshippers 289. And I was brought up by Nimmavva and other holy women 293. I was long dwelling at Draxarama and thence came to the house of C. T. A., where a son was born to me who is now dead 297. In former times Samba murti wishing to try the faith of C. T. A., visited him, accompanied by a long line of pious people, whom he feasted to the full, and Samba murti owned himself vanquished 302.

Siva now proceeded to explain C. T. A.'s (mahatmyam) or glory to Halayudha; and said, one day he did not happen to find any guests on whom to bestow his bounties; but Siva assumed the form of a Jangam, and visited him, and feasted on his son, who was served up for dinner; after which the god brought him to life again.

The king observed what is Chiri Tondam so devoid of sense? Surely in older days Siva used to restore their wives and children to saints 306. Halayudha asked Siva to explain how these events were possible. He said, a man may sacrifice his own body, but is it possible that any one would give his son to be slaughtered? Did not Siva object to this murder? 315. Surely he was not only a human being, but a brother Jangam. Besides said he, I suppose Siva brought him to life again, that he might not be called a cannibal 322.

Such sinners, said the king, are unworthy to live: I therefore denounce Siva and C. T. A. to be excluded from the caste, and let all be expelled who even think a thought on them.

Siva and C. T. A. were excessively frightened at these words and ran away. Siva's wife and C. T. A.'s wife now came down stairs from Cailas and appealed to the king 329. They applauded him excessively, so that he promised to give them any thing they chose to ask. They replied you have expelled our two husbands 335. At this moment these two appeared and as their two wives paid them homage, the king and his court did likewise 341. Whereupon they all took wing to Cailas 347.

In like manner shall all who have pride in their hearts perish; for pride is the greatest of sins.

Macayya now told another story.

There was one Miru Mindu Nainar, who lived at Jayagonda who performed the Siva ratri rites with great zeal. He went to Tiruvullúr where he had much intercourse with the pious 351. There was another saint called Nambi who dressed himself as a gallant, and came to the temple of the god Valmikésa 356, 360, at the door he met this Nainar, and others. He took no notice of them; but went straight into the temple: they were much displeased at his insolence 345. N. has gone in, said they, to the god very insolently ; can he expect the god to aid him. Surely Siva can be appeased by him who has first made friends with his attendants. But to sue the god without making friends with us, (his servants,) is mere presumption. Let him be expelled.

But a priest who was in attendance told them that Nainar was so mighty in faith that Siva was actually become his servant 369, and has pimped for him. Nainar exclaimed, have we too been expelled as unworthy ? I denounce all of you as unworthy. Indeed he has actually become Siva's master, as completely as if he had bought him.

Then said Nambi the god and his worshipping pet are equally infamous—and we will expel them both from among us.

At these words the god took his pet with him—they stole round the idol, hid under its projecting front, and stole out of the pagoda and ran away 373, 382.

After the unfortunate divus Valmika and his worshipper had wandered some distance, they arrived at a park—description of its rural beauty 390.

The deity saw a calpatree in the garden, and wondered whether it, was a tree or a temple 394, on finding it was a tree he sat down under it forming a throne of flowers 398. Valmiki enjoyed the scent of the blossoms very much 402, Nandi expressed his wonder that a god should suffer such distress: the divus replied. 'I and my followers are one, nor can I be free from grief while they suffer' 407. I will tell you a story to prove this.

There was a devout man named Banudu, who daily bowed to Siva a thousand times: wherefore the god gifted him with a thousand arms—to enable him to accomplish these 1000 salutations in a moment. Besides, to prevent people from disturbing him, the god Siva sat at the door keeping guard.

There was a king of Karical who levied a man from each house to erect an embankment across the Caveri—one man was levied from the house of a religious woman named Pittavva : and as she could not furnish one, Siva volunteered to be her labourer.

There was another pious man named Nambi, who had so completely got Siva into his hands, that he employed the god as a mere slave: without any of his neighbours objecting to this want of homage. But Chodudu, king of Karikal heard of this, and declared both the god and his employer to be outcaste ; forbidding all people to relieve them or have intercourse with them. At that time says Siva I went there, and made up matters between Nambi and the king 420.

Now, said Siva to Nambi (continuing the conversation commenced above), I thus became the slave of such as firmly trusted in me, it is vain to imagine that the good deeds of my former birth would ensure such a boon· Nothing but thy pride has caused a difference to exist between thee and me.

These words convinced Nambi of his errors, and he humbled himself before the god 424.

Maçayya here observed to Basava, that such humbling of himself has gained Nambi the honors of canonization 428.

Now, thus Nambi continually distributed sandal wood to the devotees, till he had exhausted all his wealth: this he disregarded, and even contemplated giving his very body to be cut up for their use 433.

As a beginning he cut off his hand—whereupon Siva rewarded him by carrying him to Cailas 437.

Now, I said Macayya was the disciple of this devoted Cadamala Nambi 441.

There was also one Guggula Caliar (or Thomas of the Incense) who perpetually offered incense to the god, till he fell into poverty; who, on one occasion performed the great deed of raising and fixing a fallen image. I was his disciple 445.

There was also Arivala Nainar (John of the Sickle) who used to offer daily food to Siva, and wasted all he had, and was reduced to subsist by manual labor. One day, all the corn he had fell into a chink—at which he was in despair; but just as he was attempting suicide, Siva appeared and carried him to Cailas 454.

In the Pandya country there was a very pious fisherman named Adi Bharata who knew no other trade: whenever he caught fish, he gave the first fruit of haul as an offering to Siva, releasing the fish and then selling the rest, he bestowed the money on Jangamas 458. One day he cast the net and caught a gold fish. This he released, and cast his net again repeatedly, each time the same fish re-appeared, each time he restored it, relinquished the pursuit and fasted that day, having nothing to eat. Next day he visited another part of the lake: but on casting his net, the same fish again appeared: he therefore determined if this again happens, to cast away his nets: it again appeared—whereupon the god appeared and carried him to Cailas 462. Behold he was my teacher.

There was a certain devotee named Enadi Nātha a prince, who looked upon every Lingadhari as the express image of Siva: he was victorious over his foes, and levied revenue from them: but one of his foes dressed up a commander of the opposing force in the garb of a Jangam. On seeing him, the prince imagined him to be of the creed and humbly saluted him—at that moment the deceiver attempted to slay him; but Siva rescued him. I am the servant of that Enadi Nātha 467.

Chedi Bhupati, king of Chendiel was a Lingadhari, and worshipped every Jangam as an image of the god—whereupon his foes disguised thirteen men as Lingadharis and sent them to him; he was deceived and trusted them, but Siva appeared, and saved him. And I said Macayya, I am his disciple.

Choda Raz, king of Cariyuru was a devout worshipper: he slew his foes, and was returning home with their heads; but on viewing these heads, he imagined that one was the head of a Jangam; whereupon he was about to slay himself; but as usual Siva appeared and carried him to Cailas. I am his servant 475.

There was a devout man named Caliamba Nainar, who had in his house a boy, the son of one of the housemaids; the boy was lazy and as a pretext, dressed himself as a Lingadhari, whereupon his master treated him with every homage and washed his feet. His wife reproached him for being such a fool, whereupon he cut her hands off. As a reward for this, Siva bestowed eternal bliss on him—and I am a disciple of his 480.

There was one Iruva Tándári, who constantly used the Jangama form of worship: Siva came to him disguised as a Jangam, and gave his modesty piece and his blanket to keep. Then to try his faith, the god miraculously resumed these valuable articles; which he now desired to have returned to him. As they were not forthcoming, the pious man as usual was about to dash his brains out, when Siva appeared in his own form, and carried him to Cailas 484.

Angula Macayya was equally pious—to try his faith, Siva came to him in the garb of a Jangama during a shower of rain. To warm him, the good man first set his house on fire; and then, having no other food ready, he dug up again some corn which he had sown. To reward him, Siva carried him to Cailas 483. He is my teacher 488.

Ganapaludu was another Siva worshipper, who bestowed all his goods on the religious poor, and thus attained great faith. Siva visited him under the garb of a Sudra, and refused to conform to the Lingadhara rules. But his host forced him to assume the lingam—whereupon as usual the god carried him to Cailas 493.

A religious worshipper named Cumara Gundaya (Thomas the Potter) was one night returning from the Siva temple, as he passed by the house of a dancing girl, she was rinsing her mouth and spirted the water all over him unintentionally. He exclaimed, hara! hara! (O lord! lord!) at which she recognized him to be of the true faith—she therefore consoled him for the mischance, and he went home 493, she had perfumed and trimmed him, and this his wife perceived. I call to God to witness. In consequence of this curse, he passed eighty years in separation. Siva was much pleased with him; and one day while he was bathing, Siva restored his juvenility. Then he took him to Cailas 501.

There was one Vicrama Chodudu, who built a golden temple to Siva and celebrated sacrifice. Another devotee named Pusala Nainar (John of the Beads) raised by force of thought a vehicle made of gems. His servant am I 505.

Tirupaladulu was a king who renounced his kingdom and devoted himself to Siva. I am his disciple 509.

Now said Macayya to Basava, you see that faith is of no avail if clogged with pride. Nambi whom I first mentioned was united to the saints; but as he was proud, he remained on earth, though Siva bestowed (sācalyam) eternal happiness on the others 513.

After hearing these lectures Basava went home—all the people and Macayya lauded him as being verily Siva, Book V.

Stories related by Somana to Sanganna.

There was a certain merchant named Kinnara Bramhayya, who had gained much wealth which he laid out on the worshippers of Siva; when all his wealth was gone, poverty drove him to subsist as a harper. Siva was so much pleased, that he bestowed additional wealth on him 1, 8. Kinnara Bramhayya heard of Basava's bounty in promoting the worship of Siva; he visited Basava and was respectfully received. After dwelling with Basava some days, he visited the temple of (Tripurantaca svami) a certain Siva, and sat down in the porch 12. A gallant was coming along with a sheep, which he was carrying to the house of a dancing girl; but the sheep, broke away from him and rushed into the Siva temple: the gallant wished to take it again, but Bramhayya objected, saying, the goat is come to offer itself in sacrifice. I will give you half a rupee (mada) to let it be 16. The man refused, unless he received 2,000 Pagodas as a remuneration 21. Accordingly, Bramhayya paid him the money, he went away and bought two other sheep—which he took to the courtezan. But on hearing the story, she refused to accept these, requesting to have the first one alone—she therefore declined having any thing to say to him 29. He therefore went to the temple and attempted to wrest the sheep from Kinnara Bramhayya: who thereupon attempted violence, but Bramhayya smote this man's head off and it fell outside the temple 33. This gallant's family told all this story to king Bijjala, who said, you take greatly upon yourself to slay people thus at your own pleasure 37. Now said Bijjala, as such manslaughter will render me very culpable, take you the kingdom yourself 42.

Basava replied.—I request that you will send messengers to the spot to ascertain the precise mode of this man's death. The king consented, the messengers came to Kinnara Bramhayya 46, who replied by telling what had happened 51, And he called on the god to bear witness.

Hereupon the king came to him 55. The gates of the temple were closed ; but at a word he uttered, they flew open 60. At his request the god descended in a visible form 65. The voice of the god made the world tremble 69. And the king and his court fell speechless with terror. Basava prayed Bramhayya to put an end to this terrific scene 74. He consented, and the god disappeared, and the awful thunder ceased. The king offered homage to Bramhayya who was pleased thereupon to restore the dead gallant to life, Basava returned home 83.

Kalikéta Bramhayya was a devout worshipper 88, who used to behave as a jester while collecting alms, which he laid out in charity 92. Another Siva worshipper was travelling to Kinnara Bramhayya, and being weary, halted at this man's house ; who asked him, whence he came and where he was going. On hearing, he said you need not go to him, take what I give you. So saying, he smote the earth with his staff and poured forth gold and silver 102, of this he took as much as he could lift, and went to Basava's abode, and said, give me a man to assist me in carrying the wealth 106. Basava expressed his astonishment at this miraculous bounty 111, he then went to visit Bramhayya whom he greatly applauded—but he replied, I am by no means equal, in miraculous power to Kinnara Bramhayya (see verse 1, 8) or to Nambi (see IV, 351, 437,) 116. But still I will bestow something on thee 120. So saying, he touched a clod which turned into gold—and said, describe this to Kinnara Bramhayya, and desire him to bring carts to transport it all. On hearing of this, Bramhayya set out, and paid him his respects 125. Basavana feasted them nobly 130.

There was a saint named Mólinga Maraña who earned his bread as a woodman, and offered the proceeds to the poor. The Jangamas who used to dine at Basava's house went and partook of his feast ; and on returning they said to Basava, the best of your dishes is inferior to the porridge we get at Maraï's house 135. Hereupon Basava went disguised to Maraï's house with 2,000 pagodas in his pocket. He saw the saints wife, made his bow to her, received his dinner, and put the money in the empty plate 139. Basava looked upon himself as sanctified by eating in the house of so excellent a person ; and even envied the birds and beasts that were at the holy abode 144. Soon after his departure his host came home, he perceived the money and asked whence it was ; she replied, a stranger has come and dined here, he suspected it to have been Basava 149, he distributed the money among the Jangamas who were his guests. Then he sprinkled a faggot with the water in which he had washed their feet; and the sticks were changed into gold.

They went and reported this to Basava 154. Basava then went to Maraïja and paid him homage, but Maraïa replied, all I give and do is by thy grace. Basava was much shocked at hearing such language addressed to him 159. He replied, have mercy on me, a poor inferior creature, as far beneath thee as a crow is to an eagle—I am the very abode of all sin. At these words he embraced Basava, and Basava returned home 164.

Caunada Bramhayya (St. Nicholas ?*) was another man of devotion, he was by trade a house breaker. If he found that a house he broke into was inhabited by the faithful, he begged pardon and retreated: but shewed no false delicacy towards such as were not of the true faith 173. He was one day going to break into the house of king Bijjala, but on digging his way in, he met Basava who invited him to walk into the king's treasury, and take what he pleased. On hearing this, the king was much displeased 183, he came to the treasury, found the hole made, and the money lying before it. He asked Basava to explain the affair. Basava replied, these are the doings of Canada Bramhayya (John the Borer) who is a great saint 188. The king asked how a house-breaker could be an excellent man. Basava replied that he bestowed his plunder on people of the true religion 193, adding tha he had broken into the king's treasury, with the best designs towards his majesty. Then the thief carried a party of Jangamas home and gave them a dinner 203.

Basava now assured the king that the said thief was a noble saint, unequalled in faith; but there was another equally celebrated.

This saint's name was Musidi Candayya 202, because when he set out to visit Basava he halted in a grove of musidi trees (nux. vomica, or poison nut) 213, which he offered as sacrifice to Siva and gave them to the faithful for food, who feasted on them with impunity. He then proceeded to Calyana puram, and was honorably received by Basava 218. Canda was now advised by all the disciples that he should enter on the state of matrimony: he agreed, and set out for the village at which he proposed to take a wife. But on the road he saw the corpse of one of the faithful; and it came into his head to make the dead man give him his blessing. So saying, he brandished his sword and saluted the dead man—who immediately rose up and blessed him 223. They then embraced, and he took the dead man with him to the marriage. On the road he saw a herdsman's boys standing by a fig tree (marri) 228. These boys were playing, and one, in asseveration called on "the Basava fig tree" to be witness to what he said. Canda asked them how the tree got this name 233, and in reply, one of them told him the following.

* St. Nicholas when an infant, fasted from the breast on Wednesdays and Fridays—Chaucer 1—250, note.

Story 233.—In old days two bulls fought on this spot, one was killed and buried here: whence this is called the Bull fig tree. [Basava meaning a Bull.]

After hearing this story, Canda sat down under the tree and set his sword leaning against it, whereupon the primeval Basava made his appearance in the 238. But this supernatural bull was worshipped by Canda 243, who feasted the bull and invited him to the wedding.

On the road they came to the river Hedura whom they requested to grant a passage 248. But the river would not listen to reason: so Canda brandished his sword at it, and it then gave way 253.

He then went and took a wife, and after the wedding returned to Calyana puram 258.

When entering the town a virgin met him, and saluted him: he replied by wishing her a hundred years of life, and next morning she died; when she was being carried forth to be buried, Candaya restored her to life 263. He then extended the same blessing (a century of prolonged life) on her, and on her parents 268.

There were some gentiles (ajnulu) who hated him: and when they heard the story of Canda, turned it into ridicule; they made a large figure resembling that of a man and placed it at the temple of Siva; telling the people who passed that this was a deceased friend 273. They then placed it on a bier and brought it before Canda's house: he saw through the trick 278, and went up to the bier with his sword in his hand: he took the figure by the hand: it forthwith became animated, and fell at his feet to worship him 282. This converted the disbelievers: and induced them to enter the Saivite creed.

Suriya Candaia was a pious Saivite 293, who used to pay reverence to Jangamas first, and then to adore the image: thus reversing the usual rule. He always kept a drawn sword before him 298, and waited on the Jangams 303.

Now there was one Caricala Chodudu who used to feast the devout Saivites—he meanwhile stood at the door with his drawn sword and listening to his eating guests, imagined he heard his god eating 308. In eating his dinner Surya placed the image before him, and fed the image and himself alternately—and the people saw with astonishment that the image actually ate the food 313.

Now there was another saint named Telugu Zommaya 318, who used to worship the image at Calyana. There was another worshipper named Siva-nanda, who adored the image at Sri giri where a disciple used to wait no him, 323. Once on a time a number of fairies (gandharva) with their wives 325, who, at seeing him protested they took him for a bear; and imagined his disciple to be a brute 328, hereupon the disciple cursed them to be born as brutes: the fairies begged pardon, but he refused to rescind the curse 333. This took effect, and they were all born as quadrupeds.

One day Zommaya came to the place for some herbs used in sacrifice, when these quadrupeds begged him to free them from this curse, he agreed, he went home and brought his bow and spear 344, with his dogs whom he cheered on to the chase and slew them all: they thereupon recovered the fairy form and thanked him for the cure 349. Some of the mountaineers expressed their amazement, and he explained the mystery 354. Zommaya daily offered seven animals in sacrifice to the image 359.

Basava heard of this and lauded him; declaring that he was in truth a form of the god Siva—so that there is not a doubt that the wild beasts he hunts and slays, all attain release 364, 367.

Book VI.

The same narrator and listener as in the preceding book.

There was a devout Saivite named 'Ecanta Ramaya who was daily in attendance on the faithful. Hearing the fame of Basava he came to Calyanapatam: where he was one day sitting in the temple of Siva. A certain Jaina came there with his shoes on, at seeing whom, he was wroth and reproached him with irreverence: advising him to atone for this sin; 11. But the Jaina replied, Jaina is the only god, I am myself the deity; and I will never believe in your god unless you cut your own head off, and then revive. Ecanta Ramaya was much displeased, and replied, numbers of the faithful have cut their own heads off, and offered them to Siva, and then recovered life 16. I will tell you some stories about this.

Govindu Bhattáru, and others in old times acted in this manner.

Moratada Vencaya heard of this and said—He got his head back after the lapse of three days. If the god was in truth so mighty and the saint's faith so strong, why should he have waited three days? I will try my own luck, so saying, he repeatedly cut off his own head, and it continually returned to its place 26—meantime, though he got new heads, the old one's actually filled the temple. The god told him he could not tolerate so vast a load of heads 31.

Besides Tiruma Vacar Iswara a faithful worshipper, had the belly-ache, and was in great pains when his sister observed that as all the common spells proved fruitless it would be better to use the (Siva mantram) prayer to Siva. He resolved to take her advice 36. She therefore assembled the Linga worshippers and caused them to recite the five-syllabled spell. This process cured him. This induced the Jaina, his guru to embrace the Jangama faith 41, in which he was very devout 46.

His fellow Jainas persecuted him for this heresy, and proposed to burn him alive: but the fire would not burn him: this alarmed them, but his preaching converted them to the lingadhari faith 51. Then he destroyed the various Jaina images.

There was a (Siva bhakta) worshipper of Siva, named Iruvattandu, who lived at Trivatur, he was blind from his mother's womb; he proposed to prepare a tank to the honor of Siva. But as fast as he dug, the Jainas filled the tank again. Then, by the favor of Siva, he obtained eyesight, while they all went blind 56.

There was a bramin a worshipper of Siva, who lived at Sri-kāli, who by the grace of Subrahmanya had a son named Pilla Nainar, he brought the child with him to a pond, put him on the bank and bathed him. Siva and Parvati were then passing in their (vimánam) chariot; Parvati took up the child, kissed him, taught him the (dixa) potent prayers, and gave him the breast. Then put a gold cup in his hand with milk in it, and returned to her husband 61. When the father came out of the water, he asked the boy where he got this gold cup; the boy replied, pointing to the goddess' car just vanishing in the sky 66. The father prostrated himself at the sight, then took the child home 71; at night the boy went and adored Parvati at her temple; she rewarded him with a pair of gold cymbals which he used in hymning the god Siva, who rewarded him with many golden chariots: at witnessing these miracles, the king of Chola embraced the worship of Siva 76.

After conquering or converting the Jainas at Tiruppala, &c., he went to visit the wife of the king of Madura, who had embraced the Siva faith: the Jainas requested the king to banish him 81, the king said he was willing to banish him, if the Jainas would first vanquish him in argument. For said he, this man says he is a disciple of the king of Chola whom you must vanquish, if you drive him away. The Jainas now used spells against him, and evoked (Anila) the Genus of Fire, 87. But this genus was alarmed at the youth's supernatural powers, and humbly bowed down to him. [An allegorical expression denoting that they attempted to burn him in his house, but he escaped]. The holy man reproached the Genus for this crime—and desired him to atone for his offence by putting the king in a fever. He obeyed—The king cried out in agony, and the Jainas were unable to cure him. The youth now used prayers and charms, which not only cured him but relieved him from a hump which he had on his back. [This tale is given in detail in the Cocca Raza Lila] 93. The king now invited the Jainas to renew the discussion. They said, they would use no criterion but fire, and would believe him if fire failed to burn him 93.

The youth now wrote a Siva spell and delivered it to the king, who also took a similar scroll from the Jainas. He cast both into the fire—the latter was burnt, while the Siva spell remained unhurt. This experiment was tried three times 28. The Jainas then proposed that both books should be cast into the river Cāvéri—in this also their books perished, while the Siva books floated. The youth (Pilla Nainar) now set up a number of iron spikes on which he impaled the Jainas 103.

There was a king named Nidumarudu who heard of this massacre of the Jainas and rejoiced at it 108, he assembled the people and counselled them to embrace the worship of Siva; he told them concerning the said Pilla Nainar 113.

But Ecanta Ramaya (see beginning of this book) after telling the Jainas the above stories, reminded him that the Jainas were saved from impalement only by embracing the Siva faith 118.

He further added the following story :—

There was a faithful Siva worshipper named Nami Nandi : he used to beg about the town for ghee with which he lighted a thousand lamps nightly in the temple of Siva. This displeased the Jainas who issued a rule forbidding any one in the town to give him oil : he therefore went to Siva and said that as he could get no ghee he was ready to kill himself ; whereupon Siva appeared in visible form, and told him to fill the lamps with water from the well—he did so 123.

Then the god smote all the cattle in the village that supplied the milk whence this oil was made. The people therefore came to Nami Nandi and begged him to forgive them : so he restored their cattle to life, and they embraced the Siva creed 128.

There was also a faithful worshipper of Siva who was named Sankhya Tonda and lived in the Chola land. He was the son of a Budhist. As he no where could find men who adored Siva, he prayed to Siva to destroy all the Jainas—adding, until thou grantest this prayer I will daily fling three stones at thee 133. He did accordingly, but one day the river came down in a flood, and cut him off from approaching the temple. As he could not fulfil his oath he fasted till the river went down. Then to keep his promise effectually he brought a huge stone which he cast on the god's head. But Siva stretched out his arms and caught him, asking him what he wanted 138. On learning it, he pacified Sankhya Tonda and granted his prayer by destroying all the Jainas in the town 143.

There was also one Covvuri Brahmaya a devout Saivite who held discussions with the Jainas, and fairly vanquished them ; they offered to appeal to a decisive miracle that of reviving a tree from its ashes. He accepted this challenge: the tree was burnt and he restored it 148.

There was a Jaina guru who was confessor to a king named Desing a Ballalu. The queen was named Suggalavva who had as her confessor one Devara Dasaya who was an adorer of Siva. She desired him to destroy all the Jainas. He then went home to his village named Pottacheruvu where she treated him with all homage and this was reported by the Jainas to the king. The king learnt that this was done at his wife's advice, and he warned her never again to act in this manner. He added that it was highly improper for a husband and a wife to have separate confessors. These words offended her—she said, A penitent is just as strongly bound to his confessor, as a wife is to her husband. Recollect your marriage oath, or if you break it, you had better separate from me. Assemble your Jainas, and let them argue with my confessor, and let us decide our creed according as this debate terminates 155. The king agreed. The debate was held: but the Jainas argued unfairly; whereas Devara Dasa asserted that the deity Siva pervaded all the universe. They replied, if your god fills all space, surely it is superfluous to assemble in temples to adore the deity 163. Dasaya replied, The king rules the whole country; but it does not hence follow that every one of his subjects is king. I will now show you that there is no occasion to attend temples, as the deity is present with us all. Consider—The moonstone has the lunar influence inherent, and melts at the lunar ray, so does the heart of the pious man melt at the divine influence, for in him, the deity is inherent. Just as we are obliged to buy the calf with the cow if we desire to have the milk, and none but the calf has the power of causing the udder to flow 173, so none but the faithful adorer can draw good from worship 173. Besides, the pearl shell rejects all common rain, but expands to the genial showers of (Swati) May, for these alone breed pearls: in like manner the faithful Vira Saivas heart expands to the divine power of Siva alone.

They then asked—Was Siva the body or the soul of the world 177. He replied, life and its properties do not appertain to the Supreme Being. The living soul is in bondage to works: but the deity is not. The deity is in our bodies as fire is in wood, or oil is in seed, coëxistent and hidden 182.

They replied—You say that Siva fills all space and add that the divine spirit is immortal, and the vital spark is mortal. Prove to us that the deity is eternal and our life is temporary 187. Besides, broad as is the distinction between brutes, and the Supreme, being still there must be some one common principle—explain this.

He replied, you well know that oil exists in linseed, yet it is not apparent 192. The Eternal Being shall be attained by the wise, no fool can attain to Him. For he pervades all nature.

If said the Jainas, the deity pervades all the earth, then it is irreverent to urine, 195.

But Dasaya replied—The great spirit fills all nature and delivers those who believe in him, he sustains, animates, and supports all. His commands sway all creation 202. Dasaya now proceeded to prove more distinctly the existence of a Deity 207.

He said, the Deity can never be attained by such as are devoid of faith ; he is omnipresent. If you doubt this, I will convince you by miraculously destroying this town of the Jainas (Pottacheruva). So saying, he put a serpent in a vase and asked, Do you believe that the Deity is in this vessel 212. He verily is therein, so saying, he opened the vessel and behold the serpent was turned into a crystal (lingam) image. This convinced them 217. Dasaya then caused the Jaina temples (vasadi) to be pulled down. He named this crystal image 'Uttar Eswara,' and set it up for worship.

He further added a story regarding Hiriya Nacaüa who lived at Máruligé, where was a Siva temple which the Jainas demolished. He vowed that he would vanquish them : he therefore left the town accompanied by 12,000 faithful worshippers and returned, bringing 1,200 images (lingams) 228. He conquered the Jainas and set up (l) images in their temples 233.

There was one Semana who lived at Huligara who perpetually adored Siva ; he lost his eyesight and the Jainas deluded him—they lead him into one of their temples, where they assured him was an image (lingam). Deceived, he worshipped it : whereupon the Jaina image was turned into a lingam 238. As he thence returned home, the Jainas said our god has heard thy prayer—and led him again into another temple : whereupon the Jaina idol broke to pieces, and in its stead the lingam appeared 243.

There was a woman named Váijáivi who adored Siva at Barnoligé : her husband was a Jaina, and desired her to dress a dinner for the Jainas : she obeyed, but presently there arrived the god Siva, disguised as a Jangama 248. While he was eating, her husband brought the guests for whom he had intended the dinner. Hereupon Siva vanished. The Jainas refused to eat, as he had first eaten : hereupon the husband was enraged with his wife, and told her to begone with the intruder. But while he was inflicting blows on her, they in reality fell on the Jainas who were not pleased 258. The Jainas fled, fell into tanks and wells wherein they perished : but one of them was a man of sense and said, what we suffer is the result of this man's beating his pious wife : whereupon they fell at her feet, and adored her 263.

One day she erroneously made an adoration to a Jaina temple : whereupon the figure of the Jaina deity burst to pieces, and the lingam appeared in its place. Whereupon she quitted her husband, and obtained (mucti) release from the body.

Besides, there were several holy women in olden days who, in like manner quitted their husbands for the sake of heaven—such were Anasuya and Náráyini.

There was another pious woman named Tilacavva who left her husband because he was not in the faith, and when she went to the Siva temple her husband came, and apprehended her, whereupon she suddenly was metamorphosed into a man 273.

Besides, the name Vaijanatha was acquired by Siva on account of his rescuing Vaijacavva 273. These stories, continued Ecanta Ramaya to show the miraculous power possessed by saints in olden days. Is their power now diminished? Certainly not. Accordingly, I am myself able to vanquish you all.

The Jaina replied—If you wish to convince me by miracle, be it this, cut off your head and then come to life again.

Ecanta Ramaya replied, rather come with me to your temple and see your idols burst to pieces. The Jaina consented; but on their entering the temple the idol burst to pieces, and the temple fell to the ground 283.

Behold, said Ecanta Ramaya, after this my cutting my head off is no great matter. To convince you, I will walk about headless for a week. After which I will destroy all the Jaina temples 288.

Then he cut off his head, and danced in the presence of the Jainas and of king Ballaha, to their great satisfaction 293. In this manner he walked for a week, and then came home and put on his head again. It was however slightly on one side. The Jainas then wrote to king Bizzala describing this victory, and the worshippers of Siva stamped their arms with marks, denoting victory 299.

The Jainas were in this manner routed and all the faithful bowed down to Ecanta Ramaya, who nourished them, and lived in the town of Calyana where Basava worshipped him as a god.

There was another man named Shoddála Baçayya who was a Siva worshipper, and was applauded as an absolute form of Siva 310. He declared Siva to be the lord of all, while all other beings were mere brutes: he laboured to destroy all other sects, particularly that of the Vishnavites. He was born at Surat (Saurashtra desam) and when the annual rite (Sivaratri) occurred, he, if possible went to his home at Surat, though in the service of king Bizzala 315. On one occasion he asked leave as usual of the king, but the king refused it, as the accounts at that period required close attention. The day before the feast, the god Siva came to his house (disguised as a jangam) with a letter 321. He was at that moment measuring the grain brought to his door in a wagon; in the letter there was written "Samba Murti (i. e. Siva) is coming to visit thee" 327. Then Siva disappeared. On reading this message, he desired that the street and the town should be decorated to receive the god 332. The god now descended from the skies, the store of grains burst open and the god was discovered seated in the middle. Bizzala saw the faith of the said Bāçayya, who thereupon pulled the barn down, and erected a temple to Siva on the spot : while Bizzala full of envy erected a Siva temple at Narayanapuram, and therein placed an image of his god Gopala, as an opposition god. [It seems that the king being a Jaina did not honor Gopala, who is Kṛishna : but he merely set it up to annoy the Saivas] 342. He then said to his courtiers,—This Baçayya neglects me, and does not pay me common attention, for he neglects the image I have set up. Hereupon Basava observed that if Baçayya neglect his duties he merited punishment : but that he could not be expected to adore a new god 347.

To illustrate this, Basava told the king the story of Bhringi who was a devout servant of Siva in Cailas : he used to encircle the god who bore the Ardhanari form (the right side being male or Siva, and the left side female or Parvati). In his zeal to worship Siva alone, he assumed the form of a (bhringa) wasp, and bored a hole between the god and goddess, whom he excluded from his homage ; this annoyed the goddess, who thereupon by a curse abstracted all his flesh and blood. Thereupon to comfort him, Siva presented him with a third leg. This is an instance of exclusive faith such as zealous worshippers of Siva entertain.

There are also some who are (ghanta carna) bell-eared : from their constantly ringing a bell to prevent the praises of any other god entering their ear 352.

There was another pious Savite named Ariyama who would pay homage to no other god save Siva : a brahmin came to his house to ask for alms. This man was devoted to Siva : on putting the mess of food into the beggar's wallet, Ariyama let a grain drop : the beggar inadvertently made an exclamation, in which he used the name of a forbidden god (probably Govinda !) whereupon the charitable donor slew him. This displeased the other brahmins who complained to the king ; the king sent for him and asked why he had slain the brahmin 357. He replied, " Siva knows." The king was enraged, this man took refuge in the temple where the image opened and absorbed him, nothing remaining but the tail of his coat, which is to this day kept as a relic in proof of this miracle 367.

Basava further added a story regarding a devout man named Vira Sancara, who in a dream thought he was touched by the hand of a Buddhist, he therefore went to Sri-giri and relinquished life in the presence of Siva.

At Benares was one Siva Lanca Manchaya who cut off his fingers and offered them as a sacrifice to Siva : who next day restored them. This miracle was daily repeated. This man erected a (dhwajam) flag staff to Siva 372. The Jainas were envious of his fame, and seated themselves at the temple and sent for Manchaya and put some queries to him. To these he replied, asserting that Siva was the only god.

They therefore defied him to perform any miracle to prove his assertions. He replied, I am ready: I will take Govindu, this god of yours and make him bow down in the temple to my god. He now went to that stone image, and desired him to come with him to Siva's temple: he obeyed, and adored Siva; and in consequence he may to this day be seen lying before the image of Siva 388.

There was another pious man named Sancara Doss, who was so potent that a glance of his eye broke any false god to pieces. Jagadeca Mallu reported this to king Ballaha 389.

Basava after telling these legends, assured king Bizzala that the legends of the Saivites were inexhaustible. He then sent word to Baçayya that the king was displeased with him, he therefore attended on the king, who asked him why he had failed to attend the feast made in honor of Govindu. He replied, he is a very secondary god, vastly inferior to Siva 394.

Bachi Devaya then observed to the king, that Krishna and all other gods were vastly inferior to Siva. For, said he, were they really mighty, how does it happen that they cannot vindicate themselves when misfortunes befall them. He added, that neither Jainas nor Bauddhas worshipped the true god: for if they did, why should they disown the veda 399. Again he said, Maia (nature) and the other powers are not divinities, nor are the sun and moon divinities. Were they omnipotent, surely they will not be bound to follow the same undeviating path through the heavens.

Nor has the law of works (Yajna-Carmam sacrifice) any potency. Were they potent, surely the pious Daxa Prajapati would have been saved by his works 410. Surely Siva the lord is alone omnipotent: and his servants are the gods of every town. For Brahma and all the rest are not deities: they are merely his servants 415, 420. I will further declare to you his supremacy. The titles (parama) supreme, &c., can be duly applied to no deity excepting Siva. Vishnu underwent the ten Avataras in consequence of the curse inflicted by Bhrigu. In the silver age, Vishnu appeared as Vyasa and as Krishna, he is not a rival of Siva, being far beneath him, whom I call on you to adore 430. Bachi Devaya further observed that at the conclusion of the ages, Vishnu was repeatedly subjected to annihilation, from which series of deaths Vishnu revived by adoring (Vishweswara) the lord of all. Remember that Vishnu bears on his breast the mark of the kick given him on the breast by the saint Durvasa. And Vishnu derives his name Chacri from having been employed to draw the car of Rucmini.

Besides the rishi (prophet), Upamanya one day swallowed the sea of milk wherein Vishnu was lying asleep. But Vishnu cut his way out of the rishi's belly; besides the giant Jalandhara vanquished Vishnu. And the giant Jarasandha on another occasion conquered him. And the giant Gajasura locked Vishnu up in jail—and his thunderbolts were smashed to bits by Dadhichi. Besides, when Krishna was born a jackass that was there, was prevented from braying by Vasudeva, caught it by the leg. When Siva swallowed the poison and sent the nectar to Vishnu. Vishnu lost his manhood and appeared in the guise of a woman (Mohini) 437. Vishnu was finally expelled from earth for his sins, and took refuge in the midst of the sea. Again, in the Rámaavatar, for his sins he lost his wife and roamed desolate through the earth 438. Then, great hero as he was, Krsihna is well known to have died by the hand of a mountaineer. Why should I add further disgraceful stories of him, it is notorious what a life of debauchery he led, among the milk maids 439. This wretched god was a mere plaything in the hands of Nandikéswara 440. Ultimately he would never have had a son, unless at his request Siva granted him one. In the Fishavatar he was slain by Siva 441. In the tortoise avatar he was again slain by Siva who still wears his skull. And when Siva assumed the Sarabhava avatar, he slew Vishnu in the form of a manlion, and to this day is clothed in the hide 442. And in his hand he bears the boar tusk which he tore out of Vishnu's head when Vishnu in the form of a wild boar assaulted him. In another hand Siva bears the rib of Vishnu which he tore out of his belly when he bore the name Trivicrama (and this is called the Khatwangam). Besides, Vishnu presented Siva with one of his eyes which he wears in his foot. Does not Siva bear the name Hara on account of his depriving Vishnu of his glory. Siva likewise slew Cupid the son of Vishnu. Besides, Brahma lost his head in consequence of his criminal desire for his daughter Saraswati (Minerva) and Siva cut off the hands of Vyasa on account of his declaring Vishnu to be the Supreme Being: besides Siva discomfited no small number of the worshippers of Vishnu 456. It was he who set the universe on fire. It is quite beyond my powers to describe all the might of Siva, one of whose servants would suffice to destroy Vishnu, and all his adorers 461. In his various avatars we always find Vishnu adoring Siva as the deity 466. Further details are added.

After hearing all this, king Bizzala was ashamed to look the Saivas in the face, as the god Gopala whom he had set up was now proved to be nothing 487. The king therefore offered his homage to Baçavya and returned home 495.

Book VII.

Siva Nagamayya was a devout Saivite who was by birth a pariar (chandála) and stayed with Basava. The bramhins went and reported this to king Bizzala—saying that Basava treated this pariar with the highest respect, and adding, that the sin committed by the Minister attaches to the king. The king therefore sent for Basava who came, but brought the pariar sitting in his carriage with him 10. Being excluded from the palace, Basava spread his own shawl and seated the pariar upon it in the verandah 11. He asked the king why he had sent for him. The king replied, you are now acting in such a manner that the whole city will be in confusion as regards caste. If you act in this manner, surely the whole land will be cursed and heaven will withhold its rain 14.

Basava replied, at Godagara there was a bramhin who changed a pariar woman into a bramhin woman by the rite of placing her in a cow, made of gold 16; after which he as usual cut up the image of gold and distributed it to those who assembled. Now if you hold this image to be a cow, those who cut it up were cow slayers [lame logic !] you ought not to listen to those who talk to you of pariars !

Besides, the Vedas laid down but two castes namely (pravartica and nivartaca) the active and contemplative 22, what is the advantage of discussion regarding castes recently instituted ? Surely faith (bacti) alone is caste. Caste devoid of merit is as fruitless as a bar of gold that chances to be in the hand of a beggar. Caste is nothing in comparison of faith. The bramhins around you are wholly inferior to this pariar 28.

For example—There was in olden days a holy man named Sri Pati Pandita who vowed that a million of bramhins were not as good as a single worshipper of Siva—and he declared that if the contrary could be proved, he, would cut his own tongue out. In proof of his supernatural powers he lighted some coals of juniper, and rolled them up in his handkerchief which remained unconsumed.

This wise man swore that the dogs at Siva's house were as good as all the worshippers of Vishnu.

In the town of Halina Halla (Harpon-hully) lived one Calli Devia, a devout man; at this town travellers were incommoded by snakes, which one day bit him; the man recovered from the bite, the snake it was that died. But he brought it to life again, and merely desired it to be more civil in future.

His servant girl went to fetch water, and chanced to touch a brahmin woman; whereupon she threw away her pail as defiled and fetched another. This did not please the brahmins. They asked her master what might be the motive of this act 42. He replied, to touch you would be a defilement even to a dog of a Saivite house. For the phrases, Supreme (Paramatma) and Divine (Para Brahma) appertain to Siva alone. The brahmins were enraged and said what, are we dogs ? Can a dog read the vedas ? Let us try if he can ? 52. He accepted the challenge and called his dogs, who at sight read the vedas, quite as well as the bramhins did 57. Hereupon the priests made a homage, the dog made a bow 62.

Basava further said to Bizzala, there are many houses in which the dogs read the vedas, quite as well as their masters 67.

There was a devotee named Sivachit, who held that a single devotee to Siva outweighed any number of bramhins. So to try, he put a bundle of bramhins in one scale, who were outweighed by his shoe 72.

Another name Bibba Baçayya lived at Gobbur, who to show his faith used to feed the devotees and to live on what they left. Whenever a feast was given to them he attended in his carriage 77. He gathered all their leavings, brought them home in his coach, and subsisted on them. He was reviled by the brahmins for this, and on one occasion he thus made an excursion in his carriage 82, and the brahmins saw him return with the cold meat in his coach. They reviled him 92, but he told them that the food left by the deity is not to be reviled, being nectar and ambrosia in the eyes of devotees, but burns the wicked like fire : he added, that he would have nothing to say to them 96. They were very wroth, and took steps for having his gig stopped. This was done, whereupon he uncovered the dishes 103, and tossed a handful of rice among them, whereupon their houses were all burnt up 108. This annoyed them considerably 113, and they made their bows to him. So he called back the flames which settled in his hand in the form of grains of rice. Then their houses recovered from the effects of fire 124.

Basava further said. There would be no end to the miracles performed by our saints and indeed there is nothing extraordinary, and though this Siva Nagamaya be a pariar, his piety to Siva makes him a dignified saint.

Besides, there was a devotee named Mandhara Dudaya 129, a brahmin who had the leprosy chanced to pass his house and accidently stepped into the drain of the kitchen : on washing his feet from this filth, he was surprised to find them healed. He therefore went and bathed in this water and was completely cured. Then he went and thanked Dudaya for the cure. This reminded the spectators of the legend which describes the sun as having had the leprosy, which was cured by the water wherein the Siva devotee Mandhara had washed his feet. Hereupon seven hundred bramins (bhusur atma) who were lepers came, and were cured at the same pool 135.

There was another devotee named Sivapachaya [i. e. a pariar, or dog eater] who was cooking his dinner in the forest, when a brahmin named Sāma Véda who used to take walks in the skies, chanced to come that way. To prevent his seeing the food, the devotee covered his kettle with his shoe. The brahmin was incensed and said what, is impure flesh to be veiled with an impure shoe, as if my eyes were yet more vile. But at the moment he used this contemptuous language his magic boots deserted him and he came tumbling down at the feet of Sivapachaya and after paying due honor to Siva and obtaining his blessing, he went straight to the paradise of Siva, carrying with him the inhabitants of thirty six towns.

Thus you see that even a pariar who is in the true faith is in truth a brahmin.

There was another devotee named Udbhata who was tutor (guru) to king Bhoja 144. The king's wife was named Tommo Avva. It was reported to the king that an improper familiarity existed between—but the king would not listen to the story 150. Some time after this, the tutor died and the smoke of the funeral pile when he was burnt, ascended through the boughs of a fig tree which was tenanted by seven hundred sprites (bhuta). And so potent was his holiness that this accident rendered them all sinless, and they ascended with him to Cailas. But it seems one of these ghosts was away, collecting food for his fellow friars. Next morning he came home and to his great alarm found none of his companions, he began crying, and his groans frightened the people, so that they went and told the king, who came to see what the matter was. The ghost told him that he and his compeers had assembled in this tree to await the death of Udbhata, as they proposed to make a party with him to Cailas; and he was now unluckily left behind: but, said he, pray do me the favor to relume the remaining sticks of the pyre and if there is smoke enough for me to fly on, I will follow my companions—Don't doubt my truth, to convince you I will carry this fig tree with me.

The king agreed: but with a due regard to his own advantage he first mounted into the tree, seating his wife and children on different branches; so when the tree took flight, they all flew away to Cailas together.

There was a devotee named Cakia, who one day heard a public reader reciting some of the legends wherein he read all the vulgar stories to the honor of Vishnu, but omitted those wherein Siva is the hero 157. He objected to this partiality, and as he could not convince the reader he killed him 173.

There was another of these worthies named Bhogaya and he was a favorite with Siva; who one day came down the street disguised as a man carrying a dead calf on his shoulder. But the worthy went and saluted him and brought him home. The guest said, I never dine but off dead calves, so I beg this one may be dressed for dinner. His host accordingly boiled up the dead calf with his own dinner; whereupon the brahmins were not a little shocked, and rushed into the house, but the god had vanished. They all reviled Bhogaya for being a pariar. He replied, if I am a pariar what brings you all to my house ? 185. As you revile Siva you shall certainly fall into hell. I make you a present of my house, and lands, and shall depart hence.

But at the moment of his departure every image (mark) in the town whether in chaples or private houses took leave with him and the whole place was left godless 196. The people were greatly alarmed ; they followed him and persuaded him to return, whereupon all the various images came home again : but at the desire of Bhogaya several of them changed places 207.

There was a woman named Guddavva who lived at 'Avindágé, who was leprous ; she one day went through the (agraharam) brahmin street, and the brahmins reviled her and turned her out of the town. She wept and set out for Surat where she heard there was a god who could cure her. She therefore set out ; but, as she went on, the leprosy took away her feet ; then she went on, her legs was now taken away. (This resembles the verse in Chevy Chase. For when his legs were smitten off, he fought upon his stumps). She then went rolling along, whereupon Siva appeared visibly to her, he cured her ; and her only request was that the god should for ever be with her. So he granted this, and inflicted the leprosy on the brahmins who had driven her out of the town.

This story shows how imprudent it is to revile those who adore Siva 218.

For, wrapping up a gem in a foul covering will not soil its brilliance. Surely Vyasa, Valmiki, and many others were men of low birth, pariars who notwithstanding became the prophets of the brahmins. Then let us reflect that he who believes in Siva, however degraded he be by birth is the noblest of men 223.

Such was the discourse of Basava which filled king Bizzala with anger. He replied, if a man is wounded, blood flows : if a devotee is wounded, will milk flow ? Why trouble us with stories regarding these wretched brahmins ? give us some proofs regarding them.

Basava replied : brahmins say that killing a cow is the greatest of sins ; yet they will readily slaughter the golden image of a cow and share the limbs. I will show you that milk can flow from the palm of Siva Nagamaya's hand : will you produce so much as water from the hand of any brahmin. If they cannot perform this miracle let them be crucified (carta veyu) for their revilings of the Saivites 239.

So saying, he took Siva Nagamaya by the hand : and by the force of his supernatural touch, abundance of milk flowed from it. Hereupon the prince Bizzala and the people paid him homage 240.

Then Basava mounted Siva Nagamaya on an elephant, and sat at his side, and carried him home 245, accompained by the devout.

(Here follows a long list of their names) 251-2.

Several other persons now began to profess the faith preached by Basava; whereupon king Bizzala received many complaints, that the Saivites were gradually infringing on other creeds; these complaints were made by (boyas) herdsmen, who had now lost the dinners (prasadam), which hitherto they (as cowherds) used to receive from such as formerly worshipped in the temple of Siva.

The king therefore asked Basava how this happened 275. He replied, they have a claim to the (prasada) blessed food bestowed in the Siva temples, but have no right to enter the houses of Jangamas or even to see their food 280. The claimants observed that at (Cási Gaya, Prayaga) all the celebrated sacred cities they enjoyed this privilege: and they added that were it now withheld they would voluntarily die by starvation 286. Basava replied that this did not alarm him, offering them however the usual privilege at the temples. We of the Vira Saiva sect, said he, will not even tolerate the sight of a Saivite. But he added, I shall to-day order a dinner to be prepared of poisoned food, you are welcome to partake of it if you chose 291. They expressed their willingness to eat such food, if their host would eat it with them 296. And, said they, if we see you swallow the poison with impunity we shall relinquish our claim.

Basava consented and sat down with the king to prepare the poison, the very scent of which drove away the (boys) foresters. He proceeded to place the poison in dishes and said grace over it 308. The very gods were terribly alarmed, but Basava desired the retreating foresters to wait and see what Siva would now do 313. He then ate and drank the poison, along with his fellow worthies 319. They then rejoiced in their impunity: he then shared the remainder among his servants 352, and gave some to the horses and elephants 362, all were well pleased.

Bizzala then said surely, thou art greater than Siva: for he did not venture to swallow the poison, he retains it in his throat, but thou has swallowed it with impunity. Thus the foresters relinquished their claim, as this miracle proved it to be of no avail 374.

Another day Basava was invited to dinner by Jagadeca Malla who was an Aradhya. But this being the anniversary of his host's father's death, he as usual assembled some brahmins and washed their feet. At hearing of this Basava was much displeased: Jagadeca Malla thereupon went to him: but he at first refused even to see him; saying it is a great crime in those who adore Siva to honor any other gods 385,

He now told him this story. There was one Eleswara Ketaya who was one of the worthies; the unfaithful detested him and burnt down his barns: he merely scattered the ashes over the fields, and forthwith a large crop arose 397. So his enemies stole his cattle; but it was quite in vain, for the cows had too much loyalty to eat or drink unless at the desire of their master 402. So the thieves were much concerned, and let them go home again. But when they came back he would not let them be in the outer yard: the people of the village took pity on them and gave them fodder 403. But the cows were two sensible to eat the grass of vulgar people and bellowed their prayers to Ketaya, in whose house their calves were, and heard them. Ketaya now let them in, and the moment they saw the image they bowed down to it, and then ate their meal 414.

Thus you see, said Basava that a cow in a worthy's house has more religion than a Saivite has; then how can you be so brutish as to wash the feet of brahmins 416.

There was another worthy named Savarada Navayya, whose wife bore him a son. He immediately invested the new-born babe with the image, whereupon his wife instantly bore another son. But he had no image ready to invest the second child with, and therefore told her to abandon it 419, and like an obedient wife she obeyed.

Basava further asked him how can I convince you of the supremacy of Siva? It is as idle as trying to teach a blind man what light is 425. Your conduct is as foolish as using a golden plough, and then sowing thistles 437. Consider how fruitless were the sacrifices offered to brahmins by Gáutama, Dadhichi, Daesha, Bala, Chacraverti, and others. No honors that you can offer to brahmins can be equal in merit to the worship of the image.

Jagadeca Malla was convinced of his folly; and offered thanks to Basava 443, who now spoke to him kindly and said, after a short time there will happen a dreadful crime here: and you are to slay him who commits it: after which Siva will appear visibly to you.

Convinced by these arguments, Malla renounced all intercourse with brahmins; whereupon Basava again became his friend 449.

There were two worthies named Allya and Madupaya who always were in attendance on Basava: the king Bizzala caused their eyes to be put out; but Basava, and the other worthies restored them their eyes: after which they blotted out all the accounts kept in the royal treasury. They now sent for Jagadeca Malla, and told him that the appointed time was come for him to slay an offender 455. Basava now retired from the town, which was immediately filled with every sort of outrage ; so much so that the worthies fled and were scattered through all lands But Malla went home without killing king Bizzala : when his mother reproached him for failing to obey the command of Basava 461. She said, surely if they wished it, the worthies were well able to do the deed themselves ; they entrusted you with it only as a favor conferred on you 467. If you disobey them, I wish you may become a dog and live on (prasadam) rice given in charity.

Hereupon Malla was treated as a dog and fed on rice, which his mother cast on the floor for him 472. But this pitiful tale was told to Malla Bramhaya, and other worthies who came and comforted him ; nay, they dined off his leavings. They then led him to the palace of Bizzala 477, whom these three men slew. After which they returned home : Malla paid homage to his mother. Then they all reflected on the sin they had committed, and proposed to kill themselves. Whereupon Siva appeared visibly, and carried them all to Cailas 482.

After the death of Bizzala, Basava went back to the temple of Cudali Sangameswar, where he prayed the god to take him to himself 488. Hereupon the god came out of the temple and appeared in visible form, Basavana saluted him with adoration, whereupon the god (aikyam chesuconnádu) took him to himself, while all the people sung his praise 499.

Then all the worthies adored Basava, as being himself Isvara 504.

The poet concludes the volume by apologizing for the meanness of performance, in recording the History of Basava.

The reader has probably had enough of the older Basava purânam; lengthy enough, saucy enough and shocking enough. While this equals the other in many points, save the catastrophe, it is more ludicrous; and aims its sarcasms specially at the Brahmans in a way too gross, and obscene for detail. Two specimens may suffice, and of these the abstract only could not be quoted with common decency. One relates to a very handsome young Brahman who let himself out to hire to various persons. A middle aged wealthy man had two wives; the elder of whom became madly enamoured of this Brahman, and ran all risks. The younger wife locked the pair in; but the husband, on his return home, found that Siva had interposed; and the husband turned all his rage against the younger wife, for false information. In another case, a king had a very celebrated guru, or spiritual preceptor. It happened that Dombra mountebanks came to the town; and a woman of the company, hearing of the fame of the guru, determined to play him a trick. She succeeded, in a way detailed: and the Brahman became so infatuated, as to leave his post, after the company had quitted, and to rejoin his temptress in the gipsy-camp. When proposing to return, tears and prayers were used; and the simpleton followed the camp to Benares, and lost his caste. It is not surprising that the Brahmans bitterly revile, and detest the Jangamas.

"This book being so voluminous I wished to have it abridged by leaving out the verbose theological discussions, and preserving only the legends which are very amusing."

"In 1841 this work was well edited, under my directions, by Vira Bhadra, a learned Jangama guru who adopted the present volumes as the basis of the new edition which he has prepared."

"This roughly written volume (vol. 2nd) is of great value. It was prepared under my directions, and the interlineations preserve the various readings found in six manuscripts."

An English abstract of the 1st volume is contained in the book. As already done in several instances, it is here given in full and correctly. It is perhaps desirable that such books should be drawn out of obscurity to the light of day; for they illustrate a system by its own votaries: and it is better if the abstract is rather edited, than made.

The following abstract is copied from the book.

Laud of Basavanna—Praise of the saints who preceded Basavanna. I will sing the tale of Pandit Aradhya. Laud of him. Laud of three Pandits, viz., Mallicarjuna Pandit, Manchana Pandit, Sri Pati Pandit. Description of Sri Sailam. Description of Sri Sailam continued. Description of the hermits there. You have already composed the Basava Puran. The Veman Aradhya is the name of the descendants of—the Poet's description of himself, Lénk, a child—I am the child of a handmaid in Basavana's house. And my name is Palcuriki Somanādha. Description of those who shall hear this tale. The Poet selects Surapa Raz to be his hearer. I shall use verses and rhymes, but let not my book be looked on as mere poetry. It is fact—it is veracity. Discussion on verse and metre, on rhetoric and refinement. Whenever I quote passages from the Vedas, I use these signs. I use the Dwipada metre because I treat of the dwipada, two worlds—the present and the next ! ! ! I dedicate the book to Basaven. End of the Preface. Dedication to. Why was Pandit Arádhya bonr on earth? He was born to unite all the virtues of all the old prophets. Siva directs the Pandit Aradhya to descend on earth, at the village of Draesharam. There is Bhima Pandit who has hitherto prayed for offspring in vain. Be thou born as his son. Wherefore he was accordingly conceived in the womb of Gauramba. And when born, he was named Mallic Arjuna Pandita (he is the hero of this poem). Description of the Dixa Cramam or discipleship. The Brahmins, objected to the observances of the Aradhya. The Aradhya proves from the Vedas that it is proper to use Bhasmam. God placed your foreheads across the eyes—not upright. Ergo, we use the cross mark ! ! More discussions to establish the necessity of the Vibhuti. Same subject, " He delighteth in ashes ! !" Reviling him as a Sudra who wears the upright mark ! ! ! On the same topic—manava puran ? What book is this ? Let all who wear not the Vibhuti be expelled the land by the king—or the realm will be ruined ! ! ! Curses on all who are opposed to the creed. Laud of the Rudraxa Dharana or Rozary. Laud of the Rudraxa—on the virtues of the holy water—in which a confessor's feet have been washed (pādōdacam). On holy water. Rules for drinking the dirty holy water. Lingarchana Vidhi. On the virtues of Linga Puja—miraculous gifts gained in the older ages by those who were then devout in worship. Blessings bestowed on those who worship an Emblem of gold, of silver, of crystal, and so forth. Boons gained by those who worshipped various images of the Emblem. On Prasada Mahima. Discussion on Naivedyam. Dispute between Vyasa and Jáimini. On the texts supposed to declare such Siva Naivedyam unlawful. The Emblem is like the father of the worshipper. That Siva is the creator of all that we can offer to him. The entire argument tends to show that the worship of the Emblem is binding on all Brahmins. Vaisvadeva—Faith is the one qualification for Siva puja. To judge from some of the rites that all brahmins use, they are already in the Saiva faith—though they deny it. As criminal as offering retas in sacrifice. Let not the remnants of funeral oblations be offered to Siva. They who profess not this faith are jackass Brahmins and pariars. Discussion on the rites used at funerals. All these discussions tend to prove that say what they may, all Brahmins are of the Saiva faith. Urging the sanctity and profitableness of Prasádam—more discussion on the point whether viands offered to Saiva are to be eaten. Citation from the Vatula Tantram. Fable of the serpent who drank the water in which Siva had washed his feet, and therefore became 'Adi-sesha the serpent who supports the world. More citations from the Veda, &c., to prove that the worship of Siva is supreme. On the Siva nirmalya grahanam. Ghanta carna, a devotee to Siva threw away the flowers after sacrificing, and because the sun dried them up he cursed the sun. The sun begged him to help him out of the scrape, and was told to drink the water in which Manóhara had washed his feet. To try the faith of the boy, Siva turned one of the flowers he was offering, into a worm. The boy did not throw it away, but put it on his head, the worm forthwith eat up his strength and vigour. Wherefore Siva blessed him. This was Durvasa. He went to Dwaraca and visited Krishna and Rucmini. After he had dined, he gave the remnant to his host Krishna, saying, I smear this all over your body. Krishna failed to apply it to his foot, wherefore he was not invulnerable, and was slain by a boy's arrow. THEREFORE you see the blessing of consecrated food!! The feasts of Naradu. The sun was so frightened that he tumbled down on earth. Here begins the legend of Surasanamma wife of a brahmin. She was a faithful worshipper of Siva. Her husband died. The brahmins complained to the king. She lived most like a mad woman in devotion to Jangams. And that she had a pariar man for a priest. She is publicly given up to pariars, though living among us brahmins. The king required them to show him the pariar actually in her house. In her house they waited; a miserable cobbler came there. She gave the cobbler supper. Then the brahmins surrounded the house to catch him in it. List of the names of the brahmins. Among them was one leading brahmin, who said arddha bindu. They heard him eating, and drinking in the house. They attempted to enter the house. She opposed them. She said, you little know that he who is hid in my house verily is Siva himself. They searched the house. But he was not found. She told them that perhaps he was gone to eat a calf, which another devotee had sacrificed to him. They went to search there; but he was not forthcoming. Bhogayya quitted the town, but along with him all the various lingams disappeared. She finished this story, and began telling another fable. Somavedi once on a time celebrated a Yajna; a slanting division of the hair, such as the English use. Whereupon Siva and Parvati came to him disguised as pariars. Siva carrying a dead calf on his shoulder. They came, and Somavedi and his wife prostrated themselves to the disguised gods, he took the dead calf and went into the house, all the brahmins ran away. He seated the pariar pair on the altar, and washed their feet. Three sorts of holy water. Pad odacam, Ling-odacam, Prasad-odacam. So the calf was roasted and was offered to Siva. Whereupon the god was pleased to lay aside his disguise. He replied to the god thus:—You have never pleased to eat offerings. There was one Dasamayya who gave the god a shirt, but no dinner. There was also one Cheru Tonda Bhactu who offered her son to the god. Ballahu gave you his wife. Gundaya also. Yet you did not condescend to eat what all these saints offered you. But you was pleased to eat what was offered to you by —— Hereupon the god was pleased to partake of the sacrifice. The god rewarded him by carrying him to heaven. This is the story of the Vira Bhadra Vijayam. To honor the pious by charity is far superior to performing burnt offerings. Surely as a woman knows her husband under any disguise, so the pious man knows the god. In the Tamil land was a certain brahmin who gained money by labour and offered it to Siva. He lived at Benupur. One year as usual he went to the festival to sell grass. He happened one night to be locked out of the fort, a flood took place. He was up to the waist in water. It rained hard. This unlucky hap was spied by Siva. The god came on his elephant, released him, took him home and vanished. The legend of Kackayya. The legend of Madura Dudaya. Now for the story of Madara Dudaya. There was a fountain that cleansed the leprous. Bijala Raya to find out which faith was right, wounded Siva Nagamia, whose veins proved to be filled with nectar or milk; while those of the brahmins were full of vulgar blood. Your foolish trust in caste is mere self-deception. The Smartas believe in 25 tatwams; the Vaishnavas believe in 28; the Vira Saivas believe in 36; the Saetas in 96. Marvelling, they exclaimed, this beats the legend of the Venga Cayas turned into Lingas. And the story of the pint turned into a lingam; and the legend of Cota Colaya, this beats them all!!! They said we have in old days heard these tales—now we witness a marvel quite as great. The brahmins revile themselves, as worse than pariars; the homage offered by the devotees. On the benefits of Bhuti snanam, or bathing in ashes. Mallicarjana Pandit Aradhya begins to prepare for Siva puja. Linga puja described, compare the Curma Puran iv, 87, 118. Mallicarjana's eyes were fixed on the lingam. His glances were attracted by the idol. Titles wherewith he lauded the lingam. Sancara Gitalu, Ananda Gita Basava Gitalu. Such were is hymns to Siva. A quotation from the Veda. Laud of the unrivelled Pandit Malleswar Aradhya. After the worship terminated he was visited by —— while he was worshipping they came to him, he rose to receive them: whereupon the Monad in his hand rose and stood in the air. Laud of Jangams. They are verily the actual deity. Same laud of Jangams. Thus did he laud the sect when he received his visitors. He who adores the lingam, devoid of the Jangam creed, might as well adore a corpse after decking it finely!!! This signifies that beneficence to devout men is vastly superior to mere adoration of the idol. Surely the worshipper to whom you give the sacred bread is him whom you adore, that is, the image of god—the god has two mouths, viz., the guru being between the god and the worshipper is like a two-headed eagle. What avails watering a dead fence. It is profitable to give milk to snakes, but if you kill the snake and offer milk to an image thereof, what will it avail you. You might as well try to eat with the back of your neck. Then consider that relieving the faithful is a sacrifice to god. All this tends to show that the living jangam is infinitely superior to the mere image. Then let me be only the mere dog of the Jangam's house, this is the highest of honor. Laud of Mallicarjana Pandit. We have now witnessed all we formerly heard regarding thee. Thou wast deity before the birth of all the gods were born. Then wast thou Vrishabha, therefore is Nandi thy vehicle; then was Nandikeswara born Ayonija, as son of Siláda. Then was Nandikeswara born as Bassavanna in the Carnata country—at Hinguléswara as the son of Mandenga Madi Raz and his wife Madamba. Reasons or which he was thus born as a man.

Thus Basavanna was born to abolish all the Purv Asrama Dhermam, or ceremonial law. Baladeva Danda Naik, minister to Bijála, gave him in marriage his daughter Gangamamba. And his sister Nagamba lived in his house at Cappadi—after the death of the minister, Basavanna was put in his room. And Chenna Basavanna was his disciple. Names of other bhacta—miracles. The story of the Vanga Cayas substituted for monads. More miracles. There was a certain Sangaya who thought proper to covet and pray for Siva's divine eye. As a milkmaid's pail slipt down, she cried out, O Basava! and he caught it up. Another tale a woman named Mayi Devamma prayed Chevi ācu, the leaf rolled up and inserted in the ear. Siva Nagam Aya was a pariar. Basava took him by the head. Basavanna reproached them for despising him, as being low born. You are not his equal. He held up his hand and it streamed with nectar. Wherefore they adored him. Another story. There was another Minda Jangam whose wife made him ask Basava to give him his wife's petticoat—the more she unrolled her petticoat—the more there was. So he cut off as much as he wanted and gave it to his langa. Certain Boyas offered him poison to eat as a proof that he was a god. He did eat it with impunity. Eating the poison brought on sleepiness. One day he became one with the monad, i. e. died. Then his disciple Chenna Basavanna adored him and said, Thou art now like the waveless deep, or the still breeze on the cloudless sky. The laud, or song of praise. Thou hast sacrificed thy soul to the deity. You appear to be now in full enjoyment of the eight blessings. Surely he hath mentally embraced the god. She sent her heart to call her lover—but her heart never returned to her. Description of the progress of love in ten grades. Thus is the Monad the husband, the spouse of my soul. Thus hath the saint Basava's soul now become one with his divine lord. As a plantain bud is nothing but fold upon fold, let the body be given to the monad; let our soul be given to god, and the wealth to the poor. End of the hymn. Intelligence of Basava's death was sent to his disciples. All these hermits (bhactis) and a few millions more assembled—total 196,000, Jihvaná 12,000 Minda Jangams ; 197,000 Jangams assembled to know why he died. The Chenna Basavanna began to tell them the tale as follows:—Saying, he is dead because his soul is gone on visit. Sangamésvara (the guru of Basavanna) is our witness; at the approach of this saint, the life returned to Basavanna just as Kinnera formerly revived from death. How did that happen ? I will tell you. Kinnera Brahmaya's soul was one with Basava's, who therefore wept at his death. Lamentations. Basava's lamentations. Thus did he grieve and lament. The message was sent. While he thus lamented, Madivala Maçayya laughed at hearing of his grief. Thus Madivala Maçayya was a washerman, and was Basava's great instructor. Maçayya reproaches Basava for wailing like a woman at the death of a great Saint. What am I to come and weep with you. They reported to Basavanna this rude message. So he gave his life to the corpse, and fell dead. The astonishment of the bystanders. Madivala Maçayya therefore came to Basavanna, and restored him to life. Basavanna recovered his life. The assembly applaud him. Thou, O Maçayya ! who didst formerly crush the pride of king Bizzala. Tangatur Maçayya. Some are Linga Prani, others are Prana Linga. Thus did the assembly laud the great Basava. And O! Mallicarjana Pandita! surely thou art as mighty as Basavanna himself—exclaimed Surasanamma and Vemanáradhya. Thus ends the chapter on Dixa. One day when Mallic Arjuna and his disciples arose from sleep before dawn. Description of the hour before dawn. They rose and gathered flowers for worship. Sweta dropt a flower. Description of the garden. There was a devotee named Vellagonda Mahadeva who performed matins. Description of the garden. He selected such flowers as not even the beehad tasted. Accidentally his foot touched one of the consecrated vessels—wherefore he cut off both his feet and put them as a gift before the god. Pandit Aradhya was delighted at seeing this devotion. His speech—he who can dispel constitutional fever. His applause of this foot. Mallic Arjuna put his amputated feet on his head and swore they were the feet of Siva. His laud of these lopt feet. Pandita radhya embraced him. All the spectators hailed him. His feet were restored to him by Mallic Arjuna. Here begins the legend of Caliamba. This man was very pious, he washed the feet of the pious and drank this as holy water. This filthy water is precious as mother's milk. Blessings on him who drinks this nastiness. Then a slave's son assumed a saint's garb, and came to have his feet washed. His name was Ippanna. The wife detected him. What said she to her husband will you gain heaven like ——— and ——— and ——— by such folly—you had much better. The husband was quite shocked at hearing his wife's common sense. He reproached her. Surely, said he, this is no slave's brat, but the god himself. Verily this scamp as you think him is Mahadeva himself. So he cut his wife's hands off. The saints approved of this severity, and told several stories to justify it. He used to make a lingam of sand, and offer milk to it. Another named Cata Cotaya used to make a lingam of goats dung and offer milk to it, his father reproached him for this folly—wherefore he cut his father's legs off. Besides there was a woman named Memmavva who slew her son, for daring to taste a dinner prepared for a Jangam who was in truth Siva—the god therefore took her to Cailas. Another tale. There was a king of Chola named Chodudu. His wife, in a famine, opened her granaries to the public. The king's relations died of hunger—both M.SS. agree? false prasa. Another tale. There was a king, Narasinga in the Dravida. He offered a flower to the god—as his wife smelled it he cut her nose off. The Pujari told him his wife's hands ought to be cut off. All these stories justify Caliamba. Now comes the story of Pilla Nainara. Pilla Nainar came to visit Caliamba.

Pilla Nainar gave her his blessing—so her amputated hands came back again. Cumara Swami was born on earth, in the name, or form of this Pilla Nainar. He came to Madhura, where he met with a certain Velama. There was a man living in this Velama's family—but the Velama, instead of giving him a daughter in marriage, gave them all to others. The youngest daughter eloped with him—as they went, he died of a snake bite. As she wept, Pillanainar came there and hearing her, restored life to him. Vagisa Nainar had a daughter and vowed to bestow her on Pilla Nainar. She died one day—the father reflected that, if she was dead, he could not keep his promise. So he put her bones in an urn. Whereupon, by casting some holy ashes on her, she came to life again. In like manner his amputated feet were restored to him. This Mahadevaya—this fellow probably is a make-believe saint. The great end of all this talk is to prove that every Jangama is actually Siva. They all begged his pardon. Enmity with the bad is preferable. He has blest them who struck him, what will he do to those who bless him. Another tale. There was one guru Bhactaya, he washed his master's feet. Similar nonsense to prove that the Jangam is the same as the Lingam. Laud of the guru as being the same as the god. So his legs were all well again, as his feet were restored. With a view to spreading the fame of him who cut his own legs off, his guru enthroned him—all were scandalized at the guru ; thus honoring the disciple. The other disciples reviled him for obeying the guru in seating himself on the throne. So the guru desired all of them to go, and sit on an impaling stake. They refused—whereupon the guru desired his favorite to go, and sit on that stake : he obeyed—the stake pierced him through. So sitting in the air he saluted the guru. The guru reproaches his other disciples. Behold he looks upon the crown and the cross as one. Laud of the impaled martyr. Now begins a new legend. There was an actress named Praudhavati. Bhact Andari caught a glimpse of her. He sighed to find himself smitten with the arrows of Cupid. He meditated in texts in the Siva Puran and Suta Samhita that would authorize his love. If I consecrate my lusts to Siva they will be sinless. He sent a chum of his to persuade her to come to him—but she refused. He desired her to let him love her. He described himself to her as a perfect professor of the art of lust. She refused to have him. Her speech continued. She produces all sorts of arguments to deter him. Saying, that she had consecrated her charms to Siva and his Jangams. I am no cousin of yours. I won't have you for a husband. Chastity has imperishable renown. Besides said she, you know what devils we actresses are. I suppose this is an error for Sammini. A string of abusive phrases. Thus you see what devils, dancing girls are. A string of abusive phrases. Crimes committed by prostitutes. This will suffice for once. Personal defects brought on by whoring. Nitoembam the filth of the yoni. Calugōta, a stone gate. Now let us consider the comforts they pretend they find in whoring. First you lose your character, then your eyes. These senve evils shall befall you. They never think you have any hold on them but they stick to you like leeches. They balance like scales—and a penny weight more will turn them the other way—same discourse. Let then the faithful ever shun prostitutes. This closed her sermon. But he was not to be contradicted. So she again resumed her homily—hear me. I will describe the interview between Rambha or Venus, and him who desired to have her. She smiled at Sweta—he asked her what made her laugh. Rambha reproached him for his profligacy. One day as he was bringing some flowers for his lanja, he dropt one. His reply. Her reply. She said, to embrace me is but a momentary delight. I will give you perpetual delight. This she points out to be in holiness and austerity. So he became a slave of the temple. One day Mahadeva the god appeared to him. When Yama's messengers tried to seize him, and carry him to hell—but were disappointed as Siva shielded him. Then Yama himself came to catch his soul, but he caught it himself, as Siva thrashed him. Moral. Let every man listen to the counsel of the woman he likes! She now proceeds to relate another legend about Malhaundu. He had a bogamadi—she loved him and hated her mother—the old woman reproached her daughter—the old woman reproaches—more revilings. So she got rid of him and gave her daughter to a Raja. Malhana grieved at losing the girl. The lover's grief at losing his love. Everything he saw reminded him of her. To get a peep at his love he lay hid at her house. She rinsed her mouth and chanced to spit it over her pet Malhana. I did not see you were there. Conarder, said she, the pleasure you wish is a mere nothing at all. As he was sleeping with his hands on her breast he fancied it to be a monad. Malhana began musing on the celebrated verses in Sanscrit. Thus the lanja and her dam and her parrot all went to heaven together. Then let every man listen to woman's consent. There was a king, Cumara Palakurjara who was a Vira Saiva. He was one day playing at socatalu with his wife. Here all the backgammon phrases are used in a divinity sense!! While thus playing he laughed—his wife asked the reason. She stopped playing, and hung down her head in grief. Pray what makes you laugh? Then tell me what made you laugh. In reply, he again laughed and said. There was a certain saint named Ohiludu in the land of Saurashtra or Surat. Here begins the story of Ohilai. This Ohilai perpetually offered frankinsense to Somesa. List of the perfumes he offered in his fumitory. Description of his joy in offering his incense. All this displeased the Gaula hermits. The hermits were all in a fume at his fumigation. There was a spider who worshipped the god, and was hated by an elephant. The spider got into his trunk and killed him. There was one Sankhya Tonda, a Jain who daily offered 100 pebbles to Siva. He bullied Siva into appearing. The Gaula hermits forbid Ohilai to go into the temple. So he was obliged to wait till night—then he got in and worshipped the monad. The monks determined to starve him out of the town, by persuading the people to refuse him alms. So he took leaves and grass for food, and throve very well—on such thin diet. This word dirisi appears in all the M.SS. but one which says némi: another day, Ohilai went to the forest as usual for perfumes. A thorn pierced his foot, but lame as he was he went on. Then the god Somésa put on the shape of a Chensu or savage and approached Ohilai. Description of the garb. The god was accompanied by the Vedâs in the shape of four dogs. Siva's speech to Ohilai. Siva offered to pull out the thorn out of his wound, when the thorn was drawn, there flowed not blood, but ashes. Siva cured him with a leaf. So he was carried to Cailasam. Another tale. Thus all the saints went to heaven. Then Ohilai's wife was annoyed at his going to heaven alone. Surely he was devout, and thou art not. The Chola saints. There was a great saint named Murkha Nainaru—who used to live by gambling and gave the proceeds to jangams. Whereupon to try his faith, Siva disguised himself as a gambler, and lost all to him. Then Siva let him into the secret saying, I am a jangam. Whereupon he offered to cut off his own head as a due punishment for plundering a jangam. Whereupon the god appeared to him and offered to give him what he pleased—he replied, pay me what you have lost, as it is the wealth of the church.
